AL SMITH BOOM FADES AS DRY LAWS STAY DRY

Democrats Up in Air for a Candidate.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

New York, Sept. 22.—[Special.]—Gov. Al Smith's boom for the presidency as a fearless young leader arisen to light the way back to sanity on the question of drink, temperance, and prohibition appears to have fizzled out.

When the New York governor signed the repealer of the Mullan-Gage state prohibition enforcement act there were numerous Democratic leaders here and elsewhere who had visions of the country revolting against prohibition and putting Al Smith in the White House with a whoop as a token of widespread repudiation of the Volstead law. The revolution was to start with other states following the example of New York in repealing state enforcement legislation.

The wets are now wondering when the "revoluting" is to begin. There is no sign of it yet. Attempts were made in the Illinois, Wisconsin, and other legislatures to repeal state enforcement acts, but met with complete failure.

Dixie Won't Be Stampeded.

The southern Democrats refused to be lured to the Smith standard by his application of their traditional states right doctrine to the liquor question.

As a net political result of his action the governor has a first lien on the New York delegation to the Democratic national convention which a veto of the repealer might have cost him and the friendly sympathy of Democratic organizations in Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Jersey, and Illinois.

That will not win Smith the Democratic nomination for President and this fact is now pretty generally recognized hereabouts. He might be nominated for Vice President, leading Democrats opine, with a view to carrying New York and other neighboring wet states, where he is popular.

Brennan in New York.

When George Brennan, Illinois Democratic leader, was here last week conferring with the governor and Boss Murphy of Tammany hall, rumors were afloat of schemes to put over a ticket composed of Senator Oscar Underwood [Ala.], for President, and Al Smith for Vice President. Inasmuch as Senator Underwood is classed as a wet, that combination would be more humid than necessary or advisable, and consequently it is deemed more likely that if Smith should be given second place on the ticket it would be as running mate to a western dry.

Some Democrats think that a ticket composed of McAdoo and Smith, or Ralston of Indiana, and Smith, would be ideal, catching the voters going and coming, inasmuch as McAdoo and Ralston are classed as drys. It may be stated parenthetically, however, that neither Mr. Brennan nor Mr. Murphy has suggested this combination. They are enamored of neither McAdoo nor Ralston.

Disagree as to Entries.

Mr. Brennan looks forward to casting the vote of Illinois for either Representative Rainey or John Barton Payne, while Mr. Murphy expects to cast the vote of New York for Gov. Smith until other arrangements are arrived at.

William Randolph Hearst has ceased to annoy the Democratic organization for the nonce, at least, with his presidential aspirations. He has resumed the rôle of Tammany Tiger baiter, temporarily forsaken during his ill-fated courting of the support of all Democratic factions for the gubernatorial nomination last year; and, with no chance of getting the convention delegation away from Smith, will seek political preferment, if at all, by the third party route.

If Smith should not land on the national ticket he will be subjected to great pressure to become a candidate for a third term at Albany. With his popularity in his own state apparently undiminished, he undoubtedly would add strength to the national ticket in New York as a candidate for governor.

What the Future Indicates.

It looks now as if the Republican candidate for governor will be either [illegible] Roosevelt, classed as a wet, or William Hayward, United States [illegible], who espoused the dry side of the argument.

The failure of the Smith attack on the Volstead act to gain popularity is attributed by the drys to satisfaction with prohibition and by the wets to the ease with which drinkers can get liquor. Whisky is said to be more plentiful than ever in New York now [illegible] price lower, and those who [illegible] are represented as not [illegible] about modification of

MAX FORCED TO THE 38TH HOLE BY SWEETSER

Loser Ill as He Meets Many Stymies.

BY HUGH FULLERTON

After twelve years of working and waiting and nine attempts to capture the crown, Maxwell Marston of Philadelphia finally won the amateur golf championship of America on the thirty-eighth hole of a heartbreaking battle at Flossmoor yesterday. He defeated Jesse Sweetser, the champion.

Never did a champion fight harder and more gamely than the blonde boy from Bronxville, and the breaks of the game, coupled with a serious attack of stomach trouble, enabled Marston to win.

Three times playing the last four holes of the match Sweetser was laid stymie, and, with the match at his mercy, when he seemed to have snatched victory from defeat, Sweetser made a marvelous effort to make his ball curve around a dead stymie, missed, and Marston, refusing to be denied, fought on to the short second hole, where Sweetser again was stymied and beaten. Which proves that luck turns, for Sweetser last year won his title through the agency of stymies—and the luck turned against him.

Another Tourney Upset.

The defeat of Sweetser was another of the crashing overturnings of the dope that have marked the entire week. At noon he had led Marston all the way and was two up. His golf was not quite as good as that he had been playing, and it was noticed that his face was drawn and his expression haggard. At noon he was ill, and refused to eat, but was persuaded to take a small amount of food.

Then, playing the short second hole, he was seized with severe cramps, wabbled badly, lost two holes, and, with his face gray and drawn, rallied and fought again.

He carried the match all square to the seventh hole, across the water, where Marston dropped within a few inches of the cup, came near holing in one, and took the hole. For the first time he was up—and on the next he piled up his lead to two.

Gallery Gets Excited.

By that time the immense gallery scented a battle worthy of golf history. Sweetser, collecting his strength, took the tenth hole, and Marston seemed to go to pieces for a few moments. He shot badly, missed a two and a half foot putt on ten, and then fired into the trap guarding the eleventh, failed to get out on the first try, and the match was squared again.

The big gallery, racing, sprinting for position was adding much to the troubles of the golfers. In vain the officials, the Boy Scouts, and the rope carriers strove to hold them. Whenever an official called for quiet the crowd broke forth in joyous sounds.

To yell, "Keep out of the traps," meant to send an army tearing into them. The crowds pressed into the fairways, crowded the players, and after each shot started on sprint races.

Each Misses Putts by Hair.

Marston made a magnificent out from a trap on the twelfth and managed to halve the hole by dropping his longer putt; and they halved the thirteenth, each missing putts by a fraction of an inch. Sweetser shot wretchedly at the fourteenth, his second shot being badly played, and he lost. But he rallied again on the fifteenth. His tee shot was perfect, while Marston's was half behind a tree, and he had to play short, while Sweetser dropped his ball twelve feet from the cup and won when Marston was short.

Coming up the long swale toward the clubhouse for the sixteenth hole, the crowd was growing wild. It rushed, fought, and scrambled for positions. Sweetser reached the back of the green with his second shot, and Marston was short. The Yale boy ran up forty feet and almost dropped the putt, winning the hole when Marston missed a three footer.

Great Shot by Marston.

Followed a sprint race for 4,000 persons toward the scene of the most dramatic incident of the day.

Both shot straight and true down the fairway, and Sweetser, using an iron, was just at the edge of the green. Marston used a spoon and was off the corner of the green, but closer to the pin. Sweetser was away, and his run up was sluggish and the ball stopped short. Marston pitched on, the ball ran up, stopped, and Sweetser was laid a dead stymie—the fourth violent one he had met during the day.

The boy, sick and haggard, studied despairingly for several minutes. Then he took his iron, hit a shot with a cut

LAKE WRECKAGE INDICATES LOSS OF FRUIT BOAT

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 22.—The first clew to the possible fate of the missing fruit boat Forelle was obtained tonight when a telegram was received in Milwaukee declaring that grape baskets and other wreckage had been sighted two miles off the coast at Kenosha, Wis.

The telegram was sent by Arthur Lahmann, brother of a member of the crew of the ill fated boat.

Other reports of floating wreckage began to come shortly afterward.

The Forelle, which carried a crew of five men, left St. Joseph, Mich., last Wednesday for Milwaukee. It was due Thursday.

All day today a grim faced, weather beaten veteran of sixty years of service on the great lakes stood at the wheel of a small fishing tug, his gray eyes scanning the waters of Lake Michigan for the Forelle, on board of which was his son. The aged man is William Lahmann Sr.

TRAP AND SHOOT 2 BLACKMAILERS

Police Lie in Wait in the Home of Victim.

An infrequent ending of a "Black Hand" case came last night when Detective Sergeants Downey and Meagher sent two Italian extortioners to the Bridewell hospital with bullet wounds from which one of them may die. Not only that, but the policemen gathered evidence on which to convict the pair of extortion before shooting it out with them in the home of their intended victim, Joe Albino, 1536 Edgemont street.

The wounded prisoners are Dominick Lario, 2062 Kendall street, who is not expected to live, and Aricio Monaco, 2023 Taylor street, who was acquitted of a murder in Chicago Heights several months ago.

Letters Demand Money.

Albino, a track foreman employed by the Metropolitan L, received a letter on Aug. 28 demanding $5,000. The usual threats were made. Three or four more letters came. Finally, Albino took the letters to his friend, Detective Sergeant Paul Riccio, who lives at 1032 South Ashland avenue. Riccio instructed him to negotiate with the men to come to his home last night.

Downey was secreted in a closet in the dining room and Meagher in a bedroom. Five hours they waited and, finally, Lario and Monaco appeared. Albino and Monaco were friends ten years ago when both were with a construction gang working for the Belt line and Monaco evidently had kept track of the former's thrift and prosperity.

Trapped by Marked Bills.

By prearrangement, Albino handed them $200 in marked bills. Lario seized them.

"That's all I got now," Albino apologized.

Lario ripped out an oath and ordered Albino to "go out and borrow some more, quick." Downey leaped from the closet; Lario grappled with him and reached for a gun. Monaco drew a gun, but dropped to the floor with two bullet wounds from Meagher's revolver before he had time to use it. Downey fired three times, two of the bullets hitting Lario in the left eye and a third in the shoulder. The marked bills are being held as evidence.

MAJ. DENMAN'S BROTHER SHOT; QUESTION WOMAN

Philip Denman, former policeman and a brother of Maj. Albert Denman, who was recently appointed chief of the Wilmette police, was shot, probably fatally, last night by a companion, whose identity he failed to divulge.

PHILIP DENMAN.

The shooting took place in an apartment at 3833 Indiana avenue. Denman and the unknown man had gone there to see about a room.

"While I was in another part of the apartment," declared Mrs. Pearl Davis, the landlady. "I heard a shot. I rushed down the hall and found Denman lying on the carpet, with blood streaming from a wound. His companion was gone."

The police took the injured man to Mercy hospital. Before he lost consciousness they questioned him about the shooting, but he refused to talk about it.

Two Women Claim Dog; Decision Is Up to Him

Judge Peter H. Schwaba wrinkled his judicial brow yesterday. Mrs. Anna Ruda, 2258 North Central avenue, and Mrs. Charles Pastegal, 2303 Parkside avenue, both offered testimony proving conclusively that they owned a certain collie dog. Both women said their children could not be happy without the dog. "We'll let the dog decide," said the judge at last, with a sigh of relief. So the two women and the canine will be in court next Saturday.

Pronounced Dead After Shock; Adrenalin Saves Him

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—Although Frank L. Mann, 40, was declared dead when police took him to St. Mary's hospital after a 7,500 volt electric current had passed through him, Dr. O. H. Gillette, an interne, resorted to the use of adrenalin. Fifteen drops were injected into Mann's body. Within two hours he had revived and, despite serious burns, he is rapidly recovering.

600 Arrested as Drive Hits All Over City

BULLETIN.

James Vinci, 3258 Princeton avenue, driver of the car used two years ago in the murder of Maurice Enright, labor leader, was arrested following infomation that Vinci may have had some connection with the murders of George Bucher and George Meegan, alleged beer runners.

Police raiders in flying squads swarmed on every side of Chicago last night, spreading the gospel of prohibition to the unbelievers. Of those still skeptical of the sincerity of Mayor Dever and Chief Collins—after fifty-six revocations of saloon licenses and about 600 arrests—nearly 100 proprietors of beer stores and more than 300 patrons became convinced in crowded police cells.

The police were bringing in prisoners all night, and the roundups continued on into the early morning. The south side reported police visitations to saloons, poolrooms, alleged disorderly flats, and even to cigar stores, with the netting of more than 150 prisoners.

Little Real Beer on Tap.

One thing the raiders said they discovered was that the big majority of saloonkeepers had no real beer on tap. Only the unwise or unwarned were entrapped, it was said, and it was they who sat and pondered until bondsmen came. The prudent had taken heed of the mayor's pronouncement and were said to be seeking purchasers for their beer dispensing emporiums.

The one question all the beer partisans were asking was "How long will it last?" Most of them had quit wondering whether Mayor Dever and Chief Collins are "on the square about it." They had agreed, the smart ones told friendly police, that the revocations loudly proclaimed that the mayor was in earnest—deadly earnest—about the beer industry.

Licenses to Stay Revoked.

One other point that was brought forcibly home to those who "took a chance" last night was that it would cost them their licenses to conduct a dispensary of any kind of liquid, even soft drinks. Mayor Dever had spread the news that every revocation would stand; that no one would be permitted to reopen with a similar business. If it is found that the "joints" are not closed after the license is canceled the mayor said he would have the captain of the district and the patrolman on the beat explain why.

Besides the fifty-six licenses canceled yesterday forty-seven recommendations from Chief Collins were on the mayor's desk on which he did not have time to act. He indicated, however, that the places named were as "good as gone," and also that every future police recommendation would mean a lost license.

Seek to Shear Mayor's Power.

The beer peddling folk had only two hopes left. The first was intimated in the petition for a writ of madamus to compel the mayor to issue a license to Sam Maturi at 533 West Chicago avenue. It was filed in the Circuit court. The mayor had revoked the license of the former owner.

The other hope lay in an appeal to the aldermen, and this it seemed was not altogether in vain. Five or six of the aldermen banded together and announced they would seek to have the city council take away the mayor's power on licenses.

One feature of the day's drive was the capture of an immense still at 639 West Roosevelt road. It had a capacity of 200 gallons, according to William D. Moss, federal prohibition di-

MORE BAYONETS TO BRISTLE IN WALTON'S WAR

Solons Will Take the Fight to Courts.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—Gov. "Jack" Walton is in the saddle tonight in the Oklahoma Ku Klux war.

The special session of the legislature next Wednesday will be little more than a gesture.

The effort to impeach the governor will fail.

The "rebel" legislators whose efforts have been branded as a Klan mob demonstration by the governor, will be glad to escape without bloodshed. They made it very plain today that they would not fight and that the whole question would be thrown into the Supreme court for settlement.

Will Call More Troops.

Gov. Walton tonight announced that more troops would be brought into the city and that martial law would be extended into other counties "unless the county authorities come around."

He was in conference with Adjt. Gen. B. H. Markham.

"I hate to put any of those boys in jail," he said, referring to the legislators.

"That situation is up to Gen. Markham. I cannot allow the Klan members of the legislature to assemble and call themselves the legislature of this state and proceed to act as such.

What "Surrender" Means.

"If I allowed such action as this it would simply be turning over the power of the state government to the supergovernment whose headquarters are in Atlanta, Ga."

The governor asked for $100,000 to carry on the fight in Oklahoma and said that if he lost the fight in this state that it would be unsafe for any but Klansmen to live here. He said he would be forced to start a newspaper in Oklahoma, as he could not get a fair deal from the newspapers here, which he says are under Klan influence.

In the face of an ultimatum from Gov. Walton earlier today that he would prevent with "lawful force" the special session of the legislature next Wednesday and that if talk of such a "klan gathering" persisted he would close the state fair, put the capital city under strict martial law, and take firearms away from all persons unauthorized to carry them, leaders of the "rebel" legislature said tonight that the session would be attempted.

Following the governor's statement, which bristled with threats and denunciations, the legislators after long consultation with their lawyers, issued a statement.

Decline to Use Force.

"It is the unanimous sentiment of the members of the house of representatives now in the city," the statement said, "that they will not resort to physical force in any way whatsoever in assembling next Wednesday, nor do they expect to resort to physical force to repel any effort to disperse them, should such be attempted; but they do expect to peaceably assemble and in case an effort is made to prevent them from so doing, to resort to the courts for the vindication of their rights.

"The members of the lower house, while convinced of their rights to convene and of their duty to do so under existing conditions, would welcome an opportunity to secure an opinion of the courts on the question and will cheerfully abide by its decision.

Figures of Speech Rejected.

"None of the talk of riding through rivers of blood up to the bridle, or walking through slaughter houses to an open grave, has emanated from any member of the house of representatives."

Under the peaceful procedure outlined here the situation will probably end up in the courts without trouble. This is the first time the legislators have expressed any doubt as to the legality of their meeting. The element of danger lies in the crowds roaming around, the hatreds engendered and the fact that so many men are armed.

Both front and rear doors of the legislative chambers are guarded by soldiers.

Quoting from alleged expressions of "rebel" legislators, the governor said in his ultimatum:

"We take this to mean that lawful force exerted to suppress riotous assemblages (his term for the proposed meeting) will be met with lawless force, in which event lives may be lost and property destroyed in their efforts to supplant lawfully organized government by Ku Klux Klan government, which inflicts punishment without trial by jury, but at the order of the dragon of Sanhedrin.

Defy Law, Walton Says.

"From their expressions and their open defiance of lawful authority, they evidently intend 'to ride through blood up to the bridle' and any opposing them will be 'wading through a slaughter house into an open grave.'

"These threats cannot go unnoticed by me, and as the state fair will bring thousands of visitors to our city, some innocent of any lawless intent, and others with the avowed, or secret purpose of assisting this lawless element to usurp the powers of government, it may, if persisted in, compel me to order the state fair closed immediately and further compel me to place this city under such absolute martial law, as will necessitate, under proper authority the patrolling of all highways leading to this city, and the confiscation of all firearms possessed without authority of law to the end, that the lives and property of our citizens may be preserved, and I say to the public now, by virtue of the power vested in me as governor of this state, no mob shall rule Oklahoma as long as I am above ground and remain in that high office."

Justifies Martial Law.

The governor explained why he had found it necessary to call state-wide martial law, as only under the protection of bayonets, he said, would the victims of klan floggings reveal their stories. He said he had found prosecution impossible under civil conditions, although there is no record that such prosecutions were ever instituted by the governor.

A preliminary hearing of charges of rioting against N. C. Jewett, grand dragon of the klan, will be held Tuesday morning in the justice court of Leo B. White. Jewett is at liberty under bonds of $1,000. Four other persons are charged in the information, but their true names are not given. E. R. Merryman who was whipped by Jewett in 1922, according to testimony before the military court, signed the information. Further arrests of klansmen are expected.

Gov. Walton's explanation of his acts and announcement of the course he will pursue in the next few days is as follows:

"The Ku Klux Klan for over two years has spread terror throughout this state to races and religions against which its organized efforts are directed, has dragged its victims from their homes and from their beds during the dark hours of the night, and, without trial, without mercy, men, and even women, have been tied up like beasts of the field and beaten until only a wreck of humanity was left.

Denounced as "War Lord."

"The leaders of the Ku Klux Klan are now pleading the law and the constitution, are denouncing me as a war lord because I have uncovered their crimes and exposed their anarchistic defiance of law and order. When I began to investigate klan crimes I learned that where they operated most freely the local officers were members of the klan.

"If charges were brought against a klan flogging [illegible] a klan sheriff would have to make [illegible] arrest, a klan county attorney would have to prosecute charges against them in a klan court before a klan jury drawn by a klan jury commissioner.

"Facing such a condition and after my warnings were flouted and set at naught, I declared martial law, drastic as such a measure is. Only under the protection of bayonets could whipped and cowed victims be induced to testify against the invisible monsters that had warned them that death would be the penalty for testifying against the klan.

Feared to Testify.

"With great reluctance, they testified, the truth coming falteringly from their trembling lips, for the invisible empire thwarted us in every way known them, and through klan officials their power was still felt and their threats lodged against their victims.

"Owing to this opposition of the klan augmented by every political element that was willing to throw its influence with the klan in order to try and crush me, it became necessary to extend martial law further and further until I decided that it was necessary to include the whole state so as to reach every witness needed and to throw the necessary protection around those who were willing to testify.

"Little by little, we have uncovered the 'invisible' monster until it is bared to the light of day in all its hideousness. Now it has run to cover. With the American flag that it desecrated wrapped around its dragons, cyclops, goblins and wizards, it holds aloft the constitution while calling upon all people to witness that it represents the only true Americanism in the land.

Cites Press Cruelty.

"What have I done? Have I interfered with the business of a single merchant or professional man, with the operation of any corporation or any business institution in the state? They say I censored a newspaper and attempted to stifle the press.

"I did this for two days for the reason that that paper was violently klan and tried to incite the people against the officers of government operating against the klan. They say I have suspended the writ of habeas corpus. Only where necessary to uncover the crimes of the klan and that has not been to the injury of a single guiltless man or woman in the state. They cry out against state wide martial law.

"N. C. Jewett, grand dragon of Oklahoma, the emperor of the invisible empire of the state, began issuing defiance and challenging my power and authority as governor of the state just as soon as we secured conviction of klansmen.

Sought Legislative Aid.

"As the network of evidence against the Klan was drawn tighter the Invisible Empire began to tremble and began reaching out after one of the branches of government to use against the executive. The members of the legislature finished their work last spring in the regular session adjourned sine die and went to their homes. A majority of them are members of the Ku Klux Klan.

"If they could be got together in legal session, through the discipline of the Invisible Empire they could force those house members to impeach me and the senate to convict.

"The grand dragon has marshalled his forces in the legislature and they are threatening to impeach me.

"I ask is this legislature move any different from any of the other tactics of the Invisible Empire?

"Here is a proposal to convene a legislature made up mostly of Klansmen for the express purpose of impeaching me and removing me from office because I have uncovered the crimes of the K. K. K. in Oklahoma.

"In their spurious effort to convene themselves the Klan members set out in a statement their charges against me and they are calling the members to convene for the express purpose of impeaching me.

"Don't you think I would have a fair and impartial trial in that aggregation of dragons?

"Isn't it in keeping with all the methods of the Klan?

"Do they ever give their victims a fighting chance?

"Stalking the house in the dead hours of night, dragging their victims out of their beds, ganging them, with not a chance of one to a hundred against a mob, then tying them up and with more brutality than is shown a beast beat and maim them until they are human wrecks.

"In rescinding my order prohibiting the holding of the state fair in Oklahoma county this month, and permitting the same to be held on the dates as originally planned, I did so, believing it to be for the best interests of our city and state, and that the lawless elements of the Invisible Empire would suspend their operations until the fair closed. But I had no sooner raised the ban against the fair than the K. K. K. outlaws determined that Wednesday, Sept. 26, when the fair was it its height, would be an appropriate date on which to demonstrate its disregard for lawful, visible, organized government and substitute therefore, mob law by the 'Invisible Empire.'

"With the support of the klan, generally, this unlawful assembly has become so arrogant as to say they will totally ignore the Supreme court of this state and declare they are superior in authority to our Supreme court."

Gov. Walton ended his statement by announcing the alleged threat of a legislative member and declaring he would meet armed "lawless force" with "armed lawful" force.

Many 'Good' and 'Bad' Points in Official Life of Oklahoma's Chief Executive

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—Gov. John Calloway (Jack) Walton is in the way of becoming a national figure as the result of his spectacular fight on the Ku Klux Klan in Oklahoma. He is strong and courageous. His enemies say he is unscrupulous and dangerous.

Ten years ago Walton was a Kansas City electrical supply salesman. He did business with the state departments here and in 1913 moved here and opened an office as consulting engineer. He became a city commissioner and in 1919 was elected mayor. He was known as a union labor man and has always been associated with the radical wing of the Democratic party.

As Mayor Saw Rise of Klan.

During his reign as mayor he saw the rise of the klan to political power. One of the largest initiations ever held was while he was mayor. He took no stand on the matter. There was a strike in packingtown and a Negro strikebreaker was lynched. The city police did little to stop the mob. The town was wide open for a while, but Walton fired his chief of police and personally led raiding squads into saloons and dives until he had cleaned the town.

He used to march with his police into the Christian church to attend services. He always had an eye for the spectacular, and in politics was quick to seize upon the current nostrum that appealed to the imagination of the crowd.

Leads New Party Alliance.

In 1922, while he was still mayor, he was made the nominee of the reconstruction league of the state for governor. This organization, led by the Oklahoma Leader, a radical publication, had sensed in Walton a winning political figure after his city success against the conservative Democrats. They were formed on the line of the Nonpartisan league of North Dakota, capitalizing the discontent of the farmer and the union labor sentiment. Their tactics were to bore into the old party.

The Shawnee convention of this organization, in 1921, indorsed Walton on a radical platform. He went into the campaign and, although he lost in the capital and had most of the big state papers against him, he won in the state by the biggest majority that any governor ever received.

Soon Jumps Into Limelight.

He jumped into the limelight with his famous inauguration barbecue, where all the farmers were invited to come in their overalls. He turned out the militia and gave the state three days of the wildest kind of a picnic. He was the idol of the plain people, their governor and friend. He was going to turn the agricultural and mechanical college back to them, take out the classics from college courses and get back to dirt and grease. He was going to clean out the bank thieves from the state, reform the budget and get down to economics to relieve the farmer from tax burden.

Today, despite failure to do any of these things, he can still draw great crowds on a new issue. Though he has broken away from the reconstruction league and led them to go into the camp of the enemy, he is rebuilding a powerful state machine. On the Ku Klux Klan issue he is planning to become politically impregnable, become senator or vice presidential candidate.

Radicals Now Call Him Traitor.

The dreams of the little group of idealists whose work contributed so largely to Walton's selection were soon found hopeless. Today they call Walton a traitor. They found that Walton was not a true radical, but a political opportunist who had used them and dropped them. The true radicals will never go back to his banner, although they hate the Ku Klux Klan as much or more than he does.

He has put them and many other groups of good Oklahoma citizens in an ineffective and perplexing situation. If they oppose him they are accused of being "klan." He has muddled the waters and forced the issue so cleverly that there is only one thing for the majojrity to do—go with him.

His Row Over College.

Walton's first act which drew down the wrath of his supporters was his action in the A. & M. college presidency. He promised to make George Wilson, an Oklahoma school teacher, president of the college. He did not keep his promise. Farmers and labor delegates called on him and forced him to make the appointment. Later he fired Wilson.

The Leader on July 25 announced they were through with him, quoting Browning's "The Lost Leader"—"Just for a handful of silver he left us," etc.

In the Field of State Finances.

The banking situation in the state had been in a bad way and depositors had lost millions in failures and liquidations under state bank managers who looted and fled the state. The farmer-labor group had the governor appoint Joe Strain, in whose honesty every one believed. Strain took office. He found an attorney asking a $45,000 fee for services in a small bank liquidation. He found the attorney general and his aids trying to liquidate a bank which he saved for the depositors. Then Strain was fired. E. T. Bynum was put in as bank commissioner, although he had had no other experience in finance than managing Walton's political campaign in Tulsa. The state banking law states that the commissioners must have had five years' banking experience.

About this time the scandal in "pardons and paroles" began to break. From Jan. 6, when he assumed office, to Sept. 9 last Gov. Walton had extended 253 acts of executive clemency at the McAlester penitentiary.

Pardons Vile Offender.

Charges have been made and printed that money was paid to men close to the governor for some of these pardons, particularly $2,000 in the case of Ira Williams, a rape case convict.

Miss Sue Bonds of Okmulgee county was raped in 1918. Her fiancé, Holden H. Vance, was overseas. She died a year later in Arkansas, broken hearted. Williams was convicted and sentenced to twenty-five years. He was a traveling salesman.

On May 18 last Walton paroled him. Vance wrote the governor a harsh letter and parole was revoked. Williams' sister then came forward and said she had paid $2,000 for the parole to a man close to the governor. In the meantime Williams had fled, and is still away.

Murderer Next Paroled.

In 1912 Charles T. Reuter, an attorney, was murdered. Guy McKenzie was convicted and sentenced to life. He had conspired with the attorney's wife to kill him. McKenzie was paroled by former Gov. Robertson two years ago. He was caught bootlegging and was returned. On June 15 Walton paroled him.

There is a long list of such cases, reaching up to two days ago. This list of paroled includes Dick Ivey, bank bandit, who killed a bank cashier at Ketchum while on parole. The list includes 158 felons, 55 pardoned and the remaining 33 commutations, reprieves. Executive clemency has been extended to twenty-nine murderers.

The governor claims they were all worthy cases.

Considerate to Convicts.

The "leave of absence" is an institution established by Walton under which convicts are released for various periods. There is no record of the number of these cases.

Gov. Walton announced early in his term that he would not permit any one to die in the electric chair.

Instead of reducing taxes to the farmers the governor has piled on expenses until today definiency warrants totaling $177,722 have been issued. The bankers and farmers have been uneasy over the situation.

Twenty men, most of them former policemen when Walton was mayor, are kept as a personal bodyguard for the governor, drawing state funds. There are five at his side nearly all the time, even at night.

At the close of the last session Walton vetoed $6,000,000 in appropriations, and vetoed a refund of $1,000,000 to oil companies. Most of his added expenses has been in his war on the klan.

Start of Martial Law.

These are the chief points in his record leading to the martial law period. This began Aug. 14 last.

The immediate cause of the proclamation of martial law at Tulsa was the whipping of Nate Hantaman, a bootlegger. He was whipped with the aid and consent of the police of that city, court records are said to show. He was not whipped because he was selling whisky but because he had gossiped that he had paid protection money to the police. Thus Oklahoma's "insurrection" may be laid indirectly at the door of the mockery of prohibition enforcement.

There was no talk of impeachment or an extraordinary session of the Oklahoma legislature until the martial law proclamation and his "fight to the death" campaign against the klan. The charges which will be made against him rest entirely upon his usurpation of dictatorial power and his new reign of military absolutism. He admits all these charges, so there is really nothing for the legislature to "investigate."

Japanese Quake "Prophet" Warns Mississippi Valley

New York, Sept. 22.—[United Press.]—Prof. Milton A. Nobles, Philadelphia, who predicted the Japanese earthquakes and minor shocks that followed in Calcutta, Cyprus, and Sicily, the tidal waves on the Pacific coast, and some time previous the Dayton floods, tonight sent a warning through the United Press to all valley tributaries of the Mississippi river.

"The great earthwork dam is liable to go out," Prof. Nobles telegraphed. "I foretold both the floods at Dayton. Caution all the valley tributaries."

MRS. F. WOODRUFF (GRACE HEALY) IS DEAD IN ALGIERS

Pneumonia Brings Tragic End to Honeymoon.

Through the world, lonely,
I must be wending,
Questing, with only
Beauty the ending.
If you would speed me
Bravely along,
Kindly ones, feed me
Morsels of song.
—Deirdre.

Mrs. Frederick W. Woodruff—who was Miss Grace Healy last April, when these words were written—called the poem "Pilgrimage." Last Friday the sweet singer of love and beauty and youth came to the end of her own life's pilgrimage beside the Mediterranean shores at Algiers.

An unlyrical commercial cable carried the news of her death, which came as a tragic anti-climax of her honeymoon. Double pneumonia was the cause, the message said.

Was Vassar Graduate.

Mrs. Woodruff was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Healy and a granddaughter of one of the founders of Lyon & Healy. It was little more than a year ago that she was graduated from Vassar, where she and her roommate, Miss Marion Born, wrote the commencement pageant.

Back once again in Chicago, she began to contribute poems to the Line o' Type columns of THE TRIBUNE under the pen name of "Deirdra." The lyrics occasioned much favorable comment—particularly her love songs.

There have been loves like worn old altar lights,
Loves like soft candle gleams that fall on lace,
Loves like the noonday sun, that burns and blights,
Loves like the young moon's silver pallid face!

Our love was like a match struck in the dark,
That lit your eyes, and glorified your hair
One instant, till the wind put out the spark—
One instant—but what radiance was there!

And then, last Friday, the truth of the singer's words came home. For in July she had sailed with her parents for France, and on Sept. 2 she had been married to Mr. Woodruff, a Joliet bank president, in the little Paris chapel. His two sisters, Florence and Gertrude Woodruff, were her only attendants.

Were to Return Soon.

It was the young couple's intention to return home within a few weeks on the Majestic and take up their residence in Joliet. For "Deirdre," the sweet singer of love and beauty and youth, had no time or inclination to think of death. There were too many songs yet to sing.

Hence the mockery which the cable message brought, only a few short months after "Deirdre" wrote these words:

. . . One who passed by in the street
Lingered a moment to hear;
"That was from your heart to my heart," he said—
Nay, I shall sing it when he has been dead
Many and many a year;
Others will find it as sweet.

Plans for the funeral have not yet been announced.

BAR "GATS" FROM U. S. MAIL, POLICE CHIEFS REQUEST

Parcel Post Pistols Tie Hands of Law.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—Efforts to check transmissions of pistols and other weapons through the mails will be pressed by the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

J. P. Rutledge, president of the organization, who attended the conference yesterday of law enforcement officials with Attorney General Daugherty on establishment of a central criminal identification bureau, announced today that unless it was found possible to bar deadly weapons from the mails through an order issued by the postmaster general, an appeal would be made to congress to enact legislation conferring such authority.

Authority Is Doubtful.

Assistant Attorney General Seymour told Mr. Rutledge, who is police superintendent at Detroit, Mich., that while the postoffice department undoubtedly had power to prohibit mailing of firearms into states or cities with local prohibitory laws, he was doubtful as to the existence of authority to issue a general order barring all firearms from the mails.

Mr. Rutledge suggested that pistols and other weapons should be obtainable through the mails only on official permits such as are required in many cities for the sale of firearms. The ease with which they can be received now through the mails, he said, practically nullifies the local ordinances.

Mails Armed Slayer.

About 5,000 pistols a year are being received at the Detroit postoffice and a recent killing there was traced to a pistol shipped through the mail, he declared, while among one hundred persons calling for such packages questioned in the last month, one was found to be a man on parole who had been convicted of killing a policeman.

Ruhr Surrender Due Tomorrow.

Meetings between Chancellor Stresemann, the eighteen presidents of the federated German republics, and representatives from the Ruhr have been called for tomorrow and Monday, when the passive resistance will officially be declared off, probably unconditionally.

The Socialist party news bureau tonight declares Chancellor Stresemann has called the premiers of the federated German states together in order that they may bear part of the blame for the surrender to France.

"Politically and economically Germany has lost the battle," states the press bureau, "but morally we have won, because France could not make the Ruhr productive. The government today decided to take the consequences. Sunday there will be a meeting for the purpose of arranging the methods for giving up the passive resistance. The premiers of the states will be asked to agree and bear part of the responsibility, which will fall heavily upon the cabinet in the next few days."

Warns Ruhr Officials.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 22.—The Berlin government today warned the officials in the occupied Ruhr area that it will soon abandon the resistance in the occupied regions, according to French officials.

Chancellor Stresemann is convinced that unless the situation is ameliorated his cabinet will be overthrown and succeeded by communists or junkers. The advent of either party to power it is believed would result in a French occupation of Berlin and all other big German cities.

The belief is held here that any decisive change in the situation regarding Germany also means either the resignation of Lord Curzon or the overthrow of Prime Minister Baldwin as the British cabinet cannot continu

Baldwin Meets Curzon.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

German Reds Seek Russian Aid.

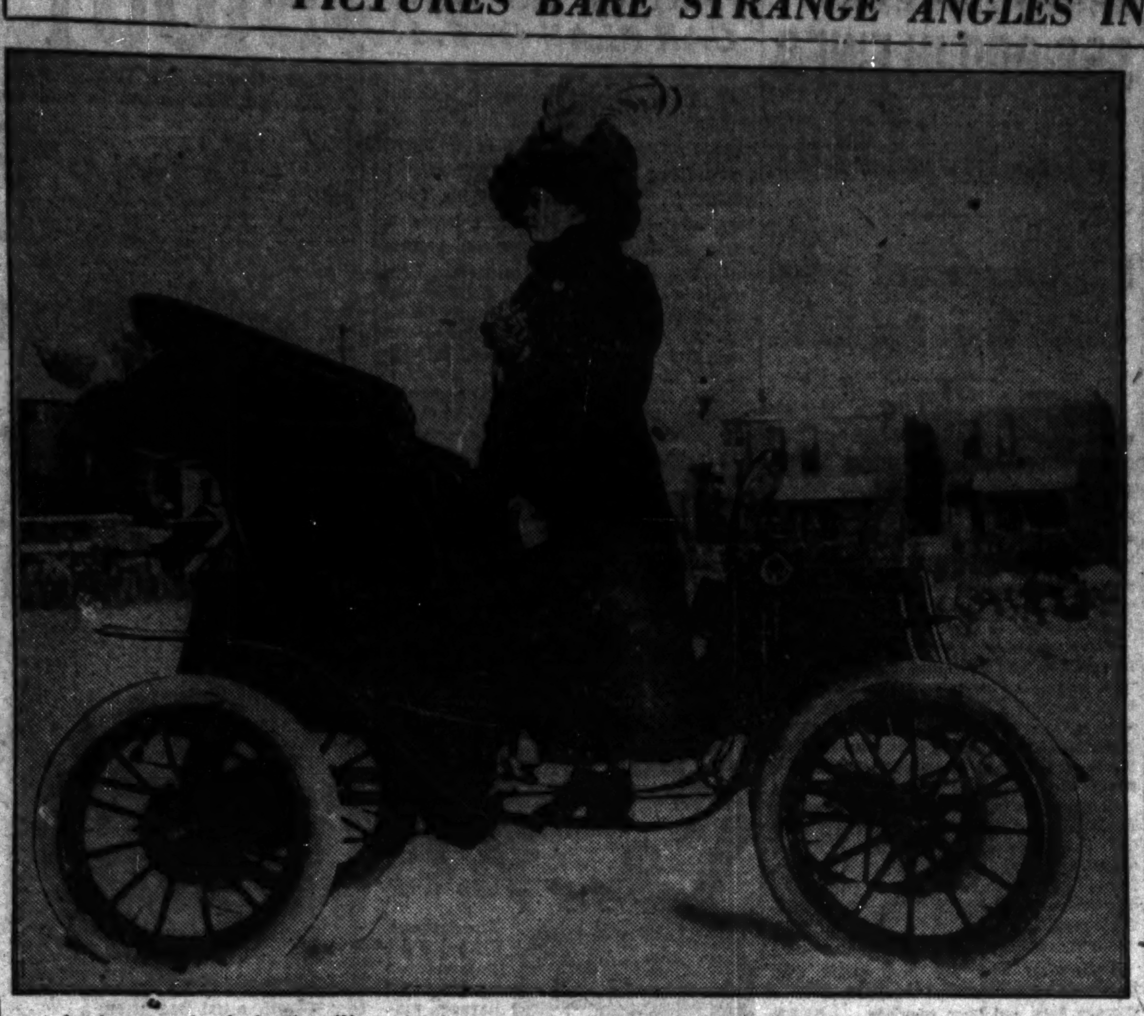
MOSCOW, Sept. 22.—[By the Associated Press.]—The German communist leaders, Heinrich Brandler and Herr Talmeyer, have arrived in Moscow and informed the Russians that the time for a revolution in Germany is ripe. They express themselves confident of their ability to obtain control within the German state, but need the help of the international proletariat against outside capitalistic enemies.

The communist leader pointed out that Germany was surrounded by capitalistic enemies. Poland, he predicted, would occupy Silesia, Czecho-Slovakia would start an advance in the south, France would move further toward the interior, and Germany would be cut off on all sides.

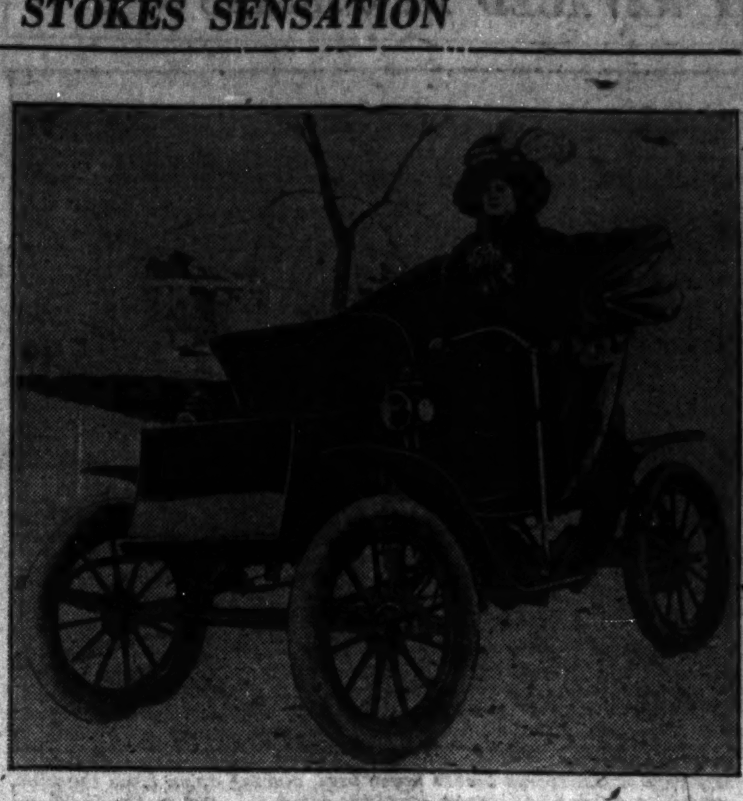
The Pravda says it is quite clear that the world of capitalism will not permit Germany to decide her own fate, and that Russia must be ready to repel attacks also.

"It must be understood that the fate of the Russian and German proletariats is unavoidably linked by the life interests of both peoples," it continues.

PICTURES BARE STRANGE ANGLES IN STOKES SENSATION



A photograph of the "smiling girl in the electric automobile," who has figured so extensively in the investigation of Mrs. Stokes' charges by the state's attorney and by her own lawyer, Charles E. Erbstein. This yields a good view of the mysterious "Helen," and is supposed to have been taken at about the same time as the one at the right.



Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, wife of W. E. D. Stokes, whom she accuses of plotting to ruin her reputation, yesterday admitted this picture of "the smiling girl in the electric," supposed to have been that of an habitue of the Everleigh club, was one of herself, taken in Denver, not Chicago. Previously witnesses had identified it as that of Helen Norwood, Helen Underwood, and one as "Helen Elwood." It has been regarded as the key to the entire plot inquiry.

500,000 MEALS A DAY SERVED BY YANKEES TO GERMAN CHILDREN

BERLIN, Sept. 22.—A total of 4,989 tons of flour, 2,531 tons of milk, 1,033 tons of sugar, 209 tons of cocoa, and 606 tons of fat were required to carry on the feeding of children throughout Germany the past summer under the auspices of the Quakers, it is shown in figures made public today. Meals to the number of 500,000 were served daily in 1,600 cities and towns at an average price of 2 cents per meal.

The present relief is chiefly financed by the American central committee for the relief of distress in Germany and Austria, with the German government also contributing.

It gives the convenience of city gas at half the cost. It can be put into any stove in a few minutes and gives a tremendous heat controlled by a simple valve. The present high price of coal makes it a great money saver. The manufacturers offer to send this remarkable invention on 30 days' trial to any reader of this paper. They are just now making a special low price offer. They also want agents. Write them today.—Adv.

'GIRL IN ELECTRIC' HERSELF, ADMITS WIFE OF STOKES

'Picture from Denver'; Jury Quiz Fades.

Helen Elwood Stokes yesterday identified the picture of the "smiling girl in the funny old fashioned electric automobile" as a likeness of herself.

Mrs. Stokes' startling admission, made a few hours after Lorraine Woods, admitted former attaché of the Everleigh club, had recognized the woman in the picture as "Helen Elwood," an acquaintance of hers at the notorious rendezvous in 1905, may serve as a boomerang to Mrs. Stokes' charges that W. E. D. Stokes is guilty of conspiracy in declaring his wife once lived in the home of the Everleigh sisters. Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Wharton, reviewing the case, said there was "no chance of holding Mr. Stokes to the grand jury."

Immediately following her statement to W. C. Dannenberg, her special investigator, that she was the "girl in the electric," Mrs. Stokes declared that the picture had been taken in Denver, in front of her father's house, and not in Chicago; that the car was a present to her from her father.

Detective Disputes Story.

"The car," Mrs. Stokes said, "has since been sold. But I have just wired to my brother in Denver to look through my old desk and try to find the bill of sale."

Meanwhile Edward W. Altz, special investigator for Mr. Stokes, from whom the pictuer was obtained by Assistant State's Attorney Wharton, conducting the investigation which Mrs. Stokes and her attorney, Charles E. Erbstein, hope will end with an indictment of her aged husband, told a different story.

"That picture," Altz said, "is of Mrs. Stokes, of course. And we can show it was taken right here in Chicago, in Washington park. That is the 'famous electric,' a Columbia, that was so well known on the south side in the old days."

Lorraine Woods' Story.

Verbatim testimony of Lorraine Woods, 4305 Wabash avenue, taken in the presence of Wharton and Dannenberg, seemed further to identify the woman and the electric. Lorraine Woods' statement was made before Mrs. Stokes had identified the picture. The testimony in part was as follows:

"Did you know some of the girls who lived at the Everleigh club?" Mrs. Woods was asked.

"Well, I have seen them, and, naturally, I have been there," she replied.

"I am going to show you a picture and ask you if you have ever seen the original," the assistant state's attorney asked. He then produced the picture of the "woman in the electric."

"Yes, I have seen this woman," Mrs. Wood answered promptly. "Her first name is Helen."

Q.—Do you know where she lived? A.—At the Everleigh club.

Q.—Is that a picture of her as she looked at the time she lived at the club? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you remember seeing that car? A.—Yes.

Q.—It was her car, was it? A.—Yes.

And then, after declaring she knew nothing of the woman's present whereabouts and doubted her ability to recognize the titian haired woman, Mrs. Woods made the following sensational statement:

"Yes, her name was Helen something, but I don't—Helen Elwood, or something."

The picture had previously been identified by witnesses as that of Helen Norwood and as Helen Underwood. This is the first statement that the girl with the fluffy hair and the curious tilt of the head might have been known also as Helen Elwood, the maiden name of Mrs. Stokes.

Compares Two Pictures.

Mrs. Woods was then shown a picture admittedly that of Mrs. Stokes. After looking at this and the "girl in the electric," she said: "That is the only thing I can say: They look something alike. I don't know whether it is the same or not."

When asked how old "Helen" or "Helen Elwood" was at that time—in 1904 and 1908—Mrs. Woods replied:

"I would judge she was a woman about my age, and I am 41. It has been about fifteen or sixteen years—maybe longer than that—in 1905 or 1906. Well, you can figure it up."

Mrs. Stokes, who declares she is now 36, would have been 18 years old in 1905. The "girl in the electric," according to Alts, is about 18 years old.

Diary to Aid Mrs. Stokes.

Attorney Erbstein declared Mrs. Stokes' insistent identification of the picture was another proof of her certainty of her innocence. His client, Mr. Erbstein said, would make every effort to find the bill of sale for the electric, said to have been bought in Denver. She would also produce, he predicted, a diary showing specifically where she had been from the moment she left Denver to the time she married Mr. Stokes.

Mr. Wharton said there was "no chance" of bringing the matter before the grand jury, but it might be a civil case based on possible charges of defamation of character.

"I hold no brief for either side," he added. "If Frank T. Jordan, attorney for Mr. Stokes, wishes to bring in witnesses for his client, I will examine for the state with the same impartiality as I have examined these other witnesses.

"No Chance of Grand Jury."

"All the witnesses I have questioned say virtually the same thing—that Stokes, and they all represent him as a determined man who means business, has tried in every way possible to get evidence that his wife was once a member of the 'club.' That is his starting point in every case.

"Sometimes he has paid the people for their services. At other times he has promised them money to make up for the time they may have lost. There is nothing criminal there. There is no chance of holding him to the grand jury. Neither have I found any evidence that Mrs. Stokes was ever a member of the 'club.'"

Jordan declined to comment on the case and assumed a position of indifference toward the entire inquiry, but it is reported Stokes will arrive in Chicago this morning or tomorrow to take an active part in the matter.

ITALY SUDDENLY HALTS ORDER TO EVACUATE CORFU

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

ATHENS, Sept. 22.—Contrary to yesterday's proclamation, the Italian evacuation of Corfu has been suddenly postponed and no explanation given. Four more cruisers arrived at Corfu today, including two from Phaleron, which took part in the ceremony at the embarkation of the bodies of the Italian officers, slain in Albania. Three airplanes are flying over the islands of Corfu, Paxos, and Anti-Paxos today. During the last week the Italians placed Italian postage stamps in circulation on all the occupied islands.

Absolve Greece, Report.

PREVEZA, Albania, Sept. 22.—Members of the international mission investigating the assassination of Gen. Tellini and his suite are understood to be convinced that the Greeks are innocent of the crime imputed to them by Italy.

Hears Serbs Give Up Fiume.

TRIESTE, Sept. 22.—News reaching here states that Jugo-Slavia is willing to accept annexation of Fiume by Italy in return for sovereignty over Porto Barros and the delta.

Taggart Improves; Out of Danger, Physician Says

Boston, Mass., Sept. 22.—The condition of Thomas Taggart, former chairman of the Democratic national committee, who is ill here, is steadily improving. Dr. Harold G. Tobey, his physician, said tonight. "He is doing very well. There is nothing to worry about," the physician said.

Boy, 6, Points Out Father as the Slayer of His Mother

"Johnny" Penzanick, 6 years old, was led yesterday into the office of Assistant State's Attorney William J. Grace, next to the Juvenile court in county building.

JOHN PENZANICK.

Slumped in a chair at the other side of the room, glowering at the boy, was his father, John Penzanick, former proprietor of a moonshine saloon at 2257 Grand avenue.

"Tell us who killed your mother, Johnny," Mr. Grace directed.

Quiets Boy's Fear.

The boy looked at his father, hung his head, kicked a nervous foot against the other and turned as if to run out the door which had been closed behind him.

"Don't be afraid," said Mr. Grace kindly. "No one can hurt you here. Tell us just what happened."

The child turned, straightened, looked his father full in the eye, leveled a tiny finger at him and blurted: "He did!"

This ordeal over, details came more easily:

"He hit mama 'n knocked 'er down 'nen he kicked 'er under th' table 'n kept kickin' 'er 'n kickin' 'er till she didn't holler no more. 'Nen he picked 'er up 'n put 'er in th' bed 'n took 'er clothes off 'n put 'er night gown on. Mama was dead. He called a doctor 'n told 'im she fell down th' steps. He told me to say mama fell down th' steps, too."

What Examination Showed.

The scene described by the boy is alleged to have taken place on the night of March 13 last at the Grand avenue address. When a doctor arrived on the scene the boy's mother, Mrs. Lillie Penzanick, was already dead and he refused to sign a death certificate. Dr. Joseph Springer, coroner's physician, made an examination of the body at the time and found severe abrasions on the body, hemorrhage of the lungs, two ribs broken and rupture of the liver. Mrs. Penzanick, he also reported, was in a delicate condition at the time of her death.

Penzanick testified at the inquest that his wife had slipped and fallen downstairs and died before he could summon a doctor. The jury accepted his story and returned a verdict of accidental death.

Tells Story to Neighbor.

But the night his mother died, "Johnny" gave a neighbor a childish account of how his father had beaten her and kicked her under the table. He also described how his father had burned her clothes. The neighbor didn't tell the police but passed the story on to another neighbor.

Finally it spread throughout the neighborhood, and at last, after six months, reached the state's attorney's office. James Wolf, an officer of the Juvenile court, was assigned to investigate. He found "Johnny" and his 3 year old sister, Margie, had been deserted by their father and were living with their grandmother, Mrs. Mary Penzanick, at 2303 Grand avenue.

Penzanick was found living with another woman, whose name was not learned, at 2136 Taylor street. Questioned by Attorney Grace, he repeated the same story he told at the inquest. Then he was confronted by the boy.

Penzanick was locked up at the Central station for the night. The boy is being held at the Juvenile home as a material witness.

SHERIFF TO HUNT EXPLORERS 'LOST' IN GRAND CANYON

Washington Not Expected to Send Plane.

Kingman, Ariz., Sept. 22.—A patrol will enter the cañon of the Colorado river tomorrow to search for the government exploration party charting the Colorado river, whose unknown plight had cast a wave of alarm over Arizona tonight. A boat marked as belonging to the United States geologial survey was seen floating down the river yesterday many miles from the point where the survey party was thought to be.

The patrol party, headed by Sheriff W. F. Mahoney of Mohave county, who will be aided by three deputy sheriffs, will attempt to take off in the river rapids tomorrow morning, but doubt was expressed by the sheriff whether they could set out with the river in its present swollen condition. Sheriff Mahoney was requested today by Acting Gov. R. E. McGillan to form the patrol expedition.

Plane Aid Doubtful.

The governor simultaneously sent to the war department at Washington a telegram suggesting that an airplane be sent to fly over the cañon country and attempt to locate the party. A Washington dispatch indicated no action would be taken at present toward furnishing a plane.

Apprehension for the safety of the explorers was expressed here several days ago, when the river rose to flood stage, as the result of torrential rains which caused floods in parts of northern Arizona.

Reports Overturned Boat.

These fears were augmented by the report brought to Kingman last night by R. L. Dimmick, superintendent of the Katherine mine, which is in an isolated spot near the river, that a boat with the letters U. S. G. S. had floated down the river upside down at a point approximately 200 miles from where the party now is scheduled to be.

Mr. Dimmick said he was convinced the boat belonged to the United States geological survey, which is conducting the charting trip down the river. It was painted gray and was about fifteen feet long, he said. This tallies with the size of the boats used by the survey party, which are from fifteen to eighteen feet long.

Party Far from Civilization.

Somewhere in the rocky, precipitous cañons of Arizona's uninhabited northern region, several hundred miles from a sign of civilization, ten men traveling in strong, waveproof boats today are struggling against the turbulent flood waters of the Colorado river. The men are members of an exploration party of the United States geological survey, charting the Colorado river.

Isolated completely from the outside world and walled in the river channel with rugged peaks at places reaching perpendicularly 5,000 feet into the sky on either side, the men are traveling a most dangerous region. For a hundred miles or more below Bright Angel, which the explorers passed three weeks ago, this cañon must be traveled.

River at Flood Time.

The river is at flood stage, having in four days risen twenty-nine feet and sent its waters over its banks at many places.

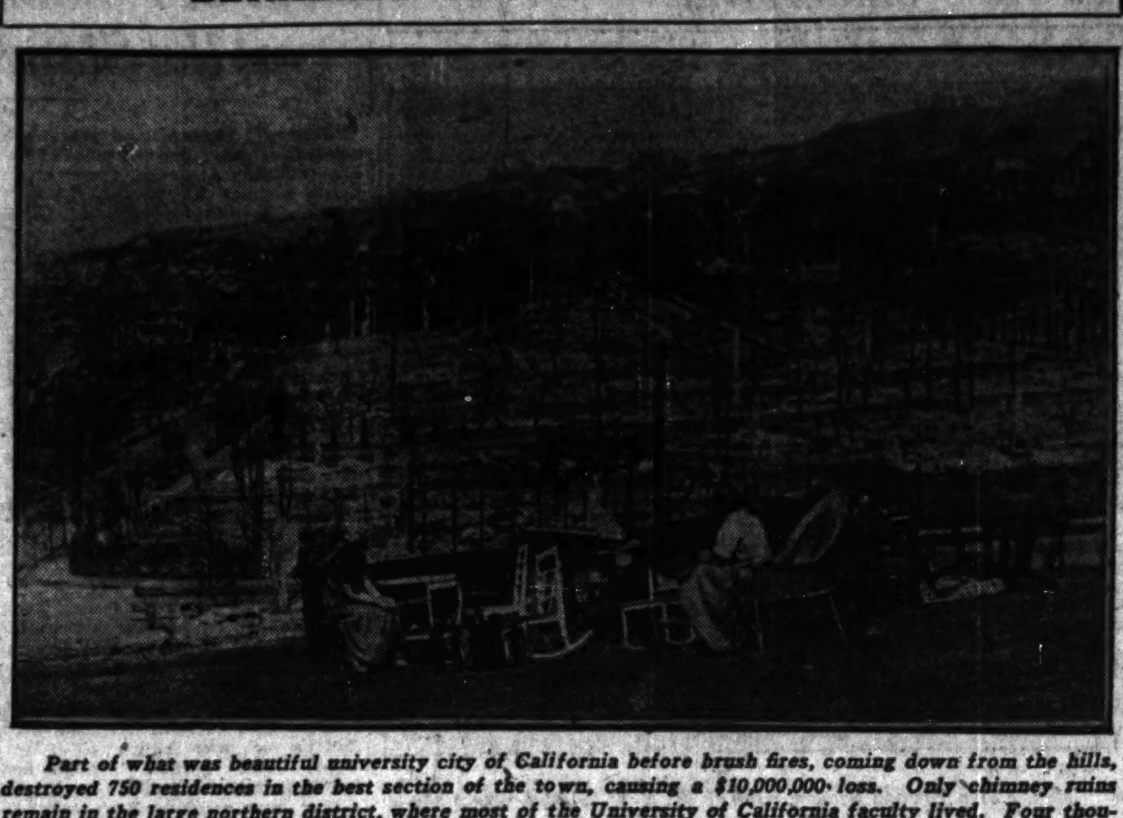
There are men in Kingman who know the cañon country, veterans of the rocky region. Their opinion today as to the safety of the party is that "one guess is as good as another."

Landing the boats in the cañons through which the river flows is almost impossible except for a place now and then where a ledge of rock juts out from the side of a wall.

Chief Not Worried.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 22.—Doubt that misfortune had overtaken a party of United States geologists engaged in charting the Colorado river was expressed today by Walter C. Mendenhall of Washington, D. C., chief geologist of the United States geological survey, who is attending a convention here.

BERKELEY RAVAGED BY FLAMES



Part of what was beautiful university city of California before brush fires, coming down from the hills, destroyed 750 residences in the best section of the town, causing a $10,000,000 loss. Only chimney ruins remain in the large northern district, where most of the University of California faculty lived. Four thousand persons lost their homes.

SEEKS $118,926 WON BY HIS WIFE IN LOVE LAWSUIT

Widow of A. G. Spalding Pays Judgment.

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 22.—Whether Mrs. Irene R. Mohn, awarded $100,000 damages from Mme. Katherine Tingley, head of the Theosophical Brotherhood at Point Loma, for alienation of her husband's affections, is to be paid the judgment, or whether her husband, Dr. George F. Mohn, is to be given the money, is to be determined in the Superior court here Monday.

Payment of the judgment was made to Sheriff James L. Byers yesterday when a bank delivered to him a check for $118,926.51, this sum representing the amount of judgment secured by Mrs. Mohn, together with interest from March, 1922, costs of the action and attorneys' fees.

Widow of A. G. Spalding Pays.

Delivery of the check came after Sheriff Byers had garnisheed the bank account of Elizabeth Spalding, widow of Albert G. Spalding, sporting goods manufacturer. Mrs. Spalding had qualified as one of the sureties for Mme. Tingley in the action brought by Mrs. Mohn, and it was for this reason that the sheriff garnisheed her bank account.

Decision as to whom the payment of the judgment is to be made comes through a double action. One week ago Dr. Mohn petitioned the court to order payment made to him, on the grounds that it is community property, and, as the husband of Mrs. Mohn, he is to be considered as manager of any community property.

Files Divorce Action.

Mrs. Mohn, two days ago, began divorce proceedings against Dr. Mohn, alleging desertion dating five years ago, and at the same time secured a temporary order restraining him from collecting the judgment, her contention being that her earnings and accumulations since the date of separation are to be considered as her individual property. Dr. Mohn's petition to have the judgment paid to him is set for hearing Monday, at the same time that he is ordered to appear in court and show cause why the restraining order secured by Mrs. Mohn should not be made permanent.

White House Denies Denby Is to Give Way to T. R. Jr.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 22.—Official denial was made at the White House today of reports that Secretary Denby is to resign and to be succeeded by Assistant Secretary Roosevelt.

KLAN INITIATION IN WHITE HOUSE BRANDED ABSURD

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 22.—That the Ku Klux Klan held an initiation in the dining room of the White House was the statement of the Rev. Basil E. Newton of Oklahoma, representing the klan imperial council, in an address to a large audience of klansmen and others at Hurricane last night.

"We have 227 in the house of representatives and 27 in the United States senate," the speaker said, "and we held one initiation in the dining room of the White House. You know what that means."

"He forgot to mention five members of the Harding cabinet," Dr. V. T. Churchman of Charleston, head of the klan organization in this section, whispered to a newspaper man beside him.

Absurd, White House Reply.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 22.—The statement of the Rev. Basil E. Newton at Charleston, W. Va., that an initiation of klansmen had been held in the White House was declared today by White House officials to be "too ridiculous to discuss."

VERY LATEST IS S. P. C. TO POOR JUMPING BEANS

Santa Barbara, Cal., Sept. 22.—What constitutes cruelty to a bean? The Santa Barbara Humane society has entered a fight to settle the question.

Merchants here have offered "Mexican jumping beans"—larvae infested legumes—for sale and to instill energy into the insects which dwell within, have placed their displays in hot sunshine. The result is somewhat similar to the inside of a pop corn popper.

Now the humane society holds that exposing the larvae to sunshine is cruelty in the worst form and has started a campaign to prevent the exploitation of the beans. The state humane society has been asked to decide the controversy.

EDUCATOR DRIVEN OUT BY FIRE TO LIVE IN GARAGE

Berkeley, Cal., Sept. 22.—Left homeless by Monday's fire here, President Emeritus Benjamin Ide Wheeler of the University of California and his wife are to reside in a tiny apartment garage owned by friends.

Furniture saved from the Wheeler home during the fire is to be moved into the garage. Mr. and Mrs. Allen Gleason, owners of the garage, and friends of Dr. and Mrs. Wheeler, could not prevail on them to share their home.

A movement was initiated among alumni of the university yesterday to replace Dr. Wheeler's library as far as possible.

Washington Records Quake, 1,600 Miles South

Washington, D. C., Sept. 22.—Georgetown university seismographs today recorded earth tremors of moderate intensity estimated to be about 1,600 miles south of Washington. A second shock was registered late in the day, the tremors continuing from 4:35 until 5:30 o'clock, with the maximum intensity at about 5 o'clock.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR.
Beats Electric or Gas.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and thirty-five leading universities and found to be superior to ten ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke, or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene [coal oil].

The inventor, L. P. Johnson, 609 West Lake street, Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on ten days FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.—Advertisement.

COURT IMPOSES $58,000 IN FINES IN LUMBER PLOT

Mill Owners and Union Chiefs Draw Penalties.

Fines totaling more than $58,000 were assessed yesterday against ten Chicago manufacturing firms, eleven officials of the companies and fifteen officials of the carpenters' union who were found guilty last spring of violating the Sherman anti-trust law. All defendants were connected with what was known as the Andrews Mill and Lumber case.

They were found guilty of conspiracy to restrain the sale and installation of mill work and sash material manufactured outside Chicago in factories operated on an open shop basis. Federal Judge Adam C. Cliffe, who imposed the fines, also ruled that the defendants must pay the cost of the trial.

The government was represented by Assistant United States Attorney General Roger Shale and Thomas J. Howe, assistant district attorney. Attorney Hope Thompson represented the union defendants and Albert Fink, the manufacturers.

These Draw Fines.

Following are the companies and their officials fined and the penalties:

COUNCIL TO GET PART OF DEVER'S CAR PLAN OCT. 17

At least one phase of Mayor Dever's plan to untangle Chicago's traction problem will be revealed in his message to the city council at its first meeting on Oct. 17, it was announced yesterday. The mayor and his traction advisers tomorrow will begin a series of conferences at which a traction program will be formulated. Preliminary to this will be a decision on the acceptanace of more than $8,000,000, the city's share of the street car company's receipts, refused by ex-Mayor Thompson.

"The time has come for the administration to take a definite stand on the problem of Chicago's transportation needs," Mr. Busch said, "and although no one can predict how soon a solution will be found, we are determined that these conferences will not develop into mere gabfests, which have marked past consideration of the traction question."

CHARGE ORGIES AT DANCES GIVEN IN LAWYER'S CLU

City Hall Square Owner Answer Standidge.

"Inebriated devotees of Terpsichore attend public dances on the twent first floor of the City Hall Square buil ing, opposite the county building i Clark street, and dance with girls pr cured through "want ads" for whom they buy gin at 25 cents a tablespoon ful, according to charges made in pleading filed yesterday before Circui Judge Hugo Friend by Attorney Fred eric Burnham, counsel for the owner of the building.

A suit, brough by Attorney Harry W. Standidge, president of the "Up-in-the-Clouds club," and who conducts the dances, asked that the building owners be restrained from closing up the building and stopping the elevators to prevent the patrons of the club from getting access to the "club room."

Mr. Burnham's answer, in which he retorted that instead the court should enjoin Mr. Standidge, a well known lawyer and former president of the Lawyers' Association of Illinois, from continuing to put on the dances, which are described as "immoral, indecent, and rotten."

Recites Newspaper Want Ad.

"Many women that attend the dances are unescorted," the answer continues. It cites a classified advertisement which appeared in a newspaper last August reading:

"Girls—Attractive, for dancing evenings with best group in city. Call Dearborn 4120."

The telephone number, according to the answer, is that of the clubroom. Most of the girls gathered at the dances come in response to the advertisement, according to the answer.

The girls share their profits with Mr. Standidge, according to the answer, which avers:

"The men patrons purchase tickets at 10 cents each. This entitles them to engage in terpsichorean revelries with any woman who happens momentarily to be loose. The ticket is delivered to the female dancing partner, who generally ostentatiously deposits same in her lisle thread bank for safe keeping until the termination of this phase of the evening's business.

Charges Women Cash Tickets.

"Then the woman cashes the tickets in with Standidge, who pays them 5 cents for each ticket they produce."

"The posture, attitude, and conduct of the dancers is vulgar, profane, indecent, and rotten," the answer goes on to aver. Intoxicating liquor is carried to the premises in great quantities by patrons. A soda water fountain is maintained on the premises, which dispenses gin at 25 cents a drink, each drink containing a tablespoonful of liquor.

"As the evening goes on the patrons become intoxicated, some helpless. As the hour grows later, disorder becomes more marked."

Policeman There, He Says.

A policeman and a floor manager attend every dance, the answer concedes, but it denies that they are there to maintain order.

"The floor manager and the policeman," the answer charges, "are exceptionally proficient in preventing inebriated revelers from cluttering up the dance floor, and also in corralling and herding the hopelessly wabbly when the lights at last go out."

The clubrooms are also used by the Lawyers' Association of Illinois, with which organization Standidge "is prominently connected," according to the answer. Attorney Justus Chancellor, former president of the association, was in court and took the stand at the request of Standidge and his lawyer, A. A. Worsley. He gave only his name, however, and it was decided to take the entire matter before Master-in-Chancery Ninian H. Welch, whom Judge Friend chose to hear it.

Asks Judge to Attend Dance.

"We want your honor to come to the dance tonight," Attorney Standidge protested. "See for yourself if these scurrilous charges are true."

"I would like to have had Judge Friend go two weeks ago tonight," remarked Mr. Burnham, a member of the firm of Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt. "If your arrival is heralded," he said to the court, "things most certainly will be orderly."

The City Hall Square building is almost entirely occupied by lawyers. The club rooms on the top floor were formerly used by the Aviation club, and since June 30, 1922, have been leased to Mr. Sandidge.

New Police Boxes of West Park System Now in Use

Fifty-four of the new "recall boxes" being installed throughout the West Park system were put in operation last night. The signal boxes are equipped with a telephone and a red call light. They will be used to notify policemen on their beats of the action of criminals and will obviate the use of public phones.

CHARGE ORGIES AT DANCES GIVEN IN LAWYER'S CLUB

City Hall Square Owners Answer Standidge.

"Inebriated devotees of Terpsichore" attend public dances on the twenty-first floor of the City Hall Square building, opposite the county building in Clark street, and dance with girls procured through "want ads" for whom they buy gin at 25 cents a tablespoonful, according to charges made in a pleading filed yesterday before Circuit Judge Hugo Friend by Attorney Frederic Burnham, counsel for the owners of the building.

A suit, brough by Attorney Harry W. Standidge, president of the "Up-in-the-Clouds club," and who conducts the dances, asked that the building owners be restrained from closing up the building and stopping the elevators to prevent the patrons of the club from getting access to the "club room."

Mr. Burnham's answer, in which he retorted that instead the court should enjoin Mr. Standidge, a well known lawyer and former president of the Lawyers' Association of Illinois, from continuing to put on the dances, which are described as "immoral, indecent, and rotten."

Recites Newspaper Want Ad.

"Many women that attend the dances are unescorted," the answer continues. It cites a classified advertisement which appeared in a newspaper last August reading:

"Girls—Attractive, for dancing evenings with best group in city. Call Dearborn 4120."

The telephone number, according to the answer, is that of the clubroom. Most of the girls gathered at the dances come in response to the advertisement, according to the answer.

The girls share their profits with Mr. Standidge, according to the answer, which avers:

"The men patrons purchase tickets at 10 cents each. This entitles them to engage in terpsichorean revelries with any woman who happens momentarily to be loose. The ticket is delivered to the female dancing partner, who generally ostentatiously deposits same in her lisle thread bank for safe keeping until the termination of this phase of the evening's business.

Charges Women Cash Tickets.

"Then the woman cashes the tickets in with Standidge, who pays them 5 cents for each ticket they produce."

"The posture, attitude, and conduct of the dancers is vulgar, profane, indecent, and rotten," the answer goes on to aver. Intoxicating liquor is carried to the premises in great quantities by patrons. A soda water fountain is maintained on the premises, which dispenses gin at 25 cents a drink, each drink containing a tablespoonful of liquor.

"As the evening goes on the patrons become intoxicated, some helpless. As the hour grows later, disorder becomes more marked."

Policeman There, He Says.

A policeman and a floor manager attend every dance, the answer concedes, but it denies that they are there to maintain order.

"The floor manager and the policeman," the answer charges, "are exceptionally proficient in preventing inebriated revelers from cluttering up the dance floor, and also in corralling and herding the hopelessly wabbly when the lights at last go out."

The clubrooms are also used by the Lawyers' Association of Illinois, with which organization Standidge "is prominently connected," according to the answer. Attorney Justus Chancellor, former president of the association, was in court and took the stand at the request of Standidge and his lawyer, A. A. Worsley. He gave only his name, however, and it was decided to take the entire matter before Master-in-Chancery Ninian H. Welch, whom Judge Friend chose to hear it.

Asks Judge to Attend Dance.

"We want your honor to come to the dance tonight," Attorney Standidge protested. "See for yourself if these scurrilous charges are true."

"I would like to have had Judge Friend go two weeks ago tonight," remarked Mr. Burnham, a member of the firm of Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt. "If your arrival is heralded," he said to the court, "things most certainly will be orderly."

The City Hall Square building is almost entirely occupied by lawyers. The club rooms on the top floor were formerly used by the Aviation club, and since June 30, 1922, have been leased to Mr. Sandidge.

New Police Boxes of West Park System Now in Use

Fifty-four of the new "recall boxes" being installed throughout the West Park system were put in operation last night. The signal boxes are equipped with a telephone and a red call light. They will be used to notify policemen on their beats of the action of criminals and will obviate the use of public phones.

S. A. ETTELSON RESIGNS SEAT IN STATE SENATE

Business Demands One Reason Given.

Samuel A. Ettelson, Republican state senator from the Third district since 1906 and corporation counsel of Chicago in the Thmopson administration for more than seven years, has resigned his seat in the upper branch of the legislature. The resignation has been sent to Gov. Small and County Clerk Sweitzer has been notified.

S. A. ETTELSON.
[Moffett Photo.]

Mr. Ettelson gave two reasons for relinquishing his seat in the legislature. In the first place, he is no longer a resident of the Third district, having moved to the Fifth (Hyde Park) district, represented in the senate by James E. MacMurray. As a second reason, Senator Ettelson explained in his letter to the governor that his law practice as a member of the firm of Schuyler, Ettelson & Weinfield demands his constant attention.

Was Recently Wed.

"I must devote my time to my private practice for the sake of myself and my family," he said. Mr. Ettelson was married some months ago.

Ettelson's resignation throws the Third district senate seat into the 1924 election, when senators from the even numbered districts will be elected for regular terms. Ettelson's successor will be named to fill the unexpired term which includes the period of the next regular session beginning in January, 1925.

Aided Gov. Small.

Ettelson for years was a member of the senate combine that controlled the upper house. He was one of the dominant figures in the organization that controlled the senate for Gov. Small. Senator Ettelson handled the Thompson traction bills in 1921 but was unable to put them across.

Four Eskimos Sentenced to Die for Arctic Murder

EDMONTON, Alta., Sept. 22.—Seven Eskimos charged with murder, were tried at Herschel Island in the Arctic ocean by Judge Dubuc, who with Irving Hewatt, K. C. Secretary Beirier and seven members of the Royal Canadian mounted police, reached Edmonton yesterday. Four of the accused were convicted and sentenced to be hanged December 7. Two others, found guilty of manslaughter, were given prison terms.

Chloroform Quiets Hogs as Thieves Cart 'Em Off

Freeport, Ill., Sept. 22.—Thieves who stole forty-five young hogs from the farm of J. W. Mitchell, near Darlington, Wis., are believed by the authorities to have silenced the porkers' squeals with chloroform. A similar method is supposed to have been used in stealing 200 chickens from an adjoining farm.

FOES OF SMALL HOLD POWWOW ON GOVERNOR RACE

Envoys of Six Candidates Meet in Chicago.

Plans for consolidating all the Republican forces opposed to the Small administration were discussed at length yesterday at a conference of representatives of six potential gubernatorial candidates at the Hotel Sherman.

In addition to the candidates' representatives, State Chairman Walter A. Rosenfield and former Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman were present by special invitation, and Chairman Rosenfield, authorized to act as spokesman to the press, made the following statement:

"The meeting today was occupied with an informal discussion of the situation as a whole, without any definite attempt to agree on a candidate.

"What occurred showed the complete accord of those present and the candidates they represent. But it was agreed that it was desirable for those in attendance to consult their principals further and meet again in Chicago a week from next Monday."

Candidates Represented.

The candidates represented and those who spoke for them were the following:

Attorney General E. J. Brundage—County Chairman Homer K. Galpin, Chicago, and State's Attorney Fred C. Mortimer, Sangamon county.

Senator Otis F. Glenn—Senator James E. MacMurray, Chicago, and County Chairman Charles E. Feirich, Jackson county.

John G. Oglesby—C. J. Doyle, former secretary of state, and Speaker David E. Shanahan.

S. S. Tanner—Godfrey Luthy, Peoria, and C. E. Aleshire, Chicago.

Senator Thurlow G. Essington—William Boyes and A. H. Jones, Streator.

John H. Harrison—L. T. Allen, state committeeman, Eighteenth district, and W. J. Parrott, Danville.

McKinley Due Home Soon.

United States Senator McKinley is expected home before the next conference, and it is understood he will be consulted before a decision is made by these twelve concerning which of the six candidates shall be agreed upon to oppose Small.

Coolidge Pours Oil to Calm Troubled Congressional Seas

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—President Coolidge has set himself to the difficult task of pacifying the La Follette bloc and other elements hostile to the administration, which held the balance of power in congress.

Upon the outcome of his efforts depends to a large extent the success of the legislative program he will present to congress in December. And on the success of this legislative program depends his ability to present to the country a record of achievement which will entitle him to nomination in 1924.

To Restore Patronage.

The strategy of the administration in dealing with the complex and unfavorable situation at the capital was brought to light during the last few days. As the first step in the conciliation program, it is understood that Mr. Coolidge has given assurance to La Follette followers that he will restore their federal patronage rights in Wisconsin.

Early in the Harding administration all federal patronage was taken away from Senator La Follette and the La Follette congressmen and turned over to Senator Lenroot to be used in the construction of a powerful political machine to smash the La Follette power.

The scheme failed to work, however, and the La Follette slate, headed by the senator himself, swept the state in the election last fall.

Holds Balance of Power.

Administration leaders were dismayed to find, moreover, that as a result of the slender margin of the Republican victory in the congressional elections the La Follette bloc held the balance of power in both houses of congress.

Word that the La Follette patronage ban is to be lifted was announced by Representative Lambert [Rep., Wis.] following a conference with President Coolidge.

RECOVER BODIES OF 2 SCHOOLBOYS DROWNED IN LAKE

Police of the Hyde Park station and the Jackson park coast guard yesterday recovered the bodies of Bordon Vent, 4425 Sidney avenue, and William Plummer, 4539 Oakenwald avenue, high school students, who were drowned a week ago when their canoe capsized in the lake a quarter of a mile from the foot of East 43d street. The body of William Gardner, the third victim of the tragedy, was recovered on Friday.

The police were called when a body, which proved to be that of Plummer, was seen floating at the foot of 49th street. Two hours later, the coast guard, dragging at the foot of 51st street, recovered the body of the Vent boy.

While trying to jump from one barge to another yesterday Stephen Sajdinoch, an employé of the Lakes Dredge and Dock company, slipped, fell, and was drowned in the lake off East 29th street. The body was recovered by the coast guard.

Paris Midinettes Vote for Strike Tomorrow

PARIS, Sept. 22.—The midinettes, or shop girls employed by the dressmakers, today voted to go on strike next Monday.

BRING BOYS BACK, BUT LET MY WIFE ELOPE, HIS PLEA

Somewhere between here and California, Adolf O. Windishman told the police, is a machine containing Mrs. Windishman, his two sons, his riding breeches, his revolver, and most of his spare shirts, and another man.

Windishman, a machinist living at 1461 Ogden avenue, charged that last Wednesday his wife broke into his trunk while he was at work, took most of his wearing apparel, and eloped with Jack Conway. The latter, he said, once worked for him as chef when he owned a restaurant in Toledo. He discharged the man when he discovered him writing notes to his wife, Windishman added, and shortly afterward she ran away with him to Detroit.

She came back to me when I moved to Chicago," he said, "and Conway followed her. I can't bear the sight of her any more, but I want my two boys back."

SUPPOSED THIEF, TRYING TO FLEE, SHOT AND KILLED

An unidentified man, supposed to have been a burglar, was shot and killed last night by Lester Jakman, a boarder in the home of Mrs. May Klein, 2154 West Jackson boulevard.

WILSON LETTER BRANDS SHIELDS UNTRUSTWORTHY

Senator's Campaign Foe Broadcasts Note.

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 22.—[United Press.]—A letter from Woodrow Wilson repudiating the candidacy of U. S. Senator John K. Shields for reëlection was made public today by Gen. L. D. Tyson, candidate against Mr. Shields for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Mr. Wilson's letter, written from his S street home in Washington, D. C., on Aug. 28, 1923, addressed to W. A. S. Furlow of Bristol, Tenn., stated:

"In reply to your letter of Aug. 25, I do not feel at liberty to say more than this: That I regarded Mr. Shields during my administration as one of the least trustworthy of my professed supporters."

Shields Praised Wilson.

Mr. Shields praised the former President in an interview recently. Furlow then wrote to Wilson and received the reply made public today.

"Woodrow Wilson is one of the greatest men the world has ever produced," Mr. Shields said in his interview. "He was a great President and has been and is now very popular in Tennessee.

"His high place in history is secure and the adulation and mouthings of weaklings and demagogues can aid nothing to or detract anything from it."

But "No Praise Needed."

Tyson, replying to Shields, declared that "Wilson now needs no praise from Shields. All Wilson needed from Shields was his vote for the league of nations, at a time when that vote probably meant ratification of the Versailles treaty and as a consequence thereof, the triumph of the Democratic party."

THE LARGEST FINE CLOTHING STORE IN THE WORLD

"Business has a heart"

IT was a crisp September morning. The breezes off the Lake nipped one's Cheeks, as one paused ever so briefly to witness the farewell of Autumn to Fall.

State street—the Commercial Hub of the second largest City in America, seemed a Maelstrom of Nervous Energy, as the multitude moved to and fro.

State street—where once stood the Tepee of the Redman, now the Skyscraper of Civilization noses its way toward the Clouds—and Progress nods Approval.

State street--scene of the early Struggles, brilliant Triumphs and delightful Romances of our Forefathers, was radiant in the Hustle and Bustle of a glorious September morn.

"SHALL we keep Kelly on the payroll—or drop him?" inquired the Superintendent of a Great Commercial Institution, as he entered the office of the General Manager.

"How long since he reported for Duty?" asked his Chief.

"Three months," replied the Superintendent.

The General Manager knitted his brows. Overhead down, volume up—and business prospers. He knew that well. "Of course he has Medical Attention. What does the Doctor say?"

"No hope," answered the Superintendent. "Just talked with his wife on the phone, as brave a little Woman as ever walked in Shoe Leather. The Doctor says he may live one month, or he may live six."

"Poor old Kelly," sighed the General Manager. "I'm sorry. He was one of our oldest and best Salesmen. Always a gentleman—Faithful and Loyal to every Trust. Keep Kelly on the Payroll, John—to the End."

And as the Superintendent turned to go, there was just the faintest suspicion of Moisture in his Cold Grey Eyes.

BUSINESS is a Rough and Tumble game of "Give and Take," yet way down beneath the Bluff and Bluster of the Surface, the Still Waters of Sympathy Flow. Indeed, Business has a Heart. Of that we are sure.

COMIC PEOPLE DANCE TO TUNES READERS PLAY

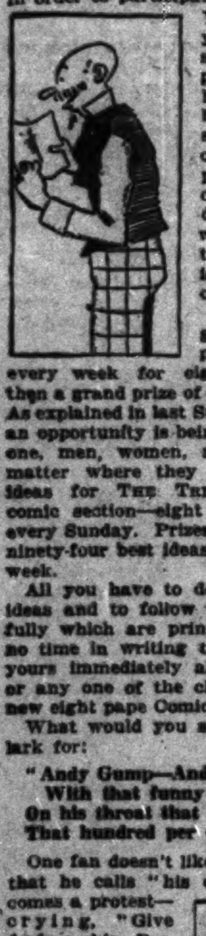
Fun Ideas of 94 Persons Are Accepted.

BY NORA COLLINS.

$10,000 for Cartoon Ideas!

Ninety-four prizes totaling $1,000 are awarded today for cartoon ideas in this great contest.

It is not necessary to use a coupon in order to participate in this contest.



You may write your idea on a separate sheet of paper, being sure, however, to number it to correspond with the coupon which appears in the comic section today. Or, if you wish, you may use the coupon which is printed for your convenience.

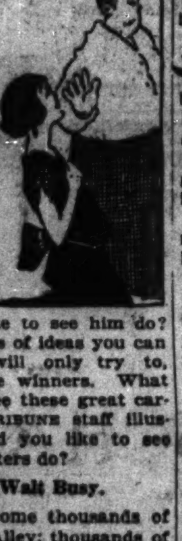
$1,000 in cash given away to prize winners every week for eight weeks. And then a grand prize of $2,000 at the end. As explained in last Sunday's TRIBUNE, an opportunity is being given to every one, men, women, and children, no matter where they live, to suggest ideas for THE TRIBUNE'S enlarged comic section—eight pages in colors every Sunday. Prizes are awarded for ninety-four best ideas submitted every week.

All you have to do is to think up ideas and to follow the details carefully which are printed below. Lose no time in writing that good idea of yours immediately about the Gumps or any one of the characters in this new eight pape Comic Section.

What would you suggest as a new lark for:

"Andy Gump—Andy Gump
With that funny lump
On his throat that he calls his chin,
That hundred per cent American"?

One fan doesn't like the funny lump that he calls "his chin," and along comes a protest—crying, "Give Andy a chin. Perform an operation if necessary—but a man like Andy should have a chin." Another "Make him a golf fan, Sidney Smith, please." Another wants him in President Coolidge's cabinet and another wants to see him run for President. Andy in politics again!



What would you like to see him do?

There are all kinds of ideas you can work out, if you will only try to, which may be prize winners. What would you like to see these great cartoonists on THE TRIBUNE staff illustrate? What would you like to see their famous characters do?

Would Keep Walt Busy.

To Frank King come thousands of ideas for Gasoline Alley; thousands of things Walt's followers want to see him do. One fan believes Walt's pride has been hurt once too often.

"Bring a rival to Gasoline Alley who will make Mrs. Blossom so jealous that Leap Year is all she is looking forward to so she may propose to Walt. Turn the tables! Have her propose early in 1924 and have Walt turn her down."

Just think, the ninety-four best ideas submitted every week not only win prizes for that week but also have a chance to win the grand prize of $2,000 at the end of the contest. Everybody is talking about this new contest. Thousands already have sent in cartoon ideas as entries in it.

Another fan writes to Frank Willard: "Please have Moon Mullins go to night school to master the English language. It would be even funny to have him studying French."

These are only a few of the suggestions received. Easy—isn't it? Don't lose any more time.

Keeps Cartoonists Busy.

The artists already are busy illustrating in THE TRIBUNE with credit properly given to the one who submitted the idea. Along with winning a prize, wouldn't you be thrilled to see your idea illustrated by one of these great cartoonists?

A Harold Teen fan wants to see Harold a leading movie star. Another wants to see him play Romeo with Lillums as Juliet. Would you like to see this illustrated? What would you like? Get busy.

Even though you did not get in on this big contest during the two preceding weeks—begin now. Remember that the contest is only just started for you. You may send in as many different ideas as you wish. The rules governing the contest are very simple. Just read them over and see how easy it is.

Here Are Details.

1. To introduce the new enlarged Eight Page Comic Section of THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE and to secure suggestions for it THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE offers $10,000 in Cash Prizes for Cartoon Ideas. One thousand dollars in cash will be paid every week for eight weeks; in addition, a Grand Prize of $2,000 will be paid for the best of all the ideas submitted.

The $1,000 given away every week will be divided as follows:

First prize	$ 250
Second prize	100
Third prize	50
Fourth prize	25
Next 25 prizes—$10 each	250
Next 65 prizes—$5 each	325
94 prizes totaling	$1,000

2. Contest is open to every man, woman, boy, and girl, except employés of THE TRIBUNE and their families. It does not matter where you live.

3. You do not have to draw. Simply submit ideas in writing. Ideas must not exceed 200 words. You may submit as many as you wish.

4. Ideas may be submitted with coupons published in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Comic Section every Sunday, or on a separate sheet of paper. All ideas must bear a number. Ideas for this week should be marked "No. 3," both on envelope and inclosure.

5. All ideas must be addressed to the artist for whom the idea is intended, Postoffice Box 1539, Chicago, Ill. For instance, address ideas for "The Gumps" to Sidney Smith; "Gasoline Alley" to Frank King; "Winnie Winkle" to Martin Branner; "Smitty" to Walter Berndt, etc. All ideas must be in by 6 p. m. Thursday following the publication of the coupon. Winners will be announced in THE TRIBUNE the second Sunday following.

6. Originality of the ideas, neatness, and clarity of expression will count.

7. All manuscripts and ideas submitted in this contest or competition become the absolute property of The Tribune Company, and, without any consideration other than that provided in this contest, may be used by The Tribune Company as it sees fit.

8. All entries will be judged by a committee of three from the staff of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, whose decision will be final. In case of ties the full award will be given to each tying contestant.

Winners Are Announced.

The ninety-four prize winners for ideas submitted up to 6. p. m. Thursday, Sept. 13, the first week of the contest, are announced today. If you sent in an idea after a study of the eight pages of comics in colors published two weeks ago look over the list of prize winners and see if your name is included. The second list of prize winners—those sending in ideas on coupons—numbered "2," will appear in next Sunday's TRIBUNE—Sept. 30. The third list of prize winners—those sending in ideas on coupons—numbered "3," will appear the Sunday following, and so on, every week for eight weeks.

OPEN NEW BANK.

Directors and officers of the Douglas National bank of Chicago yesterday held the formal opening of the bank's new building at the northeast corner of South State street and 36th place.

OUTSIDE UNION PRESSMEN URGED TO FILL N. Y. JOBS

Contract with Publishers Praised by Chief.

New York, Sept. 22.—Continued refusal of all but a few members of the dissolved New York pressmen's local to answer the call of George L. Berry, president of the International union, to return to work and end the strike which has hampered publication of leading newspapers this week, today brought from Mr. Berry an urgent plea to all pressmen's unions outside the city to send men immediately to fill their places.

As Mr. Berry was dispatching telegrams to every pressmen's local in the country, the repudiated local arranged for a conference tonight of its executive and conciliatory boards and the chairman and vice chairman of the chapel, local No. 25.

To Discuss New Contract.

It was announced there would be a discussion of the new contract made yesterday between Mr. Berry and the Publishers' association, under which the International would undertake to man the presses at improved wages and working conditions. It was said at union headquarters that the vote of the strikers on returning to work under the Berry agreement, to be taken at a meeting tomorrow, would be influenced to a great extent by the action of the committees and officials tonight.

Mr. Berry's telegram to local officials throughout the country said:

"The International union calls upon your local to send men to New York immediately. Draw on local treasurer or take such means as necessary to get them here. Expenses and compensation for lost time are guaranteed by the International union.

Haste Urged on Unions.

"Report by telegram number of men en route and when they are expected to arrive. There must be no delay in meeting the situation. Best contract ever executed in New York has been signed with all publishers. Many men engaged in illegal strike and who now remain out are pursuing a course that is indefensible and in violation of every principle of American trades unionism."

Minor disturbances were reported by the police today. A reporter and an art director claimed they had been attacked by strike sympathizers and beaten.

Earl of Birkenhead to Speak Here on Oct. 8

The Earl of Birkenhead, lord high chancellor of England during Lloyd George's administration, will speak at Orchestra hall on Oct. 8 under the auspices of local British-American organizations. His subject will be "The Situation in Europe Today."

SKIPPER DENIES CURRENT SWUNG DESTROYER FLEET

Squadron Commanders Ask to Testify.

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 22.—[By the Associated Press.]—No abnormal currents affecting navigation were noticeable off Point Arguello, Sept. 9, the day after seven destroyers plowed into the rocks near there, according to Capt. N. E. Cousins, master of the Pacific Steamship company's liner Ruth Alexander, who was called to the stand when the naval court of inquiry investigating the disaster resumed its session here today.

Capt. Cousins said that in thirty years of experience traveling coast routes he had found the best means of checking his course was to take frequent soundings, especially in foggy weather.

All of the defendants in the inquiry will take the stand, beginning Monday, to tell about the wreck, it was announced after the defendants, led by Capt. Edward H. Watson, chief of the destroyer squadron, had requested the court that they be allowed to testify.

The defendants who signified their desire to testify were: Capt. Edward H. Watson, commander of the eleventh destroyer squadron; Capt. Robert Morris, commander of destroyer squadron division 33; Commander William S. Pye, commander of division 31; Commander Louis P. Davis, commanding officer U. S. S. Woodbury; Commander William P. Gaddis, commanding officer U. S. S. Somers; Commander William L. Calhoun, commanding officer U. S. S. Young; Commander William H. Toaz, commanding officer U. S. S., S. P. Lee; Lieutenant Commanders John F. McClaine, Donald T. Hunter, Walter D. Zed, Herbert O. Roesch and Richard H. Booth, commanding officers of the destroyers Farragut, Delphy, Fuller, Nicholas and Chauncey, and Lieut. Laurence F. Blodgett, navigating officer.

BANKERS LUNCHEON GUESTS.

Seventy-five bankers from western states, on their way to the American Bankers' association convention at Atlantic City, were guests at a luncheon at the Congress hotel tendered by the Chicago Clearing House association.

ETTY SCOTT AND DWARD WELLES WED IN GARDEN

eremony Declared One of Year's Loveliest.

robably the last of this season's garden weddings and certainly one of the loveliest was that of Miss Betty cott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John William Scott of Hubbard Woods, and Edward Kenneth Welles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Welles of Evanston, which took place at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the residence of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clueit of 1147 Sheridan road, Hubbard Woods.

The service was read by the Rev. James A. Richards before a large assemblage of relatives and friends.

Bride's Gown Fairylike.

The bride, who made her debut in [illegible], wore a fairylike gown of white tulle over a white satin slip, the tulle skirt being made in a bouffant style and the long tulle train being trimmed with rose point lace from the wedding gown of her mother. Her untrimmed tulle veil was arranged simply and she carried a bouquet of valley lilies and gardenias.

Miss Barbara Scott, the "sub-deb" sister of the bride, and the maid of honor, wore an orchid chiffon frock and a Grecian head-band of shaded blue tulle. The bridesmaids, Miss Marion Walker, Miss Beatrix Thorne, Miss Katherine Strawn, Miss Frances Robbins, Miss Catherine Rehm, Miss Clarissa Donnelley, and Miss Frances Dooley, all of Chicago, and Mrs. Laurence Van Ingen of New York, all wore gowns of periwinkle blue chiffon and head-bands of shaded lavender tulle. The attendants carried scarves of shaded blue and lavender tulle instead of bouquets.

Brother Is Best Man.

Donald P. Welles served his brother as best man and ushering were Alexander C. Zabriskie of New York, John Donnelley of Kansas City, Mo.; Frederick C. Lawrence and Marcien Jenckes of Boston, Edwin W. Winter, Calvin D. Trowbridge, Stephen Y. Hord, James H. Douglas, Jr., and John Coonley, Jr., all of Chicago.

Mr. Welles and his bride will be at home after Nov. 1 at 39 East Schiller street.

Attorneys General of U. S. Will Discuss Oil Here

Attorneys general of the country will meet in national conference in Chicago Oct. 15 and 16 to consider gasoline production and consumption, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Lincoln, Neb., last night. The meeting, at which data involving every phase of the oil industry will be available, was decided upon at the recent convention in Minneapolis of the National Association of Attorneys General, but the time and place were not then announced.

HELD ON MURDER CHARGE.

Joseph Rico, employed by the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern railroad, was ordered held on a charge of murder by a coroner's jury yesterday at the inquiry into the death of Jesus [illegible], another railroad worker.

Wearing Apparel SHOW

Advance styles of two hundred manufacturers from London, New York, and other style centers of men's, young men's, boys' and children's wearing apparel. Two miles of exhibits, in the most beautiful merchandise exposition ever held in Chicago. Complete woolen mill in operation; from raw wool to finished fabric, you will be able to see and study each operation. Testing of fabrics, which will enable you to determine the good from the bad in silks and other textiles. Exhibits of knitted outerwear and underwear. Museum of by-gone styles—hats, suits, overcoats, caps, collars, shirts and neckwear—back to the time Methuselah was teething. These are only some of the features of this Tenth Anniversary Convention and Exposition.

Thousands of visitors from all parts of the country are coming to Chicago this week especially to attend this big show. Those who reside in this city and suburbs certainly cannot afford to miss this opportunity of studying styles and values in wearing apparel. You will be able to make future purchases with more intelligence if you attend this Exposition.

SOCIETY FOLKS WED AMID GARDEN'S GLORIES

One of the most picturesque society weddings of the season took place yesterday afternoon when Miss Betty Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John William Scott of Hubbard Woods, became the bride of Edward Kenneth Welles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Welles of Evanston, in a ceremony performed in the garden of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cluett of 1147 Sheridan road, Hubbard Woods. The Rev. James A. Richards was the officiating clergyman, and many society folk attended. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

3 MEN SLAIN, 1 WOUNDED IN EAST CHICAGO BRAWL

The murder of one Negro by another resulted early yesterday in a spectacular gun battle in a soft drink parlor in East Chicago, Ind., between the surviving duelist and police. When the battle was over one policeman and the second Negro were dead and another policeman was probably fatally wounded.

The dead:

ROBERT KUCEN, East Chicago patrolman.
WILLIAM AUSTIN, colored, East Chicago.
CLARENCE GREEN, colored, East Chicago.

Thomas Mitchell, the wounded policeman, is reported in a critical condition at an East Chicago hospital.

The trouble started soon after midnight, when Green, known to police as a "bad man," swaggered into the soft drink parlor and began an argument with Austin. Hot words were followed by blows, and, according to witnesses, when Green sent Austin careening against a wall both drew revolvers and began firing.

After Austin was slain Green drove the terrified on-lookers from the place. He was fleeing through the back door when Policemen Kucen and Mitchell burst through the front and commanded him to halt. Green dropped behind a table and opened fire on the officers.

GIANT DIRIGIBLE CIRCLES CAPITAL ON LONGEST HOP

Thousands Watch ZR-1 Do 40 Knot Clip.

Washington, Sept. 22.—[United Press.]—The giant navy dirigible ZR-1 reached Washington at 1:25 p. m. today. It left the Lakehurst, N. J., air station at 10:35 o'clock this morning to pay an official visit to Washington.

The giant dirigible slipped through low hanging clouds and flew low over the capitol, then straight up Pennsylvania avenue to the White House. It circled there, turning with easy grace, and passed over the Lincoln memorial. President and Mrs. Coolidge left luncheon for the White House grounds to obtain a better view.

Escorted by Navy Planes.

A squadron of navy seaplanes rose from the naval air station and ranged alongside the ZR-1 as an escort.

After passing over the Lincoln memorial, the ZR-1 slipped across the Potomac to Arlington, where it dipped low over the tomb of the unknown soldier, while flowers were dropped upon the grave.

Proceeding to Mount Vernon, the ZR-1 and its escort of planes circled over the home of Washington and dipped three times in stately salute over his tomb. Then cutting a wide circle, the dirigible headed back to Washington.

Roofs Crowded with Spectators.

It arrived over Bolling field just as a great swarm of army airplanes took the air at the opening of the army's air circus. Despite rainy weather, the city's roofs were black with people out to watch the big ship.

At 2 o'clock the ZR-1 headed away from Bolling field and, circling again over the downtown section of Washington, pointed its nose northeast for the return to Lakehurst when it arrived at 5:45 p. m.

JAILED 15 DAYS ON WIFE'S COMPLAINT. Arvid Anderson, a carpenter, 5136 Wentworth avenue, was sentenced to the house of correction for fifteen days by Judge Rooney yesterday after he was arrested on his wife's complaint of habitual drunkenness and nonsupport.

Find Wounded Victim of Holdup Lying in Street

John Wrobel, 35, 2511 Monticello avenue, was found lying on the sidewalk yesterday at Robey near Fulton street with a bullet wound below his heart. To the police who removed him to the county hospital he murmured something about having been shot by two Negroes.

The police believe him the victim of a holdup pair.

OKLAHOMA.

The political condition of the commonwealth of Oklahoma is worthy of analysis by the American people. Also it is occasion for some self-searching by other commonwealths of our sisterhood. It is easy to condemn Oklahoma, but Illinois, with Herrin in her records, is not, we trust, tempted to cast the first stone.

The condition of Oklahoma is not healthy. In fact, it is emphatically unhealthy. But the symptoms which are showing so strikingly there are observed in other regions of this home of the brave and land of the free. Private justice, so-called, or unlawful social discipline, complete contempt for the constitutional rights of the individual and for due process of law and for the agents and agencies of the law, resorts to violence, the whip, the gun, the rope, a general disregard of life and limb—these phenomena appear as if sown like seed over the land from the palm of some unseen malevolent power.

As we have said before, we may reasonably comfort ourselves with two considerations. Publicity in our day is so widely organized that we have marshaled for us virtually the whole array of events occurring over the continent. We have also to consider that where the symptoms named appear most frequently the community is hardly a generation from the frontier, and a frontier society relies upon private action in the absence of a well intrenched machinery of legal government.

The case of Oklahoma has not yet been fully analyzed, but we have to remember that Oklahoma is one of the newest of our communities and has had no time to settle into ordered living. But yesterday it was largely an Indian reservation. Oil has filled it with thousands of adventurous Americans with no roots in the soil, new rich or hoping to be rich tomorrow. Its government is raw and new. Its communities are improvised. It is a society which has not had time to find itself and it should not have been allowed to leave the guardianship of the nation. Partisan politics made Oklahoma a state before Oklahoma was fitted for self-government. It is not surprising that we should now find it in confusion and learn that one of its representatives wants the parent nation to restore a "republican form of government," as guaranteed by the federal constitution.

But what is acute in Oklahoma is, as we have said, latent or less extensively apparent in the south and middle west, if not in the older communities. The excuse offered for violence in Oklahoma is not without some weight, though it can be no real justification in any civilized society. The people of Oklahoma, at any rate a political majority, chose as executive head of their government a man apparently utterly unfit for the high responsibilities of that office. They insured misgovernment by that act. Moreover, a considerable part of the whole state machinery seems also unfit. The governor was elected by a combination of political influences which had no political intelligence or civic conscience. They represented the selfish and self-destructive alleged interests of certain classes, radical union labor, the radical discontentment among farmers, half baked doctors of social experiment—about every class that has no grounding in American principles, no reasoned devotion to the American system of ordered liberty.

The product of a combination of this kind could not represent American government and Walton apparently has used his authority as might be expected. The high prerogative of the executive, the pardoning and parole power, is a touchstone of responsibility, and Walton, it is charged, has used it ruthlessly in the interest of himself and his backers. Criminals were set free to the number of 229 or more, many of them convicted of the gravest offenses. Those who condone the private floggings charge that this fact and the interference with justice of politics compelled a resort to private discipline. Walton responds with his declaration of martial law on the ground that civil authority has become corrupted or terrorized by organized violence practiced by the Ku Klux Klan. Constitutional guaranties are suspended, the militia are called out, a grand jury and even the state legislature are threatened. At this writing there is no clash, but Oklahoma, in the heart of a nation at peace with the world, is under military government.

Whatever the immediate outcome of this humiliating and demoralizing spectacle, the American people have it as portent and lesson. We assume that we are worthy of self-government, but self-government is justified solely by civic intelligence and self-control. The state of affairs in Oklahoma discloses an absence of civic intelligence in the choice of officials. It is self-government crumbling through vicious forces of class or group interest manipulated by demagogic politics and through lack of a strong and clear devotion to American principles. The American people in every state and community owe it to themselves and their children to learn and apply the lesson of Oklahoma's shame.

WALKING WEATHER AGAIN.

Crisp days of autumn again remind us that this is walking weather. We might cite testimonials from Edward Weston or Mr. O'Sullivan, or other famous pedestrians in an effort to drive the physically indolent out of their limousines or out of their easy chairs into the country or into the city parks and by-paths, but it would be dull, and, we fear, useless.

We all know, and most of us admit, that walking is good for our health. That is not sufficient to make us walk. The American people have never been noted for doing things because the things were good for them. Most of the things we do, we do because we must, or because we enjoy doing them. We have come to regard walking as merely an inconvenient and more or less painful method of getting from one place to another.

So if any appeal is to be made to lure us from our ease into the out-of-doors to walk it must be the appeal of pleasure. The benefits which may come of it will be incidental. Charles Dickens has written that "the best of all ways to lengthen our days is not, as Mr. Thomas Moore has it, 'to steal a few hours from the night, my love,' but, with leave be it spoken, to walk steadily and with a purpose." Other notable writers have commented in similar vein, but they all offer the reward of health or long life, instead of pleasure.

That we believe is an error, if the purpose is really to entice the populace out to walk. Beauty, entertainment, the physical delights coming from deep breaths of crisp, clean air, the tingle of an improved circulation, the pleasant languor of rest upon one's return under a roof, and the gustatory satisfaction of a dinner flavored by an excellent appetite, must be sung more effectively if we are really to go out to walk. These are immediate and material advantages. We do not have to await old age to be sure that we are profiting by our walks if we will accept these small dividends from day to day.

They are all available in the cool, bright days of autumn if we will but accept them. It is walking weather.

THE HUMAN WISDOM OF THE CONSTITUTION.

There are in our day, and there always have been among our people, those who would make our political system a pure democracy. Their shibboleth is "the people's will," and they conceive that system the best which gives the promptest and fullest effect to whatever a popular vote directs.

This is not the American system as formulated in the constitution and bill of rights. There is a fundamental principle or conception which underlies all other principles expressed in our fundamental law. It is not stated in the constitution, but the constitution is founded upon it and expresses it. This fundamental of fundamentals is that there are certain principles of right which are of permanent validity and therefore should be placed beyond the reach of the mutations of popular mood and the will of mere majorities.

The founders of our republic undertook to state these principles, or at least those which they conceived to be most important, and they fixed conditions upon which they might be repealed or amended or added to. They did not assume infallibility nor seek to lay down immutable rules. They respected the "will of the people" as a political finality and as a source of sovereignty quite as much as the advocates of direct democracy. But their observation of human character and of human experience had taught them that the wise nation, like the wise individual, distrusts mood and impulse and seeks by appropriate means for protection from them. The forefathers, therefore, provided that the fundamental law should not be altered at the will of a mere majority of the voters. They fixed a process which would assure time for discussion and deliberation, and provided that the legislatures of three-fourths of the states of the Union should give approval to any change.

This system has been bitterly attacked, and today there are many who would relax the conditions upon which the fundamental law may be altered. In normal times there is no likelihood that they will be relaxed. The sound instinct of a people experienced in self-government may, we think, be relied upon to recognize the wisdom of a strict check upon sudden impulse, ill informed and premature judgment, and the emotions which passing circumstances inflame. This rule of restraint is criticized by those who favor pure democracy as a device to defeat the will of the people in the interest of the privileged few. But it is a rule of self-restraint arising from a knowledge of our common nature, and every individual capable of intelligent self-examination recognizes its validity in his own case and therefore its wisdom in government.

The danger to this principle of democratic self-restraint is twofold. There is the danger that in a moment of great public excitement persisting under unusual conditions for the period provided for deliberation this safeguard of constitutional principle may be swept away and easy conditions of amendment substituted. The other is the danger which confronts our whole system — namely: that of a habitual indifference to and general ignorance of our fundamental principles, the philosophy of human rights and progress supporting them, and the political experience from which they are deduced.

The former danger is far less to be feared than the latter, but both should be forestalled, as they can be, by efficient popular education in American citizenship, of which the essential is instruction in constitutional principles and history.

CHILE DEFENDS THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

The defense of the Monroe Doctrine by Señor Alvarez, a distinguished Chilean delegate in the assembly of the league of nations, is a most welcome and promiseful event. Our famous policy has not had much justice done it by South American publicists and statesmen in recent years. It has been misrepresented persistently in Latin-American politics as a disguise for imaginary projects of imperialism. But the historical fact is that it was a blessing of the greatest beneficence to the young republics of South and Central America, and is still a guaranty which in peaceful times they may scorn, but, if storms arise, they will be glad to use again as a shelter.

This is nothing derogatory to the independence or dignity of the republics of the western hemisphere. The Monroe Doctrine is a policy of the United States which it will act upon whenever there is occasion. It is a policy of defense and nothing more and our neighbors of this hemisphere can honestly find in it nothing which threatens their sovereignty as independent states. We ascribe its misinterpretation to influences which seek to weaken the bonds of confidence and amity which the United States sincerely wishes to strengthen with all responsible nations in our hemisphere and we hope these influences are being exposed to the eyes of patriots in all our sister republics of the west.

But there is a special cause of gratification in the defense of the doctrine by a Chilean statesman. In the past we had a deplorable misunderstanding with that country. But we hope that is buried and that the very substantial interests we have in common with the Chileans are being recognized in both republics. The canal has opened up the United States to the western nations of South America and them to us. We are nearer to their ports than Europe. We are a Pacific power as they are. We have complementary needs and resources. There is no sound reason why we should not develop economic and political relations of great mutual benefit. Efforts to obstruct this will be made, but if we are wise they will not succeed.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET.

The lakes in the woods in September. Two blue herons arise out of the marsh and fly up the thoroughfare. The maples in the pine and hemlock are scarlet, flame bearers in the dark green. Poplar leaves are dry and flying with every gust of wind. Wintergreen berries are red. Partridge scurry up under foot. Far off hillocks, across blue water, have flashes of yellow and flame color. White birch make glistening chalk lines against the pine.

There has been frost and a flurry of snow. Potato vines between the stumps of the clearing are black. A buck, a doe, and a fawn bound away over the windfalls. A muskrat swims the thoroughfare. What a life! Always wet fur up to the ears.

Pine spiced wind from across the lake, whipping it into white caps. A cottage with a singing gable. The wind is in it with the vim of winter. Warmth by day and early dusk when the sun takes his thousand candles and goes to bed. The chill of night with the harvest moon waxing into the blue void of a million suns.

The blue kingfisher chatters at the water's edge in the warmth of day. The great horned owl booms from the woods in the cold of night and a loon makes ghost medicine out where the waves are breaking through the wild rice and pickerel grass to wash up on the sand in lines of foam.

The fire crackles and purrs. The wind sings in the gable and the book has just come to its second murder. What a life!

WHAT THE RAILROADS DID.

The political group that is attacking the railroads on the grounds of inflated valuation is objecting to the land grants of former times. It is a characteristic point of view, properly described in plain American as welching. The assumption is that these land grants were frauds upon the people—exorbitant bribes to ruthless wealth.

None of these critics, we are confident, is anxious to embark his own money in enterprises such as the pioneer railways represented, lines running into new country with little population and traffic, enterprises which were pledged to a long voyage to success and which were swept by many a storm. But it is easy in this generation to forget the hazards of its predecessors, while accepting all the benefits they risked everything to establish.

There is significance in some observations contributed to the Cedar Rapids (Iowa) Republican by a veteran farmer of that prosperous commonwealth, and we parallel the point of view of the modern welcher with the following:

"Why, Mr. Editor, I have raised and garnered sixty-nine large or small crops in the state of Iowa. I sure have seen many changes. I have hauled as fine pork as ever was dressed, frozen hard, and sold for $2.37½ per hundred at McGregor, four days to make the trip, not such roads those days. I have received $4.50 per barrel for hauling salt from Dubuque to Independence. And with what rejoicing we welcomed our first railroad, how cheerfully we helped, how thankful we were that there was money in Europe that could be borrowed, and how anxious we were to give a portion of our public lands, anything, everything, to secure transportation, for without transportation our country was practically valueless, as transportation is just as necessary as production. And there ever would and could have attained a spirit of friendliness between the railroad managers and the farmers had it not been for the virus so vociferously dispensed by the blatherskite seeking political preferment."

We don't believe the American farmer respects welching on a bargain, and of all bargaining ever done by a community the bargaining to stimulate investment in railroad extension was the wisest and best rewarded. The west would be today a sparsely settled and primitive region if it had not been for these bargains which encouraged men to put money and brains into the building of railroads out across the prairies and plains and mountains of what was then a continental wilderness. But the Americans of those days had faith and foresight and their leaders were not vote-catching among the ignorant and thoughtless. So the railroads were welcomed and made possible by the offer of terms which justified the risk they represented, and the result was that the winning of the west was a swiftly moving epic of daring and energy. As for giving away land, it was given for railroads, for canals, for free factory sites—and most of it was given to private individuals for nothing. That was what it was worth until human energy went into it, and it was transportation—chiefly the railroads—which made it worth what it is today. For every acre of land given to railroads they paid service which enriched every other acre.

Instead of long generations of painful advance it was accomplished in a generation and accomplished by and because of the American railroad. And today the railroads are the life of the agricultural empire founded on its service. If there is common sense in us we shall not be led astray on that fact. If it is good politics to attack them unjustly, misrepresenting them, exaggerating their defects, raising unreasoning hostilities and unfair criticism, it is because we have forgot the past and do not understand the present or foresee the future.

But we do not think it is going to prove good politics to preach in any disguise doctrines of repudiation. Given time to think, our people are neither yellow nor red.

THE LIFE BLOOD OF AMERICA.

[Charles R. Clark in The Independent.]

What is the life blood that keeps industry alive and growing and prosperous? What is the vital fluid which our civilization must have in free supply, or—wither and die?

To understand the situation clearly we go back to the origins of our government, and what do we find?

We find that the United States was not founded on a group of people, but on an individual—the American citizen. The constitution, which was drawn and adopted as the basic law of our country, was erected from the first word to the last on one single, simple principle.

That principle was nothing more than an acknowledgment of the right of every individual to liberty of person, liberty of property, and liberty of contract.

From this single, simple principle has grown the tremendous industrial civilization of our nation today.

The foundation of all our greatness is the human individual, and his right to work, play, love, and worship as he will. All our marvelous economic progress, which is the wonder of the world, has been based on the individual, and not on government, as the mainspring of activity.

There is no American industry that has been invented, and developed and built up by government. The origin, and life, and growth, and success of every business in this country has been in the minds and hearts of individuals.

Our nation's greatness grows from private enterprise.

How to Keep Well. By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, if matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit, or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

KEEPING CHILDREN CLEAN.

On the walls of the Bronx Continuation School in New York City there are placards which read as follows:

"Am I ready for school today?"
"Is my face clean?"
"Is my neck clean?"
"Are my ears clean?"
"Is my hair combed?"
"Did I brush my teeth?"
"Are my finger nails clean?"
"Do I wear a necktie?"
"Are my shoes blackened?"
"Look and see! Look and see!"

Why should not a similar sign be on every schoolroom wall? Why wait for every school teacher to act? Do it now! The instructions are simple. Any child can carry them out. They call for but little expenditure of time and practically no expenditure of money. They raise no inferiority complexes on the part of those whose parents cannot afford to buy clothes.

Nor do they suggest inferiority complexes on the part of those who cannot buy milk at home, or get a good breakfast, or who are undernourished for other reasons. A little soap and water are the main requisites. The teeth can be cleaned with a cloth. Neckties can be home made and blacking is cheap. An inferiority complex about a dirty neck, dirty ears and dirty face can be easily removed.

On the other hand, the performances called for are of health importance. Sickness rates are lower now than they were, in part, because people are cleaner than was the fashion in the olden days. The bath tub has ceased to be an ornament and has become a utility. The old joke ending: "Too bad we can't use the pretty, nice bath tub until Saturday night" can now be told with safety, it having become a joke and having ceased to be a fact. Cleanliness in the home, on the lot, around the stable, in the streets and alleys, in the water reservoir—it is this greater cleanliness all down the line which has contributed as much as anything else to lessening the prevalence of sickness.

A child whose ears and neck are clean is a little more likely to be careful about spreading colds and scarlet fever. There is reason for thinking that children who keep their teeth clean are less liable to spread sore throat, diphtheria, and measles. Putting up the placards and urging the children to profit by them will make the schoolroom population healthier.

PROTECTION AGAINST MALARIA.

E. S. writes: What would be the best way for travelers going to Java and India to protect themselves from malaria produced by mosquito bites in these countries? Is there an inoculation for malaria? What other methods besides inoculation are there?

REPLY.

There is no way to vaccinate against malaria. Taking a prophylactic dose of quinine nightly has some advocates. The usual prophylactic dose is 5 grains. Most sanitarians do not advise it. Keep away from mosquitoes. Keep behind screens and bars. If you contract malaria, take plenty of quinine. Malaria is not excessively bad in India or Java. It is worse in some parts of America.

RINGWORM DUE TO PARASITE.

Mrs. L. W. J. writes:

1. Will you please tell me what causes ringworm and if it can be conveyed by fingernails, in scratching from one part of the body to another?

2. Is there any permanent cure, or is it only subdued or temporarily cured?

3. Can one catch it from wiping hands on roller towel where some one has wiped his hand—that is, a person having it?

REPLY.

1. It is due to a parasite. It can be spread by fingernails and scratches.

2. It is rather easily cured, except when the patch is located in a hairy area. As a rule, where hairs are involved, these must be removed before the cure will work satisfactorily.

3. Yes.

DISMISSING SCARLET FEVER.

A. F. C. writes:

1. I am 24 years old. Two months ago I left the hospital after an attack of scarlet fever. Lately I feel pains as if something is gnawing at the end of spinal column and kidneys. This only comes once in a while. Is this a cold or after-effects? Do you think it dangerous and would you advise an examination?

2. I'm on my feet all day, walking. Would it be dangerous to start exercising now, running about one and one-half miles each night, and sparring three easy rounds of boxing?

3. My chart in hospital showed alkaline, while others had acid. What would that mean, or is it natural?

4. Can I eat everything but meat? If not, what foods would you recommend that I eat?

5. I heard people say that scarlet fever in adults was dangerous, especially as they grow older. Have I anything to fear, more so than any one my age who never had scarlet fever? I mean, are there any dangers of after-effects if I live a clean life? Have you any other advice you would give me?

REPLY.

1. The symptoms suggest nervousness and nothing else.

2. I judge not, but have your urine analyzed and, at the result of the analysis, decide.

3. I do not know what was alkaline.

4. Anything, including meat.

5. If your urine is negative as to Bright's disease, proceed to forget that you were ever ill.

POTOMAC AVENUE PAVING.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—[Friend of the People.]—When are they going to improve with paving Potomac avenue from Menard to Austin boulevard?
A. A. F.

Potomac avenue, between Menard and Austin avenues, has been ordered paved with asphalt and the case is pending in court, but we do not know if the assessment will be confirmed in time to pave the street this year. Some of the property owners have delayed the proceeding by filing objections in court.
EDWARD J. GLACKIN, Secretary,
Board of Local Improvements.

DUPLICATE CASHIER'S CHECK.

Oak Park, Ill., Sept. 14.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—About a month ago I lost a cashier's check. The bank stopped payment at once but will not issue me a new check unless I furnish a bond of indemnity for double the amount of my lost check. Why do they require double the amount? How would I go about getting the bond? Does a surety office need to sign the bond or can a friend do this for me? G. C.

It is common practice to require bonds double the amount that appears to be in question in order to furnish a margin of security. It is for the bank to say whether they would be satisfied with personal security or would insist on a surety company. If the former, they probably would want a real estate owner. Take the matter up with the bank. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PAVING BY PRIVATE CONTRACT.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—[Friend of the People.]—Is the alley to be paved between Madison and Monroe streets, and Central and Lotus avenues? Can you find out the date they plan to start work? I was told yesterday that this alley is to be paved by a private concern. J. F.

The property owners have entered into a private contract with a construction company to pave the alley referred to. We understand the work will start early in October. EDWARD J. GLACKIN, Secretary,
Board of Local Improvements.

DIVISION OF PROPERTY.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—This is the case of an estate which has been inherited by two brothers and a sister.

One brother and the sister are married and have children, the other brother is married but has no children.

1. In case of death of either brother or sister can estate be sold without waiting until these children are of age?

2. At the death of the brother who has no heirs except his wife, does his share of the estate go to his wife or to the brother and sister?

3. Does property owned by a man before marriage and which has never been changed at his death go to the wife or to his people? E. A. B.

1. Yes, by appointing a guardian for the children. In case of real estate, partition proceedings would be necessary.

2 and 3. Spouse takes half and dower in the other half.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

JOINT TENANCY.

Chicago, Sept. 17. — [To the Legal Friend of the People.] — In case two friends buy a joint tenancy, if one dies, can the wife of the surviving party or any of the heirs claim any share of that property? Would the estate have to go through the Probate court? C. M.

No, to both questions.

FILIAL LOVE.

Two Kansas Boys Manifested It by Shooting Each Other's Parents.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 22.—The little City of Independence, twelve miles from here, was the scene of a terrible tragedy yesterday. Jim Crow Chiles, a noted desperado, was shot and killed, his son mortally wounded, and three others dangerously wounded. He was a burly desperado, and reckless when under the influence of liquor. He had killed several before.

NEW YORK.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—At a very early hour this morning it was discovered that the combination of bankers, and the closing of the Stock Exchange on Saturday, was in itself relief enough to break the storm which threatened to culminate in a national disaster. The fury of Saturday had spent itself on that day. The madness of Sunday had been the idle croakings of ruin, and are proved absurd. The sanguine views of leading bankers are confirmed, and everything was bright and cheerful.

GREAT BRITAIN.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—A desperate conflict took place in Bury St. Edmunds, yesterday, between a mob of Irishmen and a body of policemen. The officers were compelled to use their clubs vigorously, and did not succeed in dispersing the rioters until many of them had received severe injuries. There is great excitement in town, and a renewal of the disturbance is apprehended. While the rioting was in progress, several houses were attacked by the mob and [illegible].

CUBS AND DOOINS SPLIT FINAL BILL

Alexander Checks Locals' Second Place Hopes by Winning Opener, 2-0.

Benton, Ill., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—State troops tonight were ordered out to stop a race riot between American and Polish miners.

This action was taken after twenty-five foreigners had been seriously injured in a battle on Town Hall square. Every other foreigner who was found on the streets met similar treatment.

The disturbance soon assumed such proportions that Mayor Espy swore in twenty-five extra police and sent for the sheriff of Franklin county. The mayor then mounted a box in the center of the square and sought to pacify the Americans.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—"Every decent man and woman in the United States should be heartily with you in this struggle," is the word that has come to Judge Ben B. Lindsey in a letter from Theodore Roosevelt.

The former president assured Judge Lindsey when the recall agitation was first started by emissaries of W. G. Evans, former political dictator of Denver, that if the juvenile judge should find it necessary to make a campaign for the retention of his office, he could count on Col. Roosevelt's coming to Denver to aid him by speeches.

THE FORMER LAW ENFORCER, REV. WILLIAMSON, SPEAKS UP.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Answering H. C. Jensen's letter of Sept. 12: The charge that Chief Collins has neglected attention to holdups, burglaries, and gunmen, on account of giving too much attention to raiding of saloons, cabarets and disorderly houses, is not borne out by the statistics, which, by the way, has determined the status, both for Chief Collins and his predecessor, viz.: Chicago crime commission report:

Chief Superintendent Collins came into administrative power and applied a policy of law enforcement and cleanup, directing his efforts at the recognized "nests" of crime breeders and criminal hangouts. Read the result again, Mr. Jensen:

	1919.	1920.	1921.	1922.	1923.
Murder	114	47	61	83	79
Burglary ...	1,754	2,014	1,651	1,565	1,188
Robbery ...	997	796	1,098	991	543

According to this report, it was also stated that the report covers the month of April, during the last two weeks of which Chief Collins was in charge of the police department. In April there were 115 robberies, compared with 120 in March. There were 273 burglaries, as compared to 300 in the preceding month, and the number of murders was cut from twenty-two to seventeen. I may say, with Mr. H. C. Jensen, "This is not a question of party politics. The question is one of policy." And as such, my reply is that as former law enforcement commissioner of Chicago I stood for the policy of enforcing the law on "booze" joints, gambling dens, and commercialized prostitution, and contended right along that if the police department did its duty, enforcing the law against these places and their promoters, habitués, and backers, we would have less robberies, burglaries, and murders to deal with, and the statistics of the Chicago crime commission prove the philosophy to be correct.

It is not a question, in my judgment, of the police department swinging either one way or the other in the so-called attention to morals or crime. To sell booze or buy it, or brew it for unlawful purposes, to operate organized gambling dens, or to conduct a business place of prostitution, and do these things contrary to city ordinances, state and federal law, is crime. And no self-respecting, honorable police department can retain the elements of real Americanism without doing its full duty (as far as it has power) in enforcing all laws, and seeing to it that every violator is arrested, booked and tried. Then let the courts support the police department also.

HOW GREAT IS DEMPSEY!

Chicago, Sept. 16.—I never thought Jack Dempsey the fighter that many give him credit for. I think still less of him since last Friday night. Let us analyze the dope.

Here comes a "greenhorn" from South America. He cannot even speak our language. He fights with one hand. He has had practically no training. Ponder over all that, you Dempsey enthusiasts.

And yet this greenhorn, with one ha and no training to speak of, knocks th great (?) Dempsey through the rop and out of the ring. POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

KNOW YE THE LAND?

By Lord Byron.

Know ye the land where the cypress and myrtle
Are emblems of deeds that are done in their clime?
Where the rage of the vulture, the love of the turtle,
Now melt into sorrow, now madden to crime?
Know ye the land of the cedar and vine,
Where the flowers ever blossom, the beams ever shine;
Where the light wings of Zephyr, oppress'd with perfume,
Wax faint o'er the gardens of Gull in her bloom;
Where the citron and olive are fairest of fruit,
And the voice of the nightingale never is mute;
Where the tints of the earth, and the hues of the sky,
In color though varied, in beauty may vie,
And the purple of ocean is deepest in dye;
Where the virgins are soft as the roses they twine,
And all, save the spirit of man, is divine?
'Tis the clime of the east; 'tis the land of the sun—
Can he smile on such deeds as his children have done?
O! wild as the accents of lovers' farewell
Are the hearts which they bear, and the tales which they tell.

The Sign of Safe Bonds

"You Can Get 6½% and Safety here" ~said the Banker

ROBERT BURTON and his wife turned away from the teller's window with a feeling of satisfaction. The deposit they had just made brought their balance up to $3,000. This sum represented their savings for six years.

"How can we use this money to better advantage?" asked Burton of his wife. "We might invest it, of course. But in what type of security?—from whom should we buy?—who is the logical man to consult?"

Just then Burton noticed The Sign of Safe Bonds, which he had seen many times before. "Mary," he said, "that sign gives me an idea. Let's ask Mr. Saunders."

The cashier greeted the Burtons pleasantly. He knew Burton was about thirty-six years old and was operating a small but profitable retail store. "I'm glad you've come to us for advice," he said, when Burton had stated their mission, "and I wish more of our clients would make use of our investment knowledge.

"Now, Mr. Burton, the element of risk is always present in your business, isn't it? Some of your surplus, therefore, should be set aside as a trust fund, to be carefully invested in safe, bankable securities which yield a liberal return, and yet, can easily be converted into cash if you need it."

"What type of security do you mean?" asked Burton.

"Properly made first mortgage bonds," was the banker's prompt reply. He pointed out that first mortgage bonds are—more nearly than any other type of security—always worth 100 cents on the dollar; that they yield 6½% annually; that they will be accepted at any bank offering them, as collateral for loans up to 90% of their value.

"You can get 6½% and safety here," said the banker.

"Think what it will mean to you, Burton," he concluded, "if you invest a part of your surplus in safe, first mortgage bonds yielding 6½%. Why, if you make no other investment, in ten years' time your money will almost double itself by the re-investment of interest alone."

Robert Burton was convinced. He now had a definite conception of the accumulating power of money.

And what could be a better investment than properly made 6½% first mortgage bonds? Here was safety—a liberal interest yield—freedom from the worries of speculative investment. Every $100 bond would bring him $6.50 annually—every $1,000 bond, $65.00. This was exactly what he wanted—an easy, safe way to put his surplus funds to work—and he found it in First Mortgage Bonds. A definite step in the direction of financial independence.

Today almost every one realizes the wisdom of investing money safely. But regardless of the amount you have saved—$500, $1,000 or $5,000—begin now to invest in safe 6½% first mortgage bonds.

The banks listed in this advertisement will be glad to assist you. They offer STRAUS BROTHERS Safe First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds yielding 6½%.

BULGAR REVOLT GAINS, REPORTS TO SERBIA SAY

Peasants Hold Towns Near Border.

BY PAUL WILLIAMS.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Sept. 22.—The counter revolution of peasants and the supporters of the murdered premier, M. Stamboulisky, in Bulgaria is reported here to be growing.

Proclamations have been posted in Bulgar towns along the Jugo-Slav frontier calling on the people to rise against the murderous and blood thirsty king. It is asserted that the movement is purely agrarian and has nothing to do with communism.

Sofia is reported in a state of siege. Bulgaria has declared a rigid censorship and 8 o'clock curfew in its capital. Comitadji bands have been transferred from the Macedonian border to northern Bulgaria to oppose the agrarians, who have already been driven out of the Stera-Zagora. The Orange guard, the late Stamboulisky's peasant army, holds Vidin, Belogrodick, and Lompalanka, but the movement seems more local than general. The only strike reported is at Pernik, the largest Bulgarian colliery.

Say Troops Join Rebels.

Posters displayed in the border towns call for a railway strike today and a general strike tomorrow.

It is reported from Lom Palanka, on the Danube, that the second regiment sent against the revolutionists has joined them.

Since the overthrow of the Stamboulisky government his supporters, with headquarters at Prague, have been working furiously in all the Balkan states outside of Bulgaria to restore the peasant party to power. The news of the party's attempt is viewed with great interest in Jugo-Slavia, as it is believed that with the Stamboulisky faction again in power the Macedonian incursions into Jugo-Slavia will cease, thus wiping out that danger zone.

FEAR SERB ATTACK

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SOFIA, Sept. 22.—[Tribune Radio.]—Despite official assurances by the Serb minister, who called at the foreign office, that the troops on the frontier are not contemplating an invasion of Bulgaria but are concentrated for "protection against surprise from Macedonian bands forming in Bulgaria," both public and official opinion are agitated.

Reports that the Jugo-Slav troops, numbering between three and four divisions, have withdrawn are premature. Advices from Pirot and other places behind the Serb lines late this morning indicated that the forces are still there.

Bulgaria has officially requested the interallied commission to examine the Jugo-Slav accusations that Bulgarian bands are marauding across the frontier.

Bulgaria Calls Self Helpless.

Sofia maintains that Belgrade cannot hold her responsible for the activities of bands in Macedonia. Bulgaria, as the recent bolsheviki uprisings prove, has enough on its hands to maintain internal order with its 20,000 troops, allowed under treaty, without organizing comitadjis to invade Jugo-Slavia. The Macedonian uprising is entirely a Jugo-Slavian question and not a Bulgarian, and since the number of Serb troops is not limited they should be able to establish order, it is contended here. The attitude of Jugo-Slavia, which was officially modified during the week, is believed to be caused by a desire to divert attention from its own internal instability by attributing the disorders to exterior influences.

Charges that an Italian boat unloaded army munitions for the Macedonians at Vanya are not only denied by the Bulgarian government, but by the interallied commission as well, the members of which maintain it would be impossible to land and distribute the shipment without representatives there knowing about it.

Travelers coming from the Tsaribond region declare Serb soldiers there are announcing that they expect to be in Sofia within a week. While this, of course, is the usual irresponsible soldier rumor, it is having the effect of exciting public opinion. There is an inclination in certain quarters here to connect the Serb concentrations on the frontier with bolshevik uprisings. When Sofia first learned about the coup it suspected that Belgrade also was informed and was prepared to use it as an excuse for a long desired invasion.

A complete history of transportation will be shown by the New York Central lines today at the La Salle street station, when a special train known as the "Service Progress Special" will be on exhibition from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

The evolution and present outlook of every phase of railroading in the United States is demonstrated by historic relics, unique models, moving pictures, still pictures, paintings, charts, etc.

The operation of the "Service Progress Special" is in direct response to requests from the heads of the American farm federation bureau and the National Grange.

Grand old locomotive "999" which broke the world's speed record on May 10, 1893, with a speed of 112.5 miles an hour, the De Witt Clinton train of 1831, the first to operate in New York state, and the Mikado locomotive No. 8880, for its weight the most powerful locomotive in the world, are to be on view.

SCOTT PLEADS GUILTY IN ROCK ISLAND SCANDAL

Rock Island, Ill., Sept. 22.—John K. Scott, former city attorney, pleaded guilty in Circuit court today to an indictment charging conspiracy to protect gambling, liquor selling, and prostitution, and was fined $2,000, the penalty including an agreement by Scott to resign as a member of the State Bar association, this latter action in answer to disbarment proceedings that have been instituted in the supreme court. Scott had been a city and county official for eighteen years. He was indicted with Mayor H. M. S. Schriver, Chief of Police Thomas Cox and Lawrence Pedigo, but escaped trial on a motion that he be allowed a separate hearing. Schriver, Cox and Pedigo were convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary. All were caught in the vice clean-up investigation.

DEMANDS LEAGUE GET SETTLEMENT OF REPARATIONS

South African Scores Ruhr Seizure.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 22.—Stabbing at the actions of France and Great Britain on the questions of reparations, Gilbert Murray of South Africa laid before the league assembly today a manifesto from the International Federation of Trades Unions calling on the league to undertake a settlement of the reparations problem.

The South African representative declared the league is in a position to tell these two governments that they have failed in four years to set the hideous problem at rest, while the world they lead and govern is made miserable by it and filled with dread for the future.

He scored the French occupation of the Ruhr and pointed out that the league's offer to undertake a solution of the reparations problem, made a year ago, was not even answered. He declared Germany is being destroyed before the very eyes of the league.

Pleads for German People.

"No league like this," he said, "no league with our principles, no ordinary collection of men with human principles, can watch this process without anxiety and dismay."

While condemning the guilt of the internal administration of Germany, Mr. Murray made a heart stirring appeal for the suffering German people and pleaded for diplomatic handling of the delicate question in face of the certain ruin that is threatening the population of the German empire.

"In the name of the ideals we profess, in the name of common humanity, deeper than all our ideals, let us again do as we did last year on the motion of the delegate from France—let us again ask the governments of the great powers either to find a settlement for this question swiftly or else hand it over for settlement to the league," he concluded.

Small Powers Like Speech.

Mr. Murray's speech made a deep impression in many parts of the room, especially among the small powers, both those who had a part in the war and those who remained neutral, but in some quarters it fell on deaf ears. The French delegates are determined that nothing more than a formal resolution, similar to that of last year, touching on the reparations question, shall be introduced in the assembly.

Indeed, when Mr. Murray declared, "I know in history no surer method of sowing seeds of war than the occupation of territory of any nation by a foreign power," he caused deep resentment among the French delegates.

SOUTH AMERICAN COFFEE BROUGHT HERE VIA WATER

The arrival yesterday of a cargo of coffee at the Clark street dock of Reid, Murdock & Co., marked the first of such shipments coming to Chicago by water from the South American coffee plantations.

The firm purchased the coffee in Colombia, transported it by mule to Girardot and thence by rafts to the port of Puerto Colombia, where it was loaded into ocean going vessels and brought to New York. The shipment moved down the Erie canal to Buffalo and there was transferred to the steamer "P. P. Underwood" which brought it to Chicago.

In the future practically all coffee will be shipped to Chicago by water from Colombia, John MacMahon, vice-president of Reid, Murdock & Co., believes.

Detectives Foil Father in Quest of Baby Carriage

Irene Jane Casey, who is 3 months old and has never ridden in a baby carriage, will continue to be carried by mamma. Detectives arrested Jane's father, Raymond Casey of 819 Pershing road, as he was wheeling the baby carriage home at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. He admitted stealing it from in front of a house in 18th street.

"I thought the folks who owned it didn't need it any longer, as their child is 3 years old," he explained.

WORK WARNS OF WORK NEEDED ON HOMESTEAD LAND

Washington, D. C., Sept. 22.—[Special]—Secretary of the Interior Work issued a statement today warning ex-service men of the hardships that must be encountered and the capital that is necessary to take up homestead claims on the public domain in the west.

He frankly declared the public lands left in the control of the federal government were "not very desirable" and added that veterans would be given the best homesteads available.

"There appears to be no little misapprehension among ex-service men as to the procedure that must be followed in order to homestead a tract of government land," he said. "Some veterans are apparently of the opinion that all they have to do is to file an application for a tract, fill in a blank, signing their names and then wait a couple of years and become the owner of the property. They are under the impression that no capital is required. But this conception of the conditions is a mistake."

He enumerated a long list of troubles and expenses which a homesteader must confront.

U. S. Opens 111,000 Acres.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 22.—Opening of more than 111,000 acres of public lands in California, Nevada, New Mexico and Utah to former service men of the world war was announced today at the interior department. Dates for filing will be made public later by local land offices. The lands comprised in the tracts opened under today's orders include 700 acres in San Diego county, Calif., near the town of Campo; 13,700 acres in Mineral county, Nev., near Hawthorne; 19,700 acres in Chavos county, N. M., near Pinon, and 78,000 acres in Garfield county, Utah, near Hanksville.

SEEK DRUG MAD WOMAN AS SLAYER OF CABARET GIRL

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 22.—[United Press.]—A woman drug fiend, crazed by dope, hacked and slashed with scissors at the nude body of Ethel Cass, cabaret girl, until she was dead.

This is the theory advanced to police today by the woman's former husband, J. W. Cass, who declared she had been associated with a secret band of women narcotic users shortly before her blood stained body was found locked in a hotel bedroom with her 2 year old child.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of homicide after viewing the body.

Why Shouldn't Stylish Shoes Be Comfortable?

Why do women complain about ultra-stylish shoes often being painful, and comfortable shoes being commonplace and ugly?

Because—up to now—that was usually the rule.

But now—that's all changed. The latest style—and comfort—have been combined in a new way.

Johansen Feeture Arch shoes set off one's ankle stylishly, support the arch firmly but gently, and flex with every movement of the foot.

They are made in the newest modes, tones and textures, for every wear everywhere—and yet they are as comfortable to the foot as a fine glove to the hand.

TRAFFIC TOWERS BRING TRAFFIC CHANGE TUESDAY

New Michigan Av. System Ready for Use.

At 7:30 o'clock Tuesday morning the new traffic tower signal system on Michigan avenue will be placed in operation, according to an announcement made yesterday by the superintendent of the South Park system. Several important changes in traffic regulations will go into effect at the same time.

Most important of these, it is announced, is that no left turns from, or turning around onto, Michigan avenue between Randolph and Seventh streets will be permitted between the hours of 4 and 6:30 p. m. During this period only the "turn lanes" near the center of the avenue will be used for traffic entering Michigan avenue from east and west.

Orders to Motorist.

"At other hours," it is announced, "those wishing to turn to the left at any street intersecting Michigan avenue, must place themselves in the lane between the white lines immediately after passing the last street before reaching the one into which they wish to turn left, and must enter the lane at any point further than one block than where they are to turn to the left. Vehicles not in the lane will not be allowed to turn to the left; those in the lane at the intersection will be required to make the left turn."

The red light will mean "stop"; the amber, "traffic change," and the green light, "go."

The time intervals between the signals will vary on different days and different hours of the day from sixty-five to ninety seconds for Michigan avenue traffic and from fifty to sixty seconds for cross street traffic.

Ask Public's Coöperation.

"It is hoped," says the statement, "that the public, both pedestrians and drivers, will be as patient as possible while the new system is being tried out and conform as strictly as possible to the signals."

A special committee made an exhaustive study of Michigan avenue traffic in preparation for putting the new system into effect. The tower system was built by John Hertz, president of the Yellow Cab company, on condition that the city purchase it from him should it prove efficient after a fair trial.

ILLINOIS PYTHIANS HOLD CONVENTION IN CHICAGO THIS WEEK

[Schneider Photo.]

Twenty-five thousand out of town Pythians are expected to attend the annual convention of the Illinois Knights of Pythias that begins in Chicago tomorrow and will last until Sept. 29. The grand lodge session will be held at the Lexington hotel. At the same time the grand lodge of Pythian Sisters will hold its convention at the Auditorium hotel.

Drills, parades and carnivals will mark the week. The main parade will be on Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock from the Auditorium hotel to the Ashland Boulevard auditorium, where a carnival will be held.

According to Sol Scheffer, chairman of the publicity committee, the year under Grand Chancellor R. Allen Stephen has been one of the most prosperous in the history of the order. Mr. Stephen will be succeeded by William H. Moore of Peoria.

LEBARRON HELD IN MRS. EMMONS' BLACKMAIL CASE

Boston, Mass., Sept. 22.—Arthur Lebarron of New York, charged by Mrs. Nathaniel Franklin Emmons, Boston society leader, with a $10,000 blackmail attempt, was held for the October sitting of the grand jury in $5,000 bonds in Municipal court today. He furnished bail. Mrs. Emmons, who is a cousin of Bishop William Lawrence, asserted that the attempt was one of a series by which a band of which she says Lebarron was a member attempted to obtain sums ranging from $100,000 to $200,000.

The charge against Lebarron is attempted larceny. According to the complaint, Lebarron, falsely representing himself as the holder of a letter alleged to have been written by Mrs. Emmons to a veteran, sought $10,000 for its surrender.

INDIANA G. O. P. MAY ASK M'CRAY TO QUIT OFFICE

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 22.—[United Press.]—The financial difficulties of Gov. Warren T. McCray will be accounted at a meeting of the Republican state committee here next Saturday, it was learned today.

The purpose of the meeting, it was said, was to decide whether or not the Republican state organization, through the state committee, would ask the governor to consider his resignation in view of the possible effect of his personal adversities on the fortunes of the Republican party in the next convention.

The governor refused to comment on the purpose of the meeting, further than to say that he had no intention of resigning.

The governor insists his creditors will be paid and that he has done no wrong in his business transactions.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 22.—Discovery of a hitherto unknown city in Thessally has been officially reported. A large number of relics have already been unearthed. The ruins belong to the early Byzantine period.

MINIATURE PLANE FLIES 4,041 FEET IN PARK CONTEST

Forty-six planes entered from fifteen parks participated in the first annual miniature aviation meet held yesterday under the auspices of the South Park commission in Washington park. The judges timed and measured 165 flights of the miniature craft for a total distance of 4,041 feet.

Frank Damptz, of Mark White square, won the class A contest, for "experts," with a flight of 121 feet 4 inches and duration of 15 1-5 seconds. William Lubersky, also of Mark White square, was second with 87 feet and a duration of 7 seconds.

The class B, or intermediate, events were won by J. Rappold, of Mark White square, with a flight of 24 seconds' duration and a distance of 106 feet. Gerhard Mueller, of Ogden park, was second with a distance of 73 feet 2 inches and a duration of 14 4-5 seconds.

Class C events for beginners were won on duration scores by E. Patcovsky, Cornell square, with 25 seconds, and Joe Sloaf, Cornell square, second with 22 2-5 seconds. Distance awards went to Stanley Tobin, Bessemer park, with 125 feet, and Alex Lubersky, Mark White square, second, with 99 feet.

VOCALIONS

This charming console model is an authentic example of the furniture designed for Dutch Courtiers of the Seventeenth Century. It possesses the famous Graduola and all Vocalion improvements.

Style 1644

WHEN The Aeolian Company, an organization of musical instrument experts, began the manufacture of phonographs, the musical world expected a better phonograph. A better phonograph the Aeolian-Vocalion has proved itself by every test. Its construction is scientifically more correct, with the result that its reproductions are clearer, more realistic, more musical.

Priced Upward from

It is also the only phonograph capable of being played by hand. Through its exclusive and wonderful Graduola one may play the records himself, diminishing the music to a delicate softness or swelling the Vocalion's sonorous tone to its full volume.

The Vocalion was the first phonograph to be installed in Period Cabinets. An example of the Console Period cabinet now so popular is shown above, at a price which will have a strong appeal. This is but one of a great variety of Period Vocalions, both upright and console models.

$15 down $7 a month

A Notable Sale of Used Phonographs

We will make a liberal allowance and exchange your old phonograph for one of the new VOCALIONS. Here are a few of the phonographs taken in exchange for the world-famous VOCALION. All are fully guaranteed and are sold on terms as low as

SOUTH INVITING NEGROES 'HOME'; JOB IS WAITING

Offers to Aid Defense in Johnstown.

St. Matthews, S. C., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—The south is eager to provide homes and jobs for members of the colored race who will return from the north after failing to find welcome there, according to messages sent north today by J. S. Wannamaker, president of the American Cotton association.

Mr. Wannamaker's messages were called forth by the reports from Johnstown, Pa., that all Negroes who have been residents of that city for less than seven years had been "requested" by the mayor to leave, because of recent racial troubles there. Several thousand Negroes have left the Pennsylvania city as a result of this "request."

The messages, addressed to Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania and Mayor Joseph Canfield of Johnstown, offer to provide counsel for all Negroes who are being tried and to pay the fines of those "punished for no other reason than that they were Negroes." The association then offers transportation south and jobs to those who are industrious and who desire to avail themselves of the offer.

Message Sent to Pinchot.

"We note the attitude of the municipality of Johnstown toward the Negro race," the message to Gov. Pinchot says. "All law abiding, industrious Negroes are welcomed anywhere in the south and will be given immediate employment in the cotton fields and on farms, where their services are badly needed.

"The south does not approve of the legal or illegal holding of a community of Negroes responsible for the unlawful acts of an individual Negro, as appears to be the case at Johnstown. There are no recorded instances in the south of legally attempting to disband and drive out a community of Negroes engaged in lawful industrial pursuits of life."

Offers to Supply Counsel.

"According to the press reports," said the message to the mayor, "some twenty Negroes have been sentenced to serve on the chain gang. These Negroes and all Negroes who have moved to Johnstown in the last several years are being forced to leave Johnstown at the expiration of the sentence. Have the Negroes legal counsel? If they have not we will arrange to secure counsel to insure them the justice to which they are entitled. This will carry no obligation on the part of the Negroes to come south if they do not desire to do so.

"The fines imposed upon the community of law abiding Negroes for the acts of an individual Negro will be paid and transportation furnished to such law abiding Negroes to any section of the south which they may prefer, and they will be furnished with employment in the cotton fields, on the farms, or in the industrial plants, where their services are badly needed. Under no condition will they be held responsible as a community or race for the unlawful acts of individual Negroes."

Calls South Race's Friend.

President Wannamaker insists that the white people of the south are the best friends the Negro race has in America. He says the masses of the Negro race can live and develop to better advantage in the southern states than in any other section of the country.

KIDNAPED

Mrs. Clyde Scott, 1050 Winona street, attempted to perpetrate a kidnaping hoax on her husband. She hid in front of the apartment and told relatives to tell him that she had been kidnaped. When she failed to return to the house a search was begun and she was found unconscious in the basement of the apartment building. She had been kidnaped and drugged.

Company Rail Unions Hit in Two Decisions

Individual candidates or unions receiving a majority of votes actually cast in election of railway employés' representatives to deal with disputes are legally chosen, the United States railroad labor board ruled yesterday. In another decision the labor board ordered a secret election of employés' representatives for the clerical and station forces of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway. Both decisions are regarded unfavorable to "company unions."

CELLS JAMMED IN POLICE MOPUP OF CITY'S BEER

rector. Capt. James McCann announced also the taking of the following trophies: 500 gallons of alcohol in bulk, 1000 five gallon cans of alcohol, a quantity of ether, several shotguns and revolvers.

Max Beyermann, owner of a drug store at 653 North Clark street, fell into the toils when Sergts. Ahearn and Bourke seized Ray Webb, a bellboy, as he emerged from the pharmacy with a pint of bourbon. He admitted, according to the police, that he obtained it without a prescription, and for a guest at the Clarendon hotel.

Chief Wants More Autos.

Chief Collins said that the "beer insurrection" had shown him the need for fifteen additional automobiles to aid the detective bureau in coping with beer runners, and at least one more "flivver" for each district station. He favored equipping each bureau squad with sawed-off shotguns, he added.

Acting Captain William Shoemaker, new commander of the New City district, the recent battle ground of rival beer running clans, said he was making progress in his investigation of the murders.

"I do not expect any more killing by beer runners, because there will be no more beer running," he added.

The state's attorney's office is still investigating the circumstances that brought on the deaths of George Meeghan, George Bucher, and Jerry O'Connor. New information caused an order to be sent out requesting the rearrest of Steve O'Donnell and Frank McErlane.

Marquis of Ripon Dies While Hunting on Estate

LONDON, Sept. 22.—The Marquis of Ripon [Frederick Oliver Robinson], died suddenly today while shooting on the moor at Studley Royal, his Yorkshire estate. He was seventy years of age, the eldest of the first Marquis of Ripon, and had been treasurer in the household of Dowager Queen Alexandra since 1901. He leaves no heir.

LONE WALKING PLOWMAN, VICTOR AS 14,000 WATCH

A solitary plowman geed and hawed his way to victory yesterday in the "walking plow" contest on a farm near Big Rock, west of Aurora. Fourteen thousand persons were present.

The contest was a special feature, linking the present with the brave old New England days, when farmers used to follow their plow many miles in a day. Edward Bartain was entered for the match, but was unable to compete because his corn needed immediate cutting. So Ernest Voss, using the plow of Ira Whildin, an undefeated champion in his day, marched to victory without a battle.

George Susenmeihl and Ray Lewis won in the horse drawn and tractor plow matches respectively. The "course" was half an acre.

Alleged Bank Thief Loses Extradition Fight

Charles Oschger, who was arrested upon his discharge from the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., where he served a term for stealing Liberty bonds from the West Side National bank here, lost habeas corpus proceedings yesterday to prevent extradition to Chicago. Oschger is now wanted on charges of embezzling $5,189 from the Independence State bank and $6,036 from the Roosevelt State bank, both of this city.

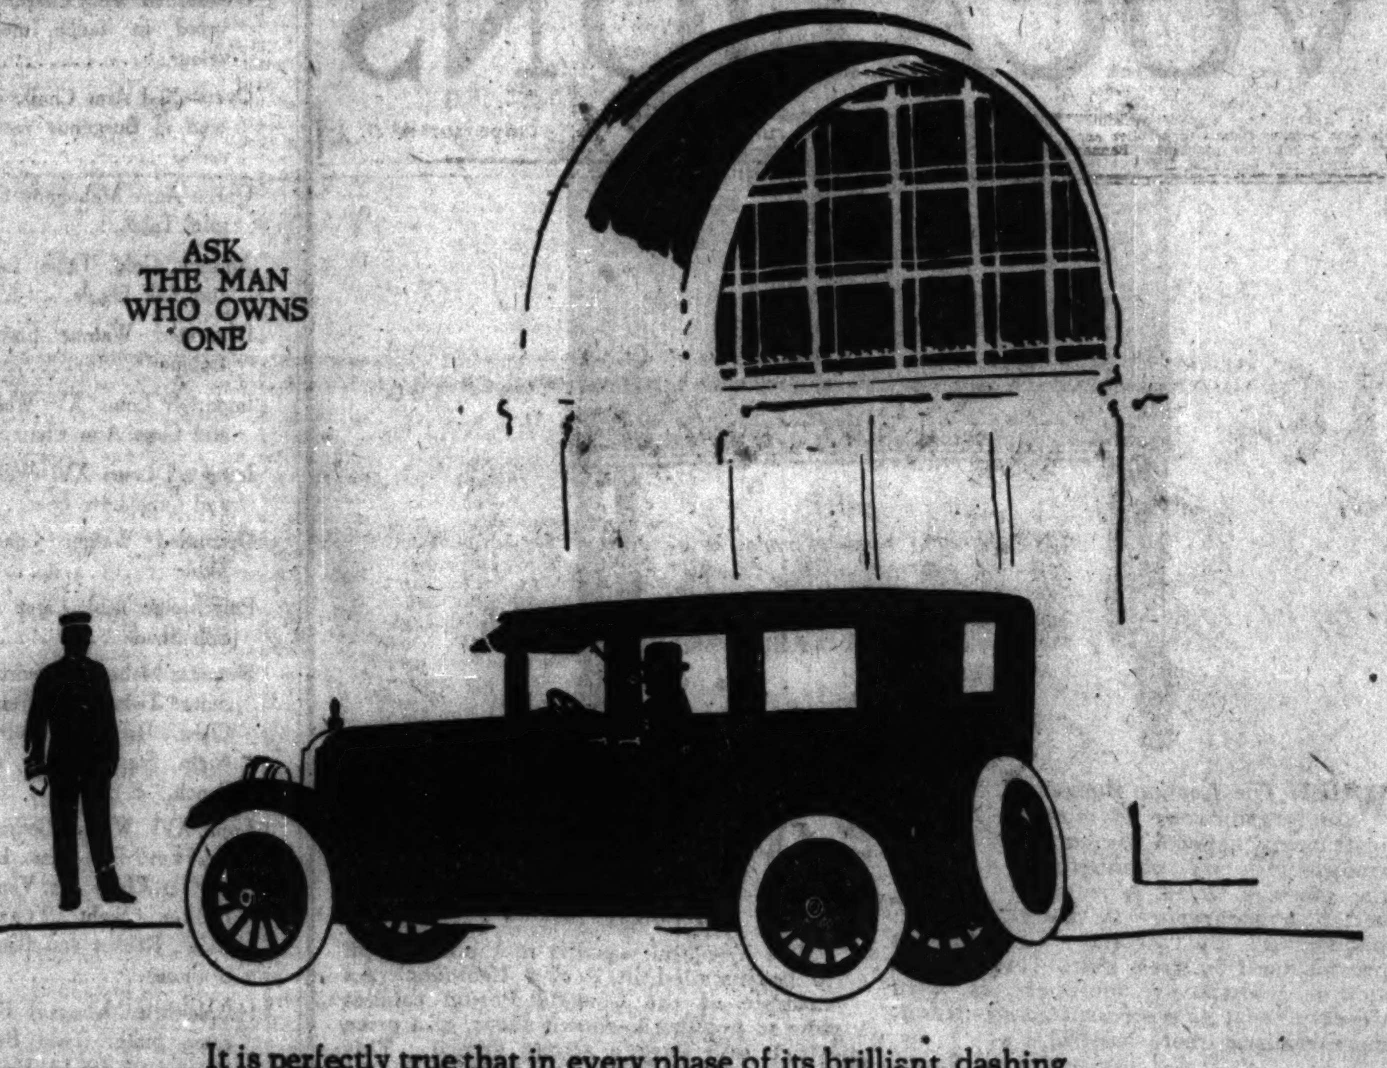
ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE



It is perfectly true that in every phase of its brilliant, dashing performance, in beauty and refinement of appearance, and in the buoyant ease with which it travels even unusually rough roads, the Packard Single-Six is far and away the best six-cylinder car ever manufactured.

It is equally important, however, that the Single-Six affords this luxury of motoring at a low purchase price entirely without precedent in fine car manufacture, and at low costs of maintenance and operation heretofore not even approached in its class.

Motorists of long experience no longer balance price against price. They compare costs per mile.

And it is literally true that the cost of a Single-Six,—purchase price, operating cost, maintenance cost,—finally totaled up, is less than that of cars which sell for almost a thousand dollars below its price.

CROOKS LEAVE ROBBERY FOR BEER RUNNING

Figures Show Crimes of Violence Decrease.

How organized beer running has reduced crime—and incidentally the burglary and theft insurance rates in Chicago—during the first eight months of this year is demonstrated in figures compiled and made public by the Chicago crime commission yesterday.

Crimes of violence, holdups, pay roll robberies, stickups of jewelry stores and diamond merchants and other places of business up until Sept. 1 of 1923, were down 50 per cent from those of 1919, and 38 per cent from those of 1922, for the same period. All kinds of burglaries, including those of residences and apartment houses, were down 43 per cent over 1919, and 30 per cent over last year.

Swell Ranks of Beer Runners.

This, the authorities admit, has been because the perpetrators of crimes of violence—the burglars, highwaymen, gangsters, gunmen, prowlers, and hoodlums in general—during this year have been busy beer running. As the latter game became more and more organized, the crooks have more and more largely engaged in the quieter and less hazardous pursuits of peddling beer.

As beer running during the early months of 1923 slowly took on proportion and grew to be a shady, underground, highly organized "legitimate" business, men who had lived by the gun, the strong arm, the blackjack and the "jimmy" abandoned those perilous professions and joined the ranks of the beer runners.

Bosses Lead the Way.

The vice lords, the bosses of organized crime, the crooked politicians and policemen, the authorities say, farsighted and shrewd, forsook organized violence and went into the business of organized beer selling; their henchmen, gunmen and gangsters, followed them; the former taking the leadership and the cream, the latter the rough work, the "hustling" at $5 a barrel and the driving of trucks and the "helping" at $50 a week.

All the underworld lived at ease. The cabarets buzzed with business. The beer runners sat nightly round the tables, spending freely, the little ones mingling in democratic luxury with the big fellows. The "boss" bought the drinks, "bawled out" the truck driver and the "helper" for overlooking a delivery, then patted him on the back and got him one of the entertainers as a dancing partner.

"What's Wrong with That?"

No more stick-ups for Joe, the gunman, or "Red," the gangster; the safeblower forsook his "soup," the burglar took off his rubber heels and left his tools to rust in the "plant." They were all, the authorities say, according to their own twisted philosophy, engaged in "the legit"; beer running to the rough necks was simply a business—not quite on the level, to be sure, but what t' hell; they were workin' fer a living, drivin' a truck fer Druggan—and what's wrong with that?

Besides, the authorities admit, these men, accustomed to skulking in the shadows, dodging into dorways, and peering over their shoulders, could now come out into the light of day, meet the copper or the "dicks" on the corner—even the captain—pass the time of day with them, kid them, or buy them a drink, and go along about their business.

And the Rates Come Down.

In the meantime the insurance rates on burglary and crime—always the highest in the United States in Chicago—came down. In 1919 the rate for burglary of private residences or apartments was $33 for the first $1,000, coming down on a sliding scale according to the amount of the insurance; in 1923 it is $27.50 for the first $1,000 worth of this class of insurance, and on down, depending upon the amount taken.

In 1919, holdup and robbery insurance was $10 for the first $1,000 and in 1923 it is $7.50 for the first $1,000, the policies in each case being written with a dropping of the rate as the amount of the insurance increased.

Monthly Drop in Crime.

Here is a table, as made public by the crime commission, showing the monthly drop in both branches of crime as the beer running business became more and more highly organized:

Robberies.

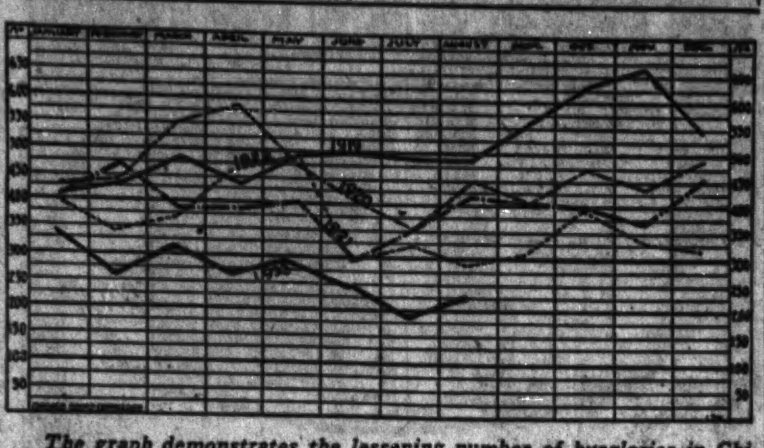
	1919.	1923.	1923.
January	176	380	168
February	211	227	145
March	290	194	120
April	320	190	115
May	244	188	85
June	205	86	78
July	170	98	93
August	221	118	90
Totals	1,837	1,481	894

Burglaries.

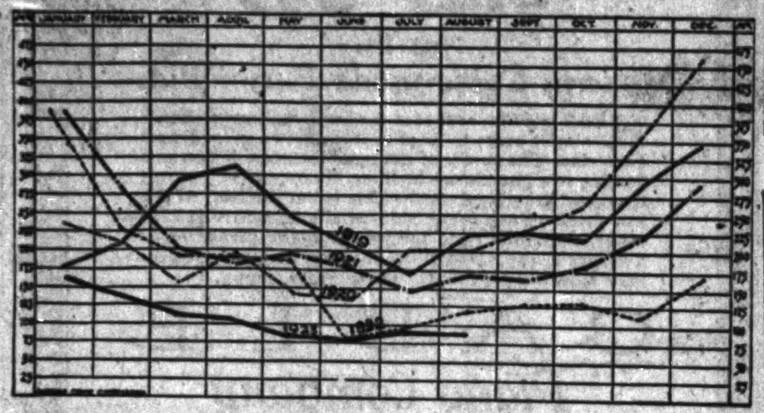
	1919.	1922.	1923.
January	407	395	346
February	430	342	260
March	481	368	309
April	436	460	273
May	489	491	279
June	498	292	248
July	485	321	189
August	484	287	226
Totals	3,710	2,956	2,130

Now all this is changed again, the authorities all are willing to admit; Mayor Dever and Chief Collins are at war to a finish, they say, with beer, and a crime wave with a steady increase during the next few months is looked for.

Crimes of Violence on the Wane



The graph demonstrates the lessening number of burglaries in Chicago in the last few years.



Robberies, too, are annually becoming less numerous. Authorities attribute the decline to the fact that beer running is now claiming the attention of the crooks.

KILLED IN PAPER MILL ROLLER.

Quincy, Ill., Sept. 22.—Raymond Benner, 20, was killed in a paper mill here last night. He was feeding a paper machine when his arm became caught in a roller and his body drawn into the machine. Benner came to Quincy from Belleville, Ill.

WINTER NIGHTS LET RADIO SING AGAIN IN YUKON

Dawson, Y. T., Sept. 22.—After a radioless summer the season is on in Dawson and Mayo again, and messages and concerts are being picked up from as far east as New York. Until recently nothing could be picked up in this region, supposedly because of the endless daylight and dry weather. Now it is dark at 8 p. m., there is much rain, and conditions are exceptionally favorable.

Work is progressing on the Canadian government's radio telegraph station at Mayo and when that is finished a similar station will be built here. These two stations, in conjunction with the land wires out of Dawson, will furnish Mayo with its first telegraphic communication with the outside world.

When the proposed government radio stations are installed at Port McMurray and Port Simpson a complete chain of stations will connect the far north with the world to the south.

Tennessee Women Ask "Black Mammie" Homes

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 22.—At a meeting of the board of the Tennessee Federation of Women's Clubs today, the president, Mrs. George A. Washington, launched a movement for the establishment of a home for faithful and needy Negro women of the "black mammie" type in each of the ten congressional districts of the state. The plan outlined contemplated the erection and maintenance of the homes by municipal and county governments.

U. S. RED CROSS MEMBERS GATHER FOR CONVENTION

Washington, D. C., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—The first contingents of more than 1,000 delegates to the national convention of the American Red Cross arrived in Washington today. Hundreds more are expected from all parts of the country.

Prior to the opening of the convention Monday morning by President Coolidge, the central committee of the American Red Cross will meet. This committee consists of Chairman John Barton Payne, Solicitor General James M. Beck, Mrs. August Belmont, Cornelius N. Bliss Jr. of New York, Miss Mabel T. Boardman, Mrs. Henry P. Davison of New York, E. B. Douglas of Miami, Fla., Mrs. Frank V. Hammar of St. Louis, Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, Maj. Gen. Merritte W. Ireland, Judge W. W. Morrow of San Francisco, Undersecretary of State William Phillips, Gustavus D. Pope of Detroit, Mrs. Henry R. Rea of Pittsburgh, John D. Ryan of New York, George E. Scott of Chicago, Rear Admiral E. R. Stitt and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Eliot Wadsworth.

The morning session of the first day's program will be presided over by President Coolidge, who will also address the delegates. Chairman Payne and Admiral Edward W. Eberle, U. S. N., also will speak at the morning session.

INDIANS TO GIVE COOK COUNTY A GLIMPSE OF PAST

Plan Celebration Last Four Days of Month.

Tepees will rise again next week in the favored hunting and dwelling spots of Indian tribes a century ago. War dances, native rites—all the Indian's beloved ceremonials—will grace the Deer Grove tract of the forest preserve system for four days beginning next Thursday.

It is Chicago's opportunity to go back a hundred years to look upon Chicago as it then was. Descendants of the famous tribes of that day will be brought to the preserve from reservations as far west as Montana. The powerful Sioux are to present their war songs and dances.

Banquet Is Planned.

Preliminary to the program, the Indians on Thursday, Sept. 27, will be entertained at a reception at the Chicago Historical society. That evening, in the Tiger room at the Hotel Sherman, the chiefs and their followers will banquet. Chicago's "big chief," William E. Dever, will speak, as will President Anton J. Cermak of the county board—he tendered the Indians an invitation to come here—and Commissioner Charles S. Peterson.

But the big days follow, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, at Deer Grove, near Palatine, Ill.

Two years ago, when a similar celebration was held, a great number of people attended, going to the preserve in more than 100,000 automobiles. A great number is expected this year, according to Chief Forester Ransom E. Kennicott, who has innumerable friends among the Indians.

Honor to Kiwanis Club.

Friday will be "Illinois State Indian day." Saturday has been set aside as "Kiwanis day." The Kiwanis club has aided immeasurably in arranging to bring the Indians to Deer park, Mr. Kennicott said.

The Mesquakie Indians are particularly adept and colorful in their portrayals of Indian lore. The "Shawnee" dance, first in historical importance, was introduced by emissaries of Tecumseh before the war of 1812 as a means of stirring up the spirit of the tribe.

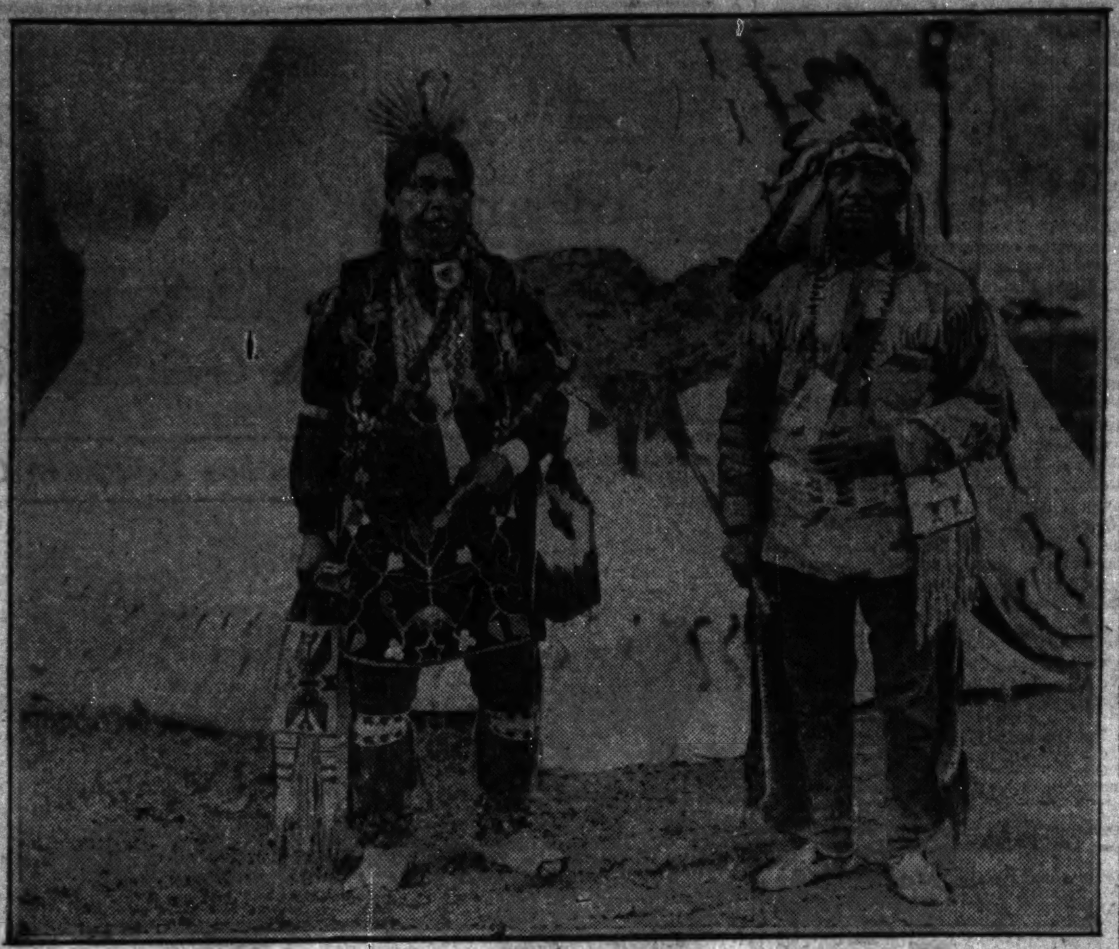
The "Snake" dance of the Mesquakie portrays the writhing movements of a snake and is participated in by hundreds of the tribe's dancers, led in a sinuous line by a trained and gifted dancer who represents the head of the coiling reptile.

And the "Dream" or "Friendship" dance of the Sioux began in the dream of a beautiful Indian maiden, so the legend goes. It is intended to instill in the hearts of warriors the preachment of good will between men and tribes.

The last day of the celebration, Sunday, Sept. 30, is expected to bring a tremendous gathering of people to the preserve. Canoe races, athletic contests, archery exhibitions, lacrosse games, and other sports of Indian days will be featured on all days.

Deer Grove can be reached by automobile route over the West River road to the Rand road, then to the Dundee road, which leads directly into the Deer Grove preserve. It also may be reached by steam train over the Northwestern railway to Palatine, thence by bus to the grove. Tickets which provide special auto parking space in Deer Grove and an associate membership in the "Friends of the American Indians" may be purchased for 50 cents at Couthoui Ticket agencies, Marshall Field & Co., Lyon & Healy Co., Union League club, Illinois Motor club, Chicago Motor club, Chicago Historical society, all Kiwanis clubs, and at the entrances to the forest preserve.

THEY'LL HELP TURN BACK HISTORY'S PAGES



Lone Tree, champion archer (on the left), and Chief Oshkosh, forester of the Menominee Indian reservation, will participate in the Indian celebration to be held in the forest preserve during the last four days of the month.

Former Minister Egan Still Is Critically Ill

Washington, D. C., Sept. 22.—The condition of Dr. Maurice Francis Egan, former minister to Denmark, ill at Beach Haven, N. J., continues serious, although advices to relatives here say it is not hopeless. Apprehension is felt because of his advanced age. Taken ill with acute gastro-enteritis on Sept. 9, Dr. Egan responded to treatment, but the shock and toxins absorbed affected his heart and other organs.

SOLDIER KILLS JAP WRITER, HIS WIFE, 2 CHILDREN

SHANGHAI, Sept. 22.—The Nichi Nichi, a Japanese paper here, reports the murder in Tokio on Sept. 20 of Osagi Sakai, well known Japanese Socialist and writer, and his wife and two children. The murder was committed by a military guard who had been placed in charge of Osagi upon his arrest a few days ago on a charge of spreading bolshevik propaganda.

Osagi Sakai was a writer on social reforms and a translator of the works of Darwin and Huxley into Japanese. He was deported from France last May for delivering a violent speech. His wife, Ito Noye, was a leading woman writer of Japan and gained attention through her translation of the works of Emma Goldman into the Japanese language.

11 DOPE PEDDLERS, ONE A WOMAN, ARE SENT TO PRISON

Eleven narcotic peddlers, one a woman, were given sentences in the federal penitentiary ranging from one to three years by Federal Judge Adam C. Cliffe yesterday. All the defendants pleaded guilty and were sentenced upon the recommendation of Assistant District Attorney William F. Waugh, in charge of narcotic prosecutions.

The woman, Mabel Williams, has been known to narcotic agents for years as a "dope" peddler on the south side. She was sentenced to three years in the woman's penitentiary at Leeds, Mo.

Ten other peddlers were sent to Leavenworth with sentences as follows: Nathan Cushner, George Williams, Ray Watson, three years; Edward Bryson, Henry Bryson, James Basile, John Lewis, John Wolfe, two years; Richard Slowe and Charles Stepner, one year and one day.

AUSTRALIA FINDS SHIP RULE RUNS INTO BIG LOSSES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—Government ship building and operation have proved a costly venture to Australia, according to a statement by the department of commerce today. The total losses will run close to £11,000,000, it says.

According to the statement, the total government fleet on June 30, 1923, was made up of forty-nine steam vessels of 252,524 gross tons at an original cost of £11,818,938. The cost of ships still under construction was estimated at £2,338,000, making the total cost of the fleet when completed according to the program £14,156,938. The present book value was given at £12,766,588, but the current market appraisal of the fleet is put at £3,718,150.

Chalmers Readjusts all Ideas of Values

At the reduced price of $1185, it was inevitable that a great army of buyers should discover in the improved Chalmers Six the most impressive example of motor car value ever offered.

For here is a quality car in which every penny does its full duty.

No comparable car could be produced today at so moderate a price, unless its makers possessed exceptional resources in all departments—ripe experience, shrewdness in buying, and unlimited financial and manufacturing capacity.

And above all, the determination, as well as the ability, to give the utmost.

You will readily and quickly recognize these truths when you examine and ride in the improved Chalmers Six.

You will find greater power and speed, smoother operation and more alert acceleration. You will enjoy the thrill of a new kind of performance.

Chalmers models show what they are at a glance, they prove what they are in a single demonstration.

By all means determine these things for yourself. Compare it from any standpoint you like. Consider its beauty, its completeness, its splendid performance. Then look at the price.

MARMON
Reduced to $2785

The fact that the Marmon now sells for $2785 needs no comment.

The Marmon organization has always had one aim—to place in the hands of the owner a piece of mechanism which would render the lowest operating and maintenance costs for a given standard of comfort and performance.

Marmon has never strayed from this original purpose. Nine years of unrelenting concentration on one type have produced a car which beyond all doubt delivers the finest transportation at the lowest cost per mile.

The growing success of Marmon which has been so apparent for more than a year made it inevitable that the Marmon could be made an even finer car and sell at an even lower price.

The lowest priced car to operate and maintain now becomes the lowest in first cost, in its quality class.

No greater motor car and surely no greater value were ever offered to the motor car investors of America.

New prices effective September 24, 1923. Seven-Passenger Phaeton $2785, (former price $3185) f.o.b. factory; government tax additional. Corresponding reductions on all other models.

FOUR-WHEEL BRAKES
Optional Equipment at Moderate Additional Cost

It is characteristic of Marmon engineering that the four-wheel brakes now available on the Marmon should follow a design of the utmost simplicity. In producing brakes of tremendous power and safety Marmon engineers have avoided with unusual success, the complications common to many types.

VOLSTEAD HALTS FARM ACT UNTIL NAMED AS AUTHOR

Ex-Congressman Insisted on Unearned Credit.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—Charles S. Barrett, president of the National Farmers' union, is authority for a story that is causing a lot of talk in political circles in Washington. The story has to do with the passage of the farmers' coöperative marketing bill, the enactment of which the Republicans have cited as one of their great achievements.

Mr. Barrett's story of the "inside facts" has been printed by the Farmers' union press, and what follows is printed with the consent of that organization. Here is the story:

"Representative Andrew J. Volstead," Mr. Barrett writes, "who was badly beaten in the recent election, frankly admitted to some of my friends and myself that he was not willing to be counted among those who would do a great public service without incidentally collecting some advantage for himself.

Calls on Mr. Volstead.

"When the Capper-Hersman bill was before the judiciary committee, in company with others I called on Mr. Volstead, who was chairman, and urged him to make some speed with the measure.

"As all informed persons know, bills giving farmers the right to coöperatively market their products and many of the measures changing laws relating to agriculture are referred to the judiciary committee. The bill I refer to was drawn up by representatives of the national board of farm organizations and the National Farmers' union.

"At my suggestion Senator Capper of Kansas, a Republican, and Representative Hersman of California, a Democrat, presented it formally at the same time in their respective houses. The farmers did not recognize the right of any party or group to treat this as a partisan political measure. Certainly those responsible for it originally had not thought of politics in connection with it. Their only purpose was to obtain legislation which would give to the farmers a larger measure of economic freedom.

Insists His Name Be Used.

"'Mr. Volstead,' I said to the chairman of the judiciary committee, 'why can't we get some action on our coöperative marketing bill?'

"He turned to me and said quite emphatically:

"'I see the name of a Democratic congressman is attached to this bill as one of its authors and I am not going to let it pass.'

"'Suppose we were to take his name off and substitute yours, would you then let it pass?' I asked him.

"'Yes, if you place mine where Hersman's is I will see the bill is reported out and passed,' Mr. Volstead replied, evidently seeing nothing extraordinary in such a suggestion.

"So to accelerate its adoption we consented to allow Mr. Volstead to become, for public consumption, one of its authors. The bill then passed. He is now 'former Congressman Volstead.'"

Mr. Barrett said that seven officials of the farmers' organizations were present at the conference.

"All of them except the late Milo D. Campbell of Michigan are living and can substantiate every word I say," he said.

For Good Citizenship.

According to the statement of Mr. Dawes, prime mover in the matter, the platform of the Minute Men of the Constitution is "simply the platform of good citizenship."

"Some labor leaders," Mr. Dawes says, "like John H. Walker, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, attack the men organized to promote law and order and to increase respect for the constitution of the United States, but they carefully avoid attacking the platform.

"As to the claim that the movement is for the open shop, and against labor organizations, the following is the answer, and it is the answer of good citizenship.

"Plank No. 3 recognizes the right of labor organizations. The Supreme court of the United States has held that the right of collective bargaining—that is, the right of employés in a body to bargain with their employers for the closed shop—is one of the inalienable rights of the individual under our constitution. If, therefore, the Minute Men of the Constitution had put an open shop plank in their platform which is to be urged upon both political parties with a view to its crystallization into law, they would be striking at the constitution just as much as the lawless labor leader who, in the interest of the closed shop, would order an American citizen assaulted as he went peacefully to his work.

Favors Lawful Methods.

"As to the relation of this movement to the temperance question, the position of the Minute Men of the Constitution, whether he is a 'wet' or a 'dry' is that of every good citizen. If he is for prohibition, he believes in the retention of enforcement of the eighteenth amendment. If he is against prohibition, he believes in the repeal of the eighteenth amendment by the constitutional method.

"In different parts of this state, the Ku Klux Klan are opposing the movement because of the second plank of the platform of the Minute Men of the Constitution: 'condemning all influences and agencies which breed class or religious discrimination.'"

ROBBERS LOCK UP GIRL, LOOT SAFE OF $2,000 WAGES

Four bandits locked up Miss May Paull, bookkeeper, yesterday and looted the safe of Nyden & Thunander, decorators at 2950 South Michigan avenue, of a $2,000 pay roll.

Three men entered the office shortly before noon, according to Miss Paull, and asked to see "Mr. Kavanaugh." Then the fourth man entered and drew a revolver, and the four made her a prisoner. By the time she had gained her release half an hour later the four had fled.

Three men bound and gagged John Swanberg, 73 year old watchman in a building at 1161 Milton avenue, and stole a quantity of material from three tailoring firms. The men threw a carpet over his head, Swanberg told the police, then bound his hands and feet and struck him several times on the head with a club. He remained there, unable to release himself, until 7 o'clock in the morning.

A Home within a Home

—that is the Windermere ideal

A "Little Home" in Hotels Windermere is small only in so far as it gives you the utmost privacy of your own family circle. It is generously planned in its every appointment, to provide complete living comfort for the family of two or three. It has a broad living room, a complete breakfast room, a fully equipped kitchenette, a reception hall, dressing room and bath room. You may live, and be independent of the world.

And yet, this "Little Home" has the advantages of a mansion. It is a part of the perfectly organized service of a greater home—commanding the full facilities of two hotels—partaking of the homelike hospitality which is a Windermere tradition—placing at your disposal the Windermere kitchens, the Windermere dining rooms, and that complete group of shops which cater to the discriminating taste of the guests of the two Hotels Windermere.

No small part of the charm of the Windermere is found in this pleasant combination of contrasting advantages, running through all its characteristics. You find here the ultra modern in convenience, blending with an old-fashioned quality of hospitality, reminiscent of the many years that Windermere-West has made life enjoyable for its guests. You find also delicious food served in modern dining rooms, and yet possessing that wholesome goodness and abundance which Washington Irving has so heartily portrayed in his sketch Book of Old England.

You even find this contrasting charm in the Windermere location. It combines the freshness of the open country with a swiftness of transportation which places you in the business heart of the city in twelve short minutes.

Rare indeed is such an alluring possibility of living. You will scarcely find it in its entirety elsewhere in Chicago.

See this new Nash model. Examine it carefully.

It is an original Nash creation. You'll find nothing else like it.

Low-set and shaped with the true symmetry of smoothly curving lines, it presents an impressively attractive appearance.

Roomy and extremely comfortable, it is nevertheless built to so compact a design that it turns and handles with almost the nimbleness of a small open car.

A rear-vision mirror gives you the road behind at a glance. And there's an automatic windshield wiper.

Vanity and smoking sets of flush-type arrangement add their charm to the finely fitted interior.

All instruments on the new instrument board are grouped in three assemblies, each covered with a heavy glass panel.

These and many other new betterments await your visit.

COOLIDGE HOME MODEL FOR U. S., HOLDERBY FINDS

Praises Family Circle of the President.

BY LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

"In the family of President Coolidge is honesty, thrift, tolerance, respect for parents, devotion to children, an intense family affection. It is refreshing, in this day of juvenile disrespect for parents and disregard for family obligations, to have in the first family such honor and respect," William Matthew Holderby told the Brotherhood of St. Andrew yesterday in one of the principal addresses before its senior meeting at the University of Chicago.

"The old fashioned American family life that had its prayer time and the daily reading of the Bible is just as necessary today as it ever was if we are going to solve our economic, social, and political problems in the way they should be solved. That is by a moral solution, possible only when households strive for a spiritual interpretation of life."

Lays Flapperism to Parents.

He added that the father should be the priest in his own home, and is more responsible than the mother for the wave of flapperism over the country.

"The perpetual joyriding of modern parents must cease," he concluded. "Sunday and public school teachers and all right minded, straight thinking individuals should go on a strike against the indifference of the modern parent to his obligations."

The brotherhood's session at the university was followed by a service in St. James church, Cass and Huron, in commemoration of the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the order. There were eulogies to the late James L. Houghteling in his memorial chapel and the vision which prompted him to found the brotherhood was lauded.

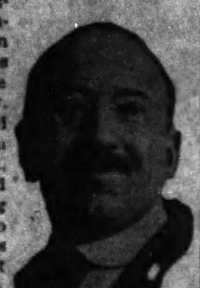
Praises Founder's Foresight.

"I can not forget that the last time three of us addressed men in this church Mr. Houghteling was one of our hearers," said George Anthony King of England, president of the brotherhood in that country. "He applied vision to the purpose he foresaw."

The Rev. Floyd W. Tomkins, rector of Holy Trinity church, Philadelphia, and Herbert H. Houston, publisher of Our World, New York, also paid tribute. Deans of several seminaries gave experiences in the training of young men for the ministry.

The convention will hold a mass meeting in Mandel hall this afternoon at 3 o'clock and will close with an early evening meeting.

JUDGE HORNER BACK, BUT MUSTACHE STAYS IN SOUTH AMERICA



JUDGE HENRY HORNER.

Those who transact business in the Probate court may have a little difficulty in recognizing Judge Henry Horner when he resumes his place on the bench tomorrow. When he returned yesterday from South America, where he had been sightseeing for the last two months, he was all back except his heavy black mustache.

"I left it down there," he explained. "You see, the weather got kind of warm, and I wished to keep my face as cool as possible."

He was impressed with the "tremendous hospitality" of South Americans toward the United States, particularly in Brazil. He admitted he got away from the Latin countries before Dempsey walloped Firpo, however.

LEGION NOTES

Hyde Park post will celebrate its first annual "Dad's night" with a smoker and vaudeville at the Chicago Beach hotel Tuesday evening. Members will take their own fathers, where possible, or they are invited to take the father of another ex-service man. The formation of a "Fathers' auxiliary" to the post is contemplated.

The original discharge, naturalization card, and identification papers of Jens Peterson have been turned in to the American Legion headquarters, 21 North La Salle street.

Walter E. Beebe, attorney and chairman of the speakers' committee of the Hamilton club, will discuss the constitution tonight before the members of the 108th engineers' auxiliary and post, in the clubrooms, 26 West Washington street.

A telegram for reservations on the official American Legion train leaving via the St. Paul and Milwaukee railroad on Oct. 9 for the national convention of the American Legion at San Francisco was received yesterday from the new commander of the legion of Illinois, John J. Bullington.

Four of the largest motion picture companies in Hollywood have prepared an entertainment for the visiting legionnaires when they arrive in Los Angeles on Oct. 20. A special comedy movie of two reels will be made on the lot at Hollywood, the cast to be composed of all the visiting legionnaires, and will be presented free to the Cook County American Legion association.

BLOOD AND OIL TITLE OF NEXT WORLD TRAGEDY

Europe Busy on Poison Gas and War Planes.

BY SHAW DESMOND.

[Public Ledger Foreign Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By Public Ledger Co.]

LONDON, Sept. 22.—Europe is making ready for war.

That is the one thing which America must remember in the time that is coming.

There will be official denials galore. There will be the most elaborate machinery built up by the various European powers to throw dust in the eyes of both America and their rivals in Europe.

Red herrings that stink will be drawn across the hidden trails of the European diplomacy in order to prove that the particular country concerned is only actuated by the finest and most peaceful motives. But the fact will remain—Europe is preparing for war.

Blood Cheaper Than Oil.

It is going to be a war for oil and a war made with oil. For, once more, oil control means world control.

The poison gas factories now being laid down silently by grinning diplomacy in the face of the league of nations are factories behind which stands or rather flies the "wireless oil driven dirigible" which is to carry and drop the gas.

The experiments being made by small armies of European chemists in gas production in all the leading countries, and particularly in Germany, experiments which recently led to protest by a section of labor in the British house of commons, have behind them the oil driven airplane and submarine.

The decision of England, quite frankly in face of France, to treble her air force in the next three years, and of France to still further increase the 1,260 machines which she at present owns, and of Russia to have 10,000 airplanes by 1924 or 1925—all means that Europe is preparing for war—a war in the air and a war of oil.

Reds Preparing Air Fleets.

Here are some hard facts for those who still believe that the league of nations in its present form may prevent the coming world war; that league with which so many fine men and women of all nations sympathize.

At present the bolshevists have twenty-three airplane factories, of which five are working at high pressure, they being situated in Moscow (two), Petrograd, Penza and Odessa.

Trotzky himself is in charge of getting the personnel together for these factories, which have connected with them a small army of oil experts, from the men outside who supply the crude oil and refine it to the actual technicians engaged inside the factories themselves.

Large numbers of airplanes have been sent into Russia from Italy and Germany, via Constantinople, and from Prussia to Petrograd, according to an ex-officer of the Red army.

The Ansaldi factory at Turin alone sold Russia 100 planes, most of the pilots being officer pilots of the old Russian army and some fifty German aviation experts being employed by Russia. There are now four schools for pilots, the chief one being in Moscow.

Not to Carry Candy Boxes.

Does anybody knowing the facts believe that those oil driven planes are to be used for peace purposes?

England at present has exactly 395 machines, as opposed to nearly 4,000 machines at the armistice. Two-thirds of these are engaged in overseas service.

Nearly all of the remaining third, for home defense, are bombing, not fighting, planes. The British authorities are keenly aware that in machines immediately available for home defense England has not one-seventh of the number of the French planes.

Recent official publications have shown that not only these planes, but the French submarines are designed not only for Germany, but for England.

Even now rumors are spreading in Europe that the reluctance of England forcefully to back France on the Ruhr is due to a possible new orientation in European politics.

Last year no fewer than 3,300 machines were built in France! Were all these being built for commercial or for pleasure purposes?

Races France in the Air.

The Air League of the British Empire, just formed, may easily have as much stimulus upon the building of new air fleets as did the German Navy league upon the creation of Von Tirpitz's navy.

Italy has also "gone into the air." She has today some of the most finely equipped air factories in Europe. She also is not investing her millions today in "hot air." She is investing them in what she thinks is a matter of life and death to her—that is, in wireless dirigibles and fighting planes, all carrying their loads of death.

I have just had access to a report of a man who had been sent to Italy for the purpose of reporting upon the extraordinary intensification of work in the Fascisti factories, not only in machines meant for the direct building of planes and engines, but in those vast organizations like the Pirelli company of Milan, and the Fabbrica Italiana d'Automobili of Torino, the machinery of which at a moment's notice can be transformed to the engines of war.

This expert says that the Italians have now the most perfectly organized factories and workshops in the world, not even excepting America, from which they have borrowed all their "speeding up" and organization and still further improved upon it. Mussolini, as well as the poorest engineer in his factories, full well knows the object of all this preparation for the coming world war.

Germany in these days is giving most of her time and brains to flight or to poison gas experiments. England knows this. France knows this. But, save by direct declaration of war, either is powerless to stop her. Hugo Stinnes, as I write these words, is in Scandinavia making certain arrangements in connection with Germany's oil schemes, and in the intervals of the creation of his oil combines is bargaining for an oil estate in central north Texas—the largest single bearing oil property that is being offered in America.

Does anybody who knows Europe, and especially the European mind, believe that all these negotiations and experiments have for their object commercial success only?

Or does anybody believe that commerce alone was behind the desperate battle between certain international interests at the recent Lausanne conference on the Turkish peace treaty upon the question of the Turkish petroleum oil rights in Asia Minor—something that led to strong American representations? Or that the national oil policies now developing in all the chief European countries are only considering profits?

SEEK WOMAN TO TRACE CHILDREN IN CARE OF HER

"JACK" McFARLANE

Search is being made by Charles Virdin of the state department of child welfare for Mrs. Harry Weber, formerly of 438 East 49th street, who is alleged to have posed as a Juvenile court officer in obtaining children from private homes and institutions and giving them to various families for adoption. Mr. Virdin is also looking for "Jack" McFarlane, 7 years old, son of Mrs. John E. McFarlane, 6042 Ingleside avenue, who was turned over to Mrs. Weber for temporary care and was given by her to some family for legal adoption. When last heard from Mrs. Weber was in Milwaukee. Mrs. McFarlane says she is not able to care for the boy but wants to be assured he is in good hands.

EMPLOYE STOLE JOHNSON LETTER EDITOR CLAIMS

Complained of Boynton Received No Pay.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 22.—Andrew Lawrence, publisher of the San Francisco Journal, who first gave publicity to a private letter written by United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson, discussing his political chances in 1924, printed in the Journal today his version of the manner in which the letter was obtained.

His disclosure followed closely on the heels of an allegation made yesterday that the letter, which had been written to C. K. McClatchy, editor of the Sacramento (Cal.) Bee, had been stolen from the private files of Albert E. Boynton, chairman of the Republican state central committee, by George C. Hardwick, a formr employé.

Turned Over Letter.

Hardwick voluntarily turned over the letter to him, Lawrence declares in his article today, Hardwick complaining of ill treatment while in Boynton's employ and asserting that he was looking for a job.

"I told him," the article said, "I had heard of this letter several times, but had not yet seen a copy of it. He presented it to me, and, upon reading it, I realized its importance to the public as presenting Johnson's own views of his political future.

Didn't Ask Compensation.

"Mr. Hardwick did not ask any compensation for the letter, nor did I make suggestion that he would receive any. I did not offer him money for any additional letters, nor suggest that he go back to Boynton to get any."

Hardwick's reputed confession is said to have been obtained by the head of a local private detective agency, who acted on information furnished Senator Johnson in Chicago by an anonymous friend. Hardwick is described as being 29 years old and a former court reporter.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Haynes scores a bull's-eye hit with the new 1924 Haynes 60

$400 Lower

The New 1924 Model

HAYNES 60

De Luxe SEDAN (NOT A COACH)

at $1895 (AT FACTORY)

Dignified and luxurious, rich beyond measure in refinements, the new 1924 Haynes 60 Sedan proudly accepts the toast of its Haynes builders that it—the lowest priced enclosed car the Haynes company ever built—is to-day, the greatest value offered to the public. The new 1924 Haynes 60 Sedan is a full five-passenger enclosed car. Finished in the exclusive Burgundy Wine color, the low, powerful symmetrical appearance of the car is further accentuated by the raised body sides which carry a fine gold hair line striping.

The seats of the new 1924 Haynes 60 Sedan are upholstered in genuine Mohair of a hue harmonizing with the body finish. Body-conforming springs assure the utmost of luxurious comfort. The Sedan is equipped with a car heater. The whole interior is cosily warmed no matter how cold the weather. A roof ventilator and an adjustable windshield assure adequate ventilation. A dome light of exquisite Haynes design, robe cord, vanity and smoking cases, and curtains on quick-acting rollers are some of the many interior niceties of this de luxe model. A clock is on the instrument board. The floor of both compartments is covered with durable carpet. The instrument panel is mounted on a cowl covered with leather. The windows are raised and lowered with the crank-type regulator. The 121-inch wheel base chassis is built of tested materials and sturdily constructed to withstand the severe road shocks.

The new 1924 Haynes 60 Sedan carries an adjustable sun and vision visor, full length running boards and a spare tire carrier mounted at the rear. The enameled door handles are trimmed in nickel. Disc wheels with 32 x 4½ cord tires are standard equipment. The radiator is nickel-plated and the car has exterior side cowl lights and searchlight design head lamps.

Powered by the new improved virtually vibrationless Haynes-built 60 motor with its larger crank shaft and its pressure oil feed system to the main bearings, the 1924 Haynes 60 Sedan is supreme in its field.

PROFITEERS IN SPAIN TO HANG, DICTATOR SAYS

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

MADRID, Sept. 22.—President Primo Rivera announced today that he will hang food and rent profiteers if necessary. The directorate declares the cost of living is exorbitant and it will abolish all middlemen unless they reduce profits. A royal decree forbids any increase in the prices of food or rents, and another cuts off railway passes.

The directorate has begun sending 50,000 troops to Morocco. The directorate has prepared the country for this fresh sacrifice by a communique threatening a reign of terror, shooting the people en masse, in case of revolt or conspiracy.

The new troops, who are in ugly spirits, are concentrating at Malaga and other Spanish bases. The great majority of the Spanish people bitterly oppose the new campaign.

TRIAL OF WARD HINGES ON QUERY: WHO OWNED GUN?

Special Guard Placed at Cell of Accused.

New York, Sept. 22.—[Special.]—Through a witness held in reserve for testimony this week, possibly Monday, the state hopes to establish that Walter S. Ward, slayer of Clarence M. Peters, was for many months previous to the killing owner of the two revolvers which his attorneys turned over to Sheriff George J. Werner after Ward had been surrendered.

The state, it was learned today, looks upon John Olson as its trump card in this respect. Olson is superintendent of an apartment house in which Ward maintained a suite for several weeks in the summer of 1921.

Says Ward Owned Guns.

Olson has sworn that he saw in Ward's apartment two revolvers closely resembling those given up by the Ward lawyers to the authorities. Olson will be asked to testify again on this score after the trial is resumed in White Plains Monday.

The importance of this witness lies in the fact that the defense has maintained persistently that one of the revolvers surrendered by the attorneys was wrested by Ward from Peters in their death struggle near the Kensico reservoir on the morning of May 16, 1922.

May Not Call Ward.

Though Ward has been represented as being content with the progress of the trial, it was reported today that an extra guard had been placed outside his cell in the Westchester county jail at White Plains.

Warden John A. Hill refused to make any comment when asked whether this measure had been taken as a precaution against possible attempt to commit suicide.

It is not the present plan of the defense to call Ward to the stand ex-Justice Isaac N. Mills, chief of counsel for the defendant, said today.

FATHER M'GUIRE ESTATE NEARLY HALF A MILLION

The Rev. Daniel F. McGuire, late pastor of the Visitation church, who died April 2, left an estate of $426,000, according to an inventory filed in the Probate court.

After bequeathing $2,000 to each of five relatives, and $5,000 to a friend, the Rev. Mr. McGuire left his entire estate to the Chinese Missionary society. The relatives indicated they would contest the will on the ground that the will did not represent the "normal wishes" of the clergyman.

The inventory shows that more than $300,000 had been stored in eight banks, in checking accounts, savings accounts and safety vault boxes.

A Large Furnishing and Accessory Store

(A Business Editorial)

FAIR DEALING

Business must make money if it is to succeed. But money-making alone—and for itself—is a sordid business. It tolerates exploitations along many different lines and too often thinks it is truly in accord with American ideals.

Some day a better idea of business will more generally prevail. All industrial and labor leadership—and for that matter individuals—will be wiser and more patriotic. Both will see that no activity can exemplify real patriotism in the United States until it sets itself, root and branch, against all unfair advertising or exploitation. Until in fact it begins to show in all ways and at all times—to obtain lasting benefits—there must be absolute fair dealings and good fellowship.

50,000 RUSSIANS COMING TO TILL MEXICAN LANDS

Obregon Assures Immigrants of Protection.

BY J. H. CORNYN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

Chihuahua, Mexico, Sept. 22.—The Mennonites just have bought 60,000 acres more in Chihuahua. This new tract lies south of the present holdings of 267,000 acres and is destined for 8,000 Mennonites now on the way from the Ukraine in southern Russia, where Mennonites have been living for 400 years. These are the vanguard of from 35,000 to 50,000 Russian Mennonites who have found bolshevism unbearable.

The Russian Mennonites, prosperous before the overthrow of the czar, are now on the verge of starvation in many sections of the Ukraine, their leaders here say, because of the exactions of the soviet government, the loss consequent upon various revolutionary uprisings, and the ruinous effects of the bolshevik régime. There are more than 800,000 still in southern Russia, all whom are looking to the new world.

U. S. Mennonites Help.

Prosperous Mennonites in the United States and Canada have guaranteed the payment for the latest purchase. They say they are willing to guarantee payment for other large tracts. These will probably be secured near the extensive Bustillos or San Antonio colony, as the present Mennonite settlement here is called.

"We believe in Mexico," said one of the prominent Mennonites here. "We are satisfied with Chihuahua. We know what we are doing, and we intend to stick here so long as we receive fair treatment at the hands of the Mexican authorities."

With 4,000 Canadian Mennonites already here, 8,000 on the way from Russia, and that many more coming from Canada within the next two months, the Mennonite colony in the state of Chihuahua promises to be by far the largest foreign colony in Mexico.

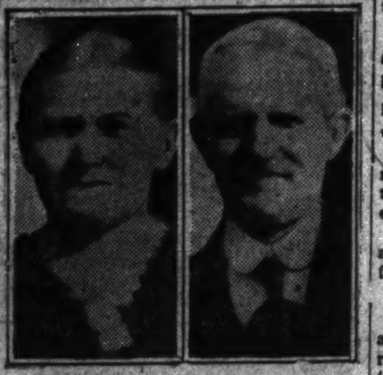
Federal Agents Report.

Two agents of the federal department of agriculture from Mexico City have been looking into the effort of the local agrarian commission to take from the Mennonites 12,500 acres of their richest lands in the river bottoms. These agents reported to the federal government that there was no justification for the attempt of the commission to wedge a long strip of Mexican colonists into the heart of the Mennonite colony. They recommended that every protection and encouragement be given the Mennonites, whom they characterized as most desirable immigrants.

50 YEARS WED

Mr. and Mrs. John Keith.

Mr. and Mrs. John Keith, 2143 Cullerton avenue, Chicago residents since 1894, are celebrating their golden wedding today. They were married in Michigan City, Ind. Mr. Keith is 79 years old and his wife, 70. There are five children and three grandchildren.



Mr. and Mrs. John Schuett.

Three generations, including four children, fifteen grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren will attend the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John Schuett, 1839 North Lowell avenue, today. Mr. and Mrs. Schuett, who were married in Germany, are pioneers of the northwest side, where they have lived for forty-five years.

I. W. W. BRANCH OF LAKE WORKERS GOES ON STRIKE

Longshoremen and deckhands belonging to the Marine Transport Workers, a branch of the I. W. W., went on strike early yesterday morning. Officials of other unions and of steamship companies here profess not to have noticed any difference along the docks.

Announcement of the strike was made by W. Kauffeldt, secretary of the Chicago branch of the union. He said 8,000 men were enrolled in this area alone, although all Great Lakes ports as well as New York and New Orleans are to be affected.

The strike, Kauffeldt declared, is for three watches on deck, better working conditions, and the release of all political prisoners arrested in connection with the war.

U.S. FLYERS' SKILL EXCELS, FEDERAL REPORT STATES

Speed Records, Engines' Power Also Cited.

BY GRAFTON WILCOX.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—The army air service in a report just issued here claims that the United States, which was so backward in aeronautics in the perilous world war days, has taken the lead over the rest of the world within the last year in development of the airplane motor and other phases of aircraft construction.

The air service declares that this superiority is demonstrated primarily by the fact that Americans have taken practically all the world's airplane records during the last ten months.

Credit for improvements along technical lines which have made possible this record is given to the air service engineering division at McCook field, Dayton, O., the bureau of standards and the national advisory committee for aeronautics.

Vast Improvement Made.

The long list of records attained by army pilots have been achieved, the report states, because of the greatly increased efficiency of the new planes and engines. This increased efficiency, it is claimed, is the result of the combined efforts of private manufacturers and the engineering division in experimentation and research work.

In airplane design great progress has been made along the line of producing more efficient wings as well as greater structural strength. The study of the substitution of various metals and alloys for former construction materials has been exhaustive, with the result that a better grade of duralumin is being produced in America now than in any other country of the world.

Liberty Motor Triumph.

To the improvement of the war time Liberty engine is attributed the success of the transcontinental flight. Such a performance reflects to the credit of the engine with which the airplane was equipped, because a more severe and gruelling test hardly could be imposed.

In the Pulitzer trophy race, the report says, there again was evidenced improvement in airplane engine design when the tremendous horsepower of the engine is compared with the fragile craft which it was required to drive through the air at nearly 250 miles an hour.

Keeping abreast with the world's efforts to develop a flying machine that could ascend and descend vertically the army air service, the report points out, produced during the year the De Bothezat helicopter. This machine, built entirely within the service, is among the first successful machines of its type.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST.

The official forecast for today and tomorrow and yesterday's tables of records follow:

Chicago and vicinity—Fair Sunday and probably Monday; not much change in temperature; moderate variable winds.

Illinois, Indiana, and lower Michigan—Fair Sunday and probably Monday; not much change in temperature.

Radium Is Restoring Health to Thousands

The wonderful curative power of Radium has been known for years. However, the benefits of this precious health-giving substance have in the past been only within the means of persons of wealth.

Since the invention of Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad, any man or woman, poor or rich, can afford this treatment which offers so much relief from suffering and disease.

Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad is worn next to the body day and night. It pours a constant stream of radio-active energy into the system while you work, play or sleep, helping to build up weakened nerves and tissues to a strong, healthy condition. It creates a vigorous circulation of blood, thus removing congestion, which is the real cause of most diseases.

To prove just what this remarkable treatment can do for you, we will send our appliance on trial with the understanding that we will not charge you a cent if it fails to give satisfactory results. This offer is open to any person who has pain of any kind, nerve weakness, high blood pressure, stomach, kidney or liver complaint, bladder trouble, or disease of the lungs or heart.

No matter what your ailment or how long you have had it, we will gladly let you try the appliance at our risk. Write today for free literature giving complete information. Radium Appliance Co., 373 Bradbury Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.

"DeLuxe" The Bedspring LUXURIOUS

How to start the day wrong

The best way to start the day wrong is to get up feeling stiff and tired. This may be accomplished by sleeping on an ordinary bedspring. You may sleep long enough, but you won't sleep soundly. You can't sleep soundly on a bedspring that twists the spine—cramps the muscles and sags.

How to start the day right. Choose your bedspring for better health. Visit your dealer today and ask him for a Rome Quality De Luxe bedspring. It doesn't sag, cramp the muscles, twist the spine or cause nerve pressure. Rome Quality De Luxe Bedsprings are made scientifically to fit every curve of the body. They give that refreshing, restful sleep that brings vim and vigor.

An unbeatable sleep combination is a Rome Quality De Luxe Bedspring and a Rome Gothic Bed. Insist upon both.

Write for our book "Sleep and its relation to health." It's interesting and free.

Bridge Engineering in Sefton Corrugated Boxes

Common corrugated board can't make Sefton Boxes. The Sefton standard of strength demands 36 strong arches of perfect form and precision to every foot of board. So Sefton has designed special machinery to make Sefton Board.

Sefton machinery applies tough jute liners to perfect corrugations at the moment they are made. These miniature bridges are bonded top and bottom with all their supporting strength preserved. No other process builds such ruggedness into corrugated board.

There is economy, strength, service—in Sefton Containers. Husky boxes they are, to do rough work in a hard world. They stand ready to demonstrate. Give them a task. Ship your product to Sefton for repacking. It will return to you at our risk in the Sefton you should use. Telephone, wire or write for our representative.

The Wonder of The Good MAXWELL Reduced Prices Grows Greater Day by Day

It is a fair statement to make that never since automobiles first rolled down Chicago's streets has a motor car been so widely and persistently a topic of conversation as the good Maxwell is today.

Here was a car that already occupied a high place in the estimation of the public. It had earned that high place by right of excellent appearance, sound construction, easy riding and a performance notable for economy as well as for power, speed and dependability.

All these prime essentials of good motoring were available in the good Maxwell at a remarkably low price.

Then came the announcement of new prices far below the original. The effect was electrical.

For a remarkably large measure of value—far larger than the public had been accustomed to find in the motor car market—was made even greater. Is it any cause for surprise, then, that the wonder of it all has been growing greater day by day?

There has, of course, been no magic about this achievement. Ever growing production to meet ever growing demand has made it possible for a great organization to take full advantage of all its facilities.

You, too, have doubtless been among those who have marvelled. But to get a full understanding of the situation a personal examination and a demonstration of the good Maxwell are necessary. When you follow this suggestion pick out from our city-wide organization the dealer nearest to you.

LITTLE DOWN and LITTLE Each Month

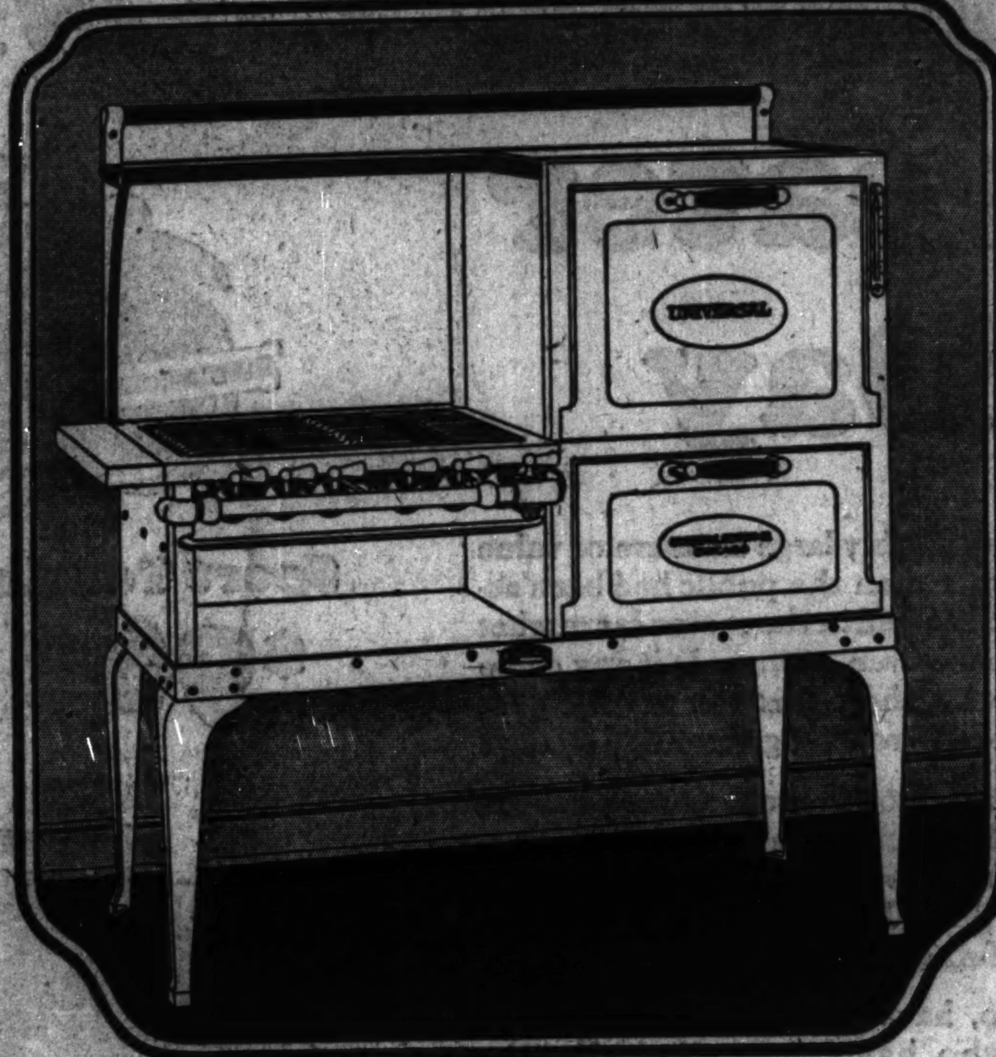
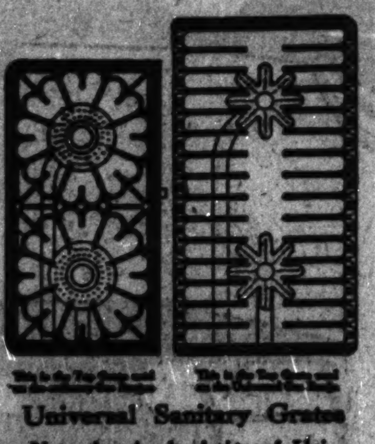
Every day of your life you will thank Universal for these features



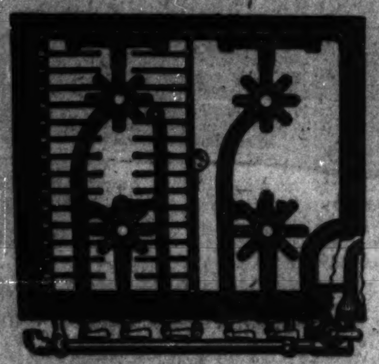
The New and Finer Gas Range with its many Revolutionary Features.

Universal Stoves and Furnaces are only sold through our authorized Franchise Dealers.



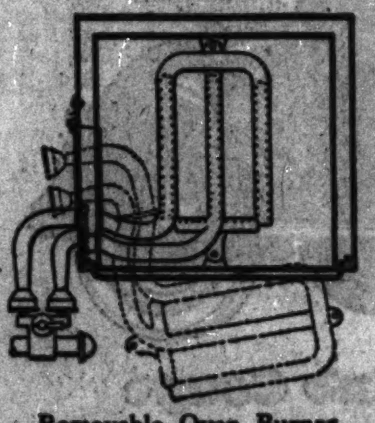
Universal Sanitary Grates

Note the simple design of Universal Sanitary Grates: No cross bars or niches to collect dirt and grease.



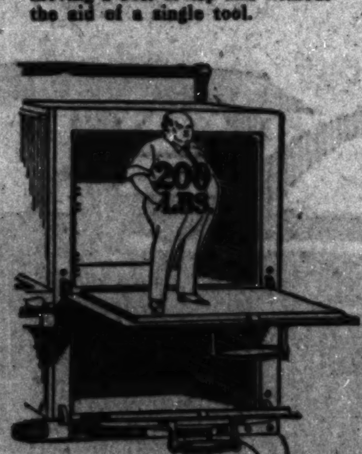
Burners Accurately Set

The efficiency of top burners on a range is largely determined by the correct and uniform distance from top of grates to top of burners. This is assured on the Universal Gas Range by hanging the burners on cast iron supports.



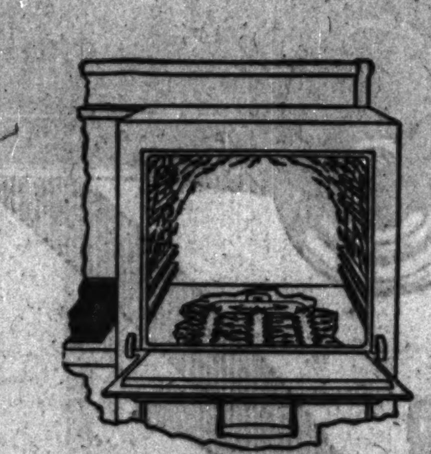
Removable Oven Burner A Patented Feature

To maintain perfect combustion and full efficiency it is necessary to occasionally clean oven burner. This is provided for in the Universal by a patented removable oven burner which can be readily taken out without removing a bolt or tap and without the aid of a single tool.



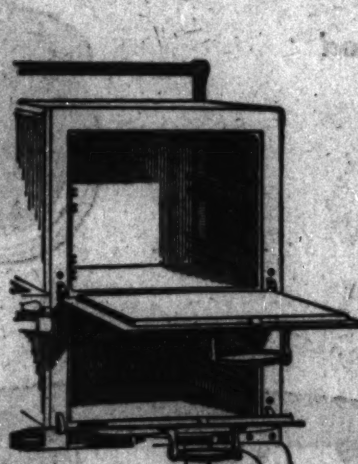
"Dreadnaut" Oven Door

The oven door and broiler door on a gas range when open should form a working shelf. The doors on a Universal will support two hundred pounds when open without sagging or breaking.



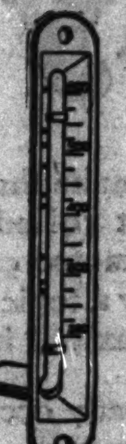
Perfect Heat Circulation Uniform Oven Temperature

The oven burner in the Universal is located from front to back, assuring a direct and free circulation of heat into flues and oven. Makes oven heat up faster, more uniformly, and less radiant loss.



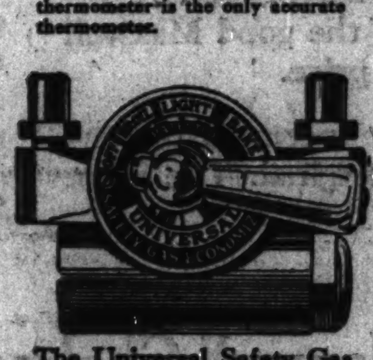
The Life of a Gas Range Is the Oven Lining

All Universal Gas Ranges can be had with Aluminum Fused Rust Proof Oven Linings. This finish will not rust, burn off, peel or chip, and will lengthen the life of the range.



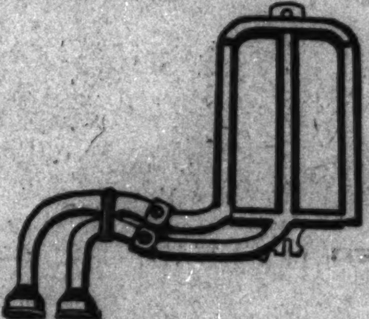
Mercury Oven Thermometer

The Universal Gas Range can be had with a Mercury Thermometer inset into the oven front which will tell you at a glance the correct temperature in the oven. A mercury thermometer is the only kind of an instrument a physician or the weather man will use, because a mercury thermometer is the only accurate thermometer.



The Universal Safety Gas Economizer—Patented

Gives absolute control of oven heat. Set the indicator where you want it and you get the exact amount of heat where you want it and when you want it. As easy to operate as the ordinary gas cock.



Patented Universal "Oversize" Three-Way Burner

Provides countless adjustments of oven temperatures and maintains perfect combustion at all times. Gives seven lines of hot gas flame for broiling, toasting, and for a fast oven. A simple turn of the valve cuts out the four outer lines of flame, and the center bar with three lines of flame gives the required heat to hold your oven.

Sanitary Finish—Cleans Like a China Dish

There are many more reasons for you to have a Universal Porcelain Gas Range than a porcelain bathtub or sink. Would you be satisfied with a tin bathtub or sink?

ARMY-NOTRE DAME GAME DRIVE IS ON!

CENTRAL A. A. U. IN UPROAR OVER JOIE RAY CASE

BERZ CHARGES RUNNER WAS WHITEWASHED

Discussion Ordered Taken from Minutes.

Joie Ray is in trouble again, or yet. Yesterday the Central A. A. U. was thrown into an uproar when Harry Berz, chairman of the committee which suspended Ray for participating in boxing bouts at the Arcade gymnasium which were not sanctioned by the A. A. U., only to have him reinstated by the executive committee, charged that the executive committee which exonerated Ray was loaded.

He hurled the accusation that only Ray's friends and patrons were permitted to vote and that the entire thing was a whitewash of Ray.

Wrangle Follows.

Then, after a wrangle, the Central A. A. U. ordered all records of the discussion of Ray's case be stricken from the minutes.

Mr. Berz made his charges against the executive committee in his report from the registration committee. The argument waxed hot, and Julian Fitzgerald, secretary, was asked for the minutes of the executive committee meeting, and declared he had given them to the president and they had not been returned. Charles A. Dean said that Berz's report was an appeal to the delegates.

Berz Disputes Committee.

Berz disputed the right of the executive committee to name Fred Steers as chairman of the registration committee, following the resignation of Paul Henning, who quit when Ray was reinstated. The first action of the board of managers was to reëlect Steers president of the Central A. A. U.

The pro-Ray party seems to prevail, at least until after the Olympics.

The calm of the meeting of the board of managers of the association was likewise disturbed when the right of "Doc" Bryant of the Chicago Athletic association to vote in the meeting was challenged by Mr. Dean, T. J. Kanly and others. Mr. Darwent declared that he represented W. K. Powell, regular representative of the C. A. A. His vote was refused in the election of officers, which was the chief purpose of the meeting.

Berz Is Defeated.

Frank A. Martin of the Hamilton club was elected chairman of the registration committee, defeating Harry Berz, who was also defeated by Louis A. Rellman of the McKinley Park Athletic club for secretary of the committee, the position he held last year.

FREEBOOTERS WIN POLO TILT FROM TOLEDO

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—The Miami Valley Freebooters of Dayton today nosed out the Carranor Polo and Hunt club of Toledo, 5 to 4, in the semi-final round of the consolation matches for the Gold Hat trophy, and thereby won the right to clash with the 6th army corps Sunday for the silverware.

The soldiers went into the final by defeating the Gold Hats of Detroit, 12 to 1. Both games today were limited to six periods on account of the poor condition of the playing field caused by recent rains.

Sunday the finals on both the midwest championship tournament and the Gold Hat trophy tournament take place. The first game between the Miami Valley Freebooters and the 6th army corps will be followed by the match for the midwestern championship between the Miami Valley Polo and Hunt club and the Onwentsia club of Chicago.

WYNSDAU ENTERS SIX DAY GRIND AT COLISEUM

Theodore Wynsdau, the young Belgian who made such a good showing in the last six day bike race here, has sent his entry to Manager Paddy Harmon and will start in the next international grind at the Coliseum opening Oct. 27. Wynsdau was teamed with his brother in the last race here and furnished a lot of the thrills by constantly jamming with the American riders.

Wynsdau remained in the United States after the six day racing last winter and all season has been riding sprint and motor paced races in the east, being one of the leaders on the 1923 winning list. There is a chance that Wynsdau will be teamed with Ali Nefatti, the Senegal sprinter, who has already sent in his entry.

GLENNA GOLLETT WINS CANADIAN GOLF CROWN

Montreal, Que., Sept. 22.—Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, R. I., is the women's golf champion of Canada. In a thrilling display of golf this afternoon she defeated Mrs. W. A. Gavin of Mentercombe, England, the holder, by the narrow margin of 2 up and 1 to play. The game was a seesaw between the two contestants.

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

WORLD'S SERIES.

NEW YORK Yankees have clinched the American league pennant. New York Giants are a practical certainty for the National league gonfalon. Thus for the third time in succession the world's series becomes a Gotham family affair.

The Wake, although an ardent ball fan, confesses no pulsating interest in the result. Others with whom we have talked feel the same way. It is probable this feeling is general outside New York City.

Even in New York fans are becoming surfeited with winners. New York Giants did not draw as well at the Polo grounds as last year. Up to July 1 they had played to less spectators at home than the Chicago Cubs at home, and the Cubs were not title contenders. We have not the figures since, but doubt the ratio has changed.

One cannot blame Yank and Giant managers for doing all in their power to produce winners—even to paying high prices for seasoned players or promising recruits. That is their business. Baseball, as a whole, will be better, however, when present supremacy of the two New York clubs ends.

No club has ever won four championships in succession—if we except the Bostons of 1872-'75, before the National league was formally organized. No club in the American league, except Detroit in 1907-9, previous to this time has won three titles in succession.

Some keen critics think tenure of the Giants ends with 1923. Margin of Yanks over their rivals was more impressive. If, however, there is a change of world's series mastery in 1924 fans in general will be better satisfied.

In September.

When corn fields rustle, clear and sere,
And Jack Frost's whimsical brush is here,
Changing forests green to red and gold,
With tints and shades rare and manifold;
When Nature puts on her gala dress
And hies at her own loveliness
Of woodland waters, earth and skies,
And hayriad whims to please our eyes;
When September's sun warms the frosty morn
I love to see the fields of corn—
Into the woods, stately and still,
Except some loitering song bird's thrill,
Or a curt protest or a bluejay's whine,
Or a squirrel with occult design,
And the discard labors that fall to man,
To be idler once again,
A captive of fancy and reverie
And be in that captivity.
Smiley.

Another Memorial Merited.

Dear Wake: The memorial to Capt. Anson is a meritorious recognition of a great ball player. Now let's do the right thing and erect a suitable tablet or monument to Abner Doubleday, organiser of the first game of baseball ever played, and erect it on the original ground, which is now a ball field in Cooperstown, N. Y. C. P. K.

HYDE PARK AND EVANSTON CLASH SIX TO SIX TIE

BY WALLACE ABBEY.

Intercepted forward passes, following the part of Hyde Park by a series of smashes through the center of line, and by Evanston with a quarterback attack, resulted in the two touchdowns yesterday which made the opening clash of the season at Evanston a 6 to 6 tie. Rival captains, Tuffy Horton for Hyde Park and Don [illegible] for Evanston, each failed to kick over the points after the touchdown which would have meant victory.

[illegible] Hannaway, quarter back, scored Hyde Park's points soon after the opening of the second quarter. [illegible] Brown grabbed down a forward pass meant for an Evanston end and raced to within eighteen yards of the goal. Successive assaults by Horton, Houston, and Hart advanced the oval within a few feet of the line, Hannaway's final thrust putting it over.

Intercepts Pass.

[illegible] when Evanston, which in the first half had been showing more in the way of punch than the visitors, seemed doomed to fall the unexpected came. It was similar to the one that had given Coach Scanlon's men their points. [illegible] back Levison leaped high into the air and fell to the ground clutching an intercepted pass. On the next play, Adams, huge dusky half back, received a pass from Gustafson and raced to within two feet of the line. Brilliant open field running left the Hyde Parkers strewn along the field. It only remained for Lester Heap to make the touchdown on the next play. He charged through the line.

Many spectators had a narrow escape from injury in the third quarter when a section of the Evanston bleachers fell, throwing a hundred or more spectators to the ground. Aside from a few twisted limbs and bumped heads, no injuries were reported.

Hyde Park, outweighing its opponents twenty pounds to the man, lost an opportunity to score in the opening period when Houston fumbled on Evanston's five yard line. Evanston had a good chance to count in the third period when passes had advanced the ball to Hyde Park's one yard line. Three cracks at the line failed though, and a pass over the line on the fourth down was incompleted.

Adams Is Star.

Adams was easily the star of the game. His uncanny eye for the passes, as well as his tearing, ground gaining attacks on the line, brought him cheer after cheer from the crowd of 3,000. In the second quarter he saved the day by pulling down a runner who had an intercepted pass and was headed for the Evanston goal with an apparently clear field ahead.

Morton's try for the point after the touchdown was a drop kick which went wild. Grimes attempted to place kick, but the ball landed squarely in the arms of an onrushing opponent.

Considering the veteran makeup and the weight of the Hyde Park team, the showing of the green Evanstonians is considered remarkable. Lineup:

BAR SOUTHERN 'U' BALL PLAYERS WHO PLAYED WITH JOE JACKSON

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 22.—[United Press.]—Eight athletic stars of southern universities who played baseball during the summer in the league with Joe Jackson, former Chicago White Sox fielder, were declared ineligible tonight for college athletics.

The executive committee of the Southern Intercollegiate conference, in announcing its decision after an all day session, declared that Jackson's part in the world series scandal of 1919 automatically barred all college men who played in the South Georgia Baseball league.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

With a berth in the second division yawning before them, Killefer's Cubs cut loose a high toned batting assault in the waning moments yesterday and took unto themselves a victory that a few moments previous had looked like a sure thing for the obstreperous Phillies. The final margin was 5 and 3, the chief contribution to these figures being a cluster of three tallies shoved over by the Bruins in the eighth frame.

The sudden shift in the arrangement of figures was worked out at the expense of Clarence Mitchell, a southpaw who usually bothers the north siders more than they care to admit. On this occasion Mitchell was hit hard all the way, but for the most part luck seemed to stick with him. It deserted him without ceremony in the eighth, however, and the Cubs sent him on his way with a salvo of four blows.

Cubs Get Their Runs on Five Hits.

Including one single notched against Mr. Behan, who toiled after Mitchell had welcomed relief, the Cubs rolled up fourteen bingles, but, strangely enough, only five of these played a part in the scoring. This feat of getting as many runs on five wallops is explained by the fact that two were homers, one with a runner on the trail, and the other three safeties followed one of the four base smacks in the eighth.

In so far as hitting was concerned, the Cubs deserved to win in a romp, the Phils getting to Vic Keen for only half the number exploded by the Killefer clouters. The visitors, however, did even better than their hosts when it came to run making, only two hits being sufficient for them to chalk up all their tallies. This was made possible by Keen inadvertently passing two men prior to a hit in the fifth, while in the seventh a lone triple was coined into something worth while.

Adams Hits Homer with Mate On.

The Cubs made their first assault on Mitchell in the third. Statz led off and drew the only walk yielded by the portsider. Then Mitchell was overcautious and, not desiring to pass another, let one go in Adams's groove and "Sparkplug" hoisted it into the open faced seats in left for two runs. The Phils grabbed back these runs in the fifth, and then went ahead when Wrightstone tripled and scored on Sand's fly in the seventh.

Friberg, who much to his discomfiture had fanned with two mates on in the fifth, opened the eighth round attack and atoned for his previous slip-up by taking a nice, healthy swing and sending the pill into the left field bleachers to tie the count. That wallop staggered Mitchell and before he could recover Miller had doubled and Grigsby and Statz had singled for two more runs and victory.

RITOLA FIRST IN ANNUAL A. A. U. STEEPLECHASE

New York, Sept. 22.—Willie Ritola, crack distance runner of the Finnish-American A. C., today captured the national A. A. U. steeplechase championship over a two mile course at the annual fall games of the New York Athletic club on Travers Island. Marvin Rick of the New York A. C., former Princeton star, finished second, 250 yards behind Ritola. Russell Payne of Ohio State university was third. Ritola's time was 10:04 3-4.

Allen Helffrich of the New York A. C., former Penn State runner and intercollegiate champion, defeated Ray Watson of the Illinois A. C. by two and a half yards in a special half mile match race.

EAST TAKES WEST INTO CAMP IN TENNIS MATCHES

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 22.—[Special]—The combined players of Philadelphia and New York defeated the best of San Francisco today when east and west met in their annual match at the West Side Tennis club.

To William M. Tilden II., of Philadelphia, the national champion, went the honor of clinching the victory for the east when he defeated William M. Johnston of California in the third match of the day, 8-6, 7-5. Previously Vincent Richards, who is now making his home in New York, had defeated Howard Kinsey of California in straight sets at 6-3, 6-2, and R. Norris Williams II., of Philadelphia, captain of the eastern combination, vanquished Robert Kinsey at 6-1, 7-9, 6-3.

1,500 Brave Rain.

In spite of the fact that rain was falling at the hour when play started, 1,500 fans, prepared with raincoats and umbrellas, saw the matches through.

Any notion that Johnston is through was put to ridicule by his performance today. In sheer viciousness of stroke the Californian exceeded anything he has shown all season. Perhaps it was because he was stung by the criticism of his work in the championship and the intimations that his best days were over that Johnston played so brilliantly today.

Tilden Uses Backhand.

Tilden was keenly on edge for the fray, too, and his strokes fairly smoked across the net, especially his first service ball and his backhand shots. It was nothing less than astonishing the manner in which Johnston took those strokes of the champion and whipped them back for aces so fast that the eye could get only a glimpse of the ball as it streaked across the net.

Tilden called upon his backhand constantly, raking Johnston's court with crossing shots to the other's left base line corner. The Californian stood up under this pounding in admirable fashion, showing that his backhand shots are only slightly less effective than are the champion's.

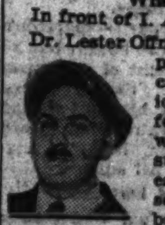
The Question.

Are you a booster for an Army-Notre Dame football game in Chicago on Oct. 13?

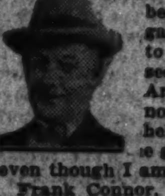
Where Asked.

In front of I. A. C.



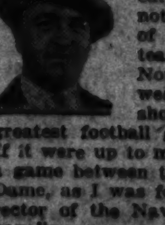
Dr. Lester Offner, 1941 Fowler street, physician — Yes, because I am of the opinion that the brand of football played by our western teams is far superior to that of the eastern teams. I have seen teams play from both of these sections. A game between the Army and Notre Dame would give the western football fans an opportunity to see a real football game.

A. K. Morgue, Peoples Gas building, coal business—A game like that in Chicago would draw a capacity crowd. It would give football fans a chance to see two of the greatest football teams in action. Although Notre Dame is not a member of the Big Ten conference, I think that the Irishers could show some of the teams what the game of football means.



W. P. Miller, Morrison Hotel, salesman—Yes, and I would be the first one at the gate. I would be willing to walk 100 miles to see a game between the Army and Notre Dame, no matter where it is held. I am boosting for the game to be held here, even though I am not a Chicagoan.

Frank Connor, Oak Park, advertising—There would be nothing in the sport world that would give me a greater thrill than a game between Army and Notre Dame. I am a great believer in intersectional games and the Big Ten fans would get the treat of their lives.



Eli Levin, 6166 Dorchester avenue, physical culturist — Why not? Army being one of the leading football teams in the east and Notre Dame in the west, the contest should be one of the greatest football games ever played. If it were up to me I would boost for a game between the Navy and Notre Dame, as I was formerly physical director of the Naval academy at Annapolis.

U. S. IS URGED TO SHIFT TILT TO STAGG FIELD

Mayor Dever Joins Bandwagon.

SEN. M'KINLEY ACTIVE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—Senator William McKinley of Illinois, it was announced today, will go to the war department Tuesday and urge that the Army-Notre Dame football game, one of the most important intersectional contests of the year, be played in Chicago on Oct. 13. The senator said he was acting in response to many telegrams he had received from Chicago urging that the game be played there. He stated that he would do his utmost to secure the contest for Chicago.

BY FRANK SMITH.

Converts to the suggestion that the Army-Notre Dame football game of Oct. 13 be transferred to this city are swamping local boosters of the plan with letters and phone calls expressing their whole hearted support of the move.

The suggestion, first broached in THE TRIBUNE when it was learned that the two teams had been barred from suitable grounds in New York and Philadelphia—in the former place by organized baseball which did not care to have a counter attraction to the world's series and in the latter because the University of Pennsylvania was scheduled to meet Swarthmore—was made in the earnest belief that football fans of the west wanted to see both teams in action in Chicago.

Work to Get Game Here.

This belief has been substantiated in more ways than one. The suggestion hardly was cold before followers of the Army and of Notre Dame put their shoulders to the wheel in an effort to convince the powers that be that the game should come here.

D. E. Hilgartner Jr., president of the Notre Dame club of Chicago, and Col. H. B. Hackett, formerly of the Army and one of the best known football referees extant, were the moving spirits, and it is to be hoped their efforts will be rewarded.

Mr. Hilgartner communicated with the officials at Notre Dame and found they were willing and anxious to have the game transferred to Chicago. It then was up to the Army officials.

Hurley Wire to Weeks.

Edward N. Hurley, former chairman of the shipping board, local banker, and a trustee of the University of Notre Dame, yesterday wired Secretary of War Weeks as follows:

> The west is as proud of the cadets at West Point as the east, but the great middle west has never had the opportunity of witnessing a West Point football game. I understand that it will be impossible for Notre Dame and West Point to meet in New York and, as a trustee of Notre Dame, I am taking the liberty of suggesting that you grant permission for the West Point game with Notre Dame to be played in Chicago Oct. 13. I believe that it will be most helpful to the army if you could see your way clear to permit this fine body of young men to play here for the first time. They would receive an enthusiastic and whole hearted welcome reception. Won't you try to grant our request and you and your staff be our guests at the game? Your many friends in Chicago and the middle west will give you a hearty welcome.

Invited by Mayor Dever.

In another telegram to Secretary Weeks, Mayor William E. Dever officially invited the Army and Notre Dame teams to play here. The dispatch follows:

> In the name of the city of Chicago, I cordially invite you and your staff to be the guests of the second city of the nation if you will cast aside the precedent of the past and give permission for the West Point football game with Notre Dame to be played in Chicago Oct. 13. Chicago would be honored, and we all hope that you will grant this request and give us the great opportunity of seeing the West Point football team in action, and thereby stimulate the youth of our city and state to strive for the manhood and athletic ability set by the cadets of the United States Military academy.

No Counter Attraction.

The foregoing requests, it is hoped, will bear the desired fruit. There will be no football counter attraction here on Oct. 13, the Maroons having an open date and Northwestern being out of the city. In the event that the request for the transfer of the game to Chicago is granted, it is believed that the University of Chicago will permit the use of Stagg field.

This game should come to Chicago!

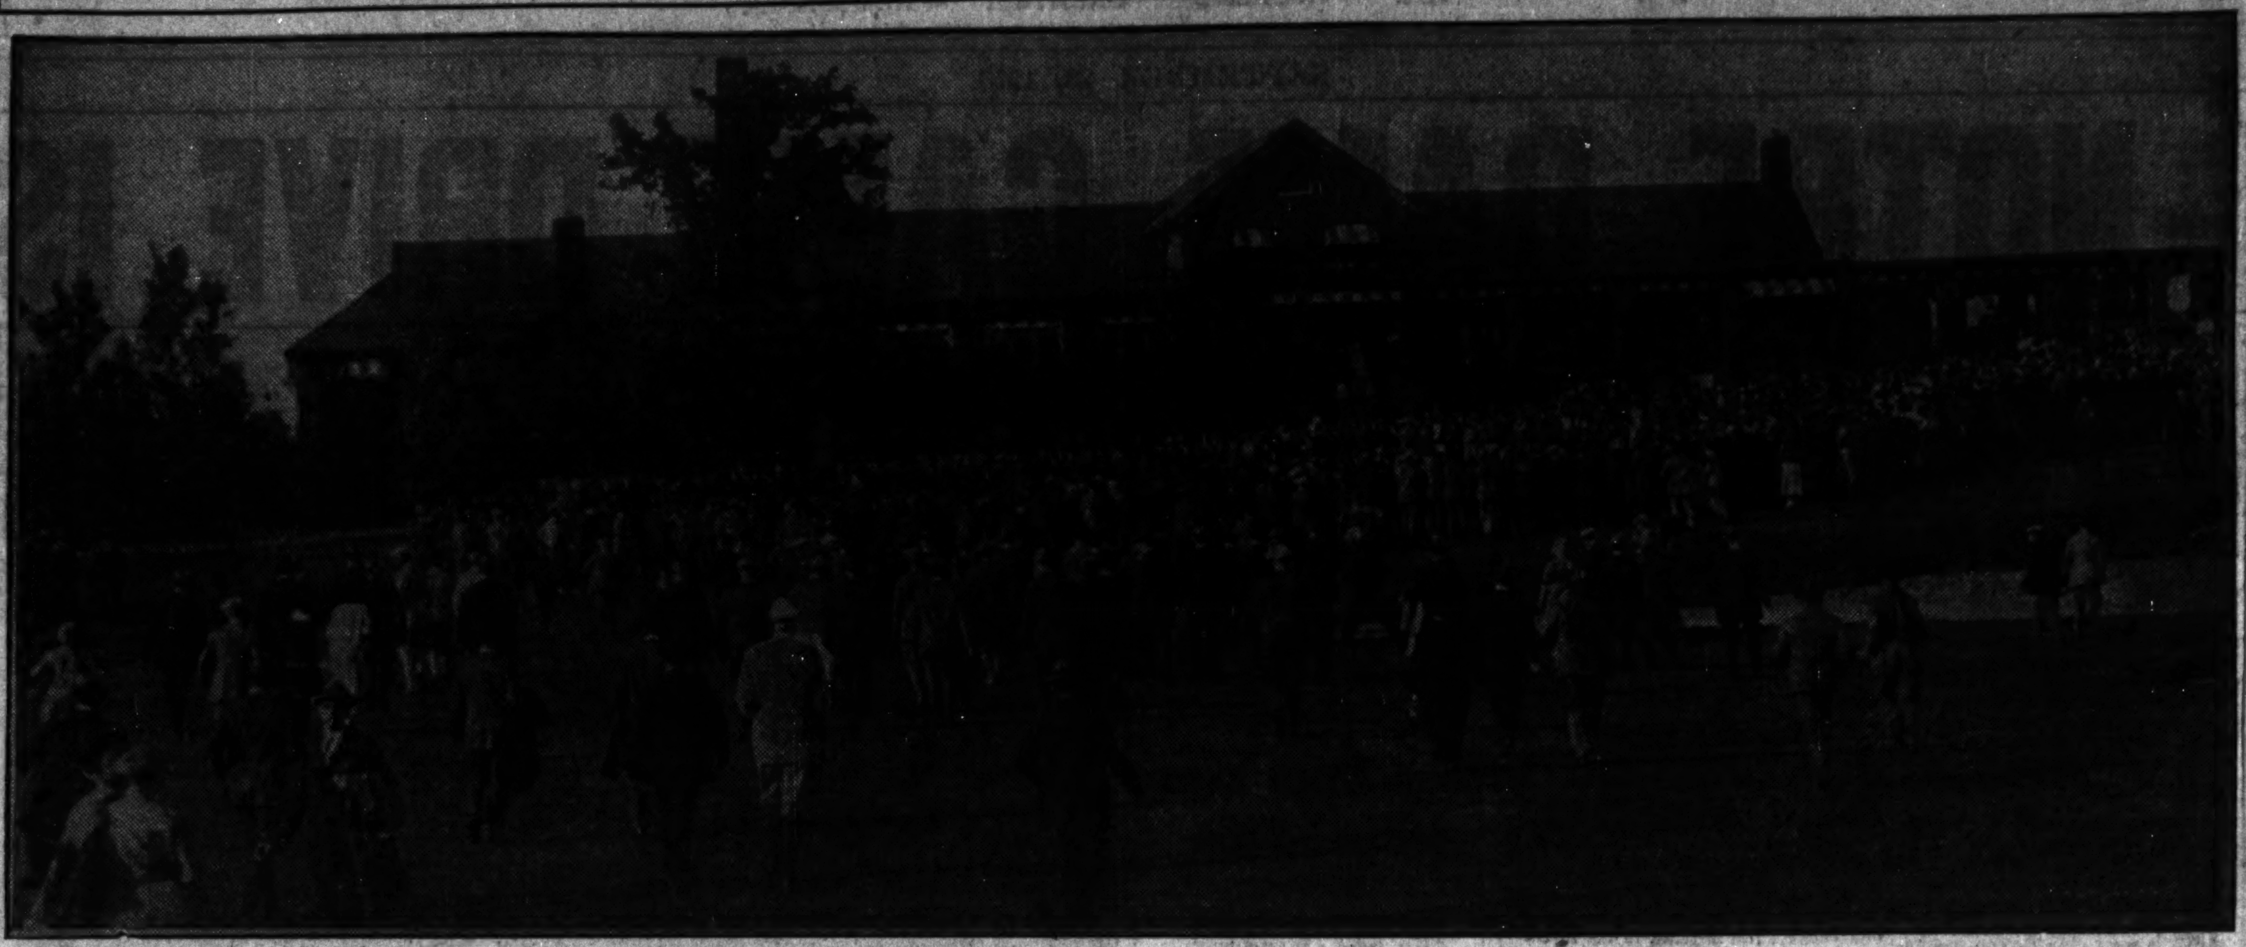
EXCITED GALLERY OF FANS AT FLOSSMOOR MULLING AROUND HOME GREEN



It just seemed impossible for the "pay as you enter" golf bugs to avoid interfering with the play of the entrants in the national amateur golf tournament during the week. In spite of the efforts of the management, the Boys Scouts, and the rope carriers, they frequently upset the contestants through eagerness to get close to the shot. It was not intentional, but it happened just the same. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

DETAILED PLAY OF MARSTON WIN OVER SWEETSER

BY JOE DAVIS.

In the most gruelling finish in the history of the National Amateur Golf championship Max Marston, 31 year old Philadelphian, defeated Jess Sweetser, of the Siwanoy club, of New York, at the thirty-eighth hole of their match for the title yesterday at Flossmoor.

Reaching the sixteenth green all square, Marston missed a three and one-half foot putt, leaving Sweetser 1 up with two to play. Then on the seventeenth green, Marston, from the edge of the green laid Sweetser a dead stymie on a fifteen foot putt. Jess took two minutes to size up the possibilities of an impossible shot, and missing, lost the hole, 5 to 4, and they were all square with one to play.

Sweetser Halves Hard Hole.

Both made good drives at the home hole and their seconds were about equidistant from the hole. Sweetser being down at the left corner of the sloping green and Marston off the near edge.

Marston made a beautiful run up two feet past the hole, and the crowd of 3,000 which crowded around the green was tense as the champion took his stance. It was a fine try but curled four feet by the pin. It was a ticklish putt as Sweetser had to play the ball fast to hold the line and get by Marston's ball. He sent the ball straight into the cup and got a half in a birdie 4.

Marston's high tee shot came straight for the second hole, 212 yards, but was short twenty-five feet. Once more the champion was on the defensive, but his tee shot was off to the right, scattering the gallery. It fell into a good lie but was ninety feet away from the pin. His approach pitch was well made but curled away eight feet.

Marston Lays a Stymie.

Then Marston, putting up close to the edge of the cup, effectually blocked Sweetser's passage and the champion, making a desperate try to curl around the other ball, missed and conceded victory to the tall Quaker city player, the first Philadelphian to reach the championship goal.

For twenty-five holes he was never up and then taking the lead he was 2 up at the twenty-seventh hole.

This lead was dissipated at the next two holes and after they had halved two more, Marston took the lead at the fourteenth, where Sweetser's tee shot was near a tree and left him a low shot under the branches. He was woefully short and this cost him the hole, leaving Marston 1 up and 4 to play. A putted drive behind a tree at the fifteenth cost Marston that hole and squared the match, paving the way for the keen finish.

MORNING ROUND

HOLE 1, 518 yards, par 5—Both drove well down the course. Sweetser pulled his second to a trap, 80 yards from the flag, but got a good out 18 feet from the pin. Marston's mashie pitch was 10 feet short and they halved in 5.

HOLE 2, 212 yards, par 3—Both put their tee shots to the right edge of the green and short, and put long approach putts close for a half in 3.

HOLE 3, 552 yards, par 5—Their drives were down the middle 5 feet apart, and their seconds almost as close; Marston overplayed his pitch to the back of the green, and his fourth, from fifty feet, was 10 feet short, but he holed the putt for a half in 5, Sweetser failing to hole a 6 foot putt after a fine pitch.

Sweetser One Up.

HOLE 4, 342 yards, par 4—Both got good drives, but Marston's mashie pitch was off the green to the right, and he overplayed his chip shot ten feet. Sweetser's pitch was twenty-five feet short, but he won, cinched his 4, and won the hole when Marston missed by inches. Sweetser 1 up.

HOLE 5, 447 yards, par 4—Marston stopped just short of a trap on his drive, Sweetser being down the middle. Sweetser's iron was six feet to the left of the pin. Marston being very short, sixteen feet. Max missed and so did Jess, and they halved in 4. Sweetser, 1 up.

HOLE 6, 417 yards, par 4—Sweetser sliced his drive among trees and had no chance to shoot for the green. It was a good opening for Max, but he pulled his drive, which hit a barbed wire fence and stopped in bounds. Max tried to play out left handed, but went only a few feet to the rough. His third was short of the green. Sweetser played a low ball under the trees to the fairway and was home on his third, thirty-five feet short. Max overplayed his approach fifteen feet and from there he took three putts, Sweetser winning, 5 to 7. Sweetser 2 up.

Max Wins One.

HOLE 7, 126 yards, par 3—Sweetser's pitch was twenty-five feet over the pin, Marston being sixteen feet short. Sweetser was short four feet and Marston went by the hole on his uphill putt and stymied the champion, who failed on his niblick jump shot and lost, 4 to 3. Sweetser 1 up.

HOLE 8, 325 yards, par 4—Marston had the better pitch, and holing a fifteen foot putt for a birdie 3, squared the match, the champion missing a thirty-five foot putt.

HOLE 9, 387 yards, par 4—After long drives, Marston's long second went over to the far edge of the green, Sweetser being hole high sixteen feet to the left. Marston's sixty foot approach putt was six feet off to the left, a poor shot, and Sweetser won, 4 and 5. Sweetser 1 up.

HOLE 10, 490 yards, par 5—Marston was in the rough to the left, and sent his second to the right side of the course, seventy yards from the flag. Sweetser failed to get home on his long iron second, and, overplaying his chip shot ten feet, he got a half in 5.

Eleventh Hole Halved.

HOLE 11, 177 yards, par 3—Both had long approach putts from the edge of the green. Marston overplayed his second six feet, but made the putt, and halved in 3, Sweetser having a yard putt. Sweetser 1 up.

HOLE 12, 482 yards, par 5—Sweetser's drive was down the middle, but Marston sliced to a high mound. He got over the hill on his second, but Sweetser sliced his second and nullified his advantage. Their approach shots were equal, about nine feet away, and they both missed, halving in 5.

HOLE 13, 115 yards, par 3—Sweetser's pitch was fourteen feet to the left of the pin, and he holed the putt for a win, 2 to 3, Marston missing from thirty feet. Sweetser 2 up.

HOLE 14, 338 yards, par 4—They had even drives, but Marston's high pitch had no backspin and he went over the hole twenty-five feet. Sweetser was twelve feet to the right. Max holed for a birdie 3 and won, 3 to 4. Sweetser 1 up.

Sweetser Pulls to Rough.

HOLE 15, 444 yards, par 4—Marston's drive went down the center and Sweetser pulled to the rough. From a touge lie Sweetser smashed out a long iron shot over the creek, the best shot of the morning, landing fifteen feet from the flag. Max was twenty-five feet away on his third and they halved in 4. Sweetser 1 up.

HOLE 16, 327 yards, par 4—Sweetser spanked out a long drive, but Marston sliced to deep grass, and failed to reach the green on his second. Sweetser's second split the pin and went twenty feet and he won, 4 to 5. Sweetser 2 up.

HOLE 17, 488 yards, par 5—Sweetser's long drive was trapped and he had to play short of the creek. Marston's spoon second was just short of the green. Sweetser's third was overplayed to the right corner of the green, and his long approach was off the line and eight feet by. Marston missed an eight foot putt for his 4 and won, 5 t o6. Sweetser 1 up.

Jess Is 2 Up.

HOLE 18, 497 yards, par 5—Marston sliced his second to the rough but had a good lie. His high mashie niblick pitch was short fifteen feet, and Sweetser after a short run up shot nailed a seven foot putt for a win, 4 to 5, leaving him 2 up. Allowing Sweetser a 3 on the seventh hole, where he was stymied, he had a medal card of 74. Cards:

AFTERNOON PLAY

HOLE 1, 518 yards, par 5—They got good drives, but Sweetser was short on his second and third, and Marston, holing a yard putt, won, 4 to 5. Sweetser 1 up.

HOLE 2, 212 yards, par 3—Marston was over the pin thirty feet, Sweetser being short seventeen feet. Marston played over the hole and stymied the champion, who lost, 4 to 3. Match all square.

HOLE 3, 552 yards, par 5—Drives and seconds were equal but Sweetser's great pitch to eighteen inches of the hole gave him a win, 4 to 5. Marston overplaying his third to the far edge of the green.

HOLE 4, 342 yards, par 4—This was halved in regulation fours.

HOLE 5, 447 yards, par 4—Marston's drive was fifty yards the better, but he was trapped to the right of the green on his long second. Sweetser was short forty yards on his second and eight feet by on his third. He missed the putt and Marston, holing a six-footer, won, 4 to 5. All square.

Long Drive by Sweetser.

HOLE 6, 417 yards, par 4—Sweetser outdrove Marston thirty yards. Marston's second was sliced into the gallery, but he made a good approach over a mound, to five feet, but missed the putt, after Sweetser had made a weak approach putt and missed an eight foot putt.

HOLE 7, 126 yards, par 3—Marston pitched a foot from the hole and won, 2 to 3. Marston 1 up.

HOLE 8, 335 yards, par 4—They made even drives, but Sweetser's pitch was weak, Marston being ten feet from the pin. The champion made a poor approach and missed a seven foot putt, losing, 5 to 4.

HOLE 9, 387 yards, par 4—Marston drove straight. Sweetser being trapped on the right, but he recovered brilliantly, his mashie shot leaving him a three foot putt, but he got a half when Marston stymied him on a twelve foot putt. Marston 2 up.

HOLE 10, 490 yards, par 5—This was a poorly played hole. Marston driving to the rough and playing out short, while Sweetser was short on his second and third. Sweetser had a twenty-two foot putt for a 4, but missed, and then Marston blew a yard putt and lost, 6 to 5.

Match All Square Again.

HOLE 11, 177 yards, par 3—Sweetser's pitch was sixteen feet from the pin, and Marston was trapped short of the green, getting a short out and losing, 4 to 3. All square.

HOLE 12, 482 yards, par 5—Sweetser's drive just short of the creek, and Marston was trapped in the sand pit at the right. He got a low shot out, but cleared the creek. His fine third was eight feet from the pin. Sweetser was short on his second and third shots, and missed a long putt for his 4. Marston missed from eight feet, and they halved in 5.

HOLE 13, 115 yards, par 3—This was made in regulation 3's, both missing longish putts.

HOLE 14, 338 yards, par 4—Luck helped Marston, as his drive went by the trees to the open. Sweetser's drive was sliced, and he had to play a low ball to escape the branches of a tree. His shot went only half way, while his third was short seventeen feet. Marston pitched over the pin twenty-five feet, and nailed a 4 for a win. Marston 1 up.

HOLE 15, 444 yards, par 4—Marston's drive was stymied by a tree, and he played out short. His third was off the corner of the green. Sweetser was seventeen feet short of the hole in 2, and won, 4 to 5. All square.

HOLE 16, 357 yards, par 4—They both got home in 2, halving long approach putts. Marston ran up to three feet and missed the putt, losing, 5 to 4.

HOLE 17, 497 yards, par 5—They sent sparkling drives down the middle. Sweetser's midiron was short of the green, Marston slicing his spoon shot off to the right corner. Sweetser's approach was bad, fifteen feet short, and Marston from thirty-five feet laid him a dead stymie, and took the hole, 4 to 5. All square.

HOLE 18, 497 yards, par 5—They drove well down the middle. Sweetser's sliced brassie was ticketed for the crowd and fell short of the left corner of the green. Marston's iron second was short of the green. Marston's fine approach stopped two feet by the cup, and Sweetser on the like curled away and left him a difficult four foot putt, as he had to hit the ball hard to get by Marston. He made the putt perfectly, and they halved in birdie 4's and were all square.

HOLE 1, 518 yards, par 5—Both were home in 3, and missed fifteen foot putts, halving in 5.

HOLE 2, 212 yards, par 3—Marston's iron tee shot was on the pin twenty-five feet short. Sweetser's spoon shot was sliced and landed near the gallery ninety feet from the pin. His approach putt was good, but curled away eight feet, and Marston's approach putt laid him a dead stymie. Jess tried for the putt, but it was hopeless, and Marston won the hole, 3 to 4, and the match. Cards:

on it, and strove to shoot a curve around his opponent's ball.

The ball curved around and stopped right at the edge of the cup, and the match was squared again.

Gallery Crowds Course.

The great gallery, weary and excited, sprinted again, wave after wave down the hills, charged over the bridges and spread into a skirmish line 300 yards long, along the fairways, while a mass of men and women banked themselves six deep in a hollow square around the eighteenth green.

Both players reached the edge of the green with their second shots and both strove to drop long putts, missing. Sweetser steadied and ran down his return putt of five feet, and saved himself after overrunning in his desperate effort to win and end it right there.

As the putt dropped the crowd broke into yells and squeals, handclapping and sounded more like a baseball bleachers than golf. Then, breaking like a herd of stampeded sheep, they raced for the first extra hole.

Both Players Weary.

Sweetser was haggard and very weary and Max was weary and determined. The Yale boy got away a long, straight drive, yards ahead of Marston, who had been outdriving him all afternoon. Marston's second sliced off into rough and it seemed again as if he was beaten. Sweetser, however, hooked even worse, found a trap, and had to fight to pitch the green and prevent disaster.

The gallery was almost beyond control then. Women scaled the mounds, crawled up the hill at the back of the green, lifted skirts, and raced with the men for points of vontage along the short second fairway.

Sweetser's tee shot was sliced and he was short, while Marston was on the green fifteen yards from the cup. Jess ran up to within striking distance, leaving himself a dangerous putt. But when Marston putted he rolled his ball across and laid Sweetser a dead stymie—which made the case hopeless.

Sweetser studied a moment, seemed to surrender, hit the ball loosely, and, without waiting for the result, smiled wearily and half wabbled across the green to shake hands and congratulate the new champion.

Fans Engulf Players.

The excited crowd rushed and milled around them, cheering, and the longest final match in the history of the amateur championship ended. Only once before has the final in the event gone to extra holes, that when Fred Herreshoff and Harold Hilton had their famous 37 hole match at Apawamis in 1911.

Sweetser refuses, of course, to blame his defeat upon his illness, but it undoubtedly affected his work. He was fighting to hold his strength and was forcing himself most of the afternoon, after having shot easily and confidently in the morning round.

Nor should the circumstances detract from the greatness of the Philadelphian's victory. He battled the champion at every stage, refused to stop even when defeat seemed certain, took advantage of almost every opportunity, and tried for every winning shot.

Old Jinx Leaves Marston.

The old jinx which pursued him twelve years favored him this time—and perhaps when he saw Sweetser fail to sink that final putt, he remembered another putt, one he missed on an eighteenth green, which cost him his only other chance to win a championship.

While Marston had almost ceased to be considered as a championship possibility, he shot good golf, fighting golf, and any one who can beat Bobby Jones, Joe Wells, Frankie Ouimet, and Jess Sweetser in four days is shooting good enough golf to deserve a championship for one year at least. But, my, O my, what a sad blow his victory is to the bond salesmen.

MARSTON OFTEN NEAR GOAL OF CHAMPIONSHIP

New York, Sept. 22.—[By the Associated Press.]—Maxwell R. Marston, victor in a sensational match with Jess Sweetser for the national amateur golf championship at Chicago, has been knocking at the portals of links fame for years, but not until now has he crossed the threshold.

This season has been Marston's best. Picked for the American team that invaded England in May to defend the Walker cup, international championship trophy, he proved a bulwark in the series, which the United States won by the narrowest of margins, 6½ to 5½, after a sensational rally. Marston accounted for two of the winning points, defeating W. L. Hope in the singles, and, with Bob Gardner, downing Robert Harris and C. V. L. Hooman for America's only point in the foursomes.

Holds State Title.

Marston, a member of the Merion Cricket club, Philadelphia, captured both the Philadelphia district and Pennsylvania amateur titles this season, winning the state crown for the third successive year.

Gardner, the veteran Chicagoan, has been Marston's nemesis in national championship play over nearly a decade, blocking his path on several occasions. In 1915 Marston opposed Gardner in the semi-final round at Detroit, missing a six inch putt on the final green that cost him the match. This was his nearest approach to the title, though he has been a semi-finalist several times.

Won in New Jersey.

Marston's first important tournament victory was in 1915, when, as a member of the Baltusrol Country club, he won the New Jersey state championship. He repeated this triumph in 1919. He was a member of the 1921 Walker cup team that defeated Great Britain at Southampton, N. Y., winning with W. C. Fownes in the foursomes but losing to Willie McKenzie in the singles.

Lieut. Jones Leads in Camp Perry Rifle Shoot

Camp Perry, O., Sept. 22.—With a score of 288 out of a possible 300, Lieut. L. B. Jones of the 24th United States infantry, Fort Benning, Ga., is leading tonight in the national individual rifle match in the National Rifle association contests here. Sergt. B. G. Betke, United States marine corps, with a score of 273 out of a possible 300, won the national individual pistol match over 304 competitors.

Par 72 Gives Godchaux Medalist Honors in South

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 22.—Frank Godchaux, Tennessee state golf champion, took low medalist honors from Horace Horner here this afternoon when he qualified in the Inglewood Country's club city invitation golf tournament with a par 72. He was out 38 and in in a fast 34.

WILLIE HESTON HEADS LIST OF MICHIGAN STARS

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

ARTICLE II.

Since football was first played at the University of Michigan back in 187 some wonderful players have been developed under the various systems of coaching. Wolverine teams were represented by powerful men in the line sterling ends and great-backfield warriors.

Still, whenever Michigan football is mentioned and deeds of its former players related, the name of William "Willie" Heston is mentioned and to him goes the honor of being chosen the greatest player who ever wore the maize and blue of the Ann Arbor institution. Heston played half back for four years and during that time was the terror of the west and generally rated one of the best backs in the country.

Heston played in the days of the five yard rule and mass play. He scaled 180 pounds, but could start as fast as Archie Hahn, the fleet sprinter of those years. In fact it is said Heston could beat Hahn for thirty-five yards and was within five yards of the flier in 100 yards. The Michigan back had an uncanny knack of gathering speed quickly and he was frequently penalized five yards for receiving the ball from the quarterback on a forward pass.

Heston Hard Driver.

As a slashing, tearing back who drove off the tackles, Heston had no equal in the west during his career. He had terrific driving power in his legs and he generally went on a yard or two after being tackled. It took a clean, hard tackle to bring him down and whenever he saw he was cornered and could not evade his tacklers, Heston would kick his knees almost to his chin in the hope of breaking the tackle. Naturally he would put all his speed into the effort when the tackler made his attempt. In this manner he evaded many tacklers and left them lying on the ground calling for time.

Unlike a number of backs, who can run off only one side of the line, Heston was equally efficient in sliding off either tackle or skirting either end. If the wide side of the field was on his right, he would play left halfback and vice versa if the wide side was on the left. In addition to his driving ability, Heston had a powerful stiff arm. In using this weapon, Billie had sort of a side step to go with it, all of which made him a harder man to bring down than the ordinary ball carrier.

Valuable on Defense.

On defense, Heston was just as valuable to his team. He was a quick thinker, who anticipated opponents' plays and moved to the points of attack quickly or directed his teammates to the danger zone. He was always in the vicinity of the ball and never appeared to tire. He is the type of player who would be just as valuable under the present rules as he was in his palmy days.

Heston played four years at Michigan, starting in 1901. After leaving Michigan he settled in Detroit, where he has held several public positions, including assistant city attorney and justice of the peace. He came from Grant's Pass, Ore.

Neil Snow and Johnny Garrells are two other Michigan players who come close to sharing the honors with Heston. Snow was an end, while Garrells also played a flank position and at times was used in the backfield. Then there were other great Maize and Blue players, including Boss Weeks, Jimmy Baird, Count Villa, Wilson, Cunningham, Tom Hammond, Curtis Redden, "Dutch" Ferbert, Dan McGuigan, Germany Schultz, Maddock, Curtis, and Gregory.

In more recent years there are Albert Benbrook, Dave Allerdice, Joe Magidsohn, Craig, Kirk, and others, but this year Michigan has for its captain Harry Kipke, a wonderful half back, who must be placed nearly on a par with Heston if he performs as he did last year.

Heston was placed on the All-American team in 1903 and 1904, being the second player from the west to be so honored since Walter Camp started to make these selections back in 1889.

WHERE THE NATIONAL AMATEUR GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP CHANGED HANDS

Photo shows the end of the longest round ever played for the title that all the young golfers crave. It was on the thirty-eighth hole—the second on the second round in the afternoon—that Max Marston of Philadelphia dethroned Jesse Sweetser of New York. The picture shows Marston holing the putt that brought him the championship and all the glory that goes with it. This was Marston's ninth attempt to annex the title in twelve years of his golf playing. One year he had a broken arm, another he contracted pneumonia, and the third there was no tournament. Persistency makes for success. Ask Max.

THIS EXPLAINS VISITS OF UNBIDDEN GUESTS AT OHIO GRID DRILL

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—Athletic officials at Ohio State uncovered a miniature tunnel with a clearance of two feet and about three yards long under the Ohio stadium iron gates which it is believed was dug by a group of university district boys.

John Pryor, head of the ticket takers, could not determine before this afternoon how a group of eight youngsters were gaining admission to secret football practices when all the gates were locked and guards posted at possible entry.

While walking around the stadium Pryor stepped on some thin boards and found a hole underneath which led under the gates to an outlet under a clay bank in the north ungraded entrance to the structure.

TILDEN, 14; MORTON, 7.

Tilden High's heavyweight team was too heavy for Morton's eleven at Cicero yesterday and won, 14 to 7. In a preliminary contest the lightweights went to a 0—0 draw. Capt. Cuisner of Tilden took the ball over for one touchdown, while Lutz scored the other. In the fourth quarter Wink took the ball over for Morton, and several last minute attempts were too late to avail anything. Although Tilden was outweighed 30 pounds to the man, the game was a thrilling exhibition of good football on both sides. Lineup:

HARRISON, 6; MARSHALL, 0.

With one minute to play, Sullivan crossed the goal line yesterday for the touchdown which gave Harrison a 6 to 0 victory over Marshall on the victor's field. Before the last few minutes of the struggle the teams had been fighting evenly. Sullivan recovered a fumble to gain possession of the ball. Lineup:

MOONEY'S GOAL KICK WINS FOR LOYOLA, 3-0

With only four minutes of playing time left, Capt. Jim Mooney of Loyola academy yesterday gave his eleven a 3 to 0 victory over Senn by dropping a perfect kick over the bars of the north side field. But the remaining three minutes of the combat provided the fireworks.

Senn, which had been struggling on even terms most of the game, opened a passing attack which soon had the ball just one inch from the Loyola line and four chances to put it over. Here is where Chuck McGuire's boys really won. Four successive attempts, carrying with them all the power of Finn, Ladner, Lyng, and Sauter, the Senn backs, could not advance the ball the needed inch. Summary:

LINDBLOM WINS, 26-0

Terre Haute invaded the south side yesterday, but was unable to show any tricks to Coach E. L. Moore's Lindblom team, and he shot his first, second, and third squads at them, to take a 26 to 0 victory. Kenneth Rouse, quarter back for the victors, scored two of the touchdowns, and Lester Heidorn, a half, kicked the two goals. In the third quarter John Stuffey hauled a pass out of the air and galloped over for another counter, and Ed Rymkiewicz scored the final tally.

Capt. Anderson, playing left end for the Hoosiers, put up a nice battle, but his charges were not up to his speed. Charlie Grasker, 17 year old 218 pound right guard, and Lawrence De Koker, right tackle, looked like a powerful line combination, while there was not as much difference between the performance of the first, second, and third strings. On yesterday's performance, Lindblom looked like a powerful threat to the city league leaders.

MACOMB WINS, 19-0.

Macomb, Ill., Sept. 22.—Macomb opened the Mississippi Valley High School conference football season here today with a 19 to 0 victory over Carthage High.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—Playing in midseason form and displaying an aggressive brand of football most of the time, Cedar Rapids High school, for years one of the leading prep teams in this section, defeated Englewood High of Chicago today on Coe college field, 40 to 6.

Except for a spurt in the last period, when they scored their lone touchdown, the visitors were outclassed. The Purple and White eleven of Chicago had not developed and its attack was ragged. The line failed to charge, and it was this lack of aggressiveness that enabled the local team, coached by Leo Novak, to gain consistently.

More practice to smooth off the offense and a little more drilling of the linemen in charging will make Englewood a much better team. However, it did admirably well against a well coached eleven for this time of the year.

Murrel, Hines, and Marek were the principal ground gainers for the local eleven. They smashed off the tackles for consistent gains. Hahn and Capt. Kauffman also played well, and the line charged hard and low most of the time.

For Englewood, Capt. Charpier, Joyce, and Colin played well offensively and defensively. Eves, the big left tackle, scored the visitors' only touchdown on the old tackle around play when the ball rested on the Cedar Rapids three yard line, where it had been taken on a series of forward passes.

It was too warm for football, but ideal for spectators. At least 6,000 were in the stands.

DEERFIELD, 13; SCHURZ, 0.

Deerfield whitewashed Schurz, 13 to 0, in Highland Park. Byer made the first touchdown for the winners on an intercepted forward pass, while left end Kyalla pulled the feature stunt of the day by receiving a punt and tearing 75 yards through a broken field for the second counter. Reebold, Schurz half back, did the most consistent gaining for the losers. Lineup:

Presentation of the cup which went with the championship. Sweetser (left) doesn't look near as angry as he did on a couple of occasions when Marston (right) stymied him. Sick as he was, Sweetser vented his disappointment over the predicament by hurling his club to the ground. Every one is happy here.

LINCOLN PARK PLANS OPEN AIR REVOLVER RANGE

Lincoln park may soon have an open air revolver range, according to Supt. William H. Wesbey, who announced yesterday that he would ask the park board to grant permission for the establishment of such a project.

The range would be located immediately north of the gun club at the foot of Diversey street and would be for the use of city and park police, bank officials and others whose duties necessitate their handling revolvers.

"There are a large number of bank cashiers and others who guard money who ought to know how to shoot a revolver," Mr. Wesbey said, "but they have no place for practice. An open air range would give them a chance to become proficient in revolver shooting."

Care would be taken, according to Mr. Wesbey, to eliminate all danger of bullets causing injury to persons in the park or on the lake.

ROCK ISLAND TO LOSE STERNAMAN FROM GRID TEAM

Davenport, Ia., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—As a result of a decision of President Joe Carr of the National Football league, the Rock Island Independents have lost the services of Joe Sternaman, crack quarter back secured recently from the Chicago Bears. Sternaman, after negotiating unsuccessfully with Duluth's eleven, signed a Rock Island contract, only to have Duluth lodge a protest with President Carr, who ruled that Duluth had the prior claim.

MASON CITY WINS, 27-0.

Mason City, Ia., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—Using a few simple formations, Mason City romped to a 27 to 0 victory over North Wood high school in the opening game of the football season here this afternoon. Lilliard, Mason City's colored half back, skirted the ends at will and made three of the touchdowns.

PARKER GRID TEAM TROUNCES ROCKFORD, 14-6

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 22.—[Special]—Parker High of Chicago took a 14 to 6 victory from Rockford in the first game of the season here today.

Monti, Rockford quarterback, scored first with a short end run after line smashes had put the ball close to the goal. On the first play of the second quarter Burke, Parker, grabbed Gustavil's twenty-yard pass and ran thirty yards for a touchdown. Parker's other touchdown was the result of a fumble at the sixty-five yard line by Sink.

Parker played remarkably finished football. Though outweighed they punctured Rockford's heavier line nearly at will. In a curtain raiser Rochelle defeated Rockford lightweights 7 to 0. Score:

GARY BEATS MORGAN PARK.

Morgan Park opened its grid season by traveling to Gary and taking a 32 to 0 beating from Emerson High. The Hoosier backs, Shay, West, Beattie and Hughes, had more punch than the Morgan Park line could stand and the game was a parade from one end of the field to the other. Lineup:

CARDINALS AND OPALS OPEN PRO FOOTBALL WITH GAME TODAY

FOLLOWERS of professional football will get their first glimpse of the Chicago Cardinals, who take on the Opals in a practice game at Normal park, 61st and Racine, this afternoon. Although the encounter is carded as a practice game, a great deal of rivalry is attached to the battle, since the Opal eleven has not been defeated in the last two years in the Midwest football league.

The Cardinals arranged the game to get a line on new players and to obtain a good workout before they tackle the Buffalo All-Americans in an American Professional Football league game next Sunday at Normal park. The Bisons have a powerful eleven, which is always at the top of the league.

AMERICAN OPEN POLO MATCHES AGAIN DEFERRED

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 22.—The double header scheduled today in the American open polo championship tournament at Meadowbrook field was cancelled because of wet grounds. The schedule for remaining matches, together with the dates for the Monty Waterbury cup tournament, has been rearranged by the Polo association as the result of postponements during the last two days.

Under the revised program, open title play will be resumed Monday with two matches, one between the American Shelburne team and the Indian Tigers and the other between the American Flamingo quartet and the British army. The semi-final match will be played Oct. 3, and the final Oct. 6.

The Waterbury cup tournament will be completed during the lull in championship play. Seven teams are entered in this event, including the Orange county four, besides all of the open contestants.

BY FRANK SCHREIBER.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—Behind strong pitching, the White Sox looked like world's champions today, dumping the Athletics into a double defeat and assuring themselves undisputed ownership of sixth place in the league standing. Gleason's troupe grabbed the opening game, 3 to 1, while the second contest was annexed by a 6 to 2 count.

Mike Cvengros and his lefthanded slants had the Macks completely subdued in the opening battle. Mike's mates piled on Eddie Rommel for their three runs in the first three innings, and made things easy for Mike, and the little southpaw flinger went the route like a veteran.

Cvengros Masters Macks.

It was not until the eighth inning that Mike yielded the lone run to the local gang, and then it was more or less the fault of Willie Kamm that the Macks scored. Willie let an easy grounder go through him, which paved the way for Matthews to count on a single by Sammy Hale. At all other times Cvengros had the hostiles eating out of his hand, and at the end of the pastime only five hits were credited to the Connie Macks.

Eddie Rommel was hit hard by the Hose in the first three chapters, each inning netting one run. Two hits and a pass in the first and second sessions accounted for single runs, while in the third round it was Mostil's single, Collins' sacrifice and Sheely's single that did the business. Rollie Naylor took the hill in the fourth and pitched until the eighth, and then Johnny Burns finished up, both escaping further scoring.

Three Hits Off Ted.

Ted Blankenship gave one of the greatest exhibitions of hurling of his career in the second contest. Teddy was a great pitcher at all times, holding the Macks to three widely scattered blows, and, at that, one of them was a hit only by the grace of the official scorer. The two tallies counted by the A's in the third session came as a result of two passes, a base hit by Cy Perkins, and an extraordinary wild heave by Bill Barrett.

But the Macks' two runs did not mean much to Blankenship, for Teddy had a three run lead at the time the Athletics' fireworks started. Slim Harris gave up the three Sox runs in the first two sessions, and after he had pitched the third he was yanked for a pinch hitter.

Then Rube Walberg and his wild left hand slants worked an inning, and Rommel was called back to take the peak.

Archdeacon Stars.

Rommel was nicked for two runs in the seventh chapter, and the eighth saw the final Sox tally go over on a brace of hits off Roy Meeker, a youngster Connie picked up in the Sally league.

Maurice Archdeacon was the sensation of the afternoon for the White Hose. Maurice didn't get a hit in the first game, but reached first base on his first time up on a pass. In the second contest Arch slammed out five hits, one of them a double, in five trips to the rubber, making seven games in a row when he reached first base on his first time at bat during a contest.

GIANTS SWEEP SERIES WITH PIRATES, 4 TO 3

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—Defeating Pittsburgh this afternoon, 4 to 3, New York made a clean sweep of the final Giant series of the season here. A pitchers' battle between Bentley and Morrison was witnessed by 23,000 fans and was not decided until the last man was out. Cuyler's three base blow in the ninth revived Pirate hopes, but not for long. After he scored the next two hitters failed to produce. Doubles by Bancroft and Frisch, followed by Young's single, put the Giants out in front in the first inning, and they hammered one more over in the fourth and fifth innings. Score:

CARDS WIN, THEN TIE.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 22.—St. Louis took the opener of today's double header with Boston, 4 to 1, but the second contest was called after the ninth inning on account of darkness, with the score tied, 1 to 1. In the first contest a three run rally in the eighth inning broke up a pitching duel between Sherdel and Marquard, although the visitors outhit the Cardinals. The second game was a pitching contest between Haines and Barnes. Scores:

GIANTS MOVE ONE GAME NEARER TO NATIONAL PENNANT

THE Giants moved one game closer to their coveted goal yesterday by whipping the Pirates and maintaining their four and one-half game lead in the National league race. The Giants play seven more games and if they win only three they will distance Cincinnati even though the latter take their seven remaining combats. In that event the final standing will be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
New York	95	*58	.621
Cincinnati	96	59	.617

New York will play one less game than the 154 game schedule calls for because of being rained out on their last date with St. Louis.*

CHURCH LEAGUE.

Grand avenue congregationals won the second game of a three game series for the junior championship by beating Moody Mission, 6 to 5, yesterday at Lincoln park. Each team now has one triumph, a deciding game will be played next Saturday. Score:

PYOTTS SEEK TO KEEP SLATE CLEAN TODAY AT SQUARES' PARK

PYOTTS will take their record of six straight city semi-pro championship triumphs to Logan Square park this afternoon with hopes of making it seven consecutive victories by knocking off Jimmy Callahan's hirelings. So far the northwest side entry has not been successful against the Pyotts. At American Giant park the Normals, tailenders, who have yet to win a game, will afford the opposition.

Chicago Blues, who upset the leading St. Michaels yesterday and put the Cermaks in a tie with the Saints, will attempt to lower the colors of the Cermaks and throw more complications into the Dever cup race at Cermak park. While the Cermaks have a tussle on their hands, St. Michaels should have easy picking in meeting the Chicago Giants at the formers' park. Belle Plaines battle the Merry Gardens in the other Dever series game at Murley park.

Three games in the amateur baseball between divisional champions are offered at the Atkins & Freund park. Nado Boys hook up with Pop Ansons in the Juvenile league; Cascade Laundries clash with the Major A. C. in the Boys' league, and the Chicago Feds play Fergus Boosters in the Liberty league. Junior leaguers play in the morning, Boys' league at 1 o'clock, and Liberty league at 3.

ST. CYR CLINCHES K. C. BALL TITLE WITH 4 TO 3 WIN

Outhit, but clustering their blows where they meant runs, St. Cyr Day emerged from a tight pitching duel with Hildebrand at Normal ball park yesterday with a slim 4 to 3 victory and clinched the championship of the Knights of Columbus baseball league.

Gliatto, pitching for St. Cyr, was tapped for eleven blows but scattered them through eight innings. Mehran, his slab opponent, yielded only nine safe swats but three times they were bunched and resulted in scores.

Conley, Hildebrand second baseman, was the hitting demon, clicking five successive singles. Condon contributed three blows, one of them a double.

Thrilling Performance and Sterling Economy

The man accustomed to only the highest priced cars buys the Wills Sainte Claire because of the marvel of its performance—

The man who has to make every dollar count buys it because of its amazing intrinsic value and the economy of its operation and upkeep—

This rare combination of thrilling performance and sterling economy is possible only because the Wills Sainte Claire is a new and different car—

It is the only car having a sixty degree overhead valve and overhead cam motor—

It is the only car in which belts and chains and water pump have been entirely eliminated from the power plant—

It is the only car in which Mo-lyb-den-um steel is used for all parts subject to stress or strain—

It is the only car having torpedo type fan with automatic speed regulator to increase efficiency and save horsepower—

It is the only car having the engineering and metallurgical genius of C. Harold Wills back of it to insure its continued leadership—

We cordially invite you to see and drive this wonderful car

In the eighteen hole handicap event, H. E. Spear, 78—4—74 was the winner, and he repeated in the class A sweepstakes. H. P. Kennedy, 92—15—77 led in class B while A. H. Taylor led the C players. H. C. Dewey defeated E. T. Franklin, 1 up twenty holes and H. W. Walker won from H. E. Spear, 2 up in the semi-finals for the club championship.

OAK PARK.

G. W. Edwards was the main winner, topping class A players with a low gross of 82 and also winning the sweepstakes. The low net winner in class A was E. P. Waud, who had 89—14—75. Cecil Martin, with 89, and Dr. E. A. Prugh, 91—20—71, were the respective low gross and net winners in class B. A card of 50—51—101 gave E. E. Long the low gross prize in class C, while Paul Armstrong, 105—30—75, and J. K. Spear, 105—30—75, tied for the net prize.

MIDLOTHIAN.

W. E. Johnson and S. B. Hutchinson tied in the match play against par event with 3 down. Winners in the sweepstakes: Class A—W. A. Grass, 87—11—76; class B—J. C. Llewellyn, 92—16—76; class C—B. Robins, 100—23—77.

RIVERSIDE.

J. F. Roche Jr., won the Fuller prize while F. Hellyer won the sweepstakes in class A and D. M. Bell was successful in the B class.

OLYMPIA FIELDS.

Low gross in the qualifying round for the Governors' trophy went to F. T. Bangs with 80. C. J. Lund won low net with 96—14—82. Honors in the medal play handicap went to Dan Hamilton who had 80. Dr. E. J. Crusse, 85—8—77 won the net prize. D. D. Lapp defeated J. P. Lightfoot, 1 up for the Anderson trophy.

SOUTH SHORE.

Three flights competed at match play against par for prizes donated by S. A. Dee. The winners were as follows: Class A—H. Vynne, 4 down. Class B—L. W. Powers 3 down. Classes C and D combined—J. Howatt, 7 down. The sweepstakes were also decided against par, Powers and Vynne winning.

ONWENTSIA.

Finishing with 80—10—70, O. W. Johnson won the Onwentsia goblet. Others well up were S. T. Chase, 85—11—74, and Dexter Cummings, 74 from scratch.

WESTMORELAND.

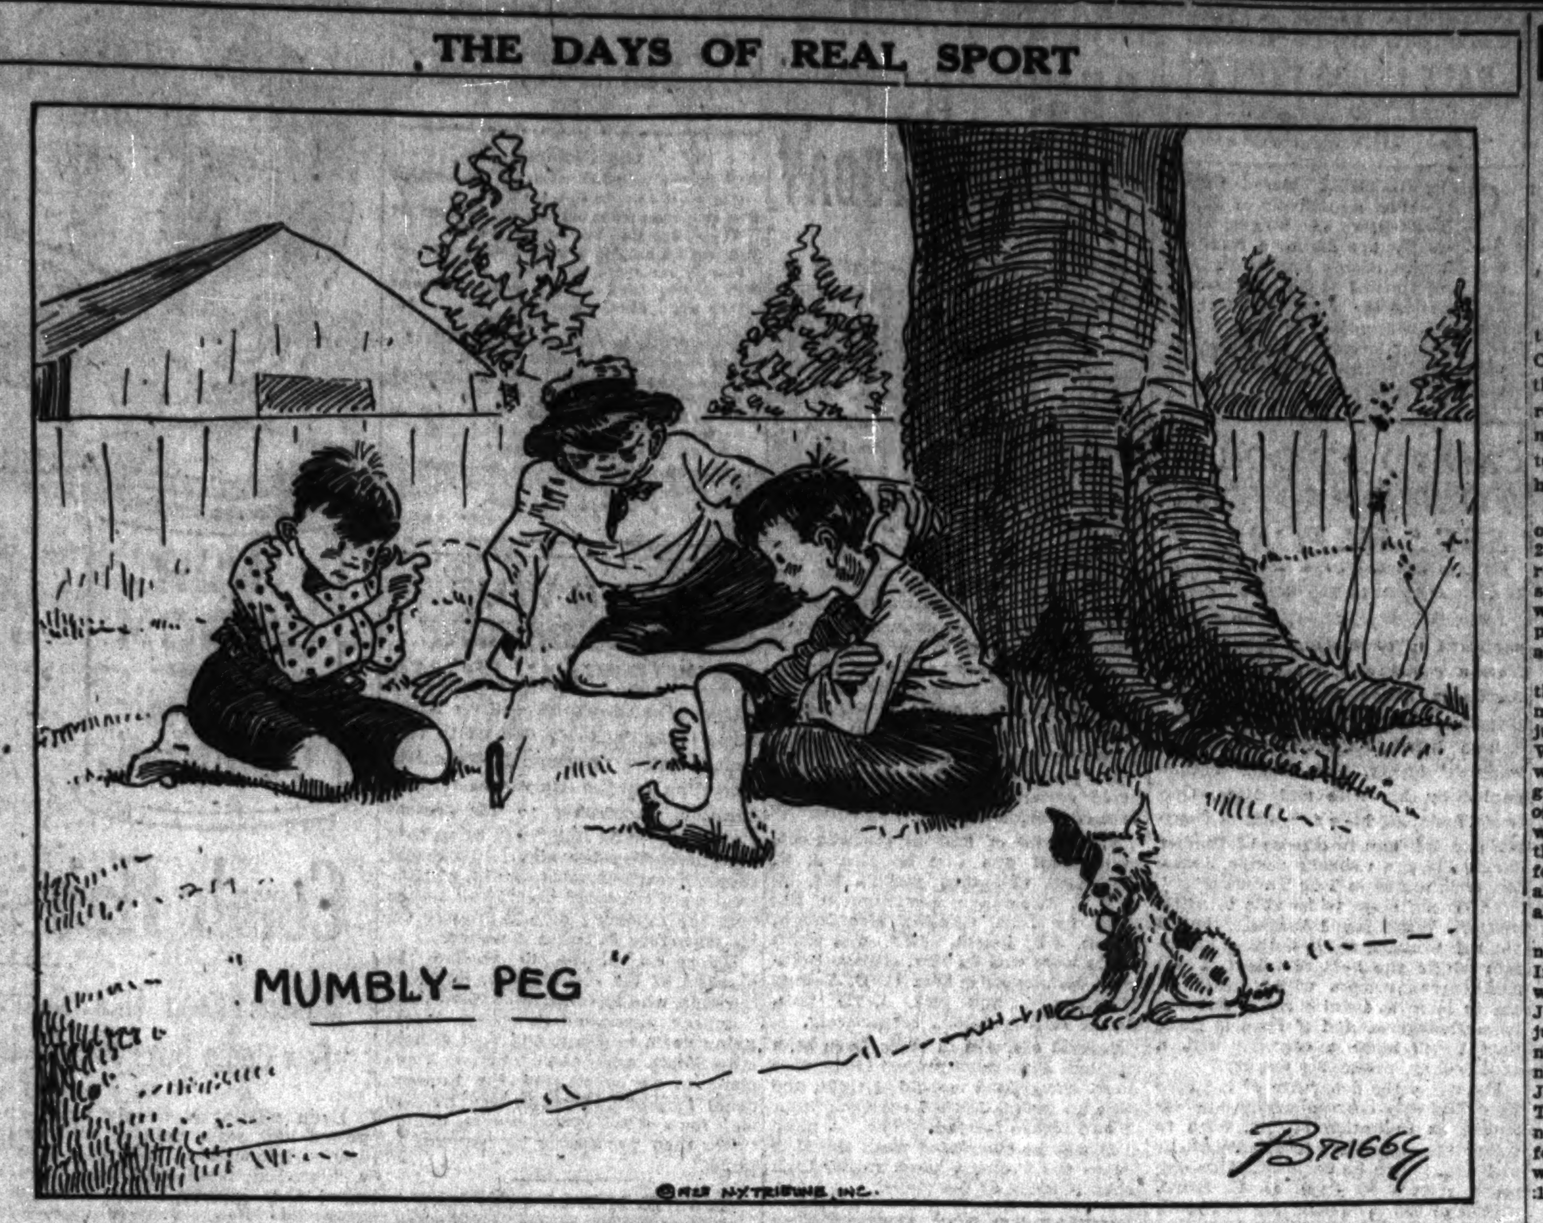
F. Swirles defeated Z. F. Harshton, 5 and 3, while H. J. Sloan defeated E. H. Riedel, 1 up, in the semi-finals for the directors' cup. E. A. Kalkhurst won the fellowship cup with 91—16—75. C. M. Orr won the blind bogey, 100—10—90, and W. J. O'Brien, 94—13—81, took the sweepstakes.

BOB O' LINK.

In match play yesterday R. H. Ritchie was winner in classes A and B, 5 down. S. L. Gray, with 6 down, won in classes C and D. Winners in the sweepstakes were: S. L. Gray, T. C. Buts, R. H. Ritchie, R. D. Gordon, A. R. Peterson, J. B. Ryan, C. J. Watson, K. W. Curtis, and H. L. Glidden.

EXMOOR.

J. S. Boynton, 75—4—71, and J. L. Martin, 78—7—71, tied in the handicap. M. G. Connell had 73 and W. P. Watkins 74.



PROS BEGIN PLAY FOR GOLF TITLE TOMORROW

New York, Sept. 22.—Golf stars of the salaried clan will gather Monday at the Pelham country club, Pelham, Manor, New York, for the annual Professional Golfers' association championship. A field of sixty-four players, comprising the pick of "pros" from all parts of the country who survived preliminary qualifying tests, will tee off in quest of the title now held by Gene Sarazen of Briar Cliff Manor, former open champion.

Most of the stars have been "seeded" in the draw which was made public today. They are grouped in the quarters in the following order:

Many Stars.

Mike Brady, Birmingham, Mich., and Jock Hutchison, Chicago; Jim Barnes, Pelham, and Gene Sarazen; Fred McLeod, Washington, D. C., and Walter Hagen, New York; Joe Kirkwood, New York, and George McLean, Bronxville, N. Y.

Other outstanding entries include Cyril Walker of Englewood, N. J., Clarence Hackney of Atlantic City, Al Waltrous of Redford, Mich., Eddie Loos of Chicago, and Willie Ogg of Worcester, Mass. The only star of national repute missing is Bobby Cruikshank of West Field, N. J., runner up to Bobby Jones in the national open. Cruikshank was off form in the Metropolitan preliminary test and failed to qualify.

Elimination Affair.

The tournament is an elimination affair. Thirty two matches are scheduled on the opening day, all thirty-six holes, a departure from previous years when the earlier rounds were limited to eighteen holes.

WAITE BEATS MORENCI, 33 TO 3

Toledo, O., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—The crack Waite high school eleven which meets the champion Glenville school Cleveland here next Saturday opened their 1923 season this afternoon by defeating Morenci, Mich. eleven, 33 to 3.

HOLE-IN-ONE CLUB

JOHN S. SMALL of Evanston notched an ace at the sixteenth hole of the Nippersink Lodge course, Genoa Junction. It measures 149 yards. He was playing with P. B. Rudolf Jr. of Chicago and C. E. Curtis of the Maywood club.

E. T. Franklin joined the Hole-in-One club by sinking his tee shot on the 152 yards fourth hole at La Grange. H. W. Leonard was his partner.

LOCAL GOLF

GEORGE DAWSON, a golf star at the University of Illinois, won the 1923 championship of the Green Valley Country club by beating Arthur Breslin in the final thirty-six hole match. Dawson's younger brother, John, won the championship last year but this season devoted himself to public links golf, and by so doing won a place on a Chicago team that participated in the national public links tournament early in the summer.

GLEN OAK.

Play for the C. L. West Memorial trophy was won yesterday by Charles F. Unrath. He shot a 96—23—73. The trophy is in honor of the former president of the Chicago District Golf association, a member of the Glen Oak club.

INDIAN HILL.

In an eighteen hole match against par, for the S. D. Montgomery trophy, F. S. R. Blossom was the victor, shooting 2 down, while C. L. Stacey was 4 down, taking second honors. The club championship semi-final went to E. M. Cummings, who defeated R. O. Lord, 3 and 2, while in class B, E. W. Isom beat George Geely by the same tally.

PARK RIDGE.

Eighteen holes of medal play, yesterday's program at Park Ridge, was won by George W. Rodormer, with a net 74.

WESTWARD HO.

Tom Meade with a 72 was low man in class A yesterday at Westward Ho, when the Ball sweepstakes was the day's feature event. H. W. Hadfield with a 73 was next, and V. Huntington shot 74. In class B, Robert Orr tallied a 70, which was low gross for the day. W. J. Riley with 73 was next, while F. Butenschoen shot 74. F. Holdsworth and A. M. McClelland, each 2 76, and R. C. White, 77. In class C, C. K. Bell was high. Mead's 76 was a low gross for the day.

CHICAGO.

The weekly Saturday was won by J. Van Nottwick who had 88—15—73. O. C. Wells, 100—24—76 and R. K. Caldwell, 89—12—77 were next.

DIRECTORS' TROPHY—L. McCurdy defeated Warren C. Agry, 1 up; G. R. Henry defeated H. H. Curtis, 1 up in 21 holes.

VICE PRESIDENT'S TROPHY—A. C. Stepan defeated L. J. Osborn, 1 up in 19 holes.

TREASURER'S TROPHY—R. D. Buchanan defeated Dr. D. H. Cornell, 8 and 7; C. D. Brandriff defeated B. B. Clover, 5 and 4.

SECRETARY'S TROPHY—F. C. Thomas defeated A. R. Small, 1 up in 21 holes.

Competing for prizes on the four short holes, Nos. 2, 7, 9, and 13, A. G. Mills took first with 12, while C. E. Ustick, C. F. Pearce, and A. S. Webster tied at 13 for the second prize.

EVANSTON.

Honors in the sweepstakes were annexed by A. K. O. Cochrane, 79—6—73. A. H. Keller finished second, 93—16—77.

RIDGEMOOR.

Members competed in the qualifying round for the class medal on classes A-B and C. On Thursday and Friday a two day tournament will be held with twenty-nine prizes on the list. The event is known as the Jabberwock tourney.

BEVERLY.

The Oak trophy was taken by Dr. C. E. Prodie, who defeated L. D. Rippon, 2 and 1. S. W. Sigler won low net, 98—24—74.

MANY RECORDS FALL IN PENN RAILROAD MEET

Altoona, Pa., Sept. 22.—Before a throng of 40,000 people who jammed Cricket field to the topmost flagstaff, the eastern region of the Pennsylvania railroad system swept the fourth annual Pennsylvania athletic meet here today as twenty-three new records were hung up.

The eastern region amassed a total of 439 points, more than doubling the 216 tallies rolled up by the central region, with the northwestern region scoring 90½ for third and the southwestern region making 87½ for fourth place. The Philadelphia general offices and Altoona works were fifth and sixth.

Of the fifteen odd events in which the records went by the boards a new mark of 22 feet 8½ inches in the broad jump set by C. E. Ward, fireman, Wellsville, O., and the 220 open in which Jimmy Eberts of the eastern region eclipsed his own previous record of 23 2-5 seconds by 2-5 of a second were outstanding performances. Both the novice and open 50 yard dashes for girls saw new marks established as well as the open furlong, quarter and half mile events for men.

The outstanding performer from the northwestern region, which includes Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Michigan, was Bob Juday, Fort Wayne shopman. Juday was forced to relinquish his jump title, however, to W. Lai, a Chinese clerk from Philadelphia, who set a new mark at 22 feet 8¼ inches, with Juday taking second. F. J. Kelly of Toledo also landed a second in the novice broad jump as well as placing fourth in the 120 low hurdles, which went to Long of the eastern region in :14 2-5.

The Philadelphia Terminal baseball team clashed with Cleveland in the final event of the day when they played the first of the series of inter-regional games for the system baseball title. Philadelphia took an early lead and scored almost at will, the final score being 11 to 0.

COLUMBIA LOSES CAPTAIN.

Dubuque, Ia., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—Columbia college grid hopes received a setback yesterday with word that Galvin, last season's captain and star tackle, will not return. Nockles, guard, is out with a smashed hand suffered during scrimmage.

SARAZEN SETS ASBURY COURSE MARK TO BEAT HAGEN IN EXHIBITION

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Sept. 22.—Gene Sarazen, former American open champion, defeated Walter Hagen, former British open champion, and broke the course record of the Asbury Park Golf and Country club today when he turned in a card of 70 for the final eighteen holes of a thirty-six hole exhibition match. Hagen scored 75. Scores for eighteen holes of the morning match were: Sarazen, 76; Hagen, 74.

Woods and Waters by BOB BECKER

AS THE DUCK SEASON APPROACHES.

AUTUMN has already put in appearanace in the northland. The season of brilliant coloring, goldenrod, and asters, ducks and other waterfowl, is at hand. Coming down from Port Arthur, Canada, over the Scott highway, it was a case of mile after mile of "painted" foliage, as the poplars and the maples had already taken on their autumn colors, while flocks of birds drifting through the trees reminded one that our feathered friends are already on their long trek to the southward.

It seems as if the duck season is always at hand before summer has had time to clear the decks. Sept. 16 marked the opening of the season, which extends until the 31st of December. It's the same with geese, snipe, mudhens, and rails. In Illinois pheasant shooting comes later, as the season on these handsome birds is scheduled for Nov. 10 to 15. If you are going to unlimber the shotgun this fall don't forget your license. It's easy—one simoleon is all that is needed.

Wisconsin's duck season also opened upon the 16th of September. But a nonresident has to come across with $25 to hunt in that state. Pretty steep compared with Illinois, where a similar permit costs only $10.50. Except for waterfowl, Minnesota's hunting season is going to be rather quiet. The lid is on for deer, moose, and grouse shooting this fall. Not until 1924 can the hunters up here take a crack at these three.

September is a wonderful month outdoors. Lucky is the man who can get away with both rod and gun for a little time with the fish and the birds. The bass and the muskies which have been frequenting the deep water during the summer months and only half heartedly looking over the lures of the fishermen, take a new lease on life during September with the result that the angler can have the time of his life. It's a pretty fine combination to be able to angle by day and then at dusk slip into a little blind and pick off the teal, sprigs, and mallards.

Usually it is only the early shooter that gets a crack at the speed-crazy teal. These handsome little ducks slip away to the south quite early and a fellow has to get on the job in September if he wants to sling some shot at them. They don't like the cold and the blows that make the mallard shooting later on in the season. While out west a few years ago and then again on the Illinois river we saw some of the finest teal shooting we ever hope to strike. Parked on a "flyway" the thunderbolts of the duck kingdom whizzed by us so fast that after an hour we were dizzy trying to follow 'em.

Colgate Student Fatally Injured in Tug of War

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 22.—While participating in a tug of war at Colgate university today, W. M. Burke of Summit, N. J., received probably fatal injuries. Burke, a freshman who arrived at the university only a few days ago, wound the rope around his body to serve as anchor for his team. The rope was arranged so that when power was applied Burke was squeezed and terribly injured about the abdomen.

HURDLE RECORD SET BY GIRL AT HAWTHORNE MEET

Another world's record went to smash yesterday when Helen Filkie, the speedy Chicago Diana, running in a special event at the annual meet of the Hawthorne works, Western Electric company, flew over the 75 yard low hurdles in 10 3-5 seconds. Skimming along in even more perfect form than marked her title winning feats at the national championship meet at Stagg field last month, Miss Filkie cut an even second off the former mark.

The meet, which drew out more than 1,000 competitors from among the Hawthorne employés, was also featured by other record breaking events. J. Stastny, the individual high point scorer of the day and who recently placed in the junior national meet at Stagg field, turned in a 5 feet 11 inch performance in the running high jump, excelling the old Western Electric mark by 2 inches. He also finished second in the running broad jump and 220 yard dash events, third in the 100 yard dash, and was leadoff man on the winning team in the half mile relay race.

Steps 220 Yards in 23 4-5.

Coaffee, the Canadian Olympic star, was clocked at 23 4-5 seconds in the 220 yard dash. The previous Western Electric mark, made in 1919 by Sweeney, was 24 3-5 seconds. Coaffee tried to set the pace in the century also, but was badly beaten by Sweeny, present record holder.

The other two marks that went by the boards were in the girl's running high jump and the quarter mile. Leila Taylor, Hawthorne champion, sliced a full inch from her former mark in the first event. Spurred on by the presence of Catherine Lee, she leaped 4 feet 2 inches. In the double furlong, Tilford, one of the Western Electric's newest stars, breezed home in 55 1-5 seconds. The old mark was 56 4-5.

Point Score of Teams.

The team point score follows:

Inspection Branch, 57; Technical Branch, 39½; Operating Branch, 25; Merchandise Branch, 24; Installation Branch, 24, and Clerical Branch, 11½.

Matsuyama Beats Cutler in Balkline Billiard Match

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 22.—[Special.] — Kinrey Matsuyama, balkline billiard champion of Japan and one of the foremost contenders for the crown worn by Willie Hoppe, won both his matches in the final day's play of the 3,000 point match that he was playing with Albert Cutler at the national billiard academy today. The seventeen year old youth from the orient won the match from the former amateur title holder, the final score being Matsuyama 3,000; Cutler 1,999.

GOOD CARD WILL CLOSE OUTDOOR BOXING HERE

What promises to be the windup of the outdoor boxing season—unless the weather man relents and puts on a better brand of summer weather — has been dished up by Jim Mullen for his Aurora arena on next Friday night. Mullen is one of these birds who hardly lets one show get cold before he has another on the fire, and from present indications the one next week will be a whale from start to finish.

The bouts announced by Mullen will bring together boys who like to smack 'em early and hard and not depend on going the limit to get a verdict. There will be three ten rounders, and for the windup it is just a question of choice.

Shade Meets O'Hara.

Dave Shade, under the wing of Leo Flynn, one time matchmaker for Madison Square Garden, will take on Joe O'Hara of Fort Dodge in ten rounds. If what the press agents say about Shade is true, he is a humdinger, but should have a splendid evening's entertainment with Joe O'Hara, who surprised the wiseacres hereabouts when he slammed the daylights out of Cowboy Padgett at Hawthorne recently.

"Tillie" Kid Herman and "Panama Joe" Gans, colored welterweight champ, will go ten rounds or less at 147 pounds. Gans, when he wants to fight, can do so and Herman should have his hands full for the route the contest goes.

Heavyweights Battle.

Mullen will show a couple of heavyweights in the other scheduled ten round fracas. Jack Renault, the Canadian giant, will take on Joe Downey. The Canadian has had some tough going down east lately and Downey's name spread a lot of newspaper ink when he stayed ten rounds with Firpo at Indianapolis, both boys using sixteen ounce gloves. Downey should have had a hammer.

Two five round bouts—one between Maurice Ranier and Jack McDonald, heavyweights, and one between Ben Williams and Lefty Starrin at 142 pounds—will open up the card.

LYNCH-BURMAN BOUT TO BE OCT. 12

New York, Sept. 22.—Joe Lynch of New York will defend his bantamweight title against Joe Burman of Chicago in a fifteen round match at Madison Square Garden on the night of Oct. 12 unless there is a hitch in the state athletic commission's present plan to lift the champion's suspension Tuesday.

Lynch paved the way for his reinstatement and complied with the commission's requirements today by posting a $2,500 forfeit for the match with Burman. He was suspended some time ago and his title declared forfeited to Burman for failure to accept the latter's challenge within the required six months' period. Later, however, it was revealed that the two fighters had come to an agreement a few days before the expiration of this period, though failing to so notify the commission.

5,000 "HOME FOLKS" GREET JACK DEMPSEY IN SALT LAKE CITY

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Sept. 22.—Five thousand "home folks" greeted Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, when he stepped off the train in his own city today. A parade was formed at the depot and the champion was escorted through the business section of the city, where at least another 5,000 had gathered to get a glimpse of the Salt Lake boy who had successfully defended his title against the "Wild Bull from the Pampas."

When Dempsey's train came in sight of the depot the band struck up "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," and as the champion came out on the steps of the train the band began the more classical "Hail the Conquering Hero." In the crowd of 5,000 people Dempsey spied his mother before he stepped off the train. Disregarding all committees of welcome, he rushed over to her. His father, who was near by, was the next one to greet the champion.

FAST RACING TODAY AT ROBY SPEEDWAY

With the track in perfect shape and a large entry list to compete in the qualifying trials, there is every indication that some great racing will take place this afternoon at the Roby speedway, 108th street and Indianapolis avenue.

Three races are scheduled, a ten mile event for Fords, ten miles for the open class, and a twenty-five mile event in which the best four of each of the preceding races will compete. Esthan Weinneston, who had a clear field in all previous Ford races, is expected to be closely pressed by Harry Nichols, with a newly built mount, Roy Nonneman, who has finished in the money consistently, and Sam Talamont, winner of the Gold Cup race last season.

Cliff Woodbury's Frontenac is favored to finish in front of the big car race, although several star drivers will be opposed to him. George Beck, driving a Betz special, has a strong following of fans who are backing their favorite. Earl Warwick in a Chevrolet and Bill Harris with a Dort have fast cars and are sterling drivers.

Entries will be received until noon. Those entered in the Ford race are: E. Weinneston, Sam Davis, L. L. Whittaker, Roy Nonneman, Harry Nichols, John Smithson, George Lyons, S. Talamont, Lawrence McGuinty and James Kayla.

The following are the leading entries in the open event, with their cars:

Cliff Woodbury, Frontenac; Al Coty, Peugot; Earl Warwick, Chevrolet; Peter Urban, Essex; William Harris, Dort; George Beck, Betz special; Glen Fites, Overland; A. Bawling, Dodge.

ARMY EX-GRID PLAYER DIES.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 22.—Maj. Daniel D. Pullen, a graduate of the U. S. Military academy at West Point in 1910, where he was an all-American football tackle, died at Walter Reid hospital today after an illness of several months. He was decorated during the war for bravery in France.

INTRUDER, ARIEL WIN IN CLOSING YACHT RACES

Intruder, flying the colors of the Jackson Park Yacht club, and Ariel of the Chicago Yacht club yesterday were victorious in the two races which brought to a close one of the most successful yachting seasons in the history of the two organizations.

The former won the annual race for the Bennett cup, an annual trophy raced for by leaders in different classes, while the latter climaxed an exceedingly successful season by winning the Sir John Nutting cup, raced for annually by R class boats.

Intruder, owned and sailed by the O'Rourke brothers and leading boat in the Q class, won from Columbia, the thirty foot class title holder, over a twelve mile course by 3 minutes and 40 seconds. The race was sailed in a light wind.

Ariel, whose victories in the annual fall regatta last week and the international races for the Richardson trophy off Toronto placed her at the head of the R boats, had little difficulty lifting the Nutting cup. Sari took the lead for a short time at the beginning of the race, but was soon passed by Ariel, which was never headed. Katie, which finished second, was nearly five minutes behind at the finish.

NO HOLDS WILL BE BARRED IN MEYERS MAT GO

No holds will be barred when Johnny Meyers defends his middleweight wrestling title against Jack Milo, the St. Paul Greek, in the Knights of Pythias convention all star athletic show at Ashland Boulevard auditorium Wednesday night.

These conditions were agreed on yesterday at a meeting of the wrestlers, their managers and Al Tyerman and Henry Schrieber, members of the Knights of Pythias athletic committee in charge of the convention show. Another bout was added to the program yesterday, bringing into action Otto Protopopnick, the west side Bohemian, against Chris Jordon, the Greek, who is hot after Meyers for a title match.

Looks like Pat McGill and John Freberg, who wrestled to an even thing last Friday night at the Star and Garter in one of the most sensational mat contests ever witnessed in this city, will mix it up again at the same place Friday night.

The reason for the possible return is the protest made by the big Swede at the methods which the Irish crack employed in the match, John accusing the Harp of deliberately crawling off the mat at every opportunity, and especially every time he thought he was in danger of being pinned.

MATCH SMITH WITH TODD.

New York, Sept. 22.—Jeff Smith, Bayonne, N. J., middle weight, has been matched to fight Roland Todd, European middle weight champion, at London Oct. 24, it was announced today by Jimmy Bronson, Smith's manager.

FLAMING AUTO RACES PAST 15,000 FANS AT EASTERN EXPOSITION

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Sept. 22.—The automobile of Fred Lichlichter of Toledo, O., caught fire during a race at the Eastern States Exposition today and thrilled 15,000 spectators as it passed the grand stand at a speed of fifty miles an hour with the rear portion of the machine enveloped in flames. Lichlichter escaped without injury.

CROWD AT DOCK TO SEE PAPYRUS SET SAIL FOR U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Sept. 22.—To the accompaniment of cheers and good wishes from a vast crowd, the Cunard liner Aquitania sailed from Southampton this afternoon carrying the champion British horse, Papyrus, to America. Papyrus' owner, Ben Irish, accompanied by his wife and niece, Gertrude Berridge, bade farewell to Papyrus and left him in charge of Trainer Jarvis and the vetinary doctor, Jones. Mr. Irish stated to THE TRIBUNE:

"I do not seem to be able to settle matters regarding Donoghue, but I am not worried, as, if nothing is certain within the next few days, I will make arrangements with Garner. I am to have a definite reply Tuesday from Donoghue, and if none is made then I will make a contract with a good jockey, preferably Garner."

Following the departure of the ship THE TRIBUNE correspondent was extended an invitation by Mr. Irish to follow the ship down to The Solent by airplane, which he declined. The seaplane, piloted by Capt. H. C. Biard, winner of the Schneider cup at Naples last year, followed the Aquitania down the river, circling the ship half a dozen times, with the passengers waving and cheering, which was plainly audible to those in the plane.

NATIONAL HORSE SHOE PITCHERS IN ACTION TODAY

Cleveland, O., Sept. 22.—Sixteen experts out of a total of fifty or more entrants will contest for the national championship in the national horseshoe pitching tournament, which will end here tomorrow afternoon. Elimination contests have been in progress four days. Thirteen of the finalists are Ohio entrants. They are:

C. C. Davis and F. and C. Brundage, Columbus; Blair Nunemaker and Jack Doyle, Cleveland; Alvin George, Loren May, Willie Witt, and Charles Heimbaugh, Akron; William Yocum, Zanesville; J. H. Buchman, Fremont; Joseph Wilkinson, Kenmore, and R. P. Spencer, Picher, Okla.; Frank and Carroll Jackson, father and son, Kellerton, Ia.

C. C. Davis of Columbus, O., set a new world's record in the men's tournament today when he pitched 46 ringers out of 58 pitches, a percentage of .79, including 18 doubles, in his match with George May of Akron, O., whom he defeated, 50 to 17.

The previous record, 70 per cent, was made yesterday by Mrs. C. A. Lanham of Bloomington, Ill.

First prize of $125 in the women's tournament was won by Mrs. J. F. Francisco, Columbus; second, $75, by Mrs. C. A. Lanhan, Bloomington, Ill.; third by Mrs. Charles Heimbaugh, Akron, $50; fourth, fifth, and sixth prizes were won by Mrs. George Broulette, Minneapolis, Mrs. C. D. Young, Minneapolis, and Mrs. Doris Cole, Grand Rapids, Mich., respectively.

Several changes in rules have been adopted. Pegs must project ten inches above the ground instead of eight, and have an inclination toward each other of two inches instead of one. A pitch is held to be completed when the shoe leaves the pitcher's hand, rather than when it lands at the stake.

WELLS TO BOX SIMONICH.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 22.—Billy Wells, welterweight champion of England, has been matched with Joe Simonich of Butte, Mont., for a ten round no decision bout here Oct. 1, it was announced yesterday.

The Old Copyreader

"Many a story is hopelessly written, but the story of life is hopelessly rotten."

THE HEROINE.

Why do the novelists treat me so roughly?
  Why must I pay such a price?
Why does romance in my case end so toughly?
  Why aren't my love affairs nice?
Why can't I act like a sane, normal human?
  Why is my finish achieved?
Why do they hand me such lack of acumen?
  Why am I always deceived?

Why can't I do as folks do that are living?
  Why don't they give me a chance?
Why do they sear me with brand unforgiving?
  Why must I fiddle to dance?
Why do they make me the victim of flimming?
  Why for a boob am I played?
Why am I classed with the weak, willing, wimming?
  Why am I always betrayed?

FIRPO TO VISIT CANADA BEFORE RETURNING HOME

New York, Sept. 22. — Luis Angel Firpo today definitely decided to visit Canada before returning to his native Argentine, but the trip will be of short duration. According to his present plans, the "Wild Bull" will leave New York next Tuesday night, box Elzear Rioux, French-Canadian giant, at Montreal on Wednesday night, and return here the following day to prepare for his departure to South America.

Before he returns to receive the plaudits of his countrymen, however, the man who knocked Champion Jack Dempsey through the ropes before going down to defeat will visit several other South American countries. Firpo plans to go by way of the Panama canal to Lima, Peru, where he will stay for a week, giving several exhibitions, then proceeding to Valparaiso, Chile.

CUEISTS MEET TOMORROW.

The ninth annual meeting of the Chicago Billiard league will be held tomorrow at 35 South Dearborn street at 2 o'clock. There are seven new applications for franchises and the circuit may be enlarged to admit these rooms.

Own Your Own Garage!!

Easy Monthly Payments—Just Like Garage Rent!

These world's famous "Presto-Up," patented, permanent Garages are easily within reach of all. Cheaper than garage rent because they pay for themselves in one year, earning 100 per cent on the investment for you. Many are buying double garages and allowing the rental on the other half to pay their installments. One car model "A," pictured to the right, size 10 ft. 6 ins. x 16 ft. 6 ins., will be delivered to you when the first payment of $51.00 is made. The balance of $103.00 to be paid on easy monthly installments of $10.00. Or, better, you can increase your saving if you are prepared to pay the reduced cash price of $145.00. "Presto-Up" buildings are made right here in our factory—no freight or hauling to pay!

"PRESTO-UP" Patented Garages come to you in complete units, can be erected in a day, eliminating all the worries of buying lumber, hardware, glass, paints, etc., and the attendant annoyances and muss and fuss around your yard for weeks; therefore, do not be confused by attractive offers that mean only a load or two of rough lumber—when you buy a "PRESTO-UP" you can come here and see the buildings showing exactly how the finished building will appear on your lot. No guesswork, no substitution, no disappointments. "PRESTO-UP" Garages are permanent, much stronger than many garages built under old style methods.

Only the best lumber used—extra heavy sills, plates and corner posts—clear kiln dried fir siding—fifteen year guaranteed slate surfaced roofing, all hardware, extra heavy hinges, patented door holders—patented "No-Sag" roof trusses, "No-Sag" auto doors. Auto doors painted both sides, balance of garage painted outside one good coat of house paint, trimmed in white. Many other exclusive features make them the best garages on the market. We invite your most careful comparison.

Quick Delivery!

Garages erected by customer can be delivered immediately. When erected by us a few days extra are required. Time payment orders require a few days additional.

MOTORDOM

Commission Shows Why, When, Where of Motor Deaths

Pedestrians Hardest Hit in Series of 486 Accidents.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

It is more dangerous to ride in an automobile than to drive one in Chicago.

Pedestrians face greater hourly peril than do the people behind the steering wheels of powerful cars.

Six p. m. is the fatal hour on Chicago streets and boulevards, and early evening always advances the hands of the automobile death clock.

Police district No. 1, embracing the loop territory from the river south to Van Buren street, is the city's chief danger zone, with heavy traffic streets rather than boulevards forming primary points of peril.

Members of Mayor Dever's Chicago safety commission were given these significant facts yesterday in a report made by Harry N. Fowler, chairman of the educational committee, following a close study of all automobile accidents reported for the month of August. They will be used as the basis for the concentrated campaign against reckless driving and walking in which the police department, civic and business organizations have pledged cooperation.

In the first fifteen days of the month, the report shows, 486 automobile accidents occurred in the city proper. Pedestrians were at the hospital end of the great majority.

Five people riding in cars, but not in the driver's seat, were killed, eighty-two were seriously injured and thirty-five slightly injured. Four pedestrians were killed outright, seventy-six were badly injured, and 215 slightly injured. Two drivers of cars were killed, seventeen seriously injured, and fifty slightly injured in the crashes.

Police officers, following close on the heels of accidents in the loop, reported to the commission that 90 per cent of the injuries to pedestrians were due to plain and fancy "jay-walking." Since the safety campaign centered attention on reckless driving, they declare, people walking in the loop have assumed an attitude of defiance and persist in blocking crossings, stepping off the curb when the traffic line is against them, walking blindly into traffic in the middle of the block, and generally increasing the chances of accidents. The commission has ordered a survey made of loop intersections and plans to present an anti-jay-walking ordinance which will levy a fine on careless pedestrians.

In every police district it was found that automobile accidents begin to "break" about 5 p. m., and increase from that time on, reaching their peak at 6 p.m., and continuing through the early evening.

Six o'clock fatigue is responsible for this condition, according to the safety students. After completing work for the day, Chicago people lose some of the alertness of morning and early afternoon and grow careless on their homeward journey. A total of 51 of the accidents recorded occurred at 6 p. m. last month; 49 happened at 4 p. m.; 38 at 5 p. m., and but 26 at noon, when a large percentage of the city's workers are on the street.

Midnight riders figured in 11 of the accidents, and 1, 2 and 3 a. m. brought 10 injuries to either motorists or pedestrians. The morning rush hours brought but a dozen accidents, most of them minor.

Passenger cars figured in the majority of cases. They were responsible for 7 deaths during the period, 86 serious and 247 minor injuries. Motor trucks caused 2 deaths, 19 serious and 51 minor injuries, and taxicabs caused 12 serious injuries and 27 minor hurts. Two people were killed by motorcycles.

In addition to broadcasting its safety propaganda through schools, motion picture houses, and newspapers, the mayor's commission has passed the accident "buck" directly to commanding officers of the police stations. Following the month's accident report, the district captains' attention has been called to the number of deaths and injuries in his territory, with a request that he make his men responsible for their immediate decrease. It was found that 26 accidents occurred in district No. 1; 24 in No. 24, the Wentworth avenue district; 23 in the Ghetto, Maxwell street district, and but 2 in No. 4, the Lake Park avenue district.

Yes, there is still time for that long contemplated run to the west, although the first frosts have swept a flood of color ahead of them all the way to the coast and the northern passes are ready for their winter blanket of snow.

In this last minute western tour suggestion the most difficult roads will be found in Iowa and Missouri, and it will be well to take one of the two northerly trails to Cheyenne or Denver if the start is made in September or October. The route follows the Lincoln pavement to De Witt and uses the new concrete road south to Davenport, where it picks up No. 7 west. Either the Lincoln or the D. L. D. trails may be used from Omaha to Denver, with the D. L. D. preferred. The old National road will be open for travel from Pueblo to Los Angeles throughout the winter.

Government Checks Up Its Highway Mileage

The relative mileage of types of road being built in this country is indicated by the figures given by the bureau of public roads of the United States department of agriculture. These apply only to federal aid roads, but since they represent 25,000 miles of road now in use and include roads built in every state, they may be taken as fairly representative of the character of the main highways.

These types are: Gravel, 39.1 per cent; graded and drained, 20.6 per cent; cement concrete 18.3 per cent; sand clay 10.8 per cent; bituminous macadam 4 per cent; bituminous concrete 3.1 per cent; waterbound macadam 2.7 per cent; brick 1.4 per cent.

KNOCKS GAS TAX.

The Supreme court of New Hampshire recently handed down an opinion in answer to a request filed by the house of representatives declaring that a sales tax on gasoline is unlawful.

Improves Steering.

Hard steering may be due to wheels that are out of line, but more likely it results from tires that need inflating or from steering connections that need lubricating. Inflate the tires to normal pressure and then go thoroughly over the steering unit with an oil can or grease gun, as the case may demand. This includes not only the steering gear but the ball joints at either side of the drag link, the king pin bearing, and the tie rod bearing.

You Can Have a Monopoly

In your locality on a product as universally needed as fly screens in summer and weather stripping in winter. We offer just that to men qualified to organize and direct sales. Homes, offices, schools, hospitals and other buildings buy in quantities. Thousands sold in Chicago, Cleveland, Philadelphia, New York and other large cities. No come-backs. Price small enough to insure volume. Profit large enough to interest go-getters. Exclusive territory and full factory co-operation. No great capital required. Not an auto accessory.

Full-Vision Enclosure
for Safe, Comfortable Driving

You can enjoy the comforts of an enclosed car at small expense—and without the cumbersome looking, vision interfering, makeshift curtains and similar enclosures. $125 to $200 equips your car with this Bird-Sykes full-vision enclosure. Takes only two days from the time of your appointment. Arrange it now.

So Neat It Harmonizes with the Lines of Fine Cars

This full-vision enclosure is made entirely of steel tubing, glass and rubber. Each pane of glass is set weather-tight and rattle-proof in a rubber cushion. The outside edges of each frame are finished with extending feather-edge rubber. This rubber fills the space between frame and body, frame and top, and frame and frame. The frames never come in contact with the car or with each other, yet they are perfectly weather-tight and rattle-proof.

All doors open. Ample ventilation, easily controlled. No change required in touring top. Enclosure weighs about half as much as an average passenger. It can be removed in a few minutes for summer storage, and put on in a few hours. It stores flat against the wall; requires little space.

Don't take chances with human life driving with storm curtains which obscure vision. Remember, a few days' illness from exposure will cost you more than this enclosure.

APPERSON

The Only Driver's Compartment With No Levers

Among the exclusive features of the Apperson Six and Eight is a driver's compartment with no levers—which permits easy entrance or egress on the curb side of the car. This is made possible by the adoption of the Mechanical Gear-Shift—the greatest invention in the automobile industry in the last ten years for easier, safer and more enjoyable driving.

It operates mechanically by merely moving the selector on the steering wheel post into the gear desired and throwing out the clutch. No long-handled levers, no chance of "clashing" gears and blocking traffic. It is simple and strong with nothing to get out of order.

The powerful emergency brake is operated by pull-handle on instrument board.

Regardless of the car you are driving you should see this Apperson and operate the mechanical gear-shift. It will be an interesting and instructive five minutes for you. Make appointment to-day.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 each for questions accepted for the Inquiring Reporter. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune." For today's question Edward McCarthy, 701 Eastgate-av., St. Louis, Mo., was awarded $5.

The Question.

What do you think should be the next major improvement on the automobile?

Where Asked.

Monroe street and Michigan avenue.

The Answers.

W. D. Langtry, 2207 Colfax street, Evanston, engineer.—I believe that the most important improvement in the immediate future should be carburetor refinement. It is my theory that the present carburetor will be eliminated eventually and the fuel sent directly to the cylinders. The superchargers on the German Mercedes racers entered at the last Indianapolis race showed a step in this direction. If in the last few years engineering minds had worked as hard on the development of steam cars as they have on gasoline motors, we would have better cars and cheaper operation today.

J. B. Bartholomew, Wilmette, salesman.—Cars are now as near perfect as they can be made at the prices we pay for them. Almost any car is satisfactory now if it is kept up properly, but they are still far from foolproof. The next improvement in the automobile world should be the teaching of car owners and drivers how to operate their cars safely. This is of vital importance. The educational campaign along safety lines has started the motor world in this direction.

J. A. Henry, 1432 Jonquil terrace, corporation manager.—I believe that all of the cars made today are as nearly perfect as engineering skill can make them. The big step now and in the immediate future, it seems to me, lies in the elimination of motor vibration. In this direction the development of the straight line motor is important.

L. P. Coe, Saugatuck, Mich., garage owner.—The most important phase of the automobile game is the elimination of accidents. I believe that the new braking system which has become so popular this year will aid greatly in this direction. Four wheel brakes will eventually be standard on all cars that are worth while. They make it possible to stop in one-third the usual distance. It is the quick stop that avoids accidents.

J. E. Burke, 154 West 74th street, south park policeman.—Improvements of the exhaust system in gasoline cars is the most important of future improvements. There is real danger to both pedestrians and drivers in the exhaust fumes that come from underslung pipes. These gases should be carried over the heads of people on the boulevards. Automobiles are not yet foolproof. If the manufacturers can make them so they will have reached perfection.

Chicago Chosen Scene of Motorcycle Show.

A. B. Coffman, general manager of the Motorcycle and Allied Trades association, wires from Atlantic City, N. J., where the Cycle Trades of America was in annual convention last week, that Chicago has been selected for the 1924 national motorcycle and bicycle show. The exposition will be held from Feb. 4 to 9 at Broadway armory on upper Broadway near Thorndale.

Motorcycle manufacturers exceeded all records for production this year, aggregating 60,000. The best previous record was 50,000. Prices range from $135 to $398. The latter is a four cylinder machine. More than 400,000 bicycles will be manufactured in 1923, prices ranging from $30 to $80.

RUSCO
BRAKE LINING

As the best cloth is virgin wool so "Rusco" is crysotile asbestos

THIS loom weighs ten tons. Think of the power it puts into the solid weaving of "Rusco"—the solid weaving of the earth's best asbestos. There is no shoddy in "Rusco"

The strongest looms ever built weave this mineral-metal lining

RUSCO'S Asbestos and Brass Wire are so solidly woven in the "Rusco" giant looms that when compressed by tons' weight into a solid, square-edged mineral-metal fabric, it has not only the right "coefficient of friction", but all the other braking attributes that will put you in sure control of your car.

No shoddy in "Rusco"

CRYSOTILE Asbestos only, goes into "Rusco". The South-European mineral is not strong. Carolina asbestos powders under pressure. The African mineral is stiff and horny. "Rusco" gets its flexible, elastic, wonderful inherent quality of indestructibility, and great tensile strength from the best asbestos the earth has yet produced. "Rusco" is unique in this respect. No shoddy in "Rusco".

Be sure of your car

YOU can be sure of your car if you are sure of your brakes. The brakes depend on the lining thereof, that's certain. Line your brakes with "Rusco"—Insist upon "Rusco"—and you, your foot and "Rusco" will be in absolute command of your car.

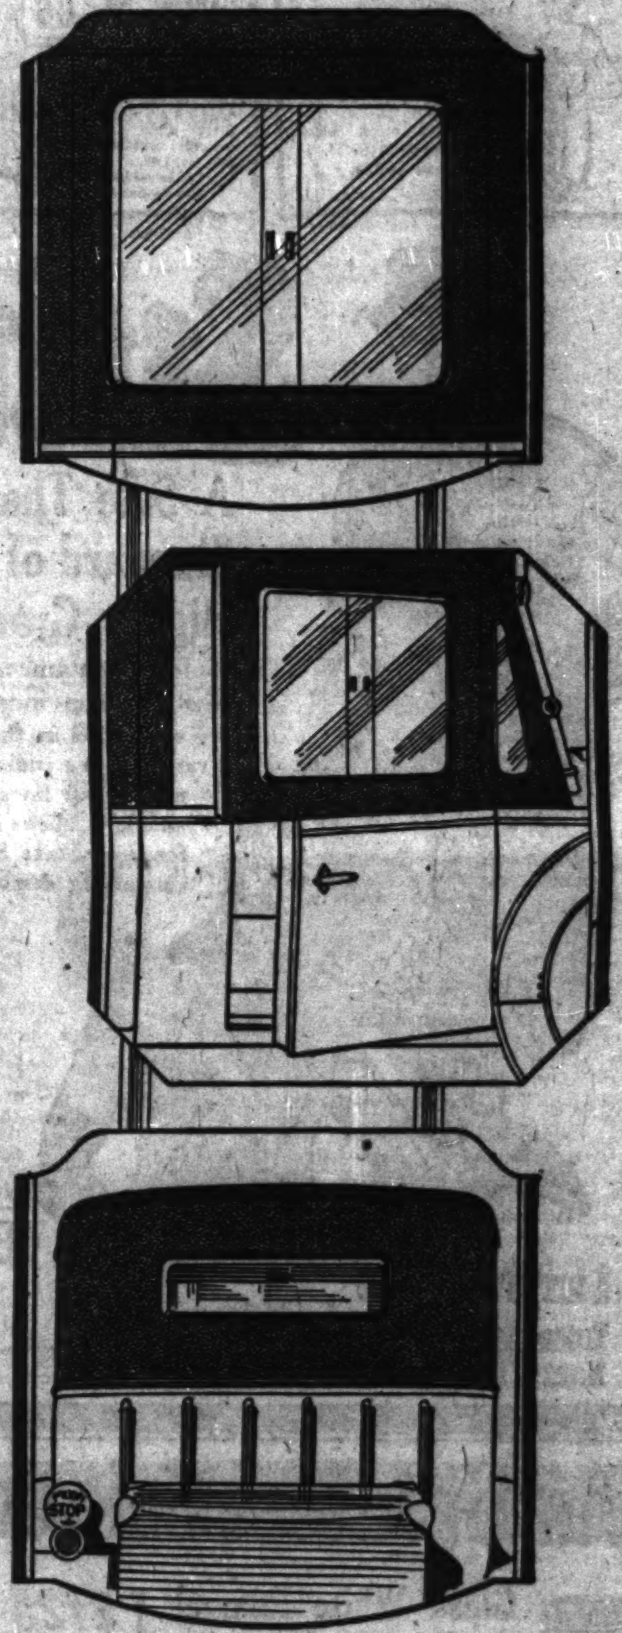
A Small Additional Charge for Glass Sides



—Winter Protection
—Summer Comfort

ONCE more QUINLAN with a new MOON Tourlux has set a new standard of motor car values.

Now any MOON open model on either the Six-40 or Six-50 chassis is available with the new, permanent, rigid Quinlan MOON Top at an increased price of $110.00 over the cost of the car with the old style folding Top.

This new, permanent Top, rattle-proof and finely finished, is regularly equipped with close fitting folding curtains forward of the rear doors. At a small additional cost the removable glass sides shown in the illustrations will be supplied, giving complete Winter protection and perfect Summer comfort. Never before has a high grade California Top equipment been possible at such a low cost to you.

Note, please, the perfect blending of the body lines.

Note the beveled plate in the rear and in the permanent side panels.

The windows in all four doors are split perpendicularly, permitting perfect ventilation by a simple push on the glass which slides in felt-lined, rain-proof channels. The Winter sides are so fitted that they extend several inches over the width of the doors. Here is one closed car which is as easy to get in and out of as it is to look at.

You are invited to examine the new Quinlan MOON Tourlux at any of the Moon Neighborhood Dealers. Our suggestion is that you do it NOW. It is only reasonable to assume that the demand for these cars will exceed our facilities for production.

Now we can make reasonable deliveries.

New Western Law Prohibits Loads on Running Board

ALTHOUGH the summer auto camping season is drawing to a close, much discussion has arisen since Sept. 1, when the new motor vehicle act went into effect as to the carrying of baggage on passenger vehicles and the width of loads on trucks in California.

No load nor vehicle shall exceed ninety-six inches—or eight feet—in width, according to the Auto Club of Southern California. This is a general basis of the ruling. But there are some important exceptions to this. For instance, it shall not apply to farming implements nor to loads of loosely piled material such as hay or alfalfa, which may be ten feet in width. These "loosely piled" loads, which do not include crated, baled, boxed, nor sacked material, must not exceed 120 inches, or ten feet.

However, vehicles which were owned and in operation at the time of the passage of the new act may continue to operate if they are wider than ninety-six inches but do not exceed a width of 102 inches, if used upon roads which are more than fifteen feet wide. Practically all main roads in California are wider than fifteen feet.

You cannot carry loads on your passenger cars which extend beyond the line of the hub caps of the machine on the left hand side. The load cannot extend more than six inches beyond the line of the hub caps on the right hand side. This means anything extending beyond the hub caps of the car, such as crates, suitcases, tents, trunks, or fishing poles.

Lead German Motorists.

The Duke of Ratibor, who died recently at Castle Norway, was for fifty years prominent in German sporting circles. He was the father of motoring in Germany, and for a quarter of a century was president of the Automobile Club of Germany, formerly the Imperial Automobile Club of Germany, under the patronage of the kaiser.

PRIDE OF THE DISTRICT

White enamel may not be particularly effective in putting out fires, but it sure helps the morale of the department, according to Denver fire department officials. Above is one of the crack pieces of apparatus which help the self-respect of the Denver forces. It is complete in every detail, even to the special cushion type wheels. The latter were made by the Morand company in Chicago.

Real Field Work.

Religious workers of Boston have a "Little Church on Wheels." Built on a motor chassis, the portable church, steeple and all, has a unique pulpit, from which a gospel message will be preached on various street corners of the city. It is equipped with the latest devices of science, including a radio receiving set and loud speaker.

A CAKE OF SOAP.

A piece of cheap kitchen soap—the cheaper the better—is a useful accessory. It helps to stop gasoline leaks, especially when rubbed on the threads of the tank filler cap.

Eastern State Orders Highways Cleared of Signs

ON THE ground that they are a menace to the safety of the traveling public, the state highway department of Connecticut has ordered removal of all signs abutting the highways in an illegal way.

Orders have been issued to all district supervisors of the highway department to notify foremen in their jurisdictions to see that all such signs are taken down at once. At the same time, the department has notified its divisional officers that the attention of the state police will be called to all such violations in an effort to curb the increase in this practice.

Statutes prohibit the use of any sign, large or small, within the highway limits. In this class is included the great variety of posters which are frequently seen tacked to telephone poles and trees. The state police department estimates that no less than 5,000 signs of all descriptions were removed during the last year for various causes.

This drastic action followed a great influx in this practice of free advertising, which calls for a penalty of $50 fine and six months' imprisonment, or both, according to an act passed by the legislature in 1921.

It was said by the state police department yesterday that one of the most persistent violators of the law were the various Chautauquas and country fair societies, which extended themselves during the last year in posting signs on almost every telephone pole along the state highways.

HERE'S A JUDGE NOT TOO REFINED TO USE WORLD'S WORST ALIBI

"WHERE'S your driver's license?" Judge Richardson asked a Japanese brought before him on a traffic violation charge, says a Los Angeles report.

The Jap did not understand. He gave his car number.

"No, no," exclaimed the judge, "your driver's license—you know, the little card. Here, let me show you mine."

The judge proceeded to hunt through his pockets. He rumpled paper after paper, a crimson flush mounting above his white collar.

And then, to the emalicious delight of a courtroom full of speeders, he gave vent to the oldest alibi of the traffic violator.

"I must have left it in my other coat."

WATCH THE PRESSURE.

An overloaded or an underinflated tire heats more rapidly than a properly loaded or properly inflated tire. Experimental tests have shown that to blow out a new first class tire by additional air pressure it is necessary to exert a force of over thirty times the regular recommended pressure.

Rickenbacker
A · CAR · WORTHY · OF · ITS · NAME

For The Safety Of Yourself and Loved Ones

Now comes the season of skidding.

The fall and winter months, with the frequent rains and sleet are just ahead—and winter cold only a little farther beyond.

4-Wheel Brakes afford you a sense of security you have never known before.

Just think!—Is there a more helpless feeling than that you experience when your car starts to skid and you are unable to control it?

How much greater then is your concern when "she" is driving. In this latest Rickenbacker Six with 4-Wheel Brakes there is not the slightest tendency to skid.

4-Wheel Brakes prevent skidding.

Even when brakes are vigorously—even viciously—applied on a wet asphalt pavement the car stops in an amazingly short space and always headed in the way you want to go.

That last is the most important of all, perhaps—that your car continue to go wherever you direct—until you stop it.

For, after all, brakes are not your only safety factor.

Easy steering is of equal importance.

For example—you suddenly meet another car. You may be able to stop—but the other fellow may have only two brakes and poor ones at that.

So, you turn aside at the same time that you apply your brakes.

That's when you best appreciate your Rickenbacker 4-Wheel Brakes.

For—so perfect is the equalization—these brakes do not in the slightest interfere with steering.

You simply do not know they are there—so far as the steering goes.

Rickenbacker always was "the easiest car in the world to steer."

Because Rickenbacker was the first to use ball bearings in steering spindles.

With 4-Wheel Brakes, Rickenbacker steers just as easily.

That's the ideal all engineers are seeking.

Rickenbacker first found the solution.

That is why Rickenbacker leads in this as in so many other features of advanced engineering.

Which fact is important to you at this time.

You need a better—a warmer—a safer—car for the coming fall and winter months.

Very well, select the one that, a year from now, will still be the height of fashion.

Rickenbacker always has been a year ahead of all others.

Not only in design and finish—though you will agree that Rickenbacker enclosed models are the smartest you have ever seen, as well as the most comfortable you have ever ridden in.

But also in engineering refinements. This product is still one to three years in advance of all others.

For example; it is two years since Rickenbacker first called attention to "Periods of Vibration"—and stated it had at last been eliminated by a Rickenbacker invention the "Tandem Fly Wheel."

And now—in the last few weeks—other makers are featuring various substitutes for this same "Tandem Fly Wheel."

In this, rival engineers pay the highest compliment to Rickenbacker.

—the Air Cleaner—which doubles the life of the motor and prevents excessive deposits of carbon.

—the "Double Depth" frame (8" side rails) which affords better support and therefore makes a closed body noiseless.

—ball bearings in steering spindles—first criticized as "too sensitive," and now copied by those very critics because this Rickenbacker proved "the easiest steering car in the world."

July first Rickenbacker announced 4-Wheel Brakes as an essential, built-in feature of a motor car.

We said then that others must follow—for buyers, once informed, would refuse to accept any automobile without this safety factor.

Well!—to date four of the most prominent makers—of the most famous cars too—have announced. 4-Wheel Brakes.

So when you select this car, you know you are as far in advance of others in engineering improvements and in style, as is the lady just home from Paris by comparison with her neighbor whose gowns are made by the community seamstress.

For your own safety, convenience and comfort you need a new car—built to meet the traffic problems of today.

That car of yesterday will no longer serve your needs.

For the safety of your loved ones—and your own peace of mind—one of the latest Rickenbacker Six enclosed models is ideal.

No—nothing else will take the place of brakes on all four wheels.

Size of drums does not matter—nor tire size either.

If only two points in contact with the road can be controlled by brakes—that's all you have. And you have always had that!

4-Wheel Brakes—brakes on all points in contact with the road—is the only real solution of today's traffic problem.

Prove it for yourself—the proof is conclusive.

Two minutes at the wheel will give you the answer to all the "anti" propaganda of the "Tag-Alongs."

Drive this Rickenbacker once—and you will never be content until you own one.

But—don't delay. Output is limited—demand tremendous.

Today—won't be a minute too soon.

TOURING CAR

In city traffic or on the open road, this new touring car impresses you instantly with its exceptional riding comfort.

The seats are deeper and lower. The body has been lengthened to afford more leg-room. Its low-swung design reduces side sway and increases the car's stability at all speeds.

The front springs are wider, and built of more, and thinner leaves; the rear springs—now underslung—have been materially increased in length.

In fact, the comfort of the car is comparable in every way with its good looks and the well known character of its performance.

Chicago-Mackinaw Rou Gets Action from State Board.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Sept. 21.—[Special Correspondence.]—Michigan the other day made $2,500,000 gift to the nation' pleasure seekers when the state ad ministrative board authorized the buil ing, by the end of 1924, or eighty-fou miles of pavement on the historic West Michigan pike (M-11), from point near Pentwater, north of here, t Traverse City.

The pike, which starts at Chicag circles the southern end of Lake Mich gan through the Indiana dune country, and follows the eastern shore o the lake through west Michigan t Mackinaw City, the tip of the lowe Michigan peninsula. It is over thi highway, which is 472 miles long, tha tens of thousands of tourists pass eac season. From early June until au tumn the procession of tourists an campers flows past in a seemingl endless stream, seeking the beaut spots, the fishing, and other outdoo recreations afforded by western Michigan.

It was to make the way of these vi itors more easy that the state decide to push the cement ribbon farther t the north. Although no definite prom ise was given with regard to pavin the remaining 109 miles of the rout from Traverse City to Mackinaw, it i reliably stated that Michigan's gover ment has in mind completion of th Chicago-Mackinaw route as quickly a possible, providing an all-cement lin between the middle western and Missi sippi valley states and the heart of th country's summer playground.

The number of Michigan's summe visitors who come by automobile eac year is figured in the hundred tho sands. The total is expected to be dou bled and perhaps tripled within th next few seasons, with extensions o the pike paving, the largest numbe of tourists from other states travelin over this highway.

The 1924 road betterment progra will center in one of the most impo tant fruit production districts of th state. This section of M-11 starts comparatively short distance north o Muskegon, capital of the fruit bel and extends through Ludington, Ma istee, and other nationally known r sort centers. The road to be pave originally was considered as one of th finest gravel highways in the countr The pike's gravel surface has broke through in many places recently, how ever, due to the heavy travel.

The pike cuts through Michigan' fruit belt, affording frequent glimps of Lake Michigan and vistas of rollin country massed with orchards an berry patches that never fail to de light the eye of the traveler from the time the trees and vines burst into bloom in the spring until the ripened fruit is gathered. SAFETY "FORE" AND AFT

This mower at Bar Harbor refuses to take any more chances with golfers, professional or amateur. A hard hit ball struck him in the back of the neck recently, and he invented this barrel headgear as soon as he left the hospital. [Photo from Underwood & Underwood.]

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

THE fourth Hudson price reduction in eleven months fell like a bomb in Chicago sales circles last week. It sets a new cost basis all along the line of Hudson models ranging from $1,395 for the four passenger phaeton to $2,050 for the sedan. These are the lowest Hudson prices on record.

One of the smartest of recent newcomers is the Auburn sport model, which has arrived on the medium six Auburn chassis. It is finished in Blue-jay blue and carries two trunks as a part of its equipment.

The Flint six, another of Durant's feature cars, was given new quarters on the Chicago row last week when Herman J. Rosenberg opened the Flint Chicago company at Michigan avenue and 25th street. Frank E. Witt, formerly connected with the W. C. Auble company, is manager of the branch.

A moderate priced light six car, vintage 1924, is the final embodyment of engineering progress in the automobile industry, in the estimation of Walter C. Davis of Chicago Davis headquarters. He contends that the light six is a leader in the qualities most needed in an automobile, economy and power.

Since the first of the year seventeen new distributors and eighty new dealers have been added to the Haynes Automobile company string, according to Gilbert U. Radoye, sales director for the company.

THIS TEST MAKES IT TOUGH FOR DANGEROUS DRIVERS IN SWEDEN

IN Sweden drivers' licenses are issued only to persons who can pass the eye and ear tests prescribed by doctors. Each application must also be accompanied by a testimonial signed by a local motor traffic inspector to the effect that the applicant is known to be of sober habits and of orderly conduct.

Each license issued must contain the photograph of the holder. The speed limits of passenger cars are 22 miles an hour in the city and 28 miles an hour in the country.

One of the most impressive facts in the motor car world today is that no American motor car, regardless of price, excels the New Peerless Eight in performance, dependability, beauty and comfort.

It is a fact established, first, by the experience, skill and care with which the New Peerless is built.

Second, by the severest of all comparisons—the comparisons made by owners themselves.

And it is confirmed on every hand by the enthusiastic testimony of those who enjoy the satisfaction of New Peerless ownership.

Be as exacting in your demands as you like—we are confident that the New Peerless will not only meet all your expectations, but far surpass them, in every element of fine motoring.

C. A. ENGELBECK, General Manager
CALUMET 5540

One year ago, I'll admit that I expected something extraordinary in the way of performance and service from my New Peerless. I have driven automobiles for twenty-two years, and many good cars succumbed in less than a year to hard driving and abuse.

Perhaps the finest tribute I can pay to my Peerless is that, after more than 12,000 miles of the severest use, I still refer to it as my new Peerless. It is still the finest looking automobile in the city, and its many good qualities have improved with use.

Each car I have owned excelled in one or a few elements of motoring satisfaction, but I cannot think of a single phase of performance in which the New Peerless does not excel—and I have spent not a single cent for repairs.

FARM AND GARDEN

Carroll County Closes Its Doors to Fair Fakers

Advance Agents Greeted with No-Siree-Bob Refusal.

By Frank Ridgway.

HORNSWOGGLING fakers that pass the winter in city cocoons and infest farmers' county and state fairs in summer are doomed apparently. Armies of these parasites of the jumping, sucking variety have been preying on innocent people for a half century or more. But just as farmers have found remedies for chinch bugs, Hessian flies, and boll weevils, they are finding ways and means to keep the county fair field free from these city slickers with their crooked devices and glib tongues used in swindling victims.

Exposition and fair association officials are doing all they can to eliminate this traveling band of thieves. Managers of local fairs are closing the gates in the faces of midway pests who cover the fair grounds with their paddle wheels, doll racks, juice stands, spin wheels, and an array of alluring carnival wagons glistening with embossed red and gold tinted figures of contorted serpents and dragons.

Lured by Shower of Bills.

Almost every farm boy has been a victim of these grafters-on-the-wing, lured by the spieler's rapid firing ballahooing and showers of $5 and $10 bills that fall into a forest of riding whips and "gold" headed walking canes or velvet covered boards decorated with cheap jewelry. The grafter gets a dollar or two from his victim through the manipulation of his gambling device in exchange for a "diamond" ring—and for months afterwards the victim spends most of his time fumbling with the knot on his neck tie in his persistent attempt to "show off" the three hunks of glass mounted on a pewter band around his finger.

Boys up in Carroll county, Ill., have been duped for sixty-eight years by carnival crooks who spread all over the county fair midway with traps of trickery. All these years boys have flocked into Mount Carroll, innocently taking part in this riot of pseudo-fun, banging away at African dodgers, smashing dolls with Medusa locks, shooting at moving metal duck targets, and buying numbers on the "where-she-stops-nobody-knows."

Every year fakers fill their tainted pockets with many thousands of hard earned dollars given to them by Carroll county boys; and at the close of each fair they sneakingly drive away to come again another day. With the regularity of birds migrating north every summer the hard hearted grafters flock in the day before the fair opens. Until this year they drove right up into the center of the fair grounds with their freshly painted wagons; unhitched, started the spinner and spielers, and began to drag in the money in the same old way.

Protecting Present Generation.

Advance agents were met with a no-siree-Bob refusal when they came to Mount Carroll this summer asking for permits. Those who failed to send the fixers in advance and had not heard of the hostile embargo were blocked at the gate when they drove up the day before the fair opened.

Carroll county's annual celebration this year was a fair by and for farmers. There was not a single faker on the grounds so far as the eagle eyed officials and their detectives were able to determine. Fakers were not needed; they were not welcome and the fair ground was so densely covered with visitors from the country and small towns around that there was no room for the swindling concessionaire.

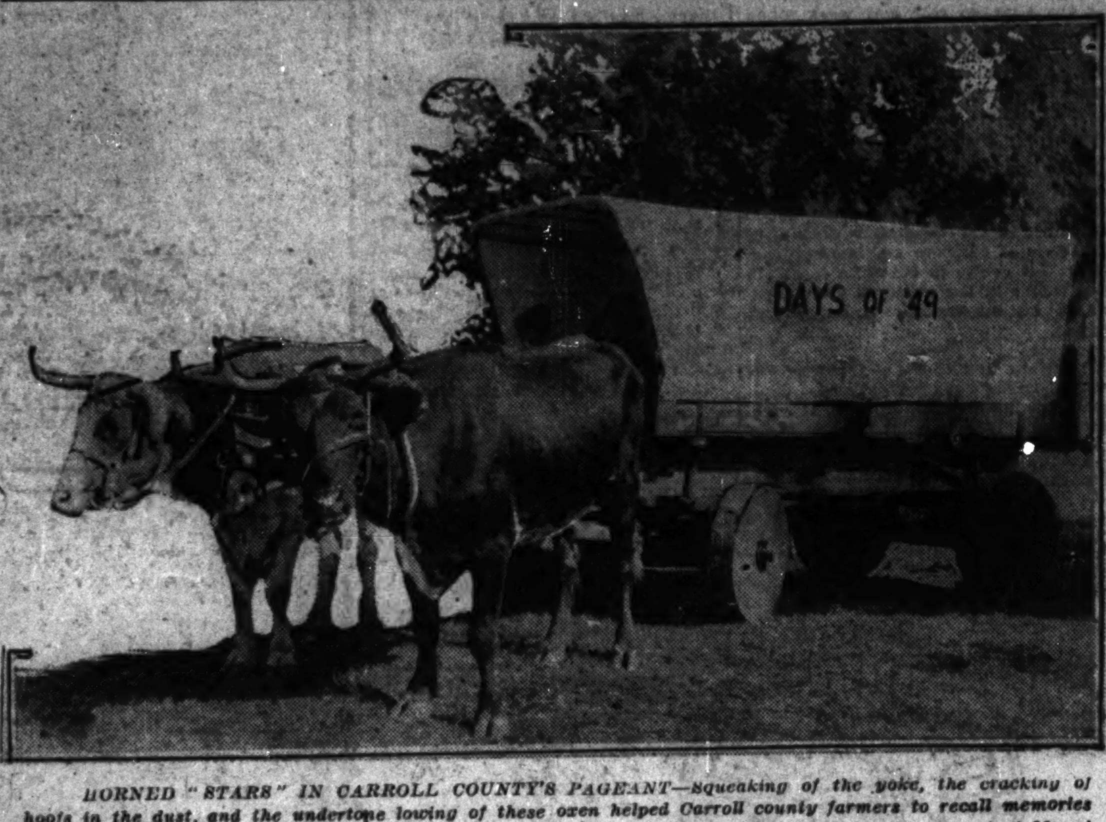
Pageant Is Substituted.

Other county fair officials are already asking, "How did you have a successful fair without the old line-up of midway concessions?"

G. R. Bliss, farm adviser of Carroll county, who had much to do with developing the new idea, says, "We staged a real historic pageant this year as the chief feature of our fair, and it beat any exhibition of midway concessions ever held in this county. Every one will back me up on that statement. We had big crowds daily; everybody had a good time, and everybody favors having another fair just like this one next year. Of course, we'll not use the historic idea in our future pageants but we have already thought of several good stunts that can be allegorized."

More than a thousand persons, all living in Carroll county, took part in the pageant depicting the development of the community for the last 100 years. The total cost was only $800; $150 of that was spent in bringing a team of oxen from Clinton, Ia., to add realism to the pioneer phase of the pageant.

SUBBING FOR CARNIVAL VAN



HORNED "STARS" IN CARROLL COUNTY'S PAGEANT—Squeaking of the yoke, the cracking of hoofs in the dust, and the undertone lowing of these oxen helped Carroll county farmers to recall memories of pioneer days as they wound back over the old trail for a century in the recent historic pageant at Mount Carroll, Ill. This was a welcome substitute for the degrading county fair midway concessions and bands of fakers who have preyed on these northern Illinois farmers for sixty-eight years.

Kansas to Hold Egg Conference.

Kansas, with her annual crop of 8,000,000 dozen eggs, is planning to join in the movement with other egg producing states to market poultry products coöperatively. Every county in the Sunflower state has been asked to send delegates to the state-wide egg marketing conference which is to be held in Topeka Sept. 28.

GARDEN NOTES

The best time to plant evergreens is in the fall, about a week or two before Thanksgiving.

After peach tree leaves drop, the orchard should be sprayed with lime sulphur solution to destroy San Jose scale and leaf curl.

Garden and field crops, grasses and alfalfa are all prone to injury at this time of year by the fall army worm. The pest may be controlled by using poison bait made by mixing an ounce of white arsenate with a pound of bran moistened with a pint and one-half of water to which have been added three ounces of molasses and the juice and chopped rinds of one-half dozen lemons.

A layer of manure mixed with straw should be placed around rose bushes to a depth of about eight inches to protect them in severe cold weather. Wrap the bushes above ground with straw or sacks to protect them from alternate freezing and thawing in the spring where growth happens to start in March.

Gardners who are planning to store vegetables and fruits this winter should get their equipment ready immediately. If you do not know the various storage requirements of the different crops, write to your state experiment station or to the United States department of agriculture, and ask for free bulletins that give this information in detail.

After other flowers have begun to fade, cosmos and castor beans come in with their share of the blossoms and are then fully appreciated.

DAIRYMEN'S JOTTINGS

During the last few days plans were made here by dairymen for the entertainment of foreign delegates who are to attend the world's dairy congress to be held in Washington, D. C., in October.

Dairy boosters from Missouri say their state is destined to continue to advance until it is the foremost dairy state in the nation. It now ranks as the fifth Jersey state. Jasper county, Mo., is said to have more pure bred Jersey owners of record today than any other county in the United States. Boosters believe that as soon as older dairy states, such as Wisconsin and Minnesota, understand conditions in Missouri there will be greater development of dairying in that state.

Evidence of the prosperity of Wisconsin dairymen was indicated recently at Baraboo's bull day, where there were 2,380 automobiles, according to official count. It is said not a single horse or buggy was to be seen at the celebration.

The fourteenth annual dairy cattle congress will be held in Waterloo, Ia., Sept. 24 to 30.

PAIGE THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA $2450

Compare the Paige Point by Point with Its Two Competitors

Of forty manufacturers of quality cars the two cars leading in sales are priced at $2885 and $2685; the Paige at $2450. What difference is there to justify the extra price? Check Paige points against these competitors—and you will realize that never before has $2450 bought such a car.

131-Inch Wheelbase
5-Foot Springs

Paige has a wheelbase of 131 inches—providing for roomy comfort besides roadability. Riding ease rarely equaled is further assured by rear springs more than 5 feet long. Check this against costlier cars! Paige leads them all in comfort.

More Power for Weight

Mark Paige piston displacement—compare it with others. Here is reserve power for all needs. Paige weight is 3850 pounds, yet the ratio to piston displacement is only 11.4 pounds per cubic inch. This low ratio is why Paige out-performs its competitors—climbs hills easier and at lower speed—gets away faster. Compare it in the chart—nearly two pounds less per cubic inch—15% more ability!

Easy Handling

With a driving range of 2 to 70 miles an hour in high there is small need of gear shifting, though it may be done at a bare 3-inch movement, without clash or missing under any guidance. Steering is easy for the frailest hand—strain is absent.

What Is Equipment?

You wouldn't compare a car with three wheels to a car with four wheels, in relation to their prices. So Paige must be compared as to equipment with what its competitors would cost you if similarly equipped. Note the twelve items of equipment in the chart above—all things which you would eventually buy for any car. Paige has them all! One competitor has only three of them—and the other five—least costly items. Calculate the cost of this equipment, and see how much more you get in the Paige.

Why Paige Can Be Sold at $2450

Tremendous volume on our smaller car—the Paige-built Jewett—reduces overhead on Paige cars to a negligible amount. This saving makes the Paige price possible. With the Jewett—Paige builds twice as many cars as either competitor shown on the chart. Under any other conditions Paige with its present high standards could not be sold for less than $3000.

To fully appreciate Paige—see the car—drive it. Measure it against your requirements in a fine car. Call or telephone for a demonstration at your convenience. There is no obligation, of course. If desired—payment terms may be arranged. [561-A]

Double Braking Efficiency

Buick Four-Wheel Brakes

Buick four-wheel brakes, because they double the braking surface brought into action, increase the braking efficiency of the car practically 100 per cent.

The action is simple, positive and rapid. A slight pressure on the service pedal (the method of operation is unchanged) and all four wheels are retarded—the car is quickly, smoothly and safely brought to a stop. With these proved Buick four-wheel brakes a stop is made in a much shorter distance with a minimum of skidding danger.

Obtaining braking friction at four contacts with the road increases the braking power and lessens the wear on each brake lining and each tire.

The 1924 Buick models, with four-wheel brakes, a more powerful engine, beautiful new bodies and numerous other advanced features fully exemplify the Buick policy of incorporating every improvement that will give greater safety, comfort and satisfaction to the owner.

Cellar Insures Beeman Against Winter Losses

COLONIES of bees wintered within a few miles of the shore of Lake Michigan are killed by the thousands every time the temperature reaches zero or below, unless they are protected. It is a lucky apiarist who goes through the winter with his unprotected hives and does not lose several colonies. Many times entire yards are wiped out.

Modern methods of storing either in cellars or in outdoor packing cases insure against this loss. Several beemen in this region have tried the cellar and have been using it long enough to be convinced that it is in the long run about the cheapest and the safest method of storing bees in Michigan, northern Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin.

Lost Only Two Colonies.

Evidence of the value of the cellar is offered by the experience of Joseph M. Mundell, an Indiana beekeeper, seven miles inland from the south end of Lake Michigan, in the fringe of the sand dunes near Hobart. He has brought 400 colonies through the last three winters with little or no losses by storing most of his bees in a concrete cellar. Out of all his colonies he lost only two last year, and that was not due to insufficient protection but to the fact that they were put in storage without queens.

"I learned my lesson several years ago when I did not fully appreciate the necessity of protecting my bees in cold weather. I let them go; we had a severe winter, and I lost the majority of my colonies," said Mr. Mundell. "The next winter I started to use outdoor packing cases, and three years ago I built my cellar. It was put to the test last winter, and practically all of my colonies were strong when they came out in the spring. I kept a thermometer where I could watch it from day to day, and the temperature never varied a great deal—it ranged between 45 and 50 degrees throughout the cold weather months."

Pays for Itself.

Mr. Mundell has plenty of room for all his colonies in the cellar, which is 12x32 feet, made with the concrete walls four feet thick. An extracting room is built over the cellar. This combination cellar and extracting and packing room was built when building materials were high, costing $2,900, but the owner believes it saves enough bees from being winter killed to pay for itself within a few years.

In some of the outer yards he finds it fairly safe to store the bees in quadruple outdoor winter cases, using planer shavings—a four inch layer underneath, a twelve inch layer around the sides, and a covering of about eighteen inches of shavings packed tightly.

Must Have Plenty of Air.

In storing the hives in the cellar Mr. Mundell stacks one on top of the other, leaving a space of about six inches between the outer wall and the hives and passageways between the rows to allow free circulation of air.

The experience of the best beekeepers around the border of the lake is to winter their strong colonies in outdoor cases and the weaker ones in cellars.

PIGS AIN'T PIGS—THEY'RE HOGS

THIRTEEN IS LUCKY NUMBER FOR THESE SQUEALERS.—This litter of thirteen pure bred Duroc-Jerseys, raised by J. T. Mills of Putnam county, Ill., weighed 3,101 pounds at the end of six months, the record in a ton litter contest. They were recently weighed at the Mills farm by Prof. W. H. Smith, University of Illinois, before 200 farmers. There were originally fifteen in this red family. During the last forty days of the six months' period each pig gained two pounds daily, the heaviest one weighing 278 and the lightest 189 pounds at the end of six months. The litter was produced at a cost of $208.45 and sold for $302. Mr. Mills won a local bankers' prize of $25, the National Record association prize of $50, and he will be awarded the State prize if no other litter entered in the contest goes above the 3,101 pound mark.

Odd Jobs on the Farm.

If you are planning to build a concrete floor, mix a ration for a dairy cow, store sweet potatoes, or tackle a dozen and one other jobs that are to be done on the average farm every fall these farm bulletins and circulars sent free by the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., will come in handy: Farmers' Bulletin 444, Mosquitoes—Remedies and Prevention; 481, Concrete Construction on Live Stock Farm; 743, The Feeding of Dairy Cows; 900, Homemade Fruit Butters; 970, Sweet Potato Storage; 991, Efficient Operation of Thrashing Machines; 1046, The European Corn Borer; 1049, Baling Hay; 1069, Tuberculosis in Live Stock; 1075, Unfermented Grape Juice—How to Make It; 1080, Preparation of Barreled Apples for Market; 1096, Frost and the Prevention of Damage from It; 1113, Poultry Houses; 1159, Fermented Pickles; 1160, Diseases of Apples in Storage; 1175, Better Seed Corn; 1194, Operating a Home Heating Plant; 1250, Green Manuring; 1264, Farm Manufacture of Unfermented Apple Juice; 1265, Business Methods of Marketing Hay; 1290, The Bulk Handling of Grain; 1331, Back Yard Poultry Keeping. Department Circular 25, Points for Egg Buyers; 74, Points for Egg Breakers; How to Break Eggs for Freezing; 244, U. S. Grades for Rye.

POULTRY TIPS

Taylor Goddard of Bloomington, Ill., has a young Plymouth Rock hen that has produced ten jumbo eggs this summer, all of them weighing above three ounces and the largest one more than four ounces. He has preserved all of the eggs in water glass for exhibition purposes. It is said this hen ordinarily lays normal sized eggs and shows no tendency to quit laying. She produces a big egg each month. Can you beat that?

Don't forget to save breeding stock for next year. The practice of selling the biggest cockerels in the flock because they weigh more than others is a common mistake—a serious mistake, because it leads to the loss of the best males. Select a few of the good cockerels now, and make the final selection later to get roosters for the breeding pens next spring.

Beginning Nov. 1 there will be a quarantine on all fruits and vegetables offered for import into the United States except from Canada, according to an announcement from Washington, D. C. This is a step toward keeping injurious fruit and melon flies out of this country. However, at the discretion of the federal horticultural board, certain fruits and vegetables may be brought in under special permit. The fruit and vegetables open to entry include the principal items which hitherto have been important commercial factors.

New Assistant Secretary.

President Coolidge has appointed Howard M. Gore of West Virginia assistant secretary of the United States department of agriculture to succeed Charles W. Pugsley, who recently resigned to take the presidency of the South Dakota State Agricultural college.

INTEGRITY Studebaker SERVICE

COMPARE

The Maximum of Proved Intrinsic Value VS. Many Extravagant Claims of Superiority

So many announcements of new model cars contain extravagant claims for the same superiorities that it is puzzling to the buyer to know which value is real and which is only a claim.

This year the issue has been confused by the introduction of mechanical changes, some of which have been rushed into production while still in the experimental stage—and then immediately given wide publicity.

Important considerations have been overlooked and great stress placed upon unimportant details.

But the man who intends to buy a motor car need not let this confusion or this glamour of publicity lead him to make a mistake or risk satisfaction in his purchase. The automobiles themselves are available for comparison.

See and be convinced. Riding is believing.

As an aid to intelligent buying we offer the following suggestions:

Place the 1924 model Studebaker Light-Six Touring Car at $995 alongside any car you may select as belonging in the same class. Every car looks well in the pictures—most cars make a good impression in their own show windows. The Studebaker Light-Six looks a winner alongside the best-looking competitor you can find. And it's larger, more substantial, roomier, more comfortable looking—and is more comfortable.

Compare the top. Look inside and out. The Studebaker top is sturdily built. Has four stout cross bows. Top material is same as is so satisfactorily used in the Big-Six. Notice the fit, feel the quality. The rear curtain is one-piece—has no seams—with a large rectangular window bound by an enameled moulding.

Compare the body. Studebaker has a roomy, substantial, carefully made body—all-steel even to its framework, which permits a finish in baked enamel. A depressed belt line runs around the body and through the hood and radiator, adding to its distinctive appearance.

Compare the one-piece, rain-proof windshield, with built-in cowl lamps, with the ordinary two-piece windshield with rubber strip that leaks in every rain and always obstructs the driver's vision. Notice the large cowl ventilator that is quickly operated by merely moving the regulator backward or forward.

Compare the Studebaker door trimmings and fittings with the door fittings of other cars. Notice that the door pocket flaps have weights to hold them in position. Man-sized door handles and latches, positive-action door locks that catch with a snap and stay closed. Heavy hinges properly located and proportioned. Highest grade trimming material instead of painted cardboard. Fastening nails concealed.

Compare the aluminum-bound linoleum that is neatly fitted and fastened to the floor boards of this $995 Studebaker Light-Six with the rubber mats that cover the cheap, loosely-fitted floor boards in many other cars.

Compare the cheap robe rail (sometimes hemp rope covered with imitation leather) with the Studebaker nickel-plated rail. Compare the forty-cent footrest with the comfortable, carpet-covered footrest, supported by polished aluminum brackets, in the Studebaker.

These comparisons are of features that can be seen. There are many more down under the surface that could be mentioned, such as the machining of all surfaces of the crankshaft and connecting rods of the Light-Six motor. This is largely responsible for the practical absence of vibration in the Studebaker Light-Six. This is an exclusive Studebaker practice on cars at this price.

If competition is so far inferior in its visible parts, it is a certainty that the hidden parts which really determine the satisfaction of a car will be equally inferior.

The Studebaker chassis is as far superior to any other motor car chassis in its price field as Studebaker upholstery is to other upholstery, as the Studebaker body is to any other motor car body in its price field.

For instance, Studebaker uses a six-inch frame with five cross-members instead of a five-inch frame with three or four cross-members.

The Studebaker Light-Six will ride longer, at less cost, we believe, than any other motor car built. A certain group of fleet owners in Los Angeles have found that Studebaker cars, averaging 35,000 miles each, saved their original cost one and one-half times over as compared with the average operating cost of various other makes.

In three years' time, more than 130,000 Studebaker Light-Sixes have delivered satisfaction. This gives the buyer a solid basis for his selection.

Come in and see the Light-Six. Test its performance and comfort yourself. Again—Riding is believing.

POWER COMFORT

FAKE PATRIOTISM DELAYS DAWN OF SUPER POWER ERA

BY SCRUTATOR.

A great deal of American history, political and economic, can be explained in terms of the struggle between the national and the particularist conceptions.

Not a few of the difficulties of the railroads today trace back to the local and sectional impulses which warped them away from development toward a truly national objective. The electric interurbans, now fighting hard and with encouraging results this year, against motor bus competition, were laid out too often with real estate speculation rather than transportation efficiency in view.

On the eve of the electrification of this continent it is all important that the American people know where they are going, so that the misdirection and duplication of railroad history shall not be repeated.

We are entering the epoch of superpower. But again the forces of localized interest and fake patriotism are in evidence.

We have the old phenomena of cities trying to conserve special interests at the ultimate expense of the national welfare, of states trying to monopolize advantages and, in addition, an unnecessary nationalism as between Canada and the United States. President Harding so well put the destiny of Canada and the United States—political independence and business interdependence—that it is superfluous to write anything about that. But a false nationalism comes to the aid of private, sectional, and state separatism to slow up the development of the hydro-electric power of the continent.

But if obstacles are in sight in Canada, the actual barriers now are on our side of the line. The following from O. C. Mitchell, secretary of the federal power commission, tells what's worrying many electric engineers.

"While international arrangements must, of course, be made before the water powers of the St. Lawrence can be developed for the benefit of the industries of the territories within transmission distance of the river, such arrangements cannot be successfully neglected while state policies are unsettled, if there is a disposition to stand on technical prerogatives. Millions of dollars might already have been expended on the great Colorado river but for the inability of the several states to reach a common agreement, for the desire of certain local interests to secure for themselves the chief benefit of such development, for the attempt to shut out private development altogether and to force development by the United States itself. Developments that might be undertaken on the Columbia are halted because of conflicting state claims. Thus our three greatest sources of water power are lying dormant because agreements have not been reached on a course of action."

Politicians who have been weeping great buckets of tears over the high prices the farmer must pay for manufactured products have had little to say about positive industrial policies which would increase production and cut prices without reducing wages—without reducing or dividing anything, in fact. Since the Newlands bill there has been no comprehensive scheme proposed for the development of stream power. And when a general policy is proposed it is all too probable that it will be some plan to commit the government to a program of construction and ownership all along the line. The primary development of the St. Lawrence seaway will have to be public, as was Panama, but the development of the power generated from the harnessed river can and should be left to private enterprise. But Canada is largely committed to the contrary policy.

Mr. Mitchell says that development is not being blocked by any lack of demand or lack of capital. "Development is being blocked by conflicts of jurisdiction, by interstate jealousies, by strife between public and private ownership, by existing or prospective embargoes on power transmission, by attempts to secure special privileges, or by restrictive state legislaton." What an opportunity for a statesman, a man big enough to think continentally and fundamentally!

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

[Copyright: 1923: Fairchild News Service.]

WASHINGTON, D. C.—End of the first year's operation of the Fordney-McCumber tariff act finds its effect on prices still debatable. Wool rates continue to be the center of attack. Imports and collections during the first year, however, are the heaviest in the country's history. No changes in rates as yet have been announced, although the commission has 316 requests.

NEW YORK.—The demand for men's leather gloves has shown a distinct improvement recently, according to local wholesalers. Retailers are asking for much earlier shipments than usual. Favorable weather is believed to be an important factor.

NEW YORK.—Optimism and confidence in the present season is becoming increasingly apparent in the wholesale blouse market. Good sales of the last few weeks have dissipated doubt about the current season. Predictions of a brisk spring business are being heard now on all sides.

NEW YORK.—Although pulling uphill since the spring openings in mid-July, sellers of women's knitted underwear have worked up prices on certain types. Advances are particularly noticeable on 12 cut carded goods. Combed goods are in a less satisfactory position.

NEW YORK.—English broadcloth, lawn and linen underwear has to a large degree supplanted cut silk goods in the better grade trade, according to an opinion in the local market. The change is accredited to the better wearing qualities of the former.

"YELLOW" HEADS AGAIN GIVE JOY TO STOCKHOLDER

BY O. A. MATHER.

Once again the Yellow taxicab enterprises are about to make their stockholders happy. The proposal to increase the class B stock of the Yellow Cab Manufacturing company from 200,000 to 600,000 shares was approved at a stockholders' meeting in Portland, Me., yesterday. The new stock will be sold to stockholders at $12.50 a share, in the ratio of two new shares for each share held.

Yellow Manufacturing shares sold yesterday in the market at $244. At this price the value of the shares, after the increase in capitalization, would be slightly below $90, and the "rights" of the stockholders would be worth about $155.

Means Larger Cash Dividends.

Furthermore, it is announced that the annual dividend rate on the new capitalization will be $5, which action, in effect, more than doubles the present dividend. One share now pays $6 a year, but by the expenditure of $25 for two new shares a stockholder would have three shares paying $15 annually.

The company will receive $5,000,000 from the sale of the new stock. This will be used partly to finance the formation of an acceptance and finance corporation as a subsidiary, which will take over the selling cabs on time payments, which business is now largely handled by the banks, and partly for other corporate purposes.

Expect Larger Taxi Dividend.

There is also likely to be some cheerful news for stockholders of the Chicago Yellow Cab company, which is the taxi operating company, as a result of the directors' meeting tomorrow. It was the belief in La Salle street yesterday that announcement of an increase in dividends from $4 to $6 or even $7.20 a year will be made, the increase to take effect with the new year.

Net earnings of the company for this year are estimated around $2,400,000, which would be equivalent to $12 a share on the 200,000 shares of capital stock. At the beginning of August the company had 2,154 cabs in operation and 5,152 employés.

RAILROAD NOTES

The movement of all kinds of freight on eastern lines operating from Chicago to St. Louis continues active. The total volume of traffic is keeping up well compared to the last few weeks and is still much ahead of a year ago. There is little congestion anywhere in spite of the heavy movement, and the railroads are handling the situation in good shape. Officials of southern roads find little decrease in any line. The movement of nearly all classes of bulk freight keeps up well ahead of a year ago.

Invest Through Reputable House.

The importance of investing only through a reputable house can hardly be overestimated. Frequently we have urged our readers never to place their investments through individuals or strangers. The services of such are no cheaper, but the results may be vastly more costly to the investor who invests on faith with no grounds for that faith. An old established, reliable investment house has built its reputation on honest dealing, conscientious service and a sense of duty to its customers which does not end with the sale of securities to them. Such a house not only carefully investigates each security before offering it to the public but endeavors in every way possible to protect the security holder's interests in the event that anything goes wrong later on. A concrete and striking example of this is afforded by the case of the Des Moines City Railway company.

In 1916 this company put out an issue of general and refunding 5 per cent bonds. A Chicago investment house, with its New York associate, underwrote the issue and sold it to the public. The bonds were considered a sound investment.

During the war the city railway company, which was operating on a 5 cent fare franchise, was unable to operate at a profit and in December, 1918, at its own request, a receiver was appointed. The investment house which had sold the bonds immediately formed a protective committee for the bondholders and requested the deposit of their bonds. This committee, composed of officers of the bond house, started working for a new franchise for the company, so that it might again operate at a profit for the benefit of the bondholders. Fares were raised to 6 cents and then to 8 cents by court order, but the company was fought at every turn and shortly after the establishment of the 8 cent fare, owing to encouragement given by the city council, motor busses commenced operation in the city. These busses plied the street car routes, offering transportation at a 5 cent fare. This competition became so effective that, after a few months, the court ordered the street railway company to discontinue operation.

The public soon realized that it could not get along without any street car service and negotiations were entered into with the city in which Des Moines business men took an active part. The result was that a "service at cost" franchise was granted the company, which provides for a sliding scale of fares. This franchise was accepted by the company Jan. 25, 1922, and by April 1, 1922, the company was able to make such satisfactory representations to the court that the receivers were discharged and the property returned to the company. The company had defaulted the July, 1921, and January, 1922, interest on its bonds, but, upon the discharge of the receivers, the defaulted interest was paid to the bondholders, together with interest upon the overdue interest.

How favorably the new franchise is working out is reflected in the earnings statement of the company for the year ended July 31, 1923—a little over a year after the receiver was discharged. This statement shows net earnings over three and one-half times the annual interest on the bonds, as well as being sufficient to pay all the fixed charges and dividends on the company's preferred stock, besides accumulating in the stabilizing fund $126,000, which will be applicable to reduction of fares when this fund reaches $150,000. The present attitude of the city of Des Moines is reflected in the fact that the company in recent months has sold a considerable amount of its 7 per cent preferred stock in Des Moines at par.

During all this trouble the protective committee, financed entirely by the officers of the bond house, devoted its time and energies to a successful solution of the situation. At an expense to itself of many hundreds of thousands of dollars this was accomplished so that the bondholders' investment might be safe. The bonds were returned to their owners with not a cent of expense to them and are again a sound investment.

Does it not pay to deal with an old, reliable investment house?

PRODUCE MARKETS

A drop of 2c in butter prices in Chicago Saturday was due to increased selling pressure from speculators who have been active in advancing prices of late.

Peaches and all fruits had a good sale, with arrivals about equal to the demand.

A fair trade was on in eggs and poultry, and prices were unchanged. White potatoes sold at unchanged prices, while for early Ohios the call was lighter and market easier. Arrivals were 104 cars and 364 cars were on track.

FINANCIAL NOTES

Subsidence of recent selling pressure in yesterday's quiet half holiday session of the stock market, brought about rather general short covering. Gains were distributed over a wide list but the best exhibitions of group strength were made by the sugars, equipments, cans and motors. The only conspicuous weak spots were Goodrich preferred which broke 7 points, and Commercial Solvents, A and B, which yielded 2 and 3¼ respectively.

Rails moved up with the industrials, the best inquiry being noted for the eastern carriers. Baltimore and Ohio continued its steady advance on reports that August earnings will exceed $4,500,000 net, as compared with a deficit of about $650,000 in the same month last year. Early resumption of dividends on the common stock is expected by Wall street. Baltimore and Ohio touched 51⅝ but slipped back later to 51½ where it was up ½ on the day. Canadian Pacific, New Haven and Reading each gained nearly a point.

Oils as a group were again strong, the strength being based upon the assumption that production is definitely on the wane in the California fields and that the latest price reductions have actually stabilized the market by the elimination of the recent uncertainty which resulted from the expected reduction. The largest gains were reported in the Standard Oil stocks, but fair sized advances were also reported among the independent issues.

The stock market as a whole gained ground during the last week. At the close today the average for fifty stocks, half industrials and half railroads, closed at 79.39 against 79.13 at the close of the previous week. Despite the decline reported in the earlier days of the week, the average failed to drop to the low record for the year established on July 31. Taken by groups, the averages for the week show a gain of about ¾ of a point in the railroad average and a loss of about ¼ point in the industrials.

The remarkable success reported by the Canadian syndicate that marketed $50,000,000 of Dominion of Canada is said to have set at rest all expectation by New York bankers of a share in the rest of that government's financing necessary to take care of maturing war time obligations. Cash subscriptions alone to the Canadian issue, approximated the full amount of the bond offering and, although the bonds are payable, both interest and principal in Canadian dollars, it was reported that New York alone subscribed $25,000,000 of the total, subscriptions having been mainly for the account of insurance companies.

Ship owners and operators of government vessels are keenly interested in the course to be followed by the administration with the regard to operating the shipping board fleet. Now that the question of the legality of the board's much discussed "direct operation" plan has been decided against the board, speculation centers about the fate to be accorded the profit and loss sharing plan offered by the operators. While pleased with the opinion of the attorney general, they profess to see no immediate settlement of the problem as long as the board is disposed to favor the idea of some form of operation independent of the private interests.

Passage of the revised Tarafa railroad consolidation bill in the Cuban senate as announced from Havana, does not insure its adoption as law, according to the view of American sugar interests whose objections caused the modifications to be made eliminating so-called confiscatory provisions. On the contrary, the opinion was advanced that much may depend on a further conference here between the sugar producers and Col. Tarafa, who is returning to New York. This was taken to mean that there is still much doubt as to the satisfactoriness of the new measure.

The Midwest Refining company has reduced prices of Salt Creek, Hamilton Dome, Greybull and Torch Light crude oils 35c per barrel. Cat Creek, Montana, crude oil was also cut 35c per barrel. Midwest also cut prices in various Wyoming fields in line with those announced by the Ohio Oil company.

The Packard Motor Car company has declared a quarterly dividend of 3 per cent on its common stock, payable Oct. 31 on stock of record Oct. 15. The previous dividends have been 2 per cent quarterly, but an extra dividend of 2 per cent was paid three months ago.

The Chicago federal reserve bank reports the weekly movement of credits as follows: Debits to individual deposit account reported for the week ending Sept. 19, by 269 banks in thirty-five leading clearing house cities in the seventh federal reserve district, aggregate $1,165,984,000, an increase of 8.7 per cent compared with a week ago. Aggregate debits to individual deposit account reported by 252 banks in thirty-three clearing houses amounted to $1,157,074,000, an increase of 7.8 per cent, compared with the corresponding week of last year.

According to statistics supplied by the department of commerce, August bookings of more than two-thirds of the commercial castings corporations in the United States were 50,515 tons, or 52.1 per cent of capacity, compared with 53.7 per cent in July and 148.2 per cent in March, when the peak of operations was reached. Orders for railway specialties increased slightly last month.

Last week's cattle receipts at 72,600 were the largest of the year, but carried more in between and commoner kinds than usual, resulting in a sharp break in prices, after a comparatively high start. Barring strictly desirable grades, most in between beef steers closed 50c below a week ago. Best steers Monday equaled the high point of the month at $13.00. Butcher stock and western range cattle closed weak to 25c lower, the latter kind comprising a large proportion of the week's receipts at 15,000. Calves were 50c above a week ago. The week's general average price of good beef cattle at $10.30, equaled previous week, being 5c above a year ago and $2.40 higher than the corresponding week two years ago.

Range of hog prices narrowed further on the week-end session, with light ruling weak to slightly lower, while "packers" and mixed grades met a fully steady outlet. Top dropped 10c at $8.90, with average price unchanged at $8.80, the latter showing only 10c loss since the previous Saturday, while top prices lowered mostly 40c. Commoner grades of hogs in most cases sold strong to a shade higher, compared with a week ago, with "spread" between yesterday's top and average prices being narrowest since July. Better outlet for pigs forced prices back to a level with a week ago.

Last week's hog receipts at 156,700 stand 5,400 larger than previous week, 38,900 larger than a year ago, and 51,500 above the ten year average. Owing to the large number of pigs and light hogs included in the receipts earlier in the week, the average weight, estimated at 240 lbs, dropped 5 lbs under previous week, being lighter than any corresponding period in five years, but shows a gain of 4 lbs over the ten year average. Last week's average price at $8.25 stands 30c below previous week, 75c below a year ago, and $4.00 under the ten year average.

Sheep Receipts Large.

Enormous increases in offerings of feeding stock swelled last week's receipts of sheep and lambs beyond normal, the total at 143,900 standing larger than any corresponding period in about four years and third largest for any week since 1919. Receipts are more than double the arrivals of two months ago when 70,000 was a liberal run. Under the pressure of the large supply prices in the feeder division broke sharply, while fat lambs closed on an upward trend selling $1.00 above best feeders. However, closing prices were still 25@50c under the high point a week ago but reflected fully $1.00 advance over previous week's low time. Last week's average at $12.85 stands $2.00 under the high point of the year at $1.40 above the year's low time.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 23,000 cattle, 48,000 hogs, and 33,000 sheep, against 32,932 cattle, 51,738 hogs, and 42,153 sheep a week ago, and 29,363 cattle, 35,818 hogs, and 25,903 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 69,000 cattle, 145,000 hogs and 115,000 sheep, against 75,165 cattle, 127,769 hogs, and 84,115 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs for Monday range from 35,000 to 54,000. M. Minteer marked 35,000; F. R. Burrows, 40,000; R. W. Oake, 42,000; W. H. Overman, 48,000; E. R. Gentry, 49,000; F. W. Waddell, 50,000; J. T. Brown and Wm. Trotter, 50,000; Geo. Brittain, 51,000, and C. H. Romeiser, 54,000.

CHARCOAL IRON CO. OF AMERICA
8% First Mortgage Sinking Fund Gold Bonds
Due November 1, 1931

Largest producer in the United States of CHARCOAL IRON · WOOD ALCOHOL · ACETATE OF LIME and also a large producer of high-grade hardwood lumber

The Company has total assets of over $15,000,000 as compared with bonds outstanding now of only $3,698,000.

The timber lands alone are valued at a figure in excess of the entire bonded indebtedness, and are considered to be one of the finest tracts of hardwood in America.

Net Earnings, as reported by the Company for the first six months of the current year, after operating expenses, maintenance and taxes, were approximately three times interest charges on outstanding bonded indebtedness.

Business on hand indicates that earnings for the entire year will be at a rate equally as good.

The mortgage provides that the Company shall call by lot every six months a minimum of $100,000 of these bonds at prices given below:

DATE OF CALL	PRICE	DATE OF CALL	PRICE	DATE OF CALL	PRICE
Nov. 1, 1923	112.56	May 1, 1926	109.25	May 1, 1929	104.58

		Nov. 1, 1928	105.42

Out of the original issue of $4,000,000 over $300,000 have been retired. On Friday, September 28th, the numbers of bonds to be called for payment November 1st at 112.56 will be available.

Considering the fact that these bonds are seasoned, secured by first mortgage, readily marketable, and with the next call date only two weeks off, they are undoubtedly selling out of line, and are very attractive at the present market price of about

7% First Mortgage Gold Bonds on the South Shore Villa

Security: These bonds will be secured by absolute closed first mortgage on land fronting 250 feet on South Shore Drive and 179 feet on 69th Street, Chicago, and on three story and English basement modern apartment building containing 39 apartments.

Location: The South Shore Villa will be located on the South Shore Drive, only a block and a half south of Jackson Park, known far and wide as one of the most beautiful parks in the country. Between the Drive and Lake Michigan there is only the golf course of The South Shore Country Club. Transportation facilities are excellent; Illinois Central Express trains to the loop, surface cars and boulevard.

Building: The building will contain 39 apartments: 6 of eight rooms, 21 of six rooms and 12 of five rooms. The exterior of the building is designed after the style of the Italian villas in Tuscany, and will be built of specially made cream-grey pressed brick with terra cotta ornamentation and terra cotta tile roof line.

The living and dining rooms of each apartment face directly east overlooking the golf course and Lake Michigan and have been designed with the largest possible area of windows overlooking the lake. The end of each living room is designed with a sun parlor effect, and a large artistic mantle will be built in each living room. Each bedroom will have at least two windows, and there will be a connecting bath for every bedroom, finished in white porcelain tile walls and tile floors, with the latest style of built-in plumbing fixtures.

All the living, dining and bedrooms are of more than usually generous proportions, the living rooms averaging 14 x 26 feet, dining rooms 13 x 20 feet and bedrooms 12 x 16 feet. The decoration of these master rooms of each apartment will include canvas panelled walls with ornamental plaster cornices. Kitchens will be equipped with incinerators and artificial refrigeration.

For the convenience of tenants there will be a play-room and vehicle storage room for children, and a gymnasium.

Alfred S. Alschuler is the Architect and will supervise the construction of the building.

Valuation and Income: The value of the property, when completed, has been conservatively estimated at $800,000, which is $250,000 more than the amount of the bond issue, ($550,000), and semi-annual serial maturities beginning in 1925 will reduce the amount of the final maturity in 1938 to $225,000 or less than 29% of the value of the property. Thus the margin of safety is steadily increased each year.

The annual income from the property has been conservatively estimated at approximately $120,000, which is more than three times the greatest annual interest charges of this bond issue.

Trustee: The Chicago Title & Trust Co. is the Trustee, and has issued its title guarantee policy in the full amount of the loan. Insurance will be carried payable to the Trustee for the benefit of the bondholders. Provision has been made for the owners to deposit monthly with Jacob Kulp & Co., Inc., funds to provide for interest coupons and serially maturing bonds as they fall due; as well as for taxes, insurance and maintenance.

FROST DAMAGE REPORTS CAUSE BULGE IN CORN

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Increasing numbers of damage reports to the new corn crop by the recent frost brought in increased commission house buying and short covering and September and May advanced to a new high for the season the finish being at net gains of 1⅛@1¾c with September at 86¾c, December 69⅛ to 69¼c and May at 70c.

While wheat acted rather heavy at times and northwestern markets were lower, the strength in corn and week-end evening up resulted in net gains of ⅛@⅝c, with September $1.01, December $1.03¾, and May $1.08¾ at the last. Oats gained ⅛@½c, while rye was ⅛c lower to ⅝c higher.

Corn in Sharp Advance.

The corn market was rather slow in getting started upward, but gradually gathered strength, and the best figures of the week were made at the last. September led the advance, gaining 3¾c for the week, while deferred futures were up 2⅛@3¼c. Wheat gained 1¼@1⅝c, as compared with a week ago, despite the immense movement in Canada, and oats were up ⅝@⅞c and rye ⅞@1⅝c. Provisions were under pressure and lost 5@27½c on lard and 5@22½c on ribs.

Bearish Sentiment in Wheat.

Sentiment in wheat was generally bearish, but local traders got short on an early break, and their covering was largely responsible for the advance. Winnipeg was off ⅛@½c, with increased hedging pressure and receipts of 4,000 to 5,000 cars of all grain expected Monday. Minneapolis declined ⅛@⅝c, with less aggressive buying by mills. Liverpool was off ⅜@½c at the last. Export demand was slow throughout the day, and what little trade developed was in Manitobas. Premiums at Winnipeg were off 1c at the last, with No. 1 northern 4½c over October at the last.

Bigger Trade in Corn.

At no time was there any great pressure on corn, although commission house longs took advantage of the bulges to secure profits on resting orders. A local professional who recently turned bullish on the crop damage started to buy early, and later Snow came out with a statement that there was an increased number of damage reports coming from Ohio, Illinois, Iowa, and Indiana, which stampeded the shorts and made the bulge. Trade broadened on the way up. Corn is now holding in the field in some sections of the belt. Cash corn was in good demand with outside markets again outbidding Chicago in this state and in the west.

Oats showed a firm undertone and quickly reflected the strength in corn, with September going to within ½c of the December at the last. Trade was largely of a local character.

Rye Trade Light.

Interest in rye remains light. Local longs sold September and it showed an easy undertone while the deferred deliveries were firmer in sympathy with wheat. Export demand remains very slow.

Provision trade was light and while the market was somewhat firmer early, the finish was about the bottom, with net losses of 2½c on lard and 5c on ribs, interest in the latter being limited. Liverpool lard was off 3@6d. Prices follow:

PRAIRIE HAY ADVANCED $1

Light receipts and a good demand made a firm market for hay with southwestern and western prairie $1.00 a ton higher. Arrivals were 21 cars timothy, 7 cars southwestern, 3 cars South Dakota prairie, and 1 car rye straw. No. 1 timothy, $26.00@27.00; No. 2, $23.00@25.00; No. 3, $15.00@19.00; sample grade, $10.00@16.00. Southwestern and Nebraska prairie, $19.00@22.00. Feeding and packing, $12.00@16.00. Rye straw, $11.50@19.50; oat and wheat, $9.00@10.50 per ton.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

There was no export business of consequence in wheat at the seaboard yesterday, estimated sales being 200,000 to 300,000 bu in all positions.

Chicago handlers sold 10,000 bu wheat, 65,000 bu corn, and 75,000 bu oats to the domestic trade, with deliveries of 28,000 bu wheat, 35,000 bu oats, 10,000 bu rye, and 15,000 bu barley on September contracts.

Milwaukee is buying low grade wheat in the Chicago market. Basis as compared with September was firm on all grades, with dark No. 1 northern 21c and No. 2 dark 16c over the future, while No. 2 dark hard winter sold at 13c over. No. 2 hard was 5@10c over. Receipts, 79 cars. Outside markets unchanged to 1c higher.

Offerings of cash corn were not large and with a good demand prices advanced readily. No. 2 yellow sold around 3¼c over September, with white 2¼@2½c, and mixed 1¾@2c over the future. Receipts, 96 cars. Outside markets unchanged to 1¼c higher.

No. 2 white oats at Chicago sold at 1½@3½c over September, and No. 3 white at September price to 2c over. Receipts, 67 cars.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

The best class of traders are mainly on the constructive side of the new crop futures of corn and backing the bad crop reports with buying orders for December and May. Country operators are also buying futures and the discounts on the new crop deliveries are expected to be greatly reduced, as they have been too great.

Corn traders derived inspiration from the brief presence in the pit of James A. Patten, the first time in months. He is friendly to the constructive side of the new crop futures and has a little September. The fact that September and May made the highest close so far on the crop tended to make holders confident of the future.

Those who are buying corn base their opinions on the reports from leading corn states that feeders are trying to contract for new corn at 65@75c, the latter report coming from Missouri. Cash corn in St. Louis was 91½@92c, and at Kansas City 86½@88¾c, the latter for No. 2 white, created a great deal of comment and brought in a lot of shorts.

The wheat market borrowed its strength from corn. Otherwise its action is expected to follow that of Winnipeg and Minneapolis. Yesterday was an exception, as Winnipeg closed ⅛@¼c lower and Minneapolis ⅛c lower, October in Winnipeg leading in weakness. A large part of the trading was in back spreading between Chicago and Minneapolis and Duluth. Sentiment remains bearish, with developments of the new week expected to be of a depressing character. The northwest was a seller of wheat in Chicago.

Country deliveries of wheat in western Canada Friday were 5,773,000 bu, making close to 30,000,000 bu for the week. Loadings Friday were 2,676 cars.

"I am getting an increased number of reports of material damage to corn, covering heavy producing sections in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Iowa and also some portions of Minnesota and Wisconsin," said B. W. Snow of Bartlett-Frazier Co. "The damage in exposed and low fields appears much more pronounced than the figures of temperatures would have indicated. It is apparent that not only will there be a large amount of soft and chaffy corn in the states named, but as a result of wet weather since the frost rots and moulds are becoming prevalent."

A grain man of Lafayette, Ind., after talking with some of the most reliable farmers in that part of the country, declares that they say corn is as badly hurt as in 1917.

"Figures of exportable surplus for the United States and Canada now current in the grain trade range as high as 650,000,000 bu, compared with around 500,000,000 bu last year. There appears no foundation for this present high estimate of surplus in the face of a total supply for the two countries, including both crop and carry over, of 1,369,000,000 bu this year, compared with 1,360,000,000 bu last year."

COTTON MARKETS

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—COTTON—Prices had a bad break and a reaction, with the close 2 points lower to 12 points higher. Early weakness and decline was on selling based on favorable weather reports and prospects of a free movement from farms. Late strength came from buying by early sellers on reports of heavy rains in Georgia. Reports from the goods market indicates caution on the buying side. Prices follow:

SALESMEN

We are investment bankers with unlimited assets, doing an annual business of $36,000,000, retailing the highest grade of securities to the public.

We need one or two clean cut salesmen who believe in themselves and can conscientiously preach thrift and sound investments to the general public.

You will have to work hard and be satisfied with moderate pay at the start, but we can offer you an exceptionally attractive future with large earnings if you stay with it.

The members of our sales force earn better than average incomes, and we offer you the same opportunities if you will follow instructions, if you are not easily discouraged and can see what wonderful possibilities for making money there are in our organization. We will pay a reasonable drawing account to start. Write in confidence, giving full particulars and phone.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

Trading in the local unlisted securities market was on a limited scale and with considerable price irregularity during the major portion of the week. Support later developed, however, and closing quotations showed a substantial recovery in values.

Burroughs Adding Machine regained its dividend of $2 and at the close was wanted at $128. Butler Bros., after selling at 35¼, eased off a point, but closed fractionally better at 34½ bid, offered at 34¾c. Elgin National Watch showed some improvement at 41 bid, 43 asked, "ex" the 25 per cent stock dividend to be paid next Tuesday. A good demand developed for both the class A and B shares of the Channel Chemical company, and the closing quotations of 63 bid, 66 asked, and 53 bid, 56 asked, respectively, represented gains of some 5 points. Some few trades of Hygienic Ice new stock were reported at 25½ and 26½. Fairbanks-Morse was neglected and somewhat lower at 50 bid, 51 asked, "ex" the quarterly dividend of $1, which is payable Oct. 1.

National Grocer common continued in demand, stock changing hands at 7½ and 8¼. Bucyrus common relinquished 1½ points at 37½ bid, 38½ asked. The preferred was unchanged, however, at 103 bid, 104 asked, "ex" the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ in addition to an extra disbursement of 50 cents on back dividends of $16, which are in arrears. Some few transactions in Creamery Package were reported at 31¼ and 32½. Parke-Davis was a point lower at 76½ bid, 78 asked.

Paige-Detroit was dull between 20 and 20½. Ford of Canada was erratic, selling at 430, then breaking sharply to 418. A late rally carried it to 417 bid, 430 asked, at which price it closed. Timken Axle continued weak, losing an additional point at 6¾ bid, 7 asked. Motor Products continued strong, gaining some 5 points at 136 bid, 137 asked. Edmund-Jones again sold at 36. Fractionally lower quotations were noted in Rickenbacker Motor at 8½ bid, 8¾ asked.

There was little activity in the sugar shares, and minor losses were in evidence throughout the list. Columbia, 5¼ to 5¾; Godchaux preferred, 57 to 65; Holland-St. Louis, 4¾ to 5¼; Michigan, 4½ to 5, and Utah-Idaho, 2½ to 3.

With few exceptions public utilities were lower. American Light and Traction suffered an additional loss of 2 points at 114 bid, 116 asked. Commonwealth Power, Railway and Light sold at 30½ bid, 31½ asked, off ½ point. Commonwealth Power corporation preferred was wanted at 71, with odd lot offerings at 72½. Federal Electric preferred, which has been inactive the last few months, was traded in at 25 and 26. The last reported sale was in the neighborhood of 31.

The New York Times.

New York, Sept. 22.—[Special.]—Further advance in stock exchange prices and a rise in sterling to the month's highest price were the incidents of today's financial markets.

The strength of the stock market, which carried up a point or more many of the stocks which were under heavy selling pressure earlier in the week, merely illustrated again the fact which has been sufficiently obvious all along—that the present market is one in which neither outside buying nor outside selling has had any appreciable part. It has consisted of futile maneuvers by two opposing groups of professional speculators, which in the long run accomplished nothing more than to move values back and forth from a level to which they invariably returned again.

Favorable Foreign Events Forecast.

France sold for a time at the highest of the week, and the advance of sterling was maintained. As a whole the foreign exchange market plainly enough indicated financial belief that the coming week will bring developments of importance in the Franco-German negotiations.

Bearing to some extent on the foreign exchange situation, today's detailed statement of our gold imports during August shows that out of the total of $33,[illegible], England sent $14,414,000; Germany, $4,711,000; Holland, $4,446,000, and Canada, $5,626,000. The German consignment was evidently Reichsbank gold to be drawn upon in the useless effort to stabilize the mark. The other large consignments were shipped in payment of Europe's obligations in this market.

Shift in Commerce Shown.

The question has been asked, since the net balance against the United States on all accounts in 1922 was $536,000,000, why foreign exchange should be so low and the gold import should continue. Its continuance seemed the more puzzling when a $471,000,000 surplus of exports in our foreign trade for the first eight months of 1922 was turned into an import surplus of $33,590,000 in the same months of 1923.

One answer is that, whereas our market bought some $490,000,000 of foreign securities in these eight months of 1922, it bought only about $200,000,000 in 1923, thus almost exactly offsetting the change in the merchandise balance. Moreover, in both 1921 and 1922 the credits of $250,000,000 to $550,000,000 accruing to the outside world in its entire trade with the United States were applied to reduction of the pre-existing floating indebtedness of other markets to our own. That process is evidently continuing.

New York Reserves Drop.

Changes in the weekly statement of the New York clearing house banks issued today included an increase of $12,500,000 in loans, a decrease of $13,836,000 in demand deposits, an increase of $4,445,000 in time deposits. A falling off of $[illegible] in surplus reserve left a deficit of $6,354,860. Details of the statement, with comparisons, follow:

Big Auto Merger Held Up by Slump in Stock Market

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 22.—Consummation of the proposed merger of the Winton Automobile company of Cleveland, the Haynes Automobile company of Kokomo, Ind., and the Dorris Motor Car company of St. Louis into a $19,000,000 organization to be known as the Consolidated Motors corporation, is indefinite. In the present condition of the stock market it has not been considered advisable to float securities in connection with the merger at this time.

Two Indiana State Banks Made Insolvent by Losses

Seymour, Ind., Sept. 22.—The Crothersville State bank and the Citizens' State bank, two institutions at Crothersville, a town twelve miles south of here, are insolvent, and appointment of a receiver will be asked, Thomas Barr, deputy commissioner of the Indiana state banking department, announced today. The two banks face losses of approximately $100,000, Mr. Barr said. The banks have been closed since Sept. 12.

CHICAGO STOCK TRANSACTIONS

Saturday, Sept. 22, 1923.

Day's sales, shares.........26,000 Total, 1923.........10,200,233
Year ago.........16,000 Previous year.........6,322,487

Trading in Chicago stocks in the week-end session yesterday again was practically monopolized by Yellow Taxi. There was such a press of orders that the opening price was 110 to 110½ on 2,950 shares. Thereafter the price advanced to 111, a new high mark, and closed at 110. The day's transactions aggregated around 14,000 shares, which was more than half the market's turnover. Stewart-Warner was the only other active issue and the price held about steady. On small sales Yellow Manufacturing was up a point, while Hydrox declined 1¼.

Farmers Are "Doing Well," Farm Bureau Reports

With the exception of the wheat farmers, a majority of the farmers appear to be doing well. The American Farm Bureau's bulletin says: "The total cash income gives promise of being greater this present crop year than last for the following commodities: Corn and other cereals, except wheat; cotton, potatoes, dairy products, and poultry products. Hogs will probably yield less income; tobacco, cattle, sheep, and wool should bring about the same gross receipts this crop year as last."

Announcing~The Greatest Advance since the Self Starter

TRAFFIC TRANSMISSION

an exclusive feature of the

1924 CHANDLER

Easiest and Safest Car to Drive

Change at Any Speed
Gears Cannot Clash
Anybody Can Do It
Safest Brake on Hills
Nothing New to Learn

AS the feature of its 1924 models, Chandler presents the biggest advance in motor car construction since the self-starter—the Traffic Transmission.

The starter overcame the evils of cranking. The Traffic Transmission does away with the terrors of shifting gears, eliminating completely the great trial of motoring—the difficulties of maneuvering through city traffic.

A totally new principle is involved. Its first appearance on passenger cars is made in the 1924 Chandler. So sound are its fundamentals that it seems destined for general adoption. For the present, however, only Chandler owners can enjoy the unusual delight it gives to driving. It is built complete in the Chandler plant.

Many manufacturers would have been content to give the public, in any one year, the

Pikes Peak Motor

But Chandler now adds to its triumphs the Traffic Transmission so that even the most inexperienced and timorous driver may fully enjoy the masterly performance powers of the motor which so rapidly won America's respect and admiration.

In the 1924 Chandler, the Pikes Peak Motor remains essentially unchanged, save for an important improvement in the oiling system and certain refinements that make its operation flawlessly smooth and noiseless. These changes are based on the experience of thousands of users, many of whom have driven Chandler cars with Pikes Peak Motors 15000, 18000, and 20000 miles, since January last.

All those who have vainly battled with the perplexities and noise of the old-fashioned gear shift, will naturally want to test for themselves the amazing improvement in driving convenience provided by the Traffic Transmission.

At all speeds in the normal driving range, whether going up hill or down, the change is made without clashing or grinding, and with perfect safety and surety.

For braking purposes it is possible to change from high gear back to second at 35 miles an hour, and from second to low when occasion arises. No dexterity, experience or practice is necessary. Anyone can do it the first time—and with the pressure of the little finger on the gear shift lever.

Gone forever is the uncertainty of shifting gears and its attendant dangers on hills and in heavy traffic. Thousands who have been kept from the driver's seat by the perplexities of the old transmission can now become happy motorists.

The Traffic Transmission insures a positive, silent, instantaneous change under every condition because its construction eliminates the fundamental fault of the old transmission—that of trying to mesh two gears that are spinning at different speeds. The gears of the Traffic Transmission are always in mesh. Their teeth, instead of being chipped and shattered by unsuccessful shifts, actually improve with service.

Silence Despite Power

With the revolutionary Traffic Transmission, the improved and practically noiseless Pikes Peak Motor, the long-lived Chandler chassis with its rugged rear axle, its efficient brakes and feather-weight steering, with handsome comfortable bodies and at record prices—the 1924 Chandler offers values without precedent.

Do not fail to see it! Do not fail to drive it!

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

THERE IS NO REAL SIMPLICITY IN FALL GOWNS

by Mary Connor Rivell

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—Has the tubular or pillow slip frock definitely disappeared from the mode? Is the feminine form about to be restored to the designer, to do as she pleased with it?

Seems so, in spite of the American woman's sworn fealty to the sack cut, and the little yelps of distress vented by many returning buyers—dressmakers, importers, and the like—over the lack of decisive novelty in autumn French styles.

As they bustled about on the piers, collecting their baggage, many designers expressed vivid concern over fall business prospects. Would there appear to be enough change in this season's styles, in the eyes of patrons, to warrant expectations of large orders?

The apprehension, to one getting a first glimpse of what they bought, does not seem to be justified.

The feel of revolutionary change is in frocks meant for street.

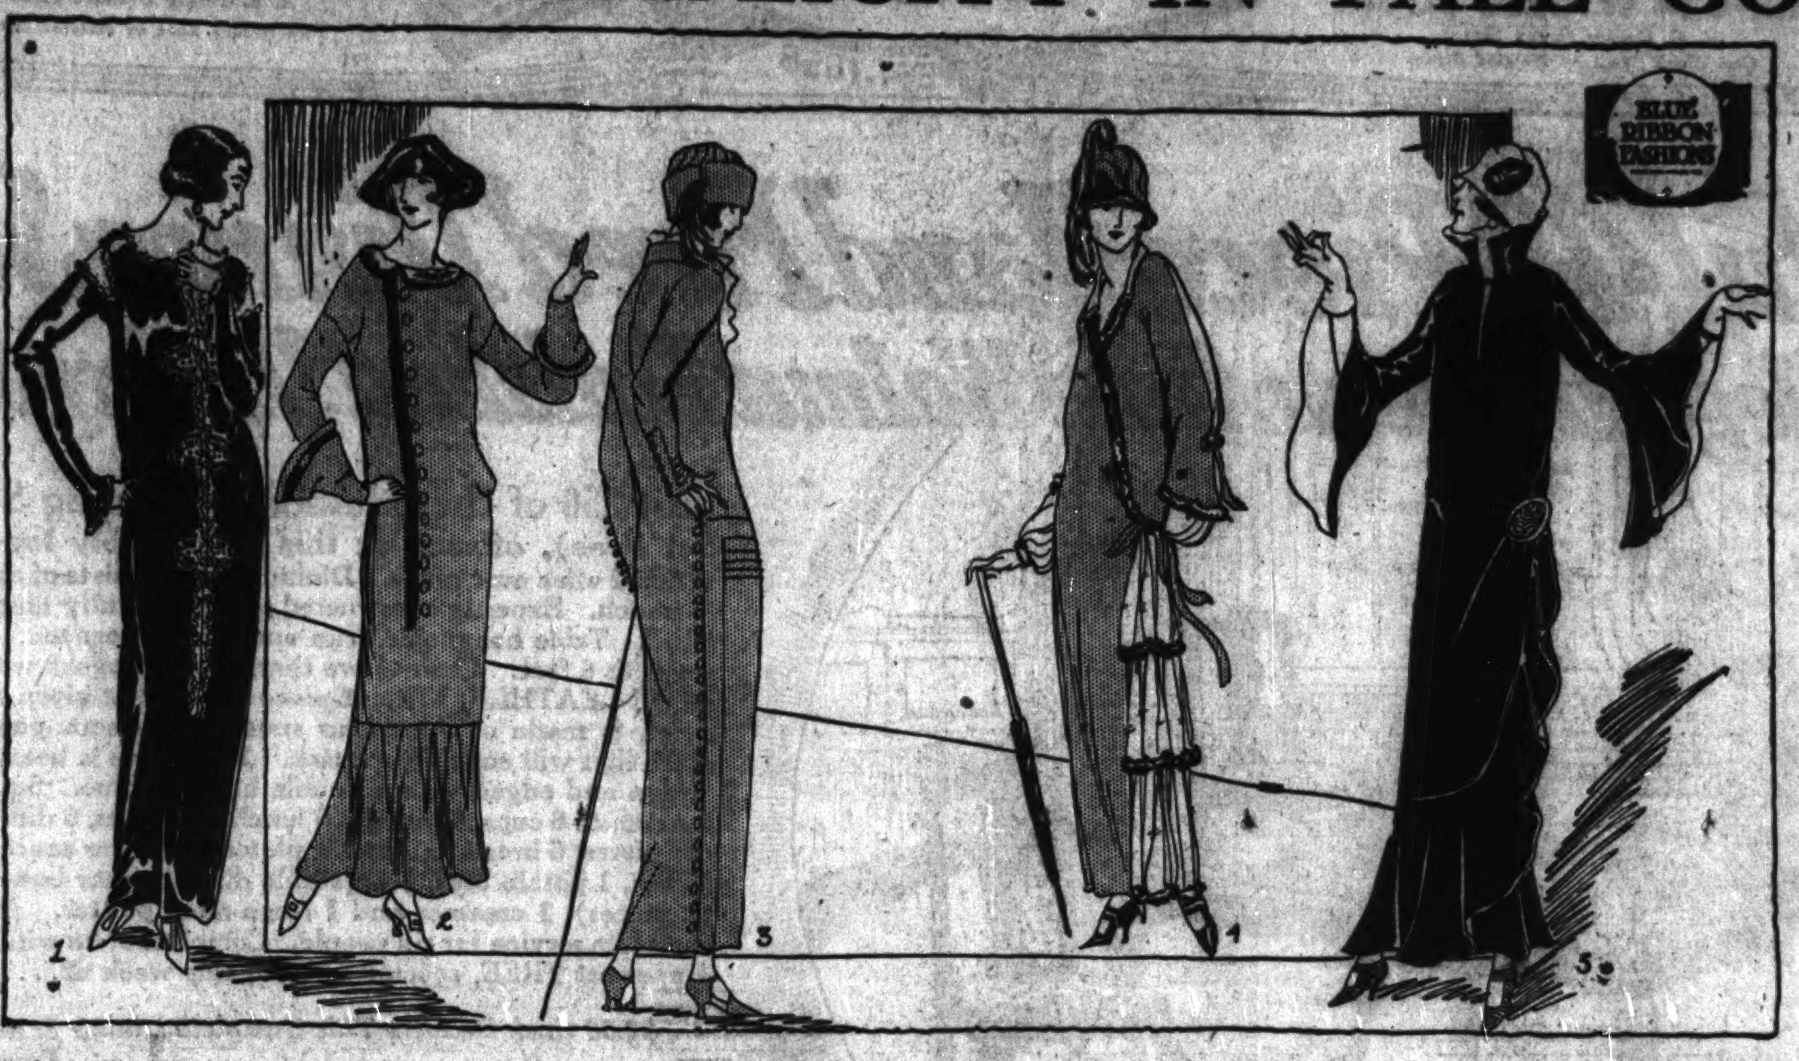
Silhouettes are still dominantly straight, as reported. The small tight hat with the down slanting brim—the cloche—is still with us. And fabrics are interesting, but not surprising, as they said. But real simplicity is gone. Effects are not owed, as heretofore, more or less to the tubular cut. The impression of slenderness and suppleness comes from dressmaking technique far beyond the skill of the novice to grasp or imitate.

It's a more or less clinging line that's measured so as to appear straight, so to speak—a tricksy contradiction that spells business for the expert in achieving it, and puts the clothes of other seasons out of the running in contrast.

A state of beltlessness is true.

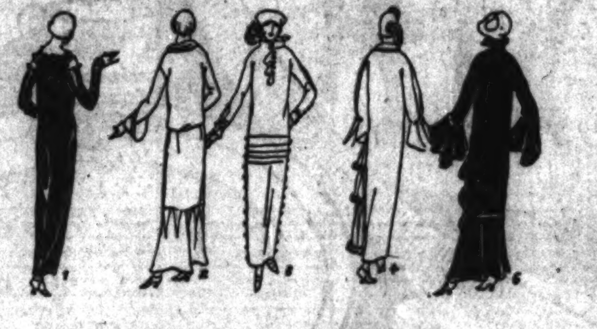
The princess frock is becoming frequent at daytime affairs, and so is the plaited or otherwise fulled flounce added to the skirt about fourteen inches from the bottom, giving a flowing line to the edge.

The tight or flat back, with whatever freedom of line there is going to the front, is the rule, and sleeves oddly dolled up, with a fulled undersleeve doing duty with a flared overpart, or often vice versa. They often part company when they do not do something else, as, for example, in the black velvet frock I am showing today, first at the left.



This frock has apparently a simple straight line, but in reality there is a trick to the cutting and shaping of the skirt that makes it appear a little draped and hiked, without the use of a single fold of real drapery. A narrow edging of gold lace is set into the front edge, and around the neck and sleeve edges. There are two, as you see, or perhaps three sleeve edges, two at the top, where it falls away slashed from the bandlike shoulder, and one at the bottom, slightly flared, as seems to be one rule of today's styles. The motifs at the sides of the openings are of rich embroidery, inclining to petunia and orchid shades, and the lace has been touched up a bit with a brush dipped in petunia paint.

Old fashioned color combinations appear widely, such as brown with cherry or Chinese blue. Looks as if we are now sitting where our grandmothers used to sit, and seeing what they saw and called beautiful. I'm not saying it isn't, only that certain color developments and combinations are surprisingly old fashioned. There was something new in futuristic embroidery and appliques, even in the searching out of unusual peasant designs that went with the furore, still prominent in the new importa- frankly back into our own occidental past. Or when she piped her brown frock with nasturitum, or plaided her blue muslin with amber and green ribbons, as one of the new, frankly 18-something evening frocks does.



Other views of today's drawings.

Piping and banding of red velour are conspicuous on one frock chosen for your delectation, No. 2 to the left. Here gray satin composes the body, with soft gray fur, piped with brick red, making the collar. Gray satin buttons aid the trimming, and cavalier cuffs, banded with the red. The flounced flare is, of course, the novelty of the cut, accomplished with little gussets set in to hold it more strictly to a straight line accounting.

Again the flounced skirt edge appears in the first figure at the right, No. 5, one of the cloth street tions. But a great deal we are now seeing goes perhaps grandmother was copying from the Chinese dresses favored this autumn. Having completed the circle of the skirt, the flounce is carried up to the waistline in front and held with a red galalith buckle. The standup collar, belonging to the category of early fall favorites, and often exemplified in the straight band of the Chinese, standing away from the neck, here appears as a high flare, matched with deep circular cuffs. All the flares are faced with white, a tribute to the ascendant black and white color scheme in the fall couture.

That simplicity is departing from the daytime mode is plainly demonstrable with all of today's models, as you see. Real ease and directness of cut to the frock are gone. And these models are selected as typical, rather than exceptional.

More than a little cleverness of handling is necessary to achieve smartness with all of them, even with No. 3, that goes in for blue twill, tucks, buttons, and a stand-up collar. The front of the skirt, after being laid in tucks at the top, is applied to the back with two rows of closely set, self-covered buttons, and there is an expression of pull towards the front. Again the standing collar, this time quite narrow, is illustrated, filled in with an organdy frill.

It is particularly with dresses like No. 4 that the conscious feeling of a new day in frockery makes itself apparent. The beehive or bowler top to the cloche rim, and the ostrich feather trimming also augment in the impression of another silhouette for daytime. Brown twill is employed for this frock, with georgette set in three tiers, edged with summer ermine, at what would have been a coat dress side closing, if this frock had chosen to abide strictly in that category. More yellowish summer ermine appears at the edges of the bodice and the oversleeves. The undersleeves are of georgette gathered into a cuff of ermine.

Wraps or coats to wear with street frocks having the wide flare or plaiting at the foot, or built in many tiers in the skirt, or otherwise varied from tubular severity, must be studied products of designing in each particular instance, or the effect of a costume is negatived, if not destroyed. In going in for the spiral flare, for example of which No. 5 is an exponent in part at least, the wrap to be worn with it in later chilly days must belong to it or take full consideration of its lines, or its smartness will depart.

Truly, costuming is going to be a much more complicated affair, with the slip frock consigned to attic old trunks, which at the moment seems to be the next step in its itinerary.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

THE SPIRAL MOVEMENT.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

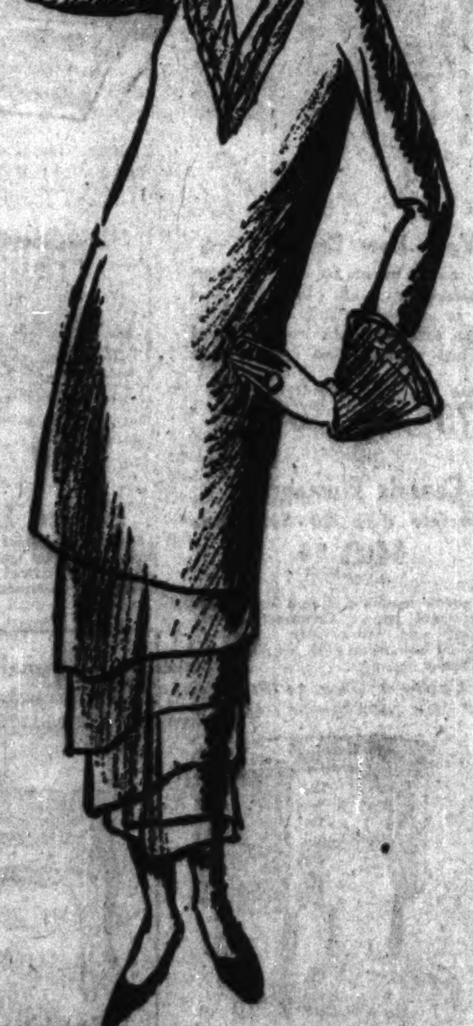
PARIS.—(Special Correspondence.)—You would almost think Premet intended some of his dresses to be mounted by a spiral staircase. You think of the long climb up the Eiffel tower as you look at them. The spiral movement, which we have been describing as a feature of the season's styles, seems to have reached its extremest expression in this house. Tailleurs in particular are garnished with it, the garment in other respects being perfectly straight and tight fitting.

The first model shows the movement to advantage. It needs no explanation beyond what we had been giving in previous letters and the drawing, which shows where this particular ruffle begins its long, winding course just above the hem in front. The suit is of black cloth, with brown leather printed in a design in gold for collar and cuffs. And in this statement are contained two important fashion items—one regarding the use of leather as a trimming and the other suggesting the popularity of the color combination of black with brown.

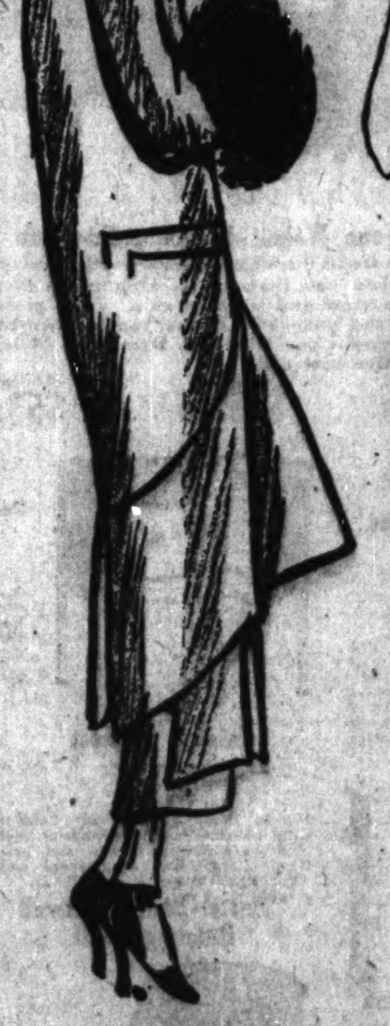
We used to think the latter couldn't be done, didn't we? Out where I used to live this was regarded as one of the unsanctioned combinations. Golden brown stockings, I think, are the most fashionable of any for winter, and they are worn most often with black shoes.

The present costume, like so many others, is beltless and, again in the manner of the day, the collar stands. I don't know yet what happens when one wishes to wear a fur piece, for, believe me, none has been necessary for quite some time. If all Paris summers were like this one, the practice of furs for summer wear would never have begun, and French women are not saying this autumn that it is improper to go without wraps and fur.

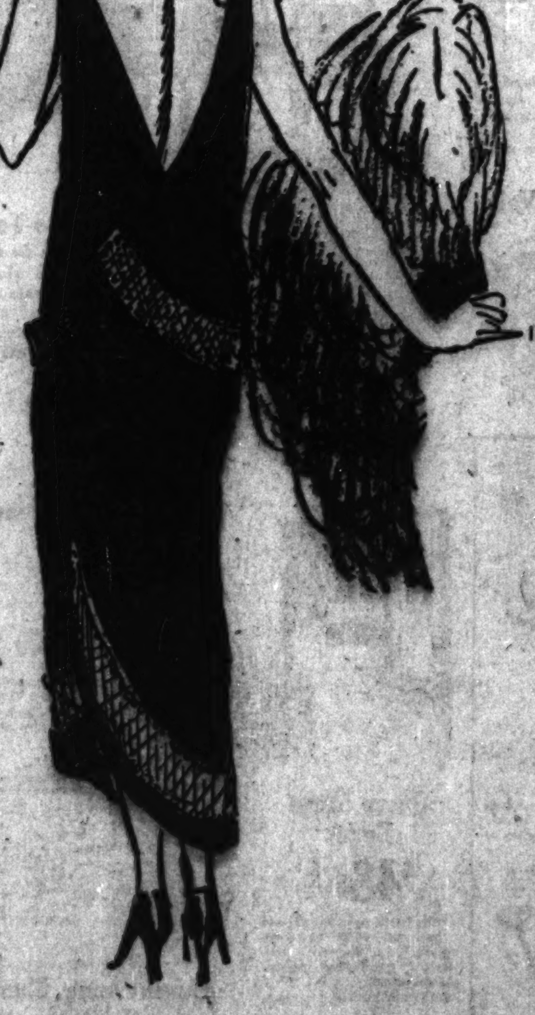
I think, as an advance fashion item, they will not be worn in America next season even if you have considered it necessary to swelter in them this year. Really, as a serious item, I think [illegible], sometimes fur edged, and then again not, are replacing foxes and other animals for summer and mid-season wear.



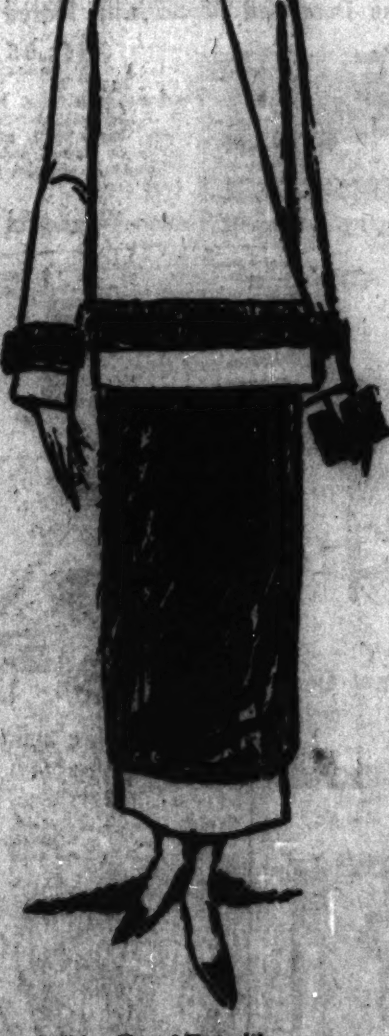
Tailleurs Go In for Spiral Effects.



All of the Houses Are Using This Line.



There's an Upward Tendency in Drapery.



Striking Use of Fur with Broadcloth.

The hat (by Reboux) accompanying this dress is one of the brimless, high crowned models, practically devoid of trimming.

In the second offering the circular spiral movement goes on. You understand that the garment is in one piece, and this circular fold starts in the neighborhood of the knees on the right side, whence it mounts spirally upward to the hip on the left, first taking a dip downward, the sweep of which brings it around the back almost to the level of the starting point. It reaches its highest altitude on the left hip, where it ends. All of the houses are using this line, but I seem to remember it as singularly characteristic of Premet.

The dress is of black corded woolen material, which is fashionable, by the way; a sort of woolen corduroy—and it has a collar of black fur which is repeated in the cuffs. It is a stunning coat, full of good tailored lines.

And if in the early part of some dissertation I should speak of a garment as a coat, while later referring to it as a dress, do not take that as a careless error, but as an unwitting characterization of this season's models. In some cases it is impossible to distinguish the one garment from the other, and on investigation it proves they are the two in one, with possibilities for more intimate uses still when traveling, such as Pullman robe and peignoir. The styles of the season are nothing if not practical.

The third showing is of an evening dress, which also makes use of the spiral movement. It is of black crepe satin, cut exceedingly straight and with a bit of draped movement going upward on the left hip. There is an upward tendency in all French draperies—even if the French franc is not headed in that direction.

The folds of this gown are held in place by an ornament of brilliants. The movement of the drapery gains emphasis by reason of being repeated in a sort of sublimated, gone-to-seed, valueless belt, which pursues a roundabout course over the right side of the body in the neighborhood between hips and waistline. It is made in the same brilliant stones as the side decoration, and so is the garniture outlining the skirt drapery. The dress has a low decollete in the back, and is round in front.

The fourth offering is by Molyneux, and shows a striking use of fur with broadcloth. The material is gray, a warm, dull gray, trimmed in moleskin, and has an overlapping jacket with a diagonal line up the front. The skirt is nearly all of moleskin, with a touch of the material round the bottom, giving it a neat finish, indeed.

That line of a woolen material in silk or brocade is a smart one for skirts this season. Usually such a robe is accompanied by a coat in the material which makes the band. But not necessarily. That is to say, women order the dress without the coat, and the designer always advises them in such cases to retain the band round the bottom, even when it is not repeated elsewhere. Of course, even if one owns a coat connecting up with such a dress, it is not present more than half the time when the robe itself is appearing, and yet it does not at such times look as if it were pieced out with extraneous material.

VACATIONS AND THEN WHAT?

by Antoinette Donnelly
HELEN SPENGLER

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Wonder why a memorial was never established to the man who framed the "Declaration of Independence for Two Weeks a Year," with nothing to do but get yourself overhauled and remodeled and the machinery all set in order for another year's grind?

That instigator has done for humanity more than any other humanitarian on earth!

First thing he teaches us, or reminds us of yearly, is that the world wags just as merrily along without our important presence. And if we could only digest that fact completely, what a world of crows' feet and departing hairs and scowling brows and ragged nerves would be spared.

Your vacation over—what then?

Back into the same old groove, worrying yourself into another bundle of nerves and aching eyes and hungry muscles?

Down with the Worries.

If two weeks in the average outdoor life of the average vacationist can work the average process of rejuvenation, why do we go galumping back again into the old habits of shutting off the wholesome ozone a week or two after we get back to desk or shop or kitchen?

Principally because our ego has not been entirely beaten down, isn't it? Well, perhaps it is, and then again the rent man and his allies, the butcher and the baker, have something to do with it. You can't keep them out of sight forever, that's true!

But they should not be allowed to send all our resolutions scuttling to windward when by reversing the tables a bit their ominous figures might be converted into fairly friendly acquaintances.

It is all in the way you look at 'em. And the eyesight is regulated by the manner in which one profits from the lessons a well spent vacation offers.

Accumulating Health Account.

When we are little, the new year begins for us the day after Christmas, does it not? When we are full blown, it begins the day after we return from vacation.

What, therefore, is this year going to mean for you in the way of accumulating a little health account for your old age?

You probably got out every morning of those blessed weeks of freedom and walked a mile or two or three? Rowed around the lake a few times daily? Took a dip every day? Went to bed early, and as a consequence had not a care or a worry on your mind.

The Farther from Business or Household Cares a Woman Gets in the Evening, the Longer She Will Hold Her Youth.

That's what I did, and earned from a close relative a compliment such as only blood relation would venture—to the effect that when I went away I looked 100, but on my return looked only 90. Well, I calculated rapidly, that might land me in the cradle again at the end of the next fifty if I were to keep up a fairly decent acquaintance with the outdoors and the muscle activity of the aforesaid two. And if I can keep that up year after year, the worst that can happen me is to die of infantile paralysis perhaps.

Air Blows Troubles Away.

Seriously, though, what under the moon and the stars or the daily sun is to prevent any one of us from a two or three mile hike a day? The only excuse is bad personal management. Our vacation taught us that. It taught us we can be beautifully spared for the half hour it requires, as well as that we can gather up enough new energy to accomplish our work in greatly diminished time. It taught us, too, that there is nothing on earth to blow the cobwebs or the crinkles out of our brain like stocking the lungs to full capacity with healthy ozone.

Is there a better time in the whole year to get the walking habit than in the early fall when the optics are delighted at every turn with the color transformation in leaf and tree? With a bite in the air, there is youth in the step, in the torso, and in the mind.

Heralding the virtues of walking may be trite. It's probably something every one knows. But because it is trite, reminders have to be given every one now and then.

Activity Better Than Idleness.

Another thing vacation taught us is that complete idleness hasn't much appeal when you get right down to it. About two days are all of that any of us want.

We found that rest for tired nerves was accomplished through change of occupation rather than through absence of it. That's why we went in for some of the exercise we did and for the amusements as well. We were not idle.

We learned—and that is what I wish to stress here—that activity is infinitely better than inertia. That wishing life were one perpetual round of nothing to do until tomorrow would reduce us to invalidism right quickly. It is not normal.

There is an army of women in business, professional, and home life who out of a nearsighted conscientiousness to duties have little opportunity, or rather give themselves little opportunity to discover that amusement has to be sandwiched into the weeks in order to preserve elasticity, recuperative power, poise, and sanity.

I want to make a plea for amusement outside of the two weeks allotted during vacation time. Any good psychologist will back up the statement that amusement is often more than rest; it is rejuvenation.

Flights from Reality.

The drudgery of occupational life must be got away from frequently in order that it be not allowed to stifle the impulses of youth. Flights from reality are absolutely necessary every now and then. Without these flights women grow old. Theaters and movies are excellent places to hide away from grim realities for a couple of hours.

The farther away a business or professional woman can get in the evening from the daily tasks which call for great concentration of thought and energy, the longer youth will claim her. She should have interests remote from the subject of her working routine and something which calls for comparatively little concentration.

If she uses her eyes in close work by day, the evening should hold the vacation spirit for them. Bridge is much more restful than reading light fiction. Music and dancing are associated with the attitude characteristic of youth.

In closing I should urge, too, that swimming be kept up through the winter months, if one is within reach of a pool, and I do not need to emphasize the value of it as an exercise if you had the daily dip habit on your vacation.

In any event, there is walking closed to none and within the allotted time of every human being if the year ahead is planned with any system at all.

A FRIEND IN NEED by Sally Joy Brown

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

WHERE THEY'LL DO MORE GOOD.

TODAY finds many of us right in the midst of preparations for fall moving, doesn't it? And the rest of us are hauling out winter articles—window drapes, fall and winter clothes, and the other things that come out when the first nip of autumn sets us thinking of the coming winter. And how old things pile up—things we had forgotten we had!

Among them are many we can't use, and yet it costs us a pang to throw them away, while there's service left in them. Throwing them away not only is wasteful, but positively tragic, when we think what a tremendous help they would be to poor people!

Old rugs, even the most threadbare, would be godsends to many a family which has got along in damp basements during the warm weather, but thinks with shudders of the coming blasts of zero weather. Old blankets, worn sheets, quilts, and comforts—articles that really aren't worth the trouble of patching—you can put them down as worth the life of some child, sick and falling in a wind swept attic. And clothing—clothing means the difference between supporting a family and dying of pneumonia this winter to many a workingman and widow!

Simply write, telling me what you have, and I'll guarantee to place your discards where they'll do more good than you ever imagined would be possible!

Seven Children to Clothe.

"I am writing to you in regard to a neighbor of mine who has seven children, one of whom is working. The children just started to school with barely anything to cover them. They are badly in need of clothes.

"MRS. C. S."

Asking for a Dog.

"I wonder if there is any one among your readers who has a little dog to give away. We live in a cottage and have a large yard. I assure you the dog would have the best home. We prefer a male, and would be willing to call for it and certainly would appreciate it, as my little girl is constantly asking for a dog.

"MRS. W. L."

Request for Dress Form.

"I am much in need of a dress form. I have several things to make over for myself and my family, and it is hard to do it without the help of a dress form. I cannot fit the clothes on the children, as they go to school, and I do not get time to sew while they are at home. I cannot afford one of these useful articles, so if some reader has the article I have requested I would be thankful for it. I will call for it or send for it. Thank you very much.

"N. S."

I shall keep your name on file, and I am certain it will not be long before there is a dress form offering.

Widow with Five Children.

"I have seen how so many families have been helped by you, so I thought I would ask some of your readers to help me.

"I am a widow with five children, three of whom are going to school and are badly in need of clothing and shoes. Their ages are 6, 8, and 13. My daughter, who is 17, is in need of a winter coat. She is large for her age. Please try to help us.

MRS. S."

> I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy, and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.
> When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

The widow's children should always be remembered when folks with husbands are disposing of things, so may I ask mothers not to forget the appeal of Mrs. S.?

Unpresentable for Work.

"I am a typist by profession, but owing to illness, I lost speed, and had to accept other employment, which only pays me 30 cents an hour. During the evening I have an opportunity to practice but find my wardrobe is such that I cannot secure a position. It is absolutely essential that I return to my line of work as soon as possible as my board and room bill is steadily increasing. Perhaps some of your readers of my age would be willing to assist me by giving me castoffs. I am a girl 18 years of age, with no one to help me. I wear size 4½ or 5 shoes. Should you be able in any way to help me, I'll be greatly indebted to you.

"M. K."

Eighteen year old feminine readers—can't you come to the assistance of M. K.?

Outlook Is Dark.

"Having never written before, I am at a loss how to go about it, but, anyway, I am begging for help for a family of five children, boy 12½, girl 11, boy 9, boy 5, girl 4 months. They need winter wearing apparel. The father is in the hospital undergoing an operation, which means he will not be able to help much in the near future, and the mother is not able to help just now, being tied down with the baby and not strong. They have no coal and do not know how they can buy any. If you know of any one who can help, please give the number of this home.

"MRS. M. P."

Your solicitude and plea for this family will, I hope, meet with ready response.

Supporting Four at 17.

"I am a girl of 17, greatly in need of a winter coat. As the cold weather is coming soon, I am asking you to help me. I am working to support my widowed mother, and three children, and as my wages are small, I cannot afford to buy a coat, so if any reader has an old winter coat, I would greatly appreciate it and would call for it gladly.

MARIE W."

Were you supporting four persons when you were 17 years old? Think what adult cares mean when most of us at that age do not know what responsibility means. Think that over, and help Marie W., if you can.

Just Home from Hospital.

"I wonder if any reader has a wheel chair not in use. My son has just come from the hospital where he had an operation on his foot for infantile paralysis, and he won't be able to walk for sometime. I am a widow with five small children, and I cannot afford to buy him a chair. We will be thankful if you can help us.

MRS. E. G."

If there is an available wheel chair, may I ask that you remember the widow's 14 year old son?

Offers Cornet Music.

"I have some cornet lesson books I will gladly send to any one who would care to have them.

K. W."

Some student will be after your books when he reads this.

My Gift to You
The white facial clay I use
By Edna Wallace Hopper

After 40 years as a famous beauty, I still look like a girl. Thousands who see me daily, on the stage and elsewhere, marvel at my youthful bloom and contours.

But mine was largely a cultivated beauty. French beauty experts, many years ago, taught me how to do it. And my girlish looks at my grand old age are due to the helps French scientists created.

I have supplied those helps to countless women, and they secured like results. Plain women became beauties. Women old in years have warded off every sign of age. So I know these helps can bring to millions what they crave. And I have decided to supply those helps to all who wish to use them.

First new-type clay

Many years ago French experts taught me to use clay. They said that famous beauties of all ages had employed it.

They then used crude and muddy clays, like many use today. But they have since perfected clay by 20 years of scientific study.

By countless tests they have found the supreme clay, a rare mineral-laden clay. They have learned how to refine it, to remove the useless mud. My clay today is white and clean and dainty. They have found added factors which bring new and manifold results.

The clay I now use—my White Youth Clay—is nothing like the old-time clays. I have used clays for many years, but no other clay has ever brought comparable results. So now I am having this new-type clay made for all who wish to use it.

You must use clay

Clay is essential to beauty at its best. It brings new beauty, and at once. Many women, in 30 minutes, seem to drop ten years. I have seen it make plain women almost raving beauties. Clay users stand out everywhere for their beautiful complexions.

How it restores and maintains one's youthful bloom and contour is shown by my girlish face.

Youth Clay purges the skin of all that clogs and mars it. It acts to remove the cause of sallowness, blackheads and blemishes.

It brings the blood to the skin to nourish and revive it. That brings the rosy afterglow, so amazing when you see it.

It firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores. Thus it gives my skin, even at my age, the smoothness and bloom of a girl.

No matter what your age, the greatest kindness I can do you is to urge you to employ it. If young, do it for added beauty. If older, do it to renew your youth.

Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Clay is now supplied by all druggists and toilet counters. Price, 50c and $1 per tube. Also my Youth Cream, which should follow the clay. Also my Facial Youth, my famous liquid cleanser. Also my Hair Youth, to which I owe my heavy, lustrous hair. My Beauty Book comes with each.

I guarantee that any will delight you. If the first package fails to, your dealer will return its price.

HOW TO ORDER YOUR CLOTILDE PATTERNS.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of each pattern you want. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred; wrap it carefully) for each number, and address your order to Clotilde, CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE, Chicago.

How to Use the Patterns.

THE slip-on house dress pattern No. 1787 is in two pieces—front and back. There is an applied bib to which sash ends are joined and there are large patch pockets. The bib and sash hold the fullness nicely in place at the waist line and help to give a jaunty appearance to the whole.

There is a shoulder seam that extends the length of the short sleeve. This and the combined under arm and sleeve seams are all the seams. French seams are good, but some care must be given where the greatest curve comes under the arms. After the first stitching is done, trim the edges off to about ¼ inch and besides this carefully clip at short intervals where the curve is. Then turn to the wrong side, crease the seam in place, and stitch—making this second stitching about ⅛ inch from the first.

Percale is one of the best materials for the purpose and, while there are solid colors and many designs on a color, there is nothing prettier than the white ground with dots or some design in black or colors. For such a material, ricrac braid will look well. The edges of the bib, neck, sleeves, and pockets will have to be faced first, and then the ricrac is basted on so that nearly half the width shows on the right side. It must be stitched on twice, once close to the edge and the second time about one-quarter inch in.

Pink or blue chambray will be lovely for a dress like pattern No. 1781. The little dress is cut in two pieces—front and back—and there are raglan sleeves. The bloomers pattern is in two pieces, and these are made of the dress material. It would be pretty to set the sleeves in with the narrow French beading, and make the collar and cuffs of the chambray, edging them with plain or dotted footing ruffles.

A half dozen dresses will be none too many to make at a time, and blue, pink, and tan will be good for the chambray. The other three could be made of the pin checked gingham. Children never look more attractive than when dressed in a clean, pretty wash dress, simple in design, but beautifully made.

Pattern No. 1710 is a slip-on kimono blouse. The lower edge is finished with a deep band that extends into sash ends and fastens on the left side. Plain crêpe or satin would be pretty for a blouse of this kind, and the part of the sash that makes the band at the waist could be embroidered in some stunning conventional design in gaily colored wools. Neck and sleeve edges could be bound in the same material as the blouse, in one of the contrasting colors used in the embroidery. The beauty of the blouse would be enhanced by lining the sash ends with the same color.

Georgette is always beautiful for blouses, and if one of the wonderfully figured designs is used little or no trimming is required. A design like this is also pretty made of any of the lovely white materials. For wear at home with a smart skirt one of the flaxons will be attractive. This comes in a variety of cross barred effects and is pretty. Mercerized cotton poplin would also be good, and embroidery would add much to this sort of blouse.

BEAUTY ANSWERS by Antoinette Donnelly

SERIOUS: AT NIGHT APPLY A cloth wrung out in warm water to the closed lids, and let it remain there for a couple of minutes—long enough to release the eye muscles from the one set position they have been in. Then, in the morning, after the face ablution, repeat, using a cold water application to the closed lids. The owner of the most brilliantly clear eyes I ever saw on one beyond the middle aged border told me she had been practicing this little trick every morning and every night for twenty years, and never had to wear glasses. But then she was careful about not abusing her eyes in other ways, too.

SIXTEEN: A STARVATION DIET will do nothing toward the perfect development of the young girl; quite the contrary. Instead of the lovely young thing with color in her cheeks, buoyancy in her step, and youth in her eyes, there will be an anemic or highly strung creature, neither a joy to know or a joy to look upon. Go in for swimming, for basketball, for running and jumping, for hiking and tennis and golf, for any and every form of sport which comes within your province—even to handsprings, vaulting javelin throwing—anything and everything that will keep you actively supple and lively. That's your secret, and your beauty secret. Exercise is the thing for you young girls. If you cannot get it any other way, take up gym work. I heard one young girl criticizing another for her unladylike appetite. The critic was a poor, faulty postured, anemic little thing; the criticized, a wholesome, happy ray of sunshine.

Having the Floor.

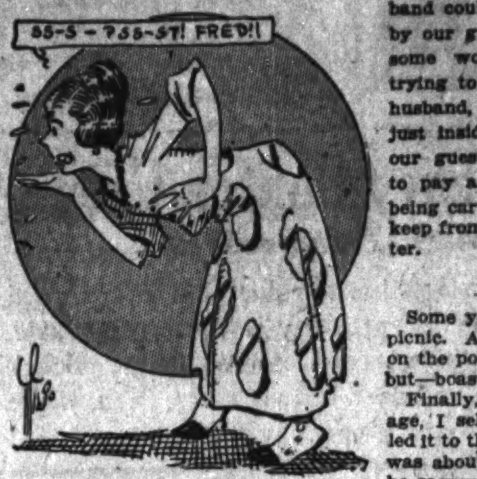
I have a foolish habit of tipping back in my chair, resting against the wall or any convenient support, and relying only on the sustaining power of the two legs remaining on the floor.

In the classroom recently I assumed my pose. Immersed in my book, I suddenly found myself sliding toward the professor, as chair, book, and papers flew in as many directions.

Looking me over carefully, the professor said gently, "Well, you still have the floor." D. B.

Seen and Unseen.

I was entertaining some guests, friends of my husband's, whom I had never met before, and he was anxious that I should make a favorable impression.



SS-S – ?SS-ST! FRED!!

Our telephone was out of order, and just a few moments before dinner was to be served I found I could not get along without a trip to the grocer's.

I tiptoed to the door where my husband could see me and yet be unseen by our guests. I was going through some wonderful contortions, vainly trying to attract the attention of my husband, when I glanced in a mirror just inside the door and saw one of our guests watching me and trying to pay attention to the conversation being carried on and at the same time keep from being convulsed with laughter. J. I.

Pity the Pony.

Some years ago I attended a school picnic. All the children went for rides on the ponies and I wanted to go, too, but—boasting of 190 pounds—hesitated.

Finally, mustering up enough courage, I selected a nice little pony and led it to the bridle path. The attendant was about to help me mount it when he saw my size and told me to wait.

He led away my choice and came back with a full grown horse. F. F.

These Irons WILL NOT BURN OUT

Better Electric Irons

The Two Best Values on the Market

The Sunbeam does the nicest ironing and lasts the longest

It Costs More to make the Sunbeam than any other iron

It pays to buy the SUNBEAM, because it has the seven big improvements that mean longest life and nicest ironing. The SUNBEAM is a stranger to the repairman. It costs you a little more than some other irons, but it is practically everlasting.

It is a better electric iron than you could ever buy before.

DOMESTIC

The Best $5 Iron Made

For 12 years our Domestic Iron has been giving wonderful satisfaction in thousands and thousands of homes.

It is just a good, honest iron, well made, well finished—does splendid work and lasts for years and years.

It will not burn out—the best $5 iron made.

Make your selection of a SUNBEAM or DOMESTIC wherever electric appliances are sold

Seven Big Improvements

1 Heating Unit Will Not Burn Out
The heating unit is hand-wound and encased between whole sheets of genuine India mica. It will give the longest service and never needs repairs.

2 Perfect Heat Distribution
Ironing surface is properly heated. Edges as well as point have extra heat. Heat is evenly distributed over balance of the ironing surface. It does perfect ironing and cuts down the ironing time.

3 Improved Shape
Iron is shaped to do nicer and quicker work. Fine beveled edge prevents pulling on even sheerest materials. Makes ironing easier because it fits all kinds of work. It is especially made to do this.

4 Perfect Finish
Ironing surface is smooth as plate glass. No place for starch to stick. Ironing is immaculate. Heaviest possible nickel plate and high polish makes iron glide with a minimum of effort.

5 Cooler Handle
Air space between body of the iron and base of handle insures a cool handle. Conserves strength and energy and prevents ironing fatigue. With the Sunbeam, the hand never tires because the handle stays cool and is shaped for an easy and comfortable hold.

6 Reinforced Plug Guard
Made of heavy, reinforced steel. Really GUARDS the plug against breakage. The Sunbeam has this guard that protects the plug and terminals perfectly should the iron be dropped.

7 New Stewart Multi-Plug
Extra sturdy plug that fits your other electric appliances. Has firm, double spring action, but does not bind. Goes on and comes off easy. Keeps terminals clean and insures perfect connection at all times.

New and Wonderful—Cooks a Whole Meal

Early Risers! What a treasure this wonderful toaster is with table stove features! Rich, golden brown toast—toasted flat, the right way—on top and, say, a fresh, appetizing mess of bacon and eggs below. All in a jiffy.

Solved! An amazing variety of tempting dishes—cooked right at the table—or at the bedside just as easily.

Mandel Brothers' Autumn Opening Exhibit

EVOLUTION—not revolution—happens to be Paris' way with Fashion this autumn. She takes the mode as she finds it, and develops it beyond its most fondly imagined possibilities. With the established slender silhouette as a basis she originates variations and innovations past all counting.

Regal Furs

AUTUMN bows to their magnificence, and is amazed at the host of them. So very many styles, so very different. Caracul, aristocrat of the mode, may be tan, gray, beige, cocoa or platinum, and always is soft and rich and ultra-smart. Hudson seal allies itself with viatka squirrel and kolinsky.

Interesting novelties

The tan caracul cape sketched below at left, is enriched with red fox and has but one sleeve—a stunning novelty. Fur Salon, fifth floor.

French Hats

ULTRA DISTINGUISHED are Autumn chapeaux from Paris' most noted designers. Small hats with high crowns, large hats with picturesque brims, tams, cloche hats and modified tricornes carry Paris' cachet. French Room, fifth floor.

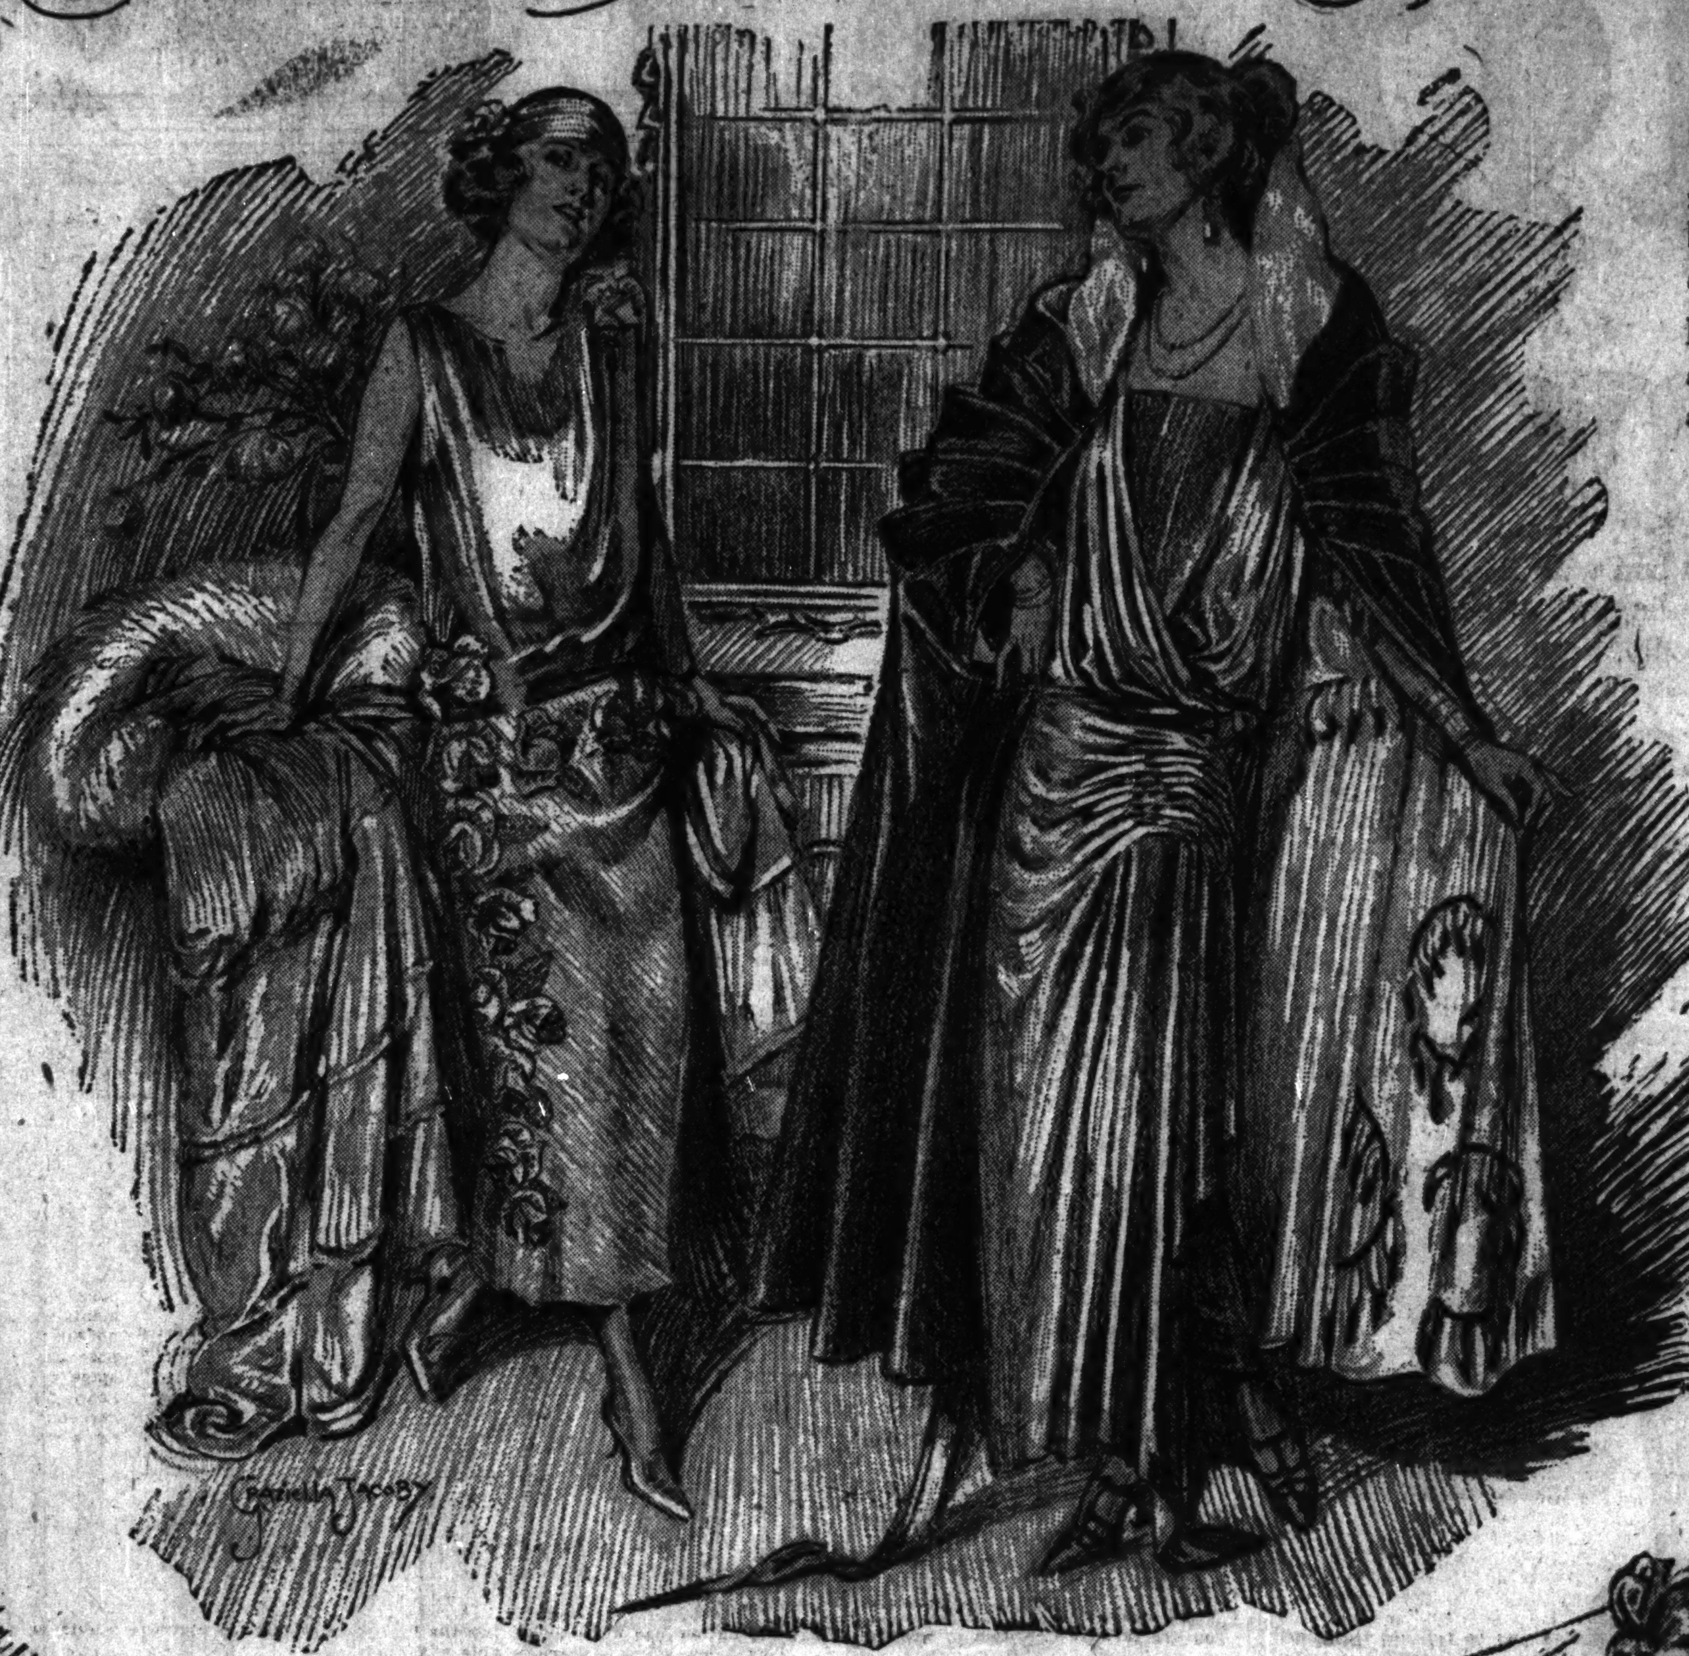
First in color fashions is brown—all the shades of brown from beige and russet to the very darkest tone.

Our copies and adaptations of imported models are distinctly charming.

Blouses

SO EXQUISITE has many a modest blouse become that, worn with an elegant suit, it fittingly may grace formal affairs. A white satin sleeveless style from Paris is aglitter with silver embroidery and rich with white velvet. The debonair style sketched at left is in mandarin effect—in red duvetyn threaded with gold—its slimness accentuated by long tassels.

Blouse Shop, third floor.



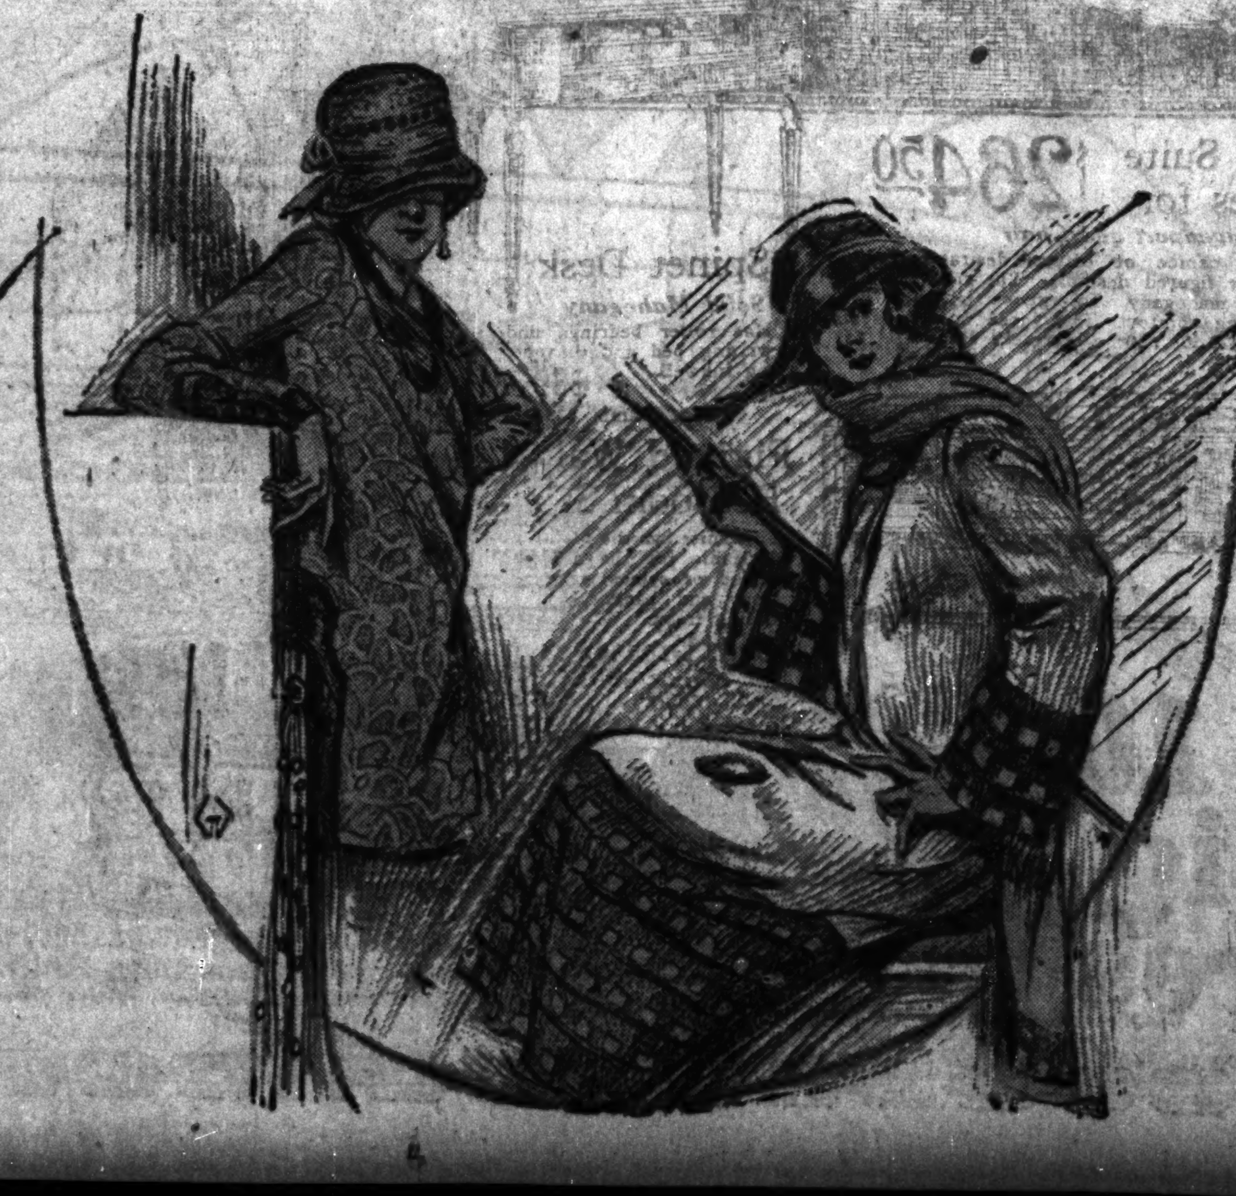
Gowns and Wraps

THE MODE FORMAL emphasizes the grace and dignity of the subtly svelte silhouette, particularly in white, Chinese blue, sunset hues, silver and gold, and sometimes black. Velvets have important place; so, too, have metallic cloths in rich monotones and in brocades; often a studding of rhinestones, starry and twinkling like tiny flakes of snow, broiders a graceful gown.

In the artist's sketch:

Of black chiffon velvet is the evening wrap, at right, with collar of ermine; white velvet with ermine tails is its lining; the Molyneux gown beneath the wrap is of Melba velvet. From Molyneux, too, is the misses' evening gown—at left—of sparkling silver cloth and with a garland of silken roses. The misses' wrap from Patou is of chiffon velvet in shrimp shade, with collar of white fox.

Apparel floor—the fourth.



CHINESE influence is apparent in jaquettes cut like coolies' coats; in heavy tassels, rich embroideries, mandarin hats, and deep blue tones. Embroideries and paisley patterns show Persian and Byzantine richness.

Russia contributes long blouses and colorful stitchery; while England adds the postilion hat and a quaint bouffant silhouette.

World-famed modistes are represented by exclusive models, selected by our style envoys to France: Lanvin, Renee, Molyneux, Jenny, Patou, Chanel, Premet, Callot Soeurs, Worth.

Afternoon Frocks

THE smartest line between two points—if those two points be the neck and hem of the newest frocks—is a straight line, unbroken by even the insinuation of a belt—as in the pictured black chiffon and crepe romaine creation for afternoon—from Renee. Fourth floor.

Costumes Tailleurs

TODAY a frock and a coat have enough in common to join forces in a dashing costume tailleur. In some exclusive models skirt and three-quarter length coat are of the same material, the bodice of contrasting fabric—usually brocaded or embroidered silk crepe, or metal cloth. The costume suit sketched above is of brown stivello, richly adorned with kolinsky fur; bodice of brocaded metal cloth. Fourth floor.

Knitwear Novelties

KNITTED coats, too, develop some of the most attractive of Fashion's fall ideas—the three-quarter length, the short coat, the byron collar, the embroidery motif. The topcoat pictured, of closely knitted yarn, is bordered with contrastingly colored velour; its collar turns itself into a scarf. A short coat of brushed wool, not pictured, is beautifully trimmed with embroidery of velour.

"Dear Miss Blake: My brother, 20, loves a girl, 17—almost my age. When I take her out, she tells me, she loves me better than my brother, and when she is with my brother, she tells him she doesn't care for any one else in the world but him. What is she trying to do? F. A."

What an outrageous young flirt she must be, F. A.! But I would not start any family feud over her because undoubtedly she is telling some one else's brother the same story. A habit like that grows on a young lady.

The Romantic Age.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 16 years old and my girl friend is the same age. We are both wild about a fellow one year our senior. At certain times he is attentive to my chum and at other times to me. I'd like your advice on what to do in this case as it greatly puzzles us. We are both considered good looking and attractive. R. R."

Well, whatever you do, don't quarrel over him! Take your conquests for the moment good naturedly. It is quite all right for the youth to be enamored of you both. Sixteen is just full of complications like that—but that is what makes it the romantic age.

"My girl chum tells me I am foolish to go with him, as he only wantts me for a pal. Sometimes I think it would be better if I tried to forget him after what he said, but I can't seem to do it.

"Please tell me, Miss Blake, what course to pursue, and I'll take your advice. DISCOURAGED."

If you would go out with the other boys it would be the easiest means of forgetting the one who drinks. And I think I would advise you to forget him, dear, because that is a habit that recommends no young man as a reliable friend or a suitor of favor.

These Trouble Makers.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am deeply in love with a young man two years my senior who also claims to be in love with me. I went with him for about three years. He was ill and I went to his house every night to see him whether it rained or snowed. One night I went to a food show with a girl friend and met a young man who is about to be engaged to one of my friends in New York. He had with him about five fellows and when he saw me he was so glad that he put his arm around me, meaning absolutely no harm, but the mother, sisters, and aunt of the fellow I love saw this and also saw me leave the hall with the five fellows, but only two took my girl friend and me home and the rest left us outside. Of course, this fellow got the story from his family and he believed them, and now it is almost four months that we have been separated. I have gone out with others, and had another offer of marriage from a fine fellow with plenty of money, but I cannot accept as I still love the other one. How can I explain my sincerity to him? I cannot live without him. "M. S."

O, dear, what a shame! These demonstrative persons who have no sense of discretion do cause trouble in the world, do they not? But I think that pretty unkind of the boy, and if I were you I would assume the aggrieved and injured air, as you are far more entitled to wear

How to Be Happy Though Married

By DORIS BLAKE

Why Do Women Marry Men? For Their Beauty? For Their Brains? For Romance? For a Meal Ticket?

WHY do women marry men?

Because the choice is limited outside of them?

Foolish question!

Well, then, do they marry them for their great and impressive beauty? For their brains? For their physical prowess? O for the three-a-day meal ticket they usually, if not always, represent? Or to fulfill a romantic dream? A practical or a mercenary purpose?

With just how much emotion—sentimental weakness, if you will—do women view the men they silently measure for the wedding coat?

Listen to Mr. Mencken.

H. L. Mencken, who takes up the defense of women with a lollypop in his left hand and a mighty sledgehammer in his right, appears to have grave doubts about sentimentality's having anything to do with the case.

"Sentimentality in marriage," he proclaims, "is seldom, if ever, observed in women. For reasons we shall examine later they have much more to gain by the business than men, and so they are prompted by their cooler sagacity to enter upon it on the most favorable terms possible and with the minimum admixture of disarming emotions."

Because the business is so advantageous to women, Mr. Mencken insists they are not prone to permit mere emotion and illusion to corrupt their estimation of a situation. And they measure their man to the last stitch on the cutaway.

Only the Courageous Escape.

No man willingly submits himself to the sacrifice, apparently, if Mr. Mencken may be viewed as speaker of the house.

"All normal men fight the thing off; some men are successful for relatively long periods; a few extraordinarily intelligent and courageous men (or perhaps lucky ones) escape altogether."

The efforts of the two sexes are thus directed to diametrically antagonistic ends, according to our worthy defender.

"The number of squareheads captured daily and condemned to matrimonial imprisonment for life just goes to show that it is not defense we need. Rather, something to break up our line."

Wouldn't that make a popular comic strip, I ask you?

However, in all fairness, it must be said that the author has not a noble opinion of his own sex—as warriors anyway—and the hand painted kitchen stove must go to the sex whose feminine initiative and generalship in the capital concern of life enshrouds it all in so purple a maze of romance that men just naturally have no resistance left to withstand the extra pull on the day of court martial.

"Men almost invariably get their mates by the process called falling in love," says Mr. Mencken. Women get theirs by falling into mathematics, it would seem.

Leaving It to the Jury.

In spite of our Menken-admitted superior intelligence, our mathematical precision has not proved the rule, by a goodly number of marriages. And with all the evidence in, the verdict must be that there are battalions of women who still do their additions and subtractions with their hearts instead of their craniums.

But, anyway, we shall also leave it to the jury to decide without further attempt to influence one way or the other, and get on with what we started out to inquire.

Do women favor male beauty? And has the handsome Adonis any appreciable advantage over his more Gothic brother? Does male pulchritude enter into the great matrimonial enterprise at all? Is male beauty as purely illusory as feminine loveliness?

Heroes Sooner or Later.

I overheard a woman about thirty, wearing a wedding ring, exclaim with tense enthusiasm after seeing Rodolf Valentino: "Wouldn't it be heaven to be loved by a man like that!"

And I'll wager the mash notes of a Tom Meighan or a Richard Barthelmess would give the lie to the statements of psychologists that women are not suspectible to beauty. I don't suppose any girl has gone through the stage of adolescence and the several years following without having some gorgeous male enshrined in her heart for a while.

But when it comes to marrying—the average woman seems perfectly content with what in her most romantic moments may hardly be considered a replica of the former ideal.

Perhaps we shall have to concede, after all, that our sex is a bit hard headed and practical in eliminating beauty as a necessary qualification in the male application for domestic honors. But that does not necessarily destroy sentiment.

Kindness Always Wins.

Women are won by the same deeds of kindliness, thoughtfulness, and flattery that men administer, not by the same identical tokens, perhaps, but the appreciation of the better qualities each claims possession of, with a generous portion of flattery thrown in for good measure.

The failure of male pulchritude in the competition for permanent adoption by the opposing sex is based on a personal interest that excludes attention to these small details. There are notable exceptions, to be sure, but the handsome man is more likely to soak up flattery than to exude it.

Then, too, one—male or female—perfectly cognizant of his or her own extraordinary good looks, is inclined to let that factor dominate his or her life to the exclusion of great accomplishments.

Brains, prowess and ability are the qualities that bestir the heart action of the normal, average woman. Not from a meal ticket angle, either! All the elements of personal pride and respect are involved therein.

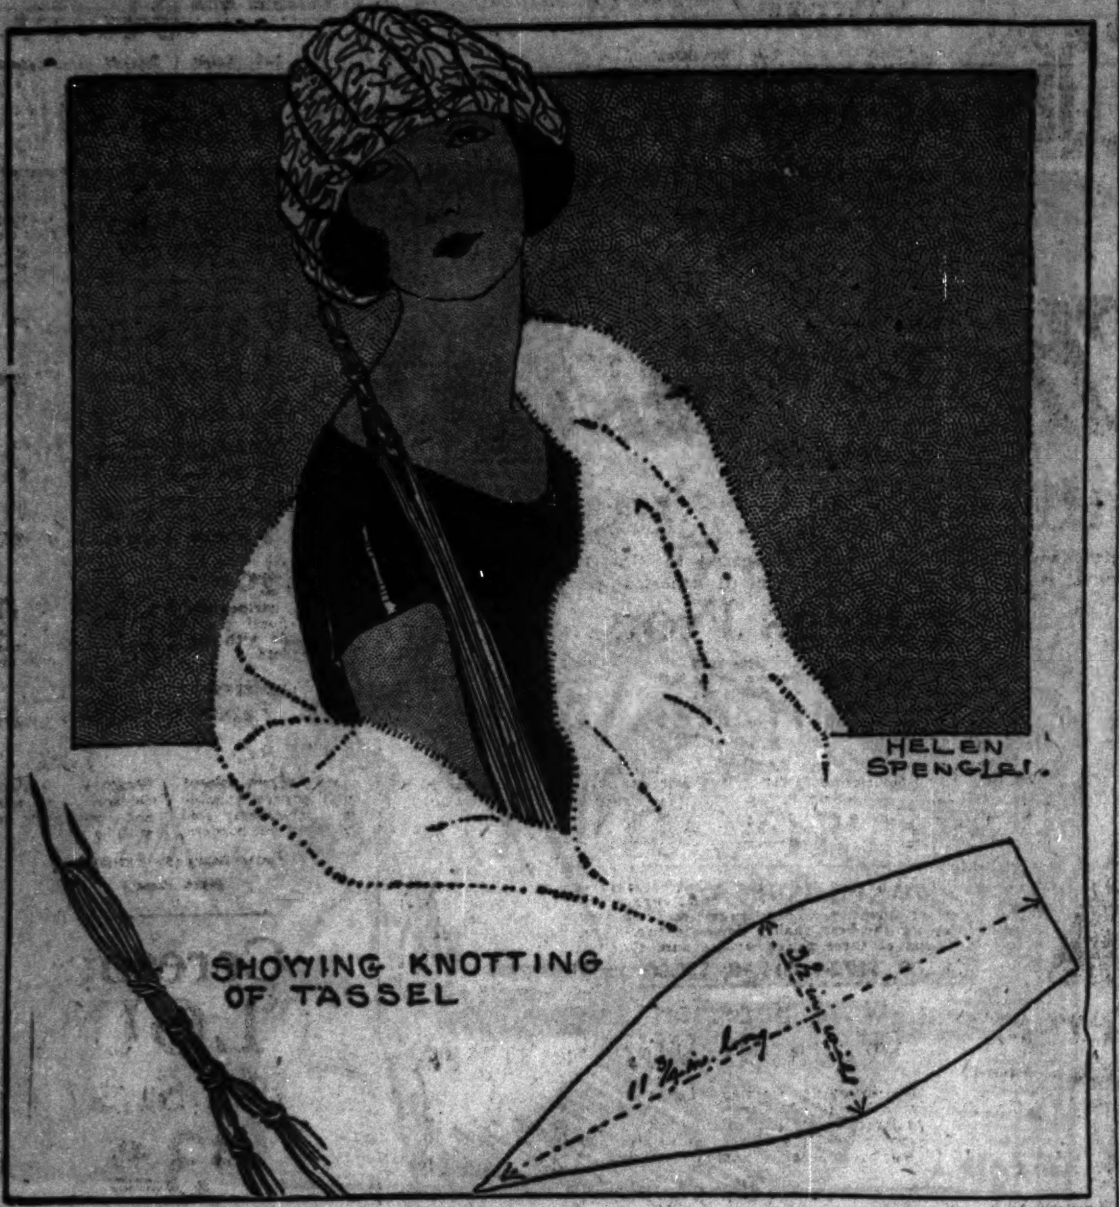
Practical and Fancy Needlework

BY CLOTILDE



> What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework write to Clotilde, Chicago Tribune.

An attractive hat, recently seen at a smart shop, is made of gold brocaded with gorgeous colorings, emerald green, bright and dark red, yellow, several shades of blue, and gray. A tassel, reaching to the waist, is of many shades also.

The shape is on the order of a tam, quite high on one side and brought down softly on the right, the tassel falling from the center of the crown down the right side.

Thirteen sections, 11⅞ inches from top to bottom and 3½ inches from side to side, are joined with machine stitching. Starting at the top—which will be the center of the hat—stitch each seam towards the head size, having all seams right side up. The raw edges are bound with fancy gold and black ribbon about one-half inch wide, sewed on by hand with running stitches. Be sure to catch both edges of the ribbon.

Buy a buckram crown with a soft top, and place the finished sections on it, fastening the centers together. Then sew the bottom, bringing the material over the edge and sewing the raw edges to the inside of the buckram crown, so that the stitches will not show on the outside. Clip the material to fit head size.

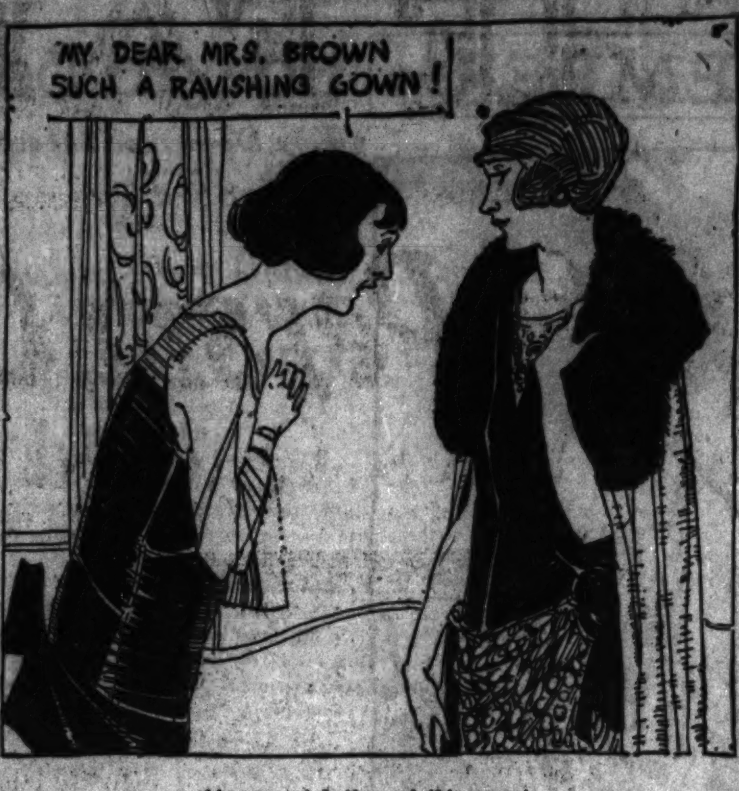
The tassel is made of five shades of ribbonize or rope silk. Pale and emerald green, black, rose, and yellow would make an attractive combination of color. Cut six strands of each color, sixty inches long. Put them together, leaving two of the black strands for tying the tassel at the top. Fold these two in half and slip through the center of the remaining strands and knot several times. These two are then sewed to the center top of the tam, and the heavy part of the tassel is not sewed but knotted to them.

Now take all the green strands, and twist them around the other strands, making a green knot about two inches down. Then take all of the rose strands and make a knot one and one-half inches lower down. After that take the black strands, making the black knot one and one-half inches below the rose knot. Divide all strands in half, and make two knots, side by side. A twelve yard bolt of each color will be sufficient.

The hat as described is suitable for evening wear, and may be modified for afternoons. It looks especially well with a fur wrap.

Black velvet bound in grosgrain ribbon is also suggested for this design. If you prefer it, make the tassel much shorter than the one described above.

What's Wrong Here?



MY DEAR MRS. BROWN SUCH A RAVISHING GOWN!

(Answer at bottom of this page.)

Embarrassing Moments

Over Quick with Applause.

It was in the fall of the year, and one room of our office was being used for the collection of old clothes for foreign missions.

One day my boss emerged from the back room wearing a hat and overcoat. Thinking he had put on some of the donated clothes to be funny, I attempted to show my appreciation of his little joke by laughing heartily.

He looked at me strangely and asked what I was laughing at.

I said "Those funny clothes."

Imagine my dismay when I learned they were his new fall overcoat and hat.

Receiving an Iced Look.

The most embarrassing moment of my life occurred when I was engaged as a clerk in a large department store.

Another clerk and I were talking, and she was telling me about some delicious iced tea she had had for lunch. Just then a customer came up and I turned to wait on her. It was a "charge-take," so she had to sign the slip.

I turned the sales book around to her, and, with the iced tea still on my mind, said: "Will you please drink this, madam?"

LOVE LETTERS

> The Tribune will pay $1 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your private or family possessions you would like to enter in the contest, send it to Love Letter Editor, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned, send copies of the ones you wish to keep.

Love Is Like That.

DADDY HEART: You make me think life isn't worth living; that it isn't worth while trying to get well.

I thought I was learning to get along without you and your letters. I thought I didn't care whether you wrote or not, so long as I thought you loved me just the same. You'd have to go on loving me. Love is like that. You have said so yourself. But do you? Perhaps you are growing as indifferent as I thought I was until these last few days. And now I can't bear to have you cross with me another day. I've got to tell you.

I had thought my various interests sufficient to keep me strong in the faith that it is good to be alive. I worked out that theory succes[illegible] so I thought, and I believed I [illegible] learn to live without you.

But it has all come back—the [illegible] longing for you. These moonlit ni[illegible] The moon floods my little white [illegible] and makes me wild for your [illegible] again.

I have hurt you—again. I may [illegible] have shattered your faith in me, [illegible] things in that last letter that you [illegible] not understand. All along I must [illegible] seemed bent on unseating myself [illegible] the pedestal of virtue upon which [illegible] have placed me. Well, I presu[illegible] have pretty well succeeded in [illegible] just that, at last. But I didn't [illegible] to, dear. I was only teasing, [illegible]

I suppose I haven't any pride [illegible] could not write you like this. I [illegible] let you write first; or, if you did [illegible] let you forget. But I can't, I [illegible] I love you, love you, love you, [illegible] with all my heart! Whether or [illegible] keep my pride does not in the [illegible] matter to me if I cannot keep [illegible] too.

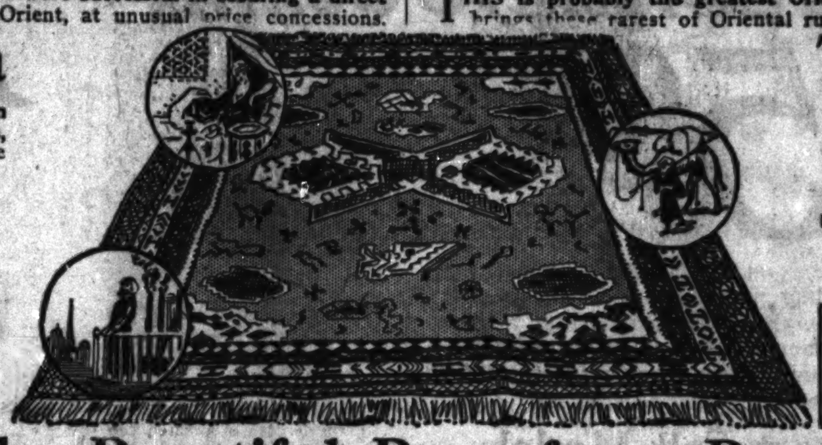
Oriental Rugs from Persia, China and India

At the Lowest Prices Quoted in Many Years

CO-OPERATING with one of America's leading importers, we were successful in securing a direct importation of these beautiful high piled rugs from the Orient, at unusual price concessions.

THIS is probably the greatest Oriental rug opportunity presented to Chicago women, as it brings these rarest of Oriental rugs to about the price level of American made rugs.



The Rugs From India

Our own direct importation. Excellent quality—of woolen fabrics woven by hand. Many designs daintily colored in blues, rose and cream—others have the bolder combinations. The appended list gives a few of these wonderful values.

Size 8.1x5.2 $47.50	Size 9.2x6.2 $62.50	Size 10.3x8.4 $95.00

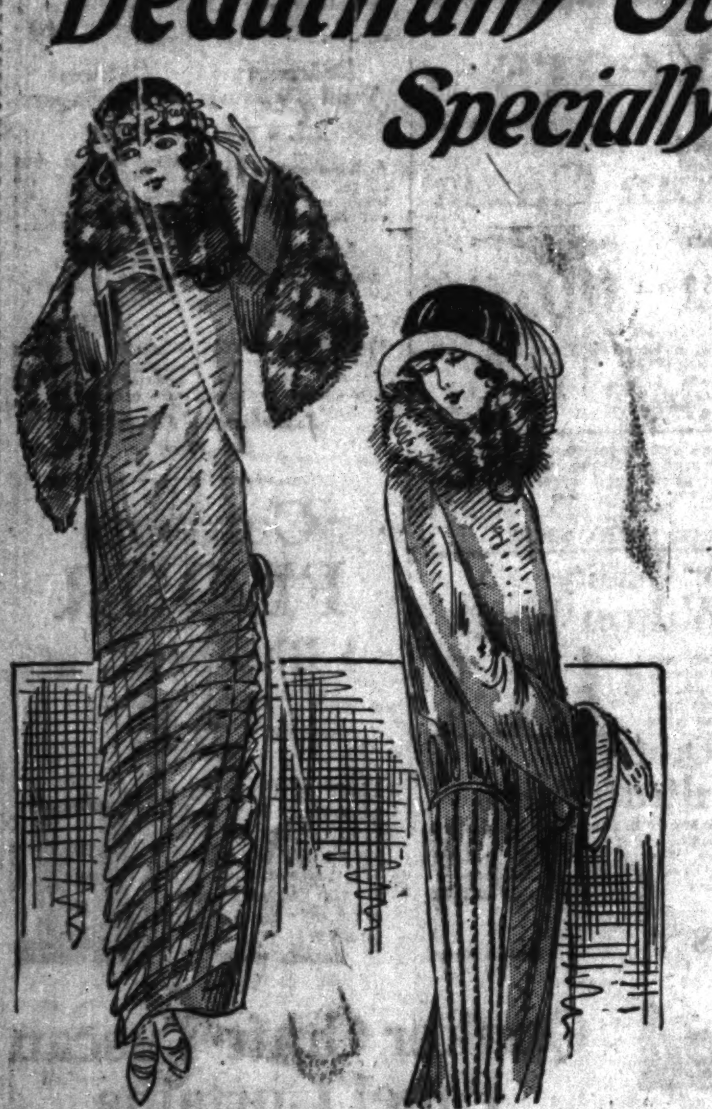
Beautifully Styled Coats—Values up to $125.00

Specially Priced for Monday's Selling at

$65.00



A TREMENDOUS purchase from The Invincible Cloak Co., one of New York's leading makers, enables us to offer these exquisitely fashioned, high grade garments at a price less than the usual cost of manufacture. Such beautiful fabrics, such luxurious fur trimmings, such charming styles, must truly be seen to be appreciated.

All Are Newest Fall Models

A multitude of unusual style features are found in this group. All fasten at the side with ties, elaborate ornaments, or fancy buttons. Many have collars and cuffs of fur. Other forms of trimming include embroidery, heavy stitching, pretty braid effects, and circular folds. Sleeves, too, claim individuality in cut—some set in, others kimono, some deeply cuffed, still others finished about the hand with a flare.

Fabrics of the Finest Quality, Such As:

Lustrosa, Arabella, Fashona, Sumara, Cordova, Bellvera, and Primavera. Many coats feature

Luxurious Fur Trimmings

Of platinum wolf, gray squirrel, Viatka squirrel, Siberian squirrel, beaver, mole, Kit fox, and the well known Korean fox.

Again—This Great Washing Machine Offer
$85 Delite Electric Clothes Washer
Priced for Monday at $62.50

TO meet the demand of those we were unable to supply in the last great selling we have secured two additional carloads of these fine washers. This washer shows a marked improvement over the ordinary type of "Dolly" washer in that it makes a complete revolution instead of the usual one-half or three-quarter turn. This additional power gives added impetus to the whirling water, creating a force that absolutely removes all dirt, grime and grease without the slightest harm to the most delicate fabrics.

Tub Made of clear No. 1 cypress with natural finish. Drains to the last drop through a brass drain faucet arranged for hose connection at the bottom.

Frame Base made of 1½ in. cypress which affords a surplus of strength and of the same high grade material as the tub. Equipped with LARGE DOUBLE WHEELED casters made of cast iron bronzed—operate on roller bearings and will not rust.

Wringer The wringer is of the latest improved type and swings in a circle to all positions. It is directly connected to the motor by a main drive shaft with worm and gear connections instead of by belt, which insures more efficiency, power and economy, and absence of vibration. Controlled by a conveniently placed lever which may be placed in any of three positions—forward, backward or neutral.

Gearing Completely enclosed and dust proof. Has fewer gears than other washers of similar type. The "worms" are turned from cold rolled steel, case hardened and the "gears" are of highest quality of cast bronze.

Motor Full ¼ horse-power General Electric motor.

Capacity Six sheets, eight shirts or their equivalent.

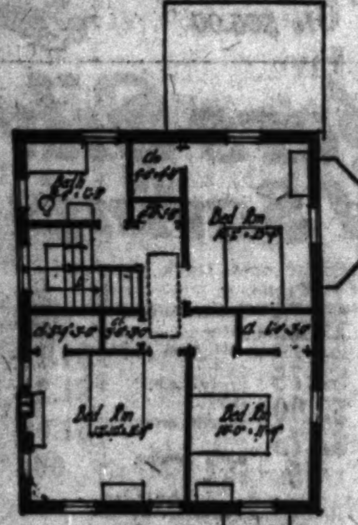
FIRST FLOOR PLAN.



SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

BECAUSE of the feminine touches given it by Katherine Davidson, who assisted her husband, Marion Davidson, in the preparation of the plans, this artistic brick house with its colonial entrance is particularly interesting. Mrs. Davidson has had considerable experience along this line, and has proved of great help in the planning of the various rooms, so that the best possible effects have been achieved.

A home of this type is particularly adaptable to a city lot, although suburban houses of the same character are being built in great numbers.

Red brown, brown, and green brown bricks, with a smooth textured surface, are used to lay up the exterior wall. In pleasing harmony is the dark brown mortar in the struck joints. To set off the brick from the masonry foundation walls, a brick soldier course (that is, brick set on end) is used at the base of the brick wall. The flat arches with a center keystone of masonry over the first story windows also add distinction to the character of the brick work. Another soldier course is used as a belt course encircling the building at the line of the lintels over the second story windows.

This is decidedly not a "shirt front" house, as face brick is used on all four walls of the buildings and on the garage, which harmonizes with it, at the rear of the lot. The building is essentially rectangular, the bay in the dining room being the only variation from its regularity. Notwithstanding the modest amount of exterior embellishment, the structure is pleasing because the scheme has been so well thought out, and there is enough color variation in the cream tinted trim and olive green shutters and wrought iron ornaments at the bottom of the first floor windows and over the entrance door. The fact, too, that a rectangular two story house is considered the most economical in construction cost should not be overlooked.

The substantial entrance door leads directly into the living room. This is of good size and proportion, being 14 feet 8 inches wide and 22 feet 10 inches long. Two large casement windows on the side facing the street and another large casement window on the wall opposite the fireplace make this a well lighted and cheerful living room. In dispensing with the customary vestibule the architects have simplified the problem of furnishing for the living room.

Flanking the fireplace on either side are two built-in bookcases, extending to either wall of the room. The entire wall at this end is unbroken by windows, a situation which interior decorators can use to good advantage. This leaves the balance of the living room well adapted for the placing of the bed davenport just opposite the fireplace, with a long, narrow table and torcheres on either end, other furnishings being readily accommodated in the remainder of the space.

A large cased opening leads directly into the dining room, which also opens on to a porch with tiled floor. A convenience which will be appreciated in the servantless household is the cabinet with glass doors on both the kitchen and dining room sides. This cabinet can be made substantially airtight, so that foods may be placed in it from the kitchen and then served by way of the dining room opening on the other side.

In other respects the kitchen is a model of convenience. It is directly adjacent to the dining room, from which it is separated by a swinging door. There is a built-in compartment for an ice chest, which is readily accessible from the side entry, so that icing is effected without coming into the kitchen. Over the ice compartment and extending to the ceiling is a cabinet, in which imperishables may be stored and still be within easy reach. The large kitchen sink is placed directly under the triple window. This window and another, in conjunction with the side entry door, enable the housewife to rid the kitchen of cooking odors without difficulty. At the same time they assure a cool and comfortable work room.

Mrs. Davidson no doubt had an important part in the planning of the basement, as there is an exceptionally large laundry and drying space. However, we presume it was Mr. Davidson who saw to it that the wine cellar was provided for the storing of non-alcoholic liquors. There is also a large fuel storage room, and at the opposite end of the basement a partitioned off space used for general storage purposes.

In retracing our steps to the second floor we pause to admire the crackless and stainless ceilings of the living and dining rooms. In two story buildings especially, and where construction of a superior type is desired, architects and builders have come to recognize the particular suitability of metal lath as a base and reinforcement for plaster to prevent plaster cracks and discolorations. It is said that the slightly additional expense of such construction is more than offset by the saving in decorators' expense for upkeep.

A particularly effective arrangement of rooms is to be found on the second floor. There are three bedrooms, each of comfortable size, with larger than ordinary clothes closets. The main bedroom is especially well planned, having four windows for light and ventilation. It has also its own fireplace. The other bedrooms are likewise corner rooms, with two windows apiece. All open on a small hall, which in turn leads to the bathroom. There is also a separate linen closet within convenient reach.

Some thought has been given to the landscaping of the lot. Centering on the rear porch is a garden with a cement garden seat at its far end. Screening it from the vegetable plot and the garage is a closely planted hedge.

The garage at the rear of the lot, which is also built of brick, faces a long cement drive leading past the house and continuing to the front curb.

These, in brief, are the salient points of the house designed by Mr. and Mrs. Davidson. There are many other minor points quite as important in the construction. Enough has been said, however, to give the reader a fairly comprehensive idea of some of the essential details of home construction with which he must familiarize himself before he can erect a house best suited to his needs. The importance of having an architect to prepare one's plans cannot be overestimated.

Doris Blake's Answers TO LOVE PROBLEMS

it than he. I think I would just tell him a thing or two about how ungrateful you think him. He needs some one to do it. Isn't jealousy the rank and outrageous demon, though?

You Are Unreasonable.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am writing to see if you can help me as you have helped many other people.

"I am in love with a young man four years my senior but I do not know whether he cares for me.

"He has asked me out a few times but I have always declined his invitations.

"I know he fools with other girls so I am waiting for your advice, to see if I should go with him. And I should like to know how I can find out if he cares for me. WAITING."

Now, dear, it is utterly foolish of you to decline his invitations and then hope his interest will continue. It just does not happen that way in real life. Boys like to think their company is appreciated. What if he does go out with other girls? You will never cure him of the habit if you lead him to believe by your present course of action that the other girls like him better than you do.

NO NEED TO BE DYSPEPTIC

If Stomach Sours, Gets Gassy and Heavy, Sweeten and Lighten With Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

One never grows too old to forget the delights of eating. And yet old people will sometimes play on these memories and bring on dyspeptic attacks even though the diet be simple. Every family should be supplied with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. From childhood to old age they daily overcome or prevent the distresses due to indigestion. They sweeten the stomach by giving it the alkaline effect as in health, they absorb the gases, they lift off the feeling of heaviness, they stop sour risings or heart burn, they actually assist in the digestion of food, and from all points of view are one of the most invaluable aids to health to be found. So, no matter what you eat, if your stomach rebels, always remember that a 60-cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will keep your stomach sweet and thus aid to prevent much of the distress that comes late in life.

SYRUP PEPSIN
Keeps him in good health

Clogged-Up? Here's Quick Aid

NEVER mind what you are using now for constipation. For all you know there is a better remedy! The next time you are clogged up try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a laxative successfully used for 30 years, the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. Mrs. John A. Goins of Butlerville, Ind., constipated all her life, her stomach injured from years of pill taking, is now functioning daily since taking Syrup Pepsin; and Mr. David O'Connor of Canton, Ohio, suffering steadily for three years, got relief after a few doses. The list of successful users of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is naturally large as over 10 million bottles are sold annually.

Formula on Every Package

Get yourself a bottle at a drug store, the cost being less than a cent a dose. Take a spoonful at bedtime for a few nights and we guarantee that the most chronic constipation will be relieved, or refund your money. A few doses in succession soon train the stomach muscles to act for themselves. Many, however, take it once a week and in that way keep the bowels regularly open. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, unlike harsh physics such as calomel, "candy cathartics," salt waters and powders, is a simple vegetable laxative composed of Egyptian senna and pepsin with tasty aromatics which are entirely harmless.

This Remedy Guaranteed

It has been accurately proven that a constipated person is only 75 per cent efficient. It slows you up; makes you dull and lazy. Take Syrup Pepsin the first day you do not have complete bowel movement. Take it, guaranteed, for constipation, torpid liver, dyspepsia, biliousness, sour stomach, headache, lack of appetite. A spoonful at the first sneeze or sniffle will kill a cold overnight. Half the ailments of winter start with constipation followed by a cold.

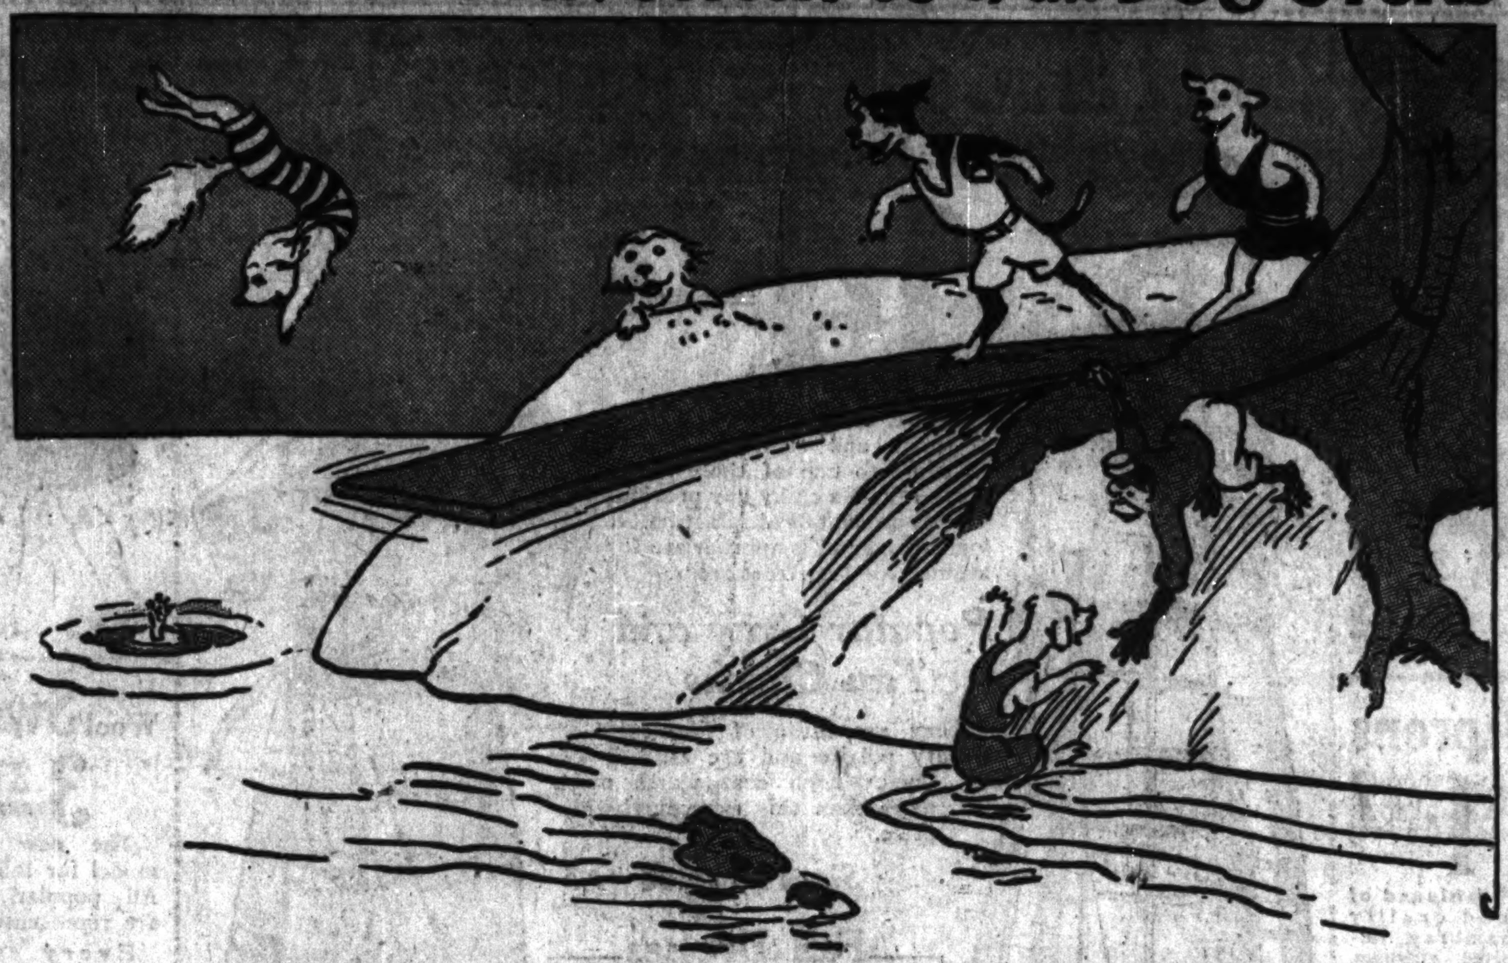
Wonderful Adventures of the Dog Club



The Gravel Pitters Hold Their Picnic.

By Raymond Kelly.

"WELL, I must say, it's mighty decent of him," remarked Granger, the collie.

"What, why, of whom?" asked Wolf, the police dog.

"Why, the weather man, of course, to give us so nice a day for our picnic on the island."

"Oh, I see. And are all the Gravel Pit pups here?"

"Every last one of them," said Ginger, the fox terrier. "And look what I've brought. Boy Ted made them for us," and Ginger passed out to each dog a red tissue paper cap with a beautiful green plume and a sash to match. They all looked mighty gay in them, and Carlo even so far forgot his dignity as to put his on a little over one ear.

Then there was a great scrambling and barking and yelping, as they gathered the lunch baskets together and took their places on the raft, while Wiggler, the monkey, prepared to climb the pole so that he might walk across on the wires and tow the raft.

"Just a minute, fellows," a voice called out, and all the pups turned to see who had spoken. It was a donkey with long ears, and so gray that he was almost white. He was chewing a thistle stem that would hurt a dog's mouth terribly, but the donkey seemed to enjoy it, for he was smiling.

"Are you dogs going over to the island?" he asked. "If so, I'll just go along."

"Why, thank you very much," said Carlo with his best bow, "but this is a dog picnic, and, besides, I am afraid you would be much too heavy to ride on our raft. It might sink, you know."

"Why, bless your heart," brayed the donkey, laughing. "I can wade this river nicely. I only thought you might like me to tow your raft. Your monkey can tie the rope around my neck. I sha'n't bother your picnic party at all, either. I'll just browse around in the woods and eat some of the choice weeds and thistles until time to come home, and then I'll tow you back."

"Agreed," said Carlo, and all the Gravel Pitters cheered.

So, in a short while, they were on the island and having a wonderful time. Wiggler gathered over a hundred clams, and opened them for lunch, and besides they all had the things to eat that were in the basket.

After lunch they ran races on the sand and went swimming. They found a spring board that some boys had put up, and they dived from it, too. Toodles, the poodle, was best at that, because he had been in the circus once, and could turn three somersaults before hitting the water.

Then they all went hunting, and almost caught two squirrels and a rabbit. And Ginger found a big crayfish, but it's hard to say whether he caught it or it caught him.

And in all, they had a wonderful time and when the donkey came to tow them back across the river they were almost as tired as they were happy.

"Thank you very much for helping us," said Carlo to the donkey when all the Gravel Pitters were ashore. "I am sure I am not flattering you when I say you are the most perfect donkey I have ever met."

Bright Sayings of Children

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

The Tribune will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

Robert had been visiting for two days at a maiden aunt's. His most exciting bit of amusement had been looking at the family album.

When he got home he simply bolted around the room as if let loose from a prison, and then he said to Edward, his smaller brother: "Oh, Ed, come on out and let's fight for a whole hour."

Julia's family frequently loads up a few kitbags with provisions, and goes for a mountain climb.

The other day when Julia saw a long procession of ants climbing up the terrace, all loaded with crumbs for winter storage, she ran into the house and exclaimed, "Mother, come quick if you want to se all these bugs going on a hike." E. L. R.

"What would you like for your birthday, Norma?" asked mother.

"I want a small auto, a big doll, skates, and candy."

"Why, I haven't got so much money to buy so many things."

Norma replied, "That's nothing. Papa's got a check book. There are a lot of pages in the book yet. We don't need money." N. F. T.

Sally went with her parents to a community picnic. The food was all arranged on long tables and served cafeteria style. As Sally passed along she spied some fried spring chicken.

"Would you like a piece, dear," asked the woman behind the counter.

"Yes, please," replied the tiny miss, primly, "if I tould have the part the chicky walks on." E. C. B.

The last child of the family next door was married recently, and when Mary Jean, who lives across the street, was asked if this family had any children, she replied, "No, they've run out of children; they are all married now." O. D.

Elly had promised to stay with me in the afternoon while her mother went shopping, but in the meantime her aunt had telephoned for her to come and spend the day.

After getting the message she came over to see me, and released herself by saying, "Please could I borrow myself back, 'cause I'm going to my auntie's." J. O.

Arline tumbled down the stairs and, finding herself unhurt, remarked that the worst part of it was she would have to climb them all over again.

The next night as she bade her mother good-night at the foot of the stairs she said: "If I could only fall upstairs as easily as I can fall down I wouldn't have to climb those old steps every night." H. H.

Junior was about to enter school.

Mother said, "You want to go to school this year and learn to write, so that you can writes notes to your friend, Betty, instead of printing them."

Junior replied promptly, "Yes, I want to learn to write, and the first thing you will have to get me is a check book." Y. T.

Our new neighbors have twins, and I was under the impression that they were boy and girl.

I saw them out playing in the sand pile in overalls, and asked: "Which of you is the girl?"

I received this surprising answer: "We both ain't." E. L. R.

Rugs Held for Future Delivery

TOMORROW brings forth an event that thousands have been waiting for—our gigantic Semi-Annual Sale of Rugs. For weeks and months we have been planning for this great sale and after accomplishing almost miraculous feats in merchandising, we hold out to the public positively the greatest values ever offered in rugs and linoleums by any one concern.

PARTICULAR care was exercised in selecting each article in this huge assortment—no matter how small the item—therefore, quality and workmanship stand out boldly—hand in hand with prices so low that the most discriminating shoppers will instantly realize that to buy now will mean many dollars saved. Do not delay your selection of any floor covering you may need. Buy now—at prices that absolutely cannot be duplicated.

9x12 Worsted Wilton Rugs

$97.56

This group represents the finest quality rugs made in America. The highest grade yarns are used in their manufacturing, giving them a soft, silky finish, the best that any mill can produce. For years it has been impossible to buy this quality rug anywhere at this low sale price.

27x54 Velvet Rugs

1.63

This is the most unheard-of value in the carpet market. They prolong the life of larger and more expensive rugs, and come in beautiful designs to match them.

6x19 Axminster and Velvet Rugs

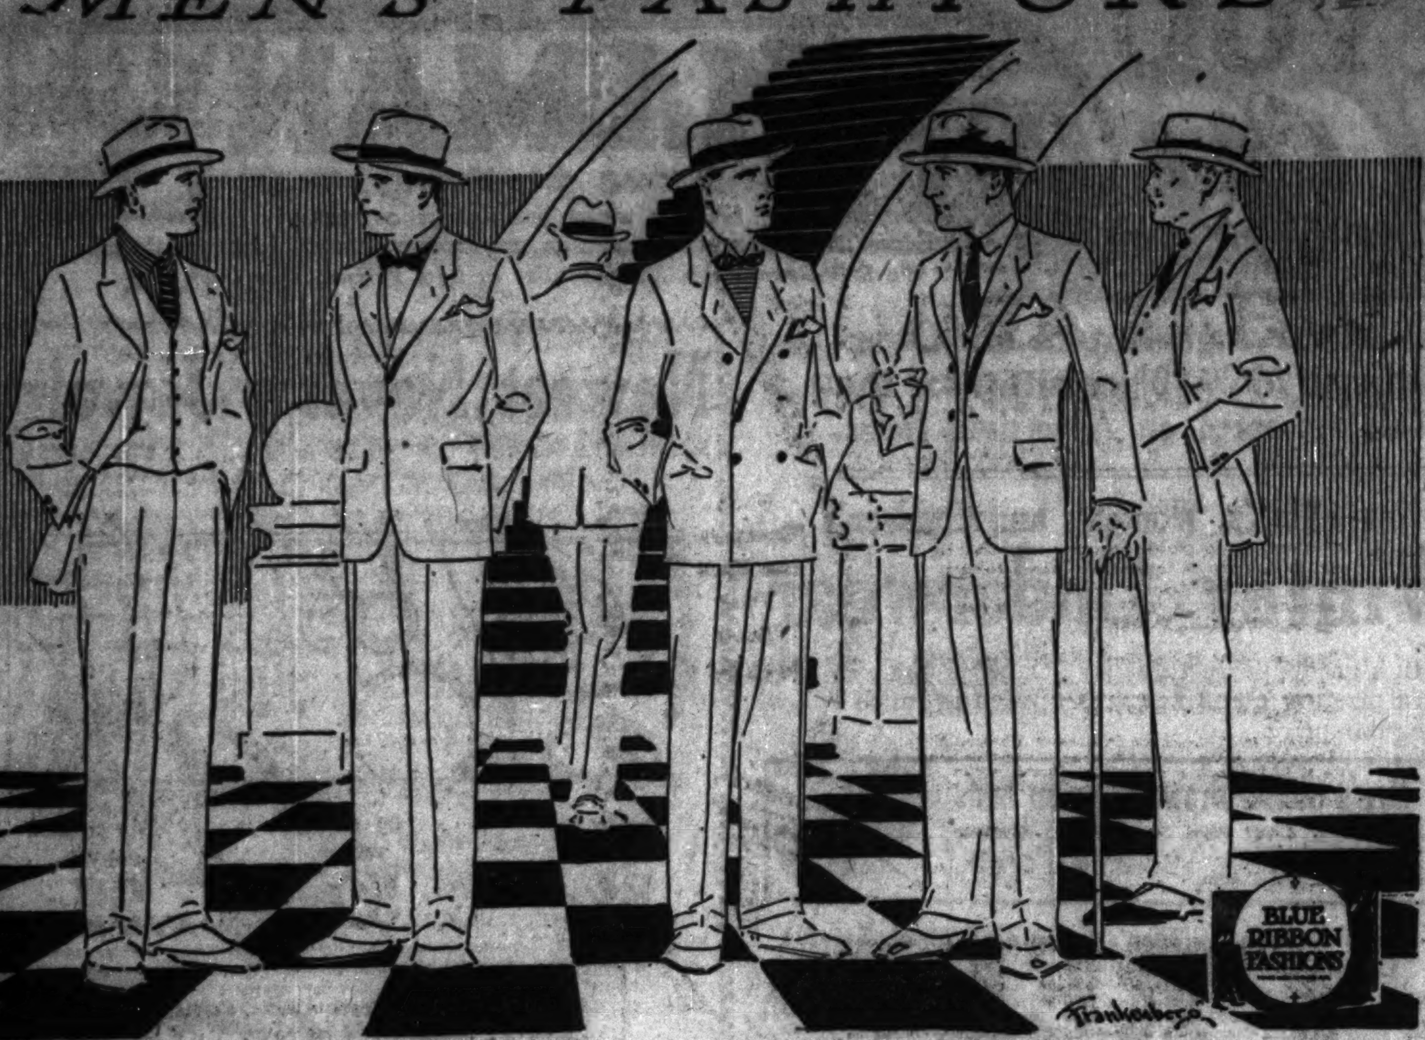
MEN'S FASHIONS



FASHION'S CYCLE COMES ROUND AGAIN TO PADDING.

This department will be glad to answer any questions regarding men's fashions and the correct thing to wear on different occasions. Address communications to A. T. Gallico, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

BY A. T. GALLICO.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—If you are built on the order of Mr. Dempsey or Mr. Firpo you are right in style this season, for the fall and winter suits are catering to the athletically set up man, and by means of padding are helping those along who are naturally not the owners of a husky pair of shoulders and a full chest.

Not that the exaggerated padded shoulders of some years ago have as yet come back to style, although there is no saying they will not some day, so inevitable is the cycle of fashion, but the growing tendency of the last year toward broader shoulders has this autumn reached the point where the well dressed man must be either normally strong looking or allow the tailoring of his clothes to give him the appearance of a crew man or a half back.

All the houses are not actually padding the shoulders, but they are cutting coats so that sleeves are set in to give the broad shouldered effect, and the coat fits slightly at the waist and snugly over the hips, following out the ideal figure of the athlete. This style is one that is the direct opposite of the extreme dresser who runs to pinched shoulders, waisty coats, a flare over the hips, and tight fitting trousers.

The well dressed man is still interested in the suit cut on English lines, although he modifies the extreme English suit, the one of which the trousers are so full they look more like balloons than trousers, and the coat has no obvious intention of fitting, to a rather loosely draped coat, somewhat rounded and cut away in the front, and trousers which do not show the shape of the leg, but hang just full enough to look well on a tall or short man.

The ventless coat is a popular version of this English suit, although a short, plain vent is just as smart and just as approved by the setters of correct attire. The hooked vent is not a feature indulged in by the conservative man, and is not seen on high class suits, any more than are pinched waists and fancy backs which are the demands of a certain type of dresser.

Buttons are either two or three in number, the latter being more popular. The four button suit is practically dead. Those men who have such a suit will not be ostracized for wearing one, but few new ones will be bought, and all four buttons will probably not be fastened. Coat lengths will average thirty and thirty and one-half inches.

The trousers to the English type of suit will be about nineteen inches at the knee and seventeen and a half to eighteen at the bottom. The extremely full trousers will have a twenty inch knee and a nineteen bottom. All trousers on the well dressed man are quite high in the waist, but the plaited models have drifted out of favor, as far as sack suits are concerned. Cuffs on trousers are optional. There is no sign they are going into the discard. On the contrary, the tendency is toward them this season. The average width of cuff is one and one-quarter inch. Hint to the short man—no cuffs make for a taller effect.

Among the various materials used in fall and winter suits cheviots and soft unfinished worsteds will be among the favorites. Hard finished goods will be as out of it as they have for several seasons. Tweeds will have scarcely any showing. Plaids, checks, and pin stripes will have an especially good season, with plenty of call for plain blues, grays, and browns.

I saw some brown checked suits at a showroom carrying only high class stuff, that were all that could be desired in good tailoring and attractive coloring. My attention was called to the fact that the checks and plaids in the checked and plaid suits matched, or came out even, one might say, at the seams. This careful cutting of checked and plaid materials is always one of the signs of a good suit. Cheaper manufacturers are sloppy in this matter. Hint to the careful shopper—if you are purchasing a plaid suit, look at the seams.

Pencil stripes are to be had in all shades of blues, grays and browns. They are especially recommended for men who wish to add height to their figure, as the stripes give this effect. They are popular both in single and double breasted models. The double breasted coat is always in good standing, and is a staple with many. Three rows of buttons are more popular than the double row, but either is indorsed by style. Double breasted coats usually carry peaked lapels, while notched lapels adorn single breasted coats.

Nothing with fancy back or other form of trimming goes with the well dressed man. The Norfolk coat is pronounced dead. Half belts, according to wholesalers I visit, can't be given away to the good trade.

Manufacturers of ready made clothes are making their suits in so many sizes and types that only the abnormal man should have difficulty in getting fitted. One well known house is putting out a size intended for the man who is getting a little stout all over, say, with a forty chest and a thirty-eight waist. The suit is cut on lines between stout and regular.

For men who are naturally broad-shouldered, the padding used in some cases is not necessary. If they should happen to pick on a suit with padded shoulders, and find there is too much of it, they can easily have the padding removed. This is recommended by the house which is giving most of the shoulders of its coats a little padding. But the slim, narrow shouldered man, who wants to have the broad shoulders approved by fashion, is glad to have this sartorial aid.

Marital Reefs

Fear It's Too Late.

Perhaps the greatest stumbling block to happiness in my six years of married life is the same one that wrecks many other marriages. The fault is mine, and one that I could have overcome when I was first married had any one pointed it out to me. So let this sound a warning to other young wives-to-be.

I was so in love with my husband that I wanted to know his every move and thought. I asked innumerable questions of him every night when he tried to read or write. Whenever he was silent for a minute or two I wanted to know what he was thinking about, and this was neither suspicion nor jealousy, but just because I wanted to feel so close to him that I knew his every thought. I allowed him no solitude or privacy. I can see now what a mistake I made.

It gradually came about that I got on his nerves so that he was constantly irritable and we quarreled frequently. My eyes are opened now, but I fear it is too late to win back my husband's love. I annoy him all the time, even though I am trying to change myself. I have already changed him.

Marital Reefs

What was the greatest stumbling block to happiness in your married life? Did you have to struggle with too idealistic and too romantic a viewpoint toward male and matrimony? Was it incompatibility of temperament or interests? Was there an economic reason for the reef you nearly struck? Was your stumbling block age disparity? Religious differences? Too much mother-in-law? Poor housekeeping? Extravagance? Jealousy? Unfair division of the pay envelope? Husband unfaithful, thoughtless, unkind, alcoholic, lazy, deceitful? Perhaps it was some other stumbling block about which you can tell us and which may help some other couple about to embark upon the good ship Matrimony. Tell us about it, won't you? The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published. Address Doris Blake, Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Going to Other Extreme.

My stumbling block may not seem as serious as some, but it causes some mighty painful bruises. When I married Jack, knowing that I had a mean disposition and a tendency to want my own way, I decided that our only chance for happiness lay in my changing my tactics completely.

With this is mind, I made the mistake of going to the other extreme. I never found fault; I always agreed with my husband and encouraged him to do the things he wanted to, with the result that I am now simply a nonentity. He no longer consults me about anything; doesn't bother to tell me things which are really of interest to us both; and if I do venture an opinion it is greeted with derision, although I'm right fully as often as he.

My advice is to try to strike a happy medium. Don't try to dictate to your husband, but don't efface yourself completely.

L. L. S.

Loss of Self-Respect.

I wonder how many happy, independent, single women would consider changing places with me. Whenever I hear any one regretting that some nice girl hasn't a husband, I think of my former existence and my present one.

I am married. When I resigned from the position I had held for seven years, I was given a set of silver and a regretful farewell.

I remember my employer said, "We are sorry to lose you, but a girl is better off married."

I disagree with him now. Then, of course, I thought his sentiments quite right.

Then I was earning $26 a week. It is months since I've seen $26. My husband's salary is ample, but he doles my allowance out by the day, each morning putting the same question, "How much do you need today?"

If anything could break down a woman's self-respect more thoroughly than that, I cannot think what it could be. Every day I am reminded of my utter dependence. Of course, I no longer love him. I stopped caring four years ago.

We had a quarrel about six months after we were married. It was a disagreement over a visit of a relative of mine. He resented it. And so he decided to impress his position by leaving that morning without his usual query. That day I had no money and no food. He didn't come home for dinner, and all I had was tea and toast. And I did some real thinking.

I'd like to be able to tell all girls to analyze the men they consider marrying. I wish some one had advised me to that effect.

"I earn the money, and I'll spend it as I deem wisest," is my husband's motto.

A typewriter and a bunch of letters would spell heaven to me. What can I regret by going back to them? What shall I lose? Do you think I'd gain my self-respect?

FALLING HAIR

DANDRUFF, itching scalp and falling hair are signs of an unhealthy scalp. Sergeant's Mange Medicine makes the scalp healthy. Then it will grow healthy, luxuriant hair. Sergeant's is a real scalp medicine—standard for 50 years. Nothing else approaches Sergeant's for actual results. Its sulphuretted pine and other natural oils kill dandruff germs and fertilize the hair roots, stop falling hair and cause the hair to grow thick and fast all over the head. Results are almost immediate. Barbers apply Sergeant's. A large bottle is only 65 cents at drug stores and toilet counters.

A Beauty more than "Skin-deep"

From a deep leaf-green to their own distinctive flaming hue, Flame Tokay grapes ripen under a California sugar-producing sun.

Beautiful? Yes. But bite through its firm, protective skin into the "meat" of this luscious grape and you will find that its marvelous beauty is not "skin-deep." You will find quality clear through.

Its flavor, too, is distinctive. It cannot be likened to any other grape—Isabella, Concord, Delaware—for there is no similarity. It has the flavor of the Flame Tokay—its own individual flavor.

Only the best of Flame Tokay grapes from this district are carefully packed, crated and shipped to you in well-iced refrigerator cars. Your fruit man or grocer gets them fresh every day—and so can you.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN

At the age of 91 years Mrs. Tabitha [illegible] of Martinsville, Va., boasts of [illegible] descendants.

According to Miss Elsa Brandstorm, [illegible] Red Cross nurse, known as the "Angel of Siberia," the American girl has a higher sense of duty than the average European girl.

Although she is only 19 years of age, Miss Lois McGaughy, a high school girl of Vernon, Tex., is a successful [illegible].

The city council in Norwalk, Conn., recently passed a bill abating forever the taxes of Mrs. Delia Sanford, aged 97, the oldest woman in the Nutmeg state.

The farmer girls in Holland wash their faces with whey to improve their complexions.

Statistics show that nine-tenths of the women in China cannot write their own name.

India's only woman ruler, the begum of Bhopal, has proclaimed prohibition in her state.

As president and treasurer of the Ryan Paint and Supply company, New York, Mary Ryan has the honor of being at the head of one of the largest paint concerns in the country.

Miss Grace I. Edwards, the first woman in New England to be ordained as a permanent pastor of a church, has recently celebrated the twentieth anniversary of her ordination.

The honor and distinction of being the only woman manager of a symphony orchestra in America, if not in the world, goes to Mrs. Adella P. Hughes of Cleveland, O., who is manager of the Cleveland orchestra.

Mrs. Florence Helgeson of New York is suing her husband for divorce because he "racks her nerves" by devoting himself entirely to the game of solitaire when at home.

The cement fresco work on the steeple of the world famous Church of St. Mark's in the Bouwerie in New York is being done by a woman—Miss Wilhelmina Schmidt, noted Danish mural artist. She works in white linen trousers and smokes many cigarets during the course of a day.

Mme. Alexandra Kollontay is the only woman ambassador in the world, being soviet Russia's minister to Norway since October, 1922. She is the only woman ever named a member of the executive committee of the Communist party and was head of the department of public welfare in 1917-'18.

BUSINESS
classes now forming

Business education at the YMCA School of Commerce is exceptionally valuable because it is intensely practical. The instructors are business executives, each a specialist in his line, qualified through years of experience and study not only to teach the principles of business, but also to give the mature student something each evening of tangible and immediate worth to him in his everyday work. 1716 men chose this education in 1922. Their average age was 31 years.

40 courses of college grade, each meeting one evening a week on Tuesday or Thursday for seventeen weeks, of which 32 are offered this semester.

MAYO FEDERATED COLLEGES

Day and Evening Classes open to Men and Women Classes Now Forming

COMMERCE The aim of the College of Commerce is to impart to students that exact and scientific training which today is required for success in the higher fields of business effort. The courses are designed to qualify men and women for high grade positions in the following branches of Commercial activity:

Accounting
Journalism
Salesmanship
Foreign Trade
Secretarial Work
Traffic Management
Insurance and Real Estate
Banking and Finance
Office Management
Advertising and Marketing
Commercial Teaching
Consular Service
Business Administration and Management

All courses in the College of Commerce are credited towards the B. C. S. degree.

LAW It is the aim of the College of Law to give students adequate preparation for the practice of law in any state. The case system of instruction is employed in practically all subjects. All classes are divided into small sections to insure individual attention for every student. High school graduates eighteen years of age or over are admitted as candidates for the LL. B. degree. College graduates are admitted as candidates for the J. D. degree.

PREPARATORY The Preparatory School is conducted for the benefit of students who have not completed a four-year high school course. Those who desire to enter some College or University or to prepare for state examinations in Accounting, Law, Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy, Nursing, etc., will find this a convenient school. All applicants must furnish evidence of sufficient maturity and intelligence to grasp principles readily and to cover the work rapidly. To such students is offered an opportunity to save considerable time in the completion of a high school course.

Bulletins of any of the above departments will be sent free upon request. Call, write or phone (Wabash 9389) is youth's greatest opportunity

As a stenographer or secretary you work side by side with men of brains and responsibility; and if you have business ability they find it out.

Many of the prominent men of today got their start with shorthand.

Whether you want to use shorthand as a stepping-stone or as a permanent, bread-winning accomplishment, Gregg School is the place to get the training. Gregg Shorthand is more widely taught than all other systems combined. We always have more good positions open and waiting for Gregg graduates than there are graduates to fill them.

Loud Moans of a Young Man with a Grievance

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD morning!

You were due for some poetry this morning. The fact that you escape it is due to the sudden, gusty entrance of a young man with something on his mind. In fact, the young man had several things on his mind, which he left behind him for me to worry about. Chief among these was, however, the burning question:

"WHY DON'T THE MOVIES STAND ON THEIR OWN FEET?"

(Now, you know one can't write a poem about the movies standing on their own feet!)

"What do you mean?" I asked, then venturing the opinion that, no matter on whose or WHAT feet they were standing, they seemed to be getting along pretty well.

"I MEAN," said the young man—just like that—(emphasis and everything)—if he'd been talking to a man it would probably have been everything plus—"I MEAN why don't they do something original? What's the idea of taking 'The Rear Car,' which everybody knows was a bum play, calling it 'Red Lights,' and crowing over it? Like they were its papa and mamma and it had talked at the age of 6 months?"

"Why Don't They Do Something Original?"

"And 'Romeo and Juliet'——"

"LAY off 'Romeo and Juliet!'"

"Why," said the excited young man, "as a romance that thing is a boner. It is only great because a magician of a writer in his off hours deigned to trifle with what plot it has—which isn't any plot at all. It was great as a play because it had the spoken word of intelligent people to bolster it up. But as pantomime—heaven deliver us!

"The picture people conceived the idea of making pictures move. Now, why don't they do a little progressing?"

There Was Simply No Pleasing Him.

"It seems to me," said this defender of the cinema art, "that they've gone pretty far since the day of the nickelodeon. This new camera now—that they claim will give depth to the pictures——"

"Well, why don't they finish it? O, of course, so far as photography is concerned, the movies have stepped a bit, but they've been stepping along on the toes of other arts. Why don't they come out with an Einstein with a theory of his own?

"They'll 'bring the classics to our children via the screen,' as I believe you are fond of saying, with the result that our children who are movie hounds won't ever read a good book. They'll say, 'O, I saw that at a picture show! 'Oliver Twist' at a picture show! Why read Dickens?"

"Well," we said, gasping a bit, "there's another side to it. 'Three Weeks' at a picture show! WHY read Elinor Glyn?"

The young man, with a glance of disdain, turned on his heel. But from the other room one could hear his voice: "WHY don't they do something ORIGINAL?"

Just then another party drew near. A large, serious, well built gentleman with a twinkle in his eye. He had, he explained, been standing in the offing. He had, he said, not

Tale of the Birthday Gift That Came Almost Too Late

By Mildred Spain.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—The last week is much like the story Frederick Esmelton tells of his sister's perils in reaching Hollywood. The London offices informed Miss Esmelton they could route her to Los Angeles, but didn't see how she'd get to Hollywood, there being no connection. Certainly there doesn't seem to be much connection between the birthday party of Bill Hart Jr. and lovely Wanda Hawley's divorce—a nice divorce, as divorces go.

WANDA HAWLEY.
Her marriage has been strained to the breaking point.

Bill's birthday was an auspicious affair. There were rocking horses patterned after his father's broncho, a card bearing the inscription, "Birthday greetings to Bill Hart Jr.," and a ring sporting a birthstone from Mildred Harris, formerly Mrs. Charles Chaplin.

Mrs. Hart, Winifred Westover, was tearfully telling her guests that she and her baby had been waiting all day to hear from "Wild Bill" Hart, but that he didn't come Christmas, so she couldn't expect anything now, when the bell rang in true scenario form. A messenger brought a silver loving cup with the subtitle engraved, "To my wonderful son, William S. Hart junior, on his first birthday, from his proud and affectionate father."

So "Wild Bill," who was on location at Victorville, saved the day. The Harts' frangible marriage has been strained, but Mrs. Hart said she would readily consider peace offerings, as Bill Jr. was to be considered. Mildred Harris, who was present at the birthday party, agreed with Mrs. Hart. But then wives are sticking together in Hollywood. Any moment I expect Jesse Lasky or somebody will declare an "old wives" week. Two of Willard Mack's ex-wives are playing together in the same theatrical company. They are Marjorie Rambeau and Maude Leone. The play, strangely, is called "The Road Together."

In the case of Wanda Hawley the road has diverged, as she has been granted a decree from Allan Burton Hawley. The charge was desertion. A few months ago Mr. Hawley declared he was going to give testimony that "would shake the film world to its foundations." He probably thought better of shaking the fourth largest industry.

Perfect Place for a First Class Grouch.

Joe Jackson of Goldwyn gave a luncheon in honor of Eric von Stroheim, who recently returned from Death valley with his company. They had been shooting scenes in "Greed." Some fifty magazine and newspaper writers were present. Canteens served as goblets, bandanna kerchiefs for napkins, and there was no drink—water. Van Stroheim made a speech explaining why he went into Death valley at the hottest season. He said he didn't do it for swank or to run up an already heavy expense account but to get real atmosphere and to have the actors respond to the abominable conditions. They all were surly and snarly and gave realism that in a studio would have to be put on like a mask. Can you imagine traveling from Hollywood to Death valley just for a first class grouch?

Mr. and Mrs. Buster Keaton gave a theater party on

Grand Opera Bows to Claims of Operetta

By Edward Moore.

WILL there be any more operas after the present list is worn out? Is opera as a form "grand," as they used to call it, or in its modern title of music-drama outworn and outmoded? There is a certain amount of reason for believing that the first answer is "no" and the second "yes."

ALBERT SPALDING,
Chicago violinist well known and liked in Europe.
[Mishkin Photo.]

The chief evidence lies in what the younger generation of composers, those upon whom the music of the future rests, is doing. Whatever they are doing, it is not opera. The younger Italian composers, apparently resentful of the reputation of Italy for producing nothing but opera, are going in for orchestral works. Puccini is still left among the opera makers, but he is no longer young, and in the nature of things cannot produce much more. As a matter of fact, he never was a fast worker, and his output is meager in number by the side of, let us say, Verdi. His latest, "Turandot," has been talked about for some time, but is still to be produced. Of the younger men Respighi has written "Belfagor," which would seem to be a failure, and Pizzetti's "Debora," apparently constructed in tonal declamation rather than melody, is not much more successful.

France is still producing liberally, but the taste there is running toward operetta or ballet or pantomime, or a combination of them all. Spain has done little. Di Falla has brought out a work based on one of the incidents in "Don Quixote," which, from this distance, seems to be operetta and the pantomime of marionettes. English composers are not in the least operatically interested. Holst's "The Perfect Fool" is satirical operetta. Vaughan Williams has come no nearer to it than to make a ballet out of "Old King Cole," wherein the fiddlers three exhibit several types of folk dances. Austria has Richard Strauss, who composes operettas and ballets, and Schreker, whose earlier bid for popularity is apparently waning. And from what one can hear Russia is out of it entirely, though with much past wealth.

Pleasant Theory Goes on Lacking Verification.

There is left the United States, which has done little that looks enduring. A pleasant theory was promulgated several times during past years that thousands of mute, inglorious scores were resting about the country waiting to leap forward at the slightest chance of production. Unfortunately for the theory, they are continuing to remain mute in large numbers.

Undoubtedly the trouble with "grand" opera is its librettos, which are frequently dramatic absurdities, and whose absurdities are seldom lessened by the kind of acting they necessarily receive. Their greatest freedom lies in the exposition of crimes, and here, it must be confessed, considerable ingenuity is displayed. After a season or so of opera any patron ought to have complete familiarity with any kind of criminal code.

The best reason for producing opera—in fact, almost the only important reason—is the arias, whose words, by the way, do not matter in the least. Here one hears some of the best

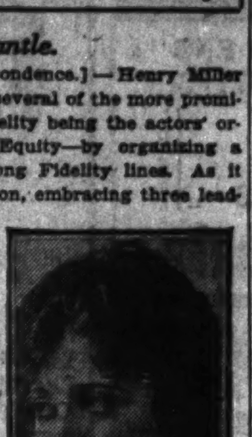
Bringing Everybody Back to Domestic Normalcy

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Henry Miller has thrown out a life line to several of the more prominent Fidelity actors—the Fidelity being the actors' organization opposed to the Equity—by organizing a Henry Miller Theater company along Fidelity lines. As it stands it is an important organization, embracing three leading women—Blanche Bates, Laura Hope Crews, and Ruth Chatterton—and several useful men, including Mr. Miller, Reginald Mason, Felix Krembs, and Geoffrey Kerr.



RUTH CHATTERTON
Essays daughter rôle in "The Changelings."
[White Photo.]

Together they have brought "The Changelings" to the Henry Miller theater, and they hope, we gather from the first night speeches, to be accepted as a permanent organization. Which, if it could happen, would be a good thing for the town. And a good thing for the theater. And do Equity no vital harm.

In "The Changelings" we have the message of another honest but middle aged playwright, Lee Wilson Dodd, who wishes to bring the social world back to the standards of decency all us middle aged folk appear to believe were rigorously upheld in the pre-flapper era. It is an optimistic message and reveals, with some skill and considerable talk, the innermost domestic secrets of the Aldcrofts and Fabers of Park avenue, New York. Theirs has been a lifetime friendship, cemented, finally, by the marriage of the Aldcroft girl to the Faber boy. But when the Aldcroft girl, grown restless under the neglect of her studious husband (he is one of those college worms with ambitions not of the flesh), determines to run away with a handsomer and more active, if less moral, young novelist, there is a kind of family upheaval.

Old Fashioned and a Little Narrow.

Mr. Faber and Mrs. Aldcroft can understand perfectly, being in touch with the newer thought of the day, but Mr. Aldcroft and Mrs. Faber are old fashioned and a little narrow.

"What," inquires Mr. Aldcroft of Mrs. Faber, "what is the new fangled term for old fashioned decency?"

"Inhibited," correctly replies Mrs. Faber, as any amateur Freudian would. "We're inhibited, Wally."

And so they are, but ever so sympathetic, too.

As it happens, the young people catch their respective parents indulging this mutually sympathetic understanding, suspect them of cheating, and are properly disgusted. Which helps, finally, to clear the situation and bring everybody back to a state of domestic and social normalcy.

Thus does Mr. Dodd assure us that while things may look bad at times, what with our jazzing flappers and flipper parents, all will be well in the end. Decent folk do not change fundamentally, however free their opportunities. And did not the wise Talleyrand say "that the more things change the more they remain the same"? Or something to that effect?

It is an interesting discussion, with touches of drama and a situation or two. Not a play we expect will overheat 43d street or overexcite the multitude, but a nice, intelligent enter-

Some Nonsense and a Trifle of History

By Sheppard Butler.

"JACK AND JILL" is a disappointing show—curiously so, considering the money, pains, and taste that have been expended on it—but it has one funny scene.

This occurs when Mr. Lew Fields plots with Mr. Victor Casmore to divert Miss Lulu McConnell (who plays Fields' rather overpowering wife) from her attempts at social conquest. Casmore is to masquerade as an Italian soothsayer, who speaks no word of English. Fields is to interpret and pass along the word of impending disaster if Miss McConnell does not mend her ways.

LEW FIELDS
In "Jack and Jill."
[Hartsook Photo.]

To be in character and hide their identities they don beards that look like the Wrigley tower upside down, and go to it. Casmore sputters volubly, in Italian. Fields listens with the comic earnestness at which he is past master, ponders a moment, and begins:

"Ecce say——"

Back and forth it goes, getting more serious and ceremonious every moment. Casmore goes into linguistic rapture; Fields denotes absorbed attention, exploding at intervals with his ridiculous antiphony, "Ecce say——"

All quite silly, of course, but most beguiling nonsense.

I liked it the better, perhaps, because it had, for me, a background. A friend who had seen "Jack and Jill" the night before told me of an occasion, years ago, when the great Italian tragedian, Ermete Novelli, at the end of his visit to America, said farewell at an actors' dinner in New York. Novelli spoke in Italian, getting more grandiloquent with each sentence. Having spoken a dozen words or so, he would pause and an interpreter would put his sentiments into broken English. Then the audience would cheer.

Shortly afterward, at the Lambs' or the Friars' (I never can remember whether an actor is a Lamb or a Friar), Fields and George Beban, with characteristic irreverence, put on a burlesque of Novelli's farewell. Beban was Novelli and Fields the interpreter. Together they staged the same kind of an antiphonal speech, to an accompaniment of increasing hilarity, and wound up with an outrageous intimacy of the sort, some say, that is characteristic of social intercourse on the continent, but which would get by in New York only at a stag dinner. It was, in stage parlance, a knockout.

"I'd like to make a little bet," said my friend, "that that is where this scene in 'Jack and Jill' originated. Lew Fields, and not the librettists of the piece, was the author of this bit, or I'm very much mistaken."

I haven't asked Mr. Fields about it.

On "The Fool:" A Pensive Postscript.

There was hope that this department might be able to contribute something more this morning to the current discussion concerning the merits of "The Fool." Mr. Channing Pollock, its author, is so good an arguefier and so valiant a

The Potters return from Naples and Rome by train, and board once more their faithful flivver left behind in Florence . . . and then yoicks and away to Venice, via Bologna, Ferrara, and Padua . . . how surprised Pa was when he discovered he couldn't take the little bus to Venice but would have to park it in Mestre on the mainland and go by train or motor boat to Venice . . . and how does it feel, coming into Venice by train? . . . the illustrated guide for sale all over Venice describes it feelingly: "The traveler, compelled by a monotone railway carriage to look for hours at endless stretching of the beautiful and sad Venetian plain, feels getting near, this Divine Queen of the Seas, whom so many artists, painters, and poets have exalted in every time and every way, feels, I say, that something new, something unexpacted is really to happen: something that will surely leave a deep mark on his imagination and last through all his life. I mean that peculiar radiation of impulsive energy issuing from anything really great, vibrating and palpitating from afar, lifting the soul to emotion or enthusiasm." . . . Quite so!

SCENE I.

The Potters disembark in Venice after a fifteen minute ride over the bridge from the mainland and are immediately surrounded by a horde of porters and hotel cappers . . . baffled, confused, and bewildered, they are herded into a gondola with their baggage and headed for the Albergo Della Mosquito somewhere on the Grand Canal . . .

PA (after the tumult and the shouting dies, lolling back in the gondola):
So this is Venice! Well, well!

GONDOLIER (with muted adenoids):

MA (eagerly):

MAMIE (consulting one of Mr. Baedeker's humorous works):
O, this is the Grand Canal and I guess that must be Palazzo Balbi.

MA (critically):
So that's a palazzo, is it? I guess that means palace. (Pause during which candor struggles with sentiment and wins by a right cross to the chin.) Well, it looks like a dump to me.

BILL: Gee, you'd think they'd give 'em a coat of paint once in a while.

MAMIE (bitterly):
Paint! You'd take all the romance out of everything.

BILL: Romance! A good coat of paint is good for romance. (Brightly.) That's all you women paint for.

PA (feelingly):
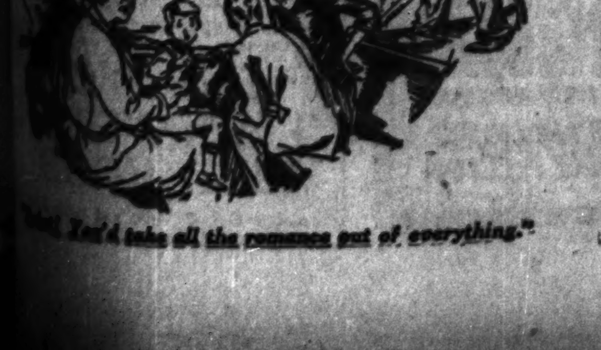
Gosh, I don't think that feller knows how to row a boat. Looks darn awkward to me.



"Paint! You'd take all the romance out of everything."

GONDOLIER (hoarsely):
Palattzo BLOTZBLOTZO.

MA (eager to improve her mind . . . just think, when she goes back home she can tell them all about the Palattzo Blotzblotzo on the Grand Canal in Venice):
What's that? What's that?

PA (studying gondolier):
Lookit the way he handles that oar. He's using half his strength for nothing. He needs some lessons in efficiency, that's what he needs. Motion study! Yes, sir!

BILL (callously):
So this is beautiful Venice! All the buildings look to me like they had eczema.

(The gondolier turns into narrow "Ria" and threads his way through hopeless confusion of barges and gondolas . . . strong romantic aroma rises and greets them effusively . . . Potters turn pale . . .)

PA (gasping):
Gosh, what a smell!

(Window opens above canal and the day's garbage issues, describing a graceful arc and missing the Potters by a foot . . . ah, the romantic Venetians, so gay, so careless!)

GONDOLIER (rounding corner):
OI YOI!

BILL: What's the idea of the oi yoi?

MAMIE (scornfully):
That's the gondolier's cry of warning so the other gondoliers won't run into him.

("The gondola, which still preserves her ancient form, gives you one of the most exquisite and original pleasures that Venice can afford," says our Illustrated Guide. "It is a graceful boat whose prow ends in a jagged piece of iron of elegant design and whose high, bent, and light poop supports the gondolier, who, by nimbly moving the oars, wisely leads her through the narrowest canals, sending forth, now and then, little crys to avoid a shock with other boats when turning into a canal . . . gondolier and gondola remain, like an old palace siding a comfortable moderne building, notwithstanding the 'vaporetti' running swiftly and in great number the waters of the canal, as if to remind us of a past epocha in which struggling for life was less keen and time less precious." . . . As if time could ever mean less in an Italian city than it does today!)

MA (bewildered):
I thought Venice was full of beautiful marble palaces and the canals were all blue and sparkling and the gondoliers were in full costume and sang and everything.

MAMIE (excited):
Look! Look! There's a gondola all covered with flowers and a gondolier in costume . . . just like the movies!

BILL (as they come closer):
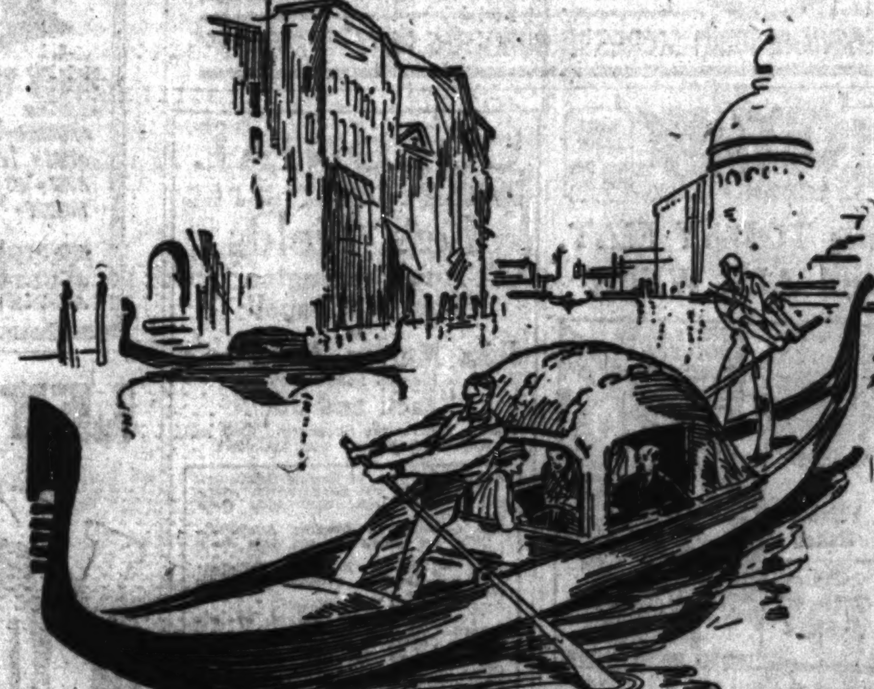
Yes, and right back of it is another gondola with a movie camera in it!

(Sure enough! And peering out of the windows on both sides of the canal puzzled Venetians who probably never before saw a gondolier in the costume which every schoolboy in America would recognize immediately.)

SCENE II.

(We will skip lightly over the Potters' trials with gondoliers, peddlers, and guides in Venice . . . we will not allude to the romantic ease and charm with which the guileless tourist is gypped on every hand nor the carefree rapture with which he is overcharged by the picturesque descendants of a once noble race . . . after all, the amendment to the constitution compelling Americans to leave home and travel in Italy has not been adopted yet.)



"Lookit the way he handles that oar."

MAMIE (effusively):
We ought to go and feed the pigeons in St. Mark. All tourists do that.

BILL: Where's the Dog's palace?

MAMIE (shocked):
DOG'S palace? You mean Doge, don't you?

BILL: Well, Dodge or Chevrolet or whatever it is.

MA (nervously):
I want to get out of here as soon as possible. I'm so afraid the baby will fall into one of these canals.

PA (sadly):
I don't see why we carted him all over Europe in the first place. If he isn't falling into the Seine he's falling into the Forum or Vesuvius or the ruins of Pompeii, and now it's the canals in Venice. (Aroused.) What are you gonna do when we get to Holland, for the love of Mike?

MA: All right, then, let him fall into one of the canals and drown, if that's what you want.

PA: Who said I wanted him to drown? I only said . . .

MA: Shut up! Stop your arguing.

PA: Gee whiz, who's arguing?

MA: You are. Can't you hear yourself arguing?

(Pa finally compromises by hauling the baby along, and they go to St. Mark's square and feed the pigeons and see the church, the Campanile, and the Doge's palace, all within a few yards of each other.)

BILL (regarding church with eye of connoisseur):
That's a pretty swell church, if you ask me.

MA: Why do suppose they made it so flat and the bell tower so big and high?

MAMIE (scornfully):
Pretty swell church! That's a lovely church!

BILL (loftily):
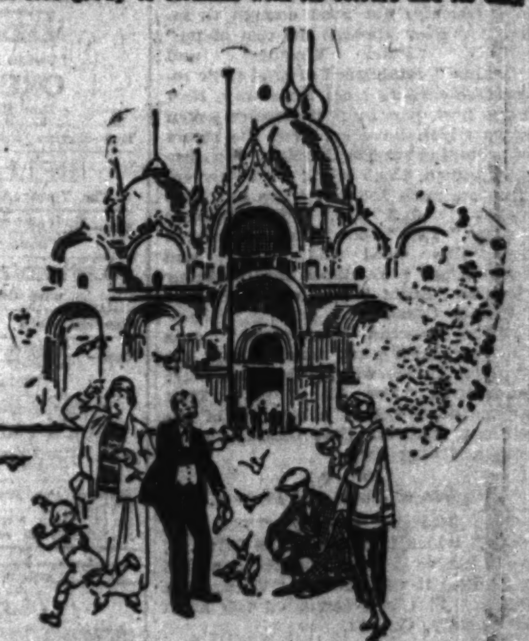
I suppose your lovely is more descriptive than my pretty swell. You make me sick, putting on airs all the time. (Acidly.) Souvenir hound!

(Says the priceless Illustrated Guide: "S. Mark does already strike you with its five roman doorways and its most rich group of columns with its colours and its only existing greek quadriga, shining in the sun over an arc wonderfully adorned by art and time . . . an immense treasure of art of an incommensurables richness! . . . whoever enter this temple actually feels all the greatner of the Christianism and all its power . . . being all the while quite bewildered by such a strenght of genius such a beauty and such an oriental and phantastic pomps." . . . After going through church and Doge's Palace the Potters take the "lift" in the Campanile and view Venice from the top balcony . . . their chief surprise is that none of the canals in the city can be seen—only an expanse of dark brownish red roofs, covered with a bewildering confusion of little chimneys . . . that night after dinner the Potters take a little table outside of café on St. Mark's Square and watch the entire population of Venice, plus twice as many tourists, stroll round and round while three café orchestras try to resurrect American jazz tunes that were all buried decently years ago in the States . . . little groups of earnest Fascisti beat time passionately and sing:

Oh, oo bootifill dahl,
Oo greata beeg bootifill dahl.



They feed the pigeons.

. . . night comes down and changes with a magic touch the sordid, paltry Venice of day into a city of enchantment—the palaces reflect dark and mysterious in the luminous depths—the lights of gondolas twinkle like fireflies over the water—everywhere snatches of songs and laughter and swish of oars—here is the one city in the world where the nights should be six months long, or even longer, except for the sad fact that Venetians never go to bed and they would be singing outside your window the entire six months . . .

"Yet he, who wants to thoroughly enjoy Venice," writes the enraptured A. de Carlo, "must have a gondola taking him, in the evening and in the night, across the canals and on the Laguna; the spell, then, becomes rapture and sense of voluptuousness—that the gondola only, by its soft movement, can give—penetrates you; and you live the life of the old Republic over again, and a slight intoxication goes up your brain, whilst serenades and love songs die away in the serenity of the Laguna, and from a gondola passing hard by a sigh of love faints through the air."

Home was never anything like this for the Potters!)

(And that's that—until next Sunday.)

tter writer that it is a pleasure to timulate his cerebrations. And it is orrespondingly hard to resist the mptation to pay more attention to s works than to less fortunate plays hich do not have their creators with em to conduct their publicity campaigns. Which, perhaps, is not altogether distasteful to Mr. Pollock. Keeping a show's name in print is good thing for business, and, in ese days when white paper costs the blishers so much, it takes a bit of genuity.

That he excoriated me in sixteen es last Sunday and took a column ay what he thinks of Mr. Ashton Stevens shall not be held against him. Some day, perchance, he will send me a column.

But I did think there would be some letters to THE TRIBUNE from admirers of "The Fool," expostulating in Mr. Pollock's behalf and upholding his conviction that I am a lost soul because I expressed the suspicion that some might not care for his play. These, I thought, could be published by way of keeping a bit of salubrious argument in the air.

Letters did come, but it is depressing to have to report that they were all of the wrong kind. This, for example, from Albert E. Converse of Springfield, Ill., secretary of the Illinois State Dental society:

"Your criticism of 'The Fool' is so admirable that I feel constrained to express my humble appreciation. I happen to be one of those who, you suspected, would be 'infinitely bored' by the play. . . . Permit me to thank you for giving expression to my own opinion."

And this from H. Andre Langdon of 2259 West Madison street, Chicago:

"Will you allow me to add my opinion to that you so justly expressed anent 'The Fool' . . . "

And this from Harry H. Pinney of 1223 East 53d street:

"Am hugely enjoying the pros and cons regarding 'The Fool.' Thought your writeup excellent. And your opinions are exactly my own."

And more of the same.

You can't build an argument out of material like that. It is unfair, and one-sided. Mr. Pollock will have to write again.

Familiar Titles in New York.

New York had the excruciating experience last Tuesday of having nothing to read about three important premieres which had taken place in the theaters the night before. The striking pressmen, walking out at midnight, had left the town without its morning papers. Oldest inhabitants averred that reviews had never been lacking before in local history when reviews were expected. The showmen, if reports are to be believed, were considerably nonplused. Nobody knew whether "The Changelings," with Henry Miller and Miss Ruth Chatterton in it; "The Lullaby," with Miss Florence Reed as its star, and the San Carlo Opera company were any good or not.

Later in the week a consolidated newspaper was issued and two plays in which Chicago may be presumed to have a special interest got some attention. These were "Peter Weston," played there, as it was here at the Harris, by Frank Keenan, and Jules Eckert Goodman's "Chains," which was submitted with Miss Helen Gahagan in the part she acted in Chicago at the Playhouse. Both were kindly treated for the most part, though Mr. Woollcott, of the Herald, found "Peter Weston" "a bludgeoning and violent piece, far too dour, one would think, to please the multitudinous following of 'Abie's Irish Rose,' and, frankly, not good enough to inflame or even appease the rest of us."

With "Peter Weston" and "Chains" established around their respective corners from Broadway, New York now has in performance seven plays which have survived the rigors of preceding runs in Chicago. Wandering uptown, the visiting westerner encounters such familiar titles as "Two Fellows and a Girl," "The Crooked Square," and "Zeno," and, confronted by "The Good Old Days" and "Tweedles," is reminded that we knew them as "Light Wines and Beer" and "Bristol Glass."

"The Dancing Honeymoon" goes to New York next month, and Mr. William Hodge will try his fate there [illegible] with "For All of Us." That makes nine—rather a reversal of the ancient tradition that Chicago never sees anything first.

Gossip of Plays and Players.

Don Marquis' comedy, "The Old Soak," which impends at the Princess, is to arrive a week sooner than was planned. It will succeed "Whispering Wires" in Clark street on the night of Sunday, Oct. 21.

Decision to take "The Dancing Honeymoon" into New York was made last week after an offer to give it the Illinois theater for a continuation of its run was considered and rejected. The show is doing well, and must yield the Apollo to the "Greenwich Village Follies" in two weeks, but it was thought a change of theaters might not be advisable.

Miss Francine Larrimore, having rejected William Anthony McGuire's "Tin Gods" after experimenting with it, is said now to be preparing for appearances in "Nobody's Money," something new by Guy Bolton and Frank Mandel. The comedy was tried out recently by Robert McLaughlin's stock company in Cleveland.

"Dangerous People," recently departed from the Cort, will wind up its career in Detroit at the end of this week. Mr. William Courtenay, its principal player, is going into vaudeville in a sketch which he will submit here at the Palace Music hall on Oct. 7.

The Franz Molnar play known hitherto as "Heavenly and Earthly Love" will be called "Launzi" when Miss Pauline Lord appears in it next month.

Donald Brian will sing and act with Mlle. Alice Delysia in her forthcoming musical comedy, "The Courtesan."

This One's "Special."

Enter now the "special Chicago company." Influenced perhaps by a certain suspicion of "original New York casts," the sponsors of "Sally, Irene, and Mary," at the Great Northern, have adopted the venturesome slogan in their advertising, and propose to stick to it. The troupe which arrived last night, is, veritably, a "special" company. So successful has the piece proved that two other casts are now playing it in the east.

Managers and Producers Attention
Just completed the most unique mystery play ever written. Have written several plays professionally produced. The plot of another was appropriated in New York after submitting mine. Desire to have Chicago premiere. Let's beat New York to it with a GREAT THRILLER HUMANLY POSSIBLE. I live within 60 miles of Chicago. Will submit play by personal appointment only to the most likely prospect.

Present at a Fiske First Night.

It is always a little thrilling to present at a Minnie Maddern Fisk first night in New York. Particular in the early fall, when there are man idle actors to help make up the au ence.

The profession has long since nom nated this gracious lady as its first ac ress. There are other actresses wider range. Others of greater popu larity. But there are no others wh more creditably represent the profe sion at its best than she. And the pro fession knows it.

Her receptions of late have therefor taken on seemingly a new enthusiasm whether her play has been good or bad And when she happens to hit upon a good a play as the newest of her recent experiments, which is St. John Ervine's "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary," there is a note of congratulation in the ap plause that has a bit of wildness in it

The Fiske public is not large. She can exhaust it in a few weeks if her play is not right. Which, in a measure, is true of any star, but doubly true of the first actress, because her public is notably a select public. We say select because we are trying not to say that her appeal is, as it always has been, to the mind rather than to the emotions. On a sex appeal basis her score would never excite a movie magnate. But name us another actress of American stage prominence who can do more than she to point an intelligent satire or give character to a comedy heroine whose charming insolence keeps a cast of less clever folk dodging and floundering in an attempt to keep pace with her. You probably will begin with Margaret Anglin—and you will also end with her.

Happily Cast as Mary.

Anyway, here is Mrs. Fiske happily cast as the heroine of "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary," a flighty, frivolous, proudful, self-indulgent but altogether charming London actress. Charming, at least, in so far as a discreet author sees fit to expose her ways and characteristics.

Mary Westlake is her name, and in the play she goes down from London, with her commercial cockney manager tagging after, to an English country house to hear a young poet read a play about Jeanne d'Arc.

She is in the house only part of two days, and the young man never gets past the introduction of his play.

Happily Cast as Mary.

Anyway, here is Mrs. Fiske happily cast as the heroine of "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary," a flighty, frivolous, proudful, self-indulgent but altogether charming London actress. Charming, at least, in so far as a discreet author sees fit to expose her ways and characteristics.

Mary Westlake is her name, and in the play she goes down from London, with her commercial cockney manager tagging after, to an English country house to hear a young poet read a play about Jeanne d'Arc.

She is in the house only part of two days, and the young man never gets past the introduction of his play. But it is long enough for the actress to all but lure him away from the pretty daughter of the house, who is honestly in love with him, and to make his middle aged but still flirtatious uncle appear quite a fool.

Then, after she has acted this part of devastating female to her heart's content, Mary gives the ingenue back her lover, reëstablishes uncle's faith in himself, and departs. A sort of "Mary Westlake Passes By" adaptation of the "Mr. Pim" theme.

Knowing Mr. Ervine only as the author of "John Ferguson" and "Jane Clegg," as most playgoers in this country do, it may surprise you to discover that he can write the fluffiest of light comedies with as definite a feeling for the theater as he displayed in those ultra serious dramas. Frequently his "Mary" play dips into farce, but it is always intelligent farce. A bright and amusing comedy, even if it does, through repetition of mood and situation, grow occasionally a little tedious. Mrs. Fiske, as intimated, is particularly happy playing the heroine, and a fine supporting cast includes C. Aubrey Smith, A. P. Kaye, Florence Edney, and Lennox Pawle.

For his part in the Fiske success David Belasco, the producer, has achieved an entirely new brand of sunshine. By the application of a reflected light, thrown, as we understand it, against mirrors and thence to the stage, he is able to reproduce the shimmering brilliance of a summer day a little more tellingly than it has been done before, and to achieve an effect in shadows that is, once your attention is called to it, impressive.

As for the beauty of the scene, which is that of an English garden, with hedgerows and flowers and a great, sweeping, apparently limitless blue sky at back, you expect that sort of thing from David and enjoy it as a matter of course. But he is particularly proud of this picture, and he has a right to be.

J. C. L. Asks Advice.

Being interested in art, J. C. L. writes from Chicago to inquire whether or not I would advise him to hurry his buying trip in New York this year. He has made all his plans, as usual, to travel eastward in January or February, but if there is danger that "Artists and Models" will leave before that time he can arrange, he says, to come before the holidays. Ordinarily he does not feel keenly about keeping abreast of the times, but he does feel that if he should miss this most naked of the revues he would miss something. And so he would. But less than he suspects.

So far as we can udge from the present excitement, "Artists and Models" is likely to run through the better part of the season. But there already is talk of a second company's being organized for Chicago and points west. Whether or not the authorities of the western city will permit as much of a showing as those of the east or not remains to be seen after the showing.

Experts Were Right.

Meantime the opinion seems to be gaining ground that the experts were right in classifying this much discussed entertainment as the brightest, as well as the nakedest, and, in certain episodes, the most vulgar of recent shows of the kind. Much laughter follows its most successful scenes—the Ford travesty with Axel rampant, for instance, and the gag of the two songsters.

These latter appear from the audience, eager to help Comedian Fay as a prestidigitateur, and they offer to sing. Fay is not unwilling to hear them if they promise to sing new songs. One knows a new one called "McGee," and, being dared to sing it, starts merrily, "When you and I were young, McGee."

His partner, not to be outdone, thereupon offers to sing a still better number entitled "Big Horse." You probably know that one: "Big horse, I love you; big horse, I love you."

It is roughhouse, but merry, this most recent of the burlesques, and, we fear, unusually permanent.

Miss O'Brien has the title rôle in Mr. Cohan's "The Rise of Rosie O'Reilly," which comes this week to the Grand Opera house. Miss Mulqueen is the Irene of "Sally, Irene, and Mary," established last night at the Great Northern.

Bill Sends Son Birthday Gift Just in Time

Wednesday night at the Mason for Mrs. Peggy Talmadge, Buster Collier, and Norman Kerry. Buster Keaton had to fight his way through the crowds that edged about his party, for although Buster wore the conventional gray knickers there were black ringlets hanging nearly to his shoulders. But don't be too hard on Buster for the Fauntleroy touch—he has been making a costume picture. Mrs. Natalie Keaton wore white and black sports clothes and Mrs. Peggy Talmadge an exquisite cape of white fur.

So It Can't Be True.

Norman Kerry recently denied his engagement to Marion Davies. Mrs. Norman Kerry also denied it. So did Norman Kerry Jr., who is 7.

Conway Tearle gave a luncheon for Ethel Barrymore at the United studios, while Miss Barrymore was here giving her "Twelve Pound Look." Among the guests were Frank Lloyd, Corinne Griffith, Lloyd Hughes, and Helene Chadwick. It was the sixth anniversary of both Mr. Tearle's and Miss Barrymore's entrance into pictures.

"When are you coming back to the stage?" Miss Barrymore asked.

"When you bring the art of the Barrymores to the screen," he answered.

Then Ethel admitted screen rights had been bought for a certain play and she would probably film it in Hollywood.

Bits of Gossip.

Victor Halperin made a fortune with an independent production, "Tea with a Kick." In the tea story was a professional dancer, Irene D'Annelle. When they returned to Los Angeles they told of their marriage in Chicago Aug. 27. Jack Dempsey introduced them two years ago.

Bryan Foy, comedy director at Fox, left for New York to visit Eddie Foy and the six Foy-lets.

Herbert Rawlinson is vacationing at Catalina, leading a fisherman's life.

Nazimova, Ruth Roland, and Theodore Roberts have taken little flyers into vaudeville, which may mean nothing and may mean a whole lot.

The New Plays

THE musical comedy called "Sally, Irene, and Mary" came to the Great Northern last night, restoring that theater to activity after its period of summer darkness. For the Chicago showing a special company has been organized, the cast including Miss Burtress Dietch, Miss Kathryn Mulqueen, and Miss Jane Taylor in the title rôles, and Eddie Fetherston in the chief comedian's part, played elsewhere by one of the authors of the show, Mr. Eddie Dowling. Weather permitting, some account of the festivities will be given in THE TRIBUNE tomorrow.

Many entertainments now have appointment for arrival on various dates during the fall and winter. For the more immediate future these things are listed:

OPENING TUESDAY NIGHT.

"The Rise of Rosie O'Reilly" (Cohan's Grand)—This is the latest of Mr. Cohan's musical comedies—book, lyrics, and music by George M. Cohan—and comes to us from an all-summer run in Boston, where it had its beginnings. New York has not seen it. Reports concerning the piece are that it is as fast a dancing show as one would care to see. Miss Emma Haig, Miss Virginia O'Brien, Miss Margaret Dumont, Bobby Watson, Jack McGowen, Bobby O'Neill, and many others are in it.

OPENING NEXT WEEK.

"The Deep Tangled Wildwood" (Blackstone, Oct. 1)—A new comedy, having something to do with small town affairs in the middle west, by those sapient satirists, Messrs. George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly. "West of Pittsburgh" was its title when they gave it a trial performance or two last season. The cast will include James Gleason, Robert McWade, George Alison, Ralph Sipperley, Miss Gertrude Hits, Miss Mildred Booth, and twenty more.

IMPENDING JOYS.

"Greenwich Village Follies" (Apollo, Oct. 7)—Another of the opulent pageants staged once a year, usually with a knowing eye to beauty, by John Murray Anderson.

"Secrets" (Harris, Oct. 14)—Miss Margaret Lawrence in a play of marriage and the Victorian period by Rudolph Besier and May Edginton.

"Adrienne" (Illinois, Oct. 14)—A musical comedy with tunes by Albert von Tilzer. Billy B. Van and Richard Carle have important employment in its cast.

"Molly Darling" (Colonial, Oct. 14)—The musical comedy which we saw, some time since, at the Palace Music hall, coming for a return engagement with a considerably altered list of players.

"The Old Soak" (Princess, Oct. 21)—Don Marquis' comedy of prohibition and its ways. Harry Beresford has had great success as the actor of its central character; Tom Wise probably will play it here.

Although the North American is the busiest restaurant in Chicago annoying delays are unknown here

Go into most restaurants or hotels and, first of all, you will wait several minutes before a menu card is given to you. Then several more minutes will elapse before a waiter takes your order. And then you will wait ten to thirty minutes while your food is being cooked and brought to you. Even when you are in no particular hurry these delays are annoying—and when you happen to be pressed for time, they are "maddening."

Contrast that with the North American Restaurant where you select and get your food immediately, "serving yourself" from our 360 feet of display tables. The North American may sometimes seem crowded but our seating capacity is so big, and our facilities so well perfected, that there is always a table for you. And even during "rush hours" you are at your table with food in far less time than is required in any "service" restaurant. Considering the tremendous number of people who dine here during the lunch and dinner hours, that may seem difficult—but it is a fact never-the-less.

And that's another reason why the North American is the most popular restaurant ever known. But, of course, the chief reason is the fact that here you get more good food for less money than at any other dining-place in existence. For instance:

Halibut and Peas: A portion usually ample for two 40c
Filet of Sole: Two big pieces with real Tartar Sauce . . . 45c
Fried Premium Chicken: Breast of Chicken [all white meat] with Premium bacon and cream gravy or giblet sauce . . . 65c
Tenderloin Steak Combination: a thick, juicy Tenderloin with French fried potatoes and lima beans . . 85c

Breakfast Specialties
Honey Waffles: Cooked to your order with 3 strips of bacon or sausage, butter and pure maple sap or honey 25c
Bacon and Eggs: 2 fresh eggs fried in butter and 4 strips of bacon . 30c

Bring the children. They are always welcome here!

The Most Stupendous Purchase and Sale of Floor Lamps and Lamp Shades ever Consummated—$125,000 Worth of Famous Eagle Wood Turning Co. Floor Lamps and Wabash Shade Co. Shades at about 60¢ on the Dollar

First of all, ponder the huge size of the purchase. It is, we have every reason to believe, the largest single purchase of floor lamps and lamp shades ever made in America—a sale planned months ago, which makes these marvelously low prices possible. The materials were secured during a decline in the market several months ago by the factory and used by them to keep in full operation the entire summer season—a transaction the more unusual because you'll find that the

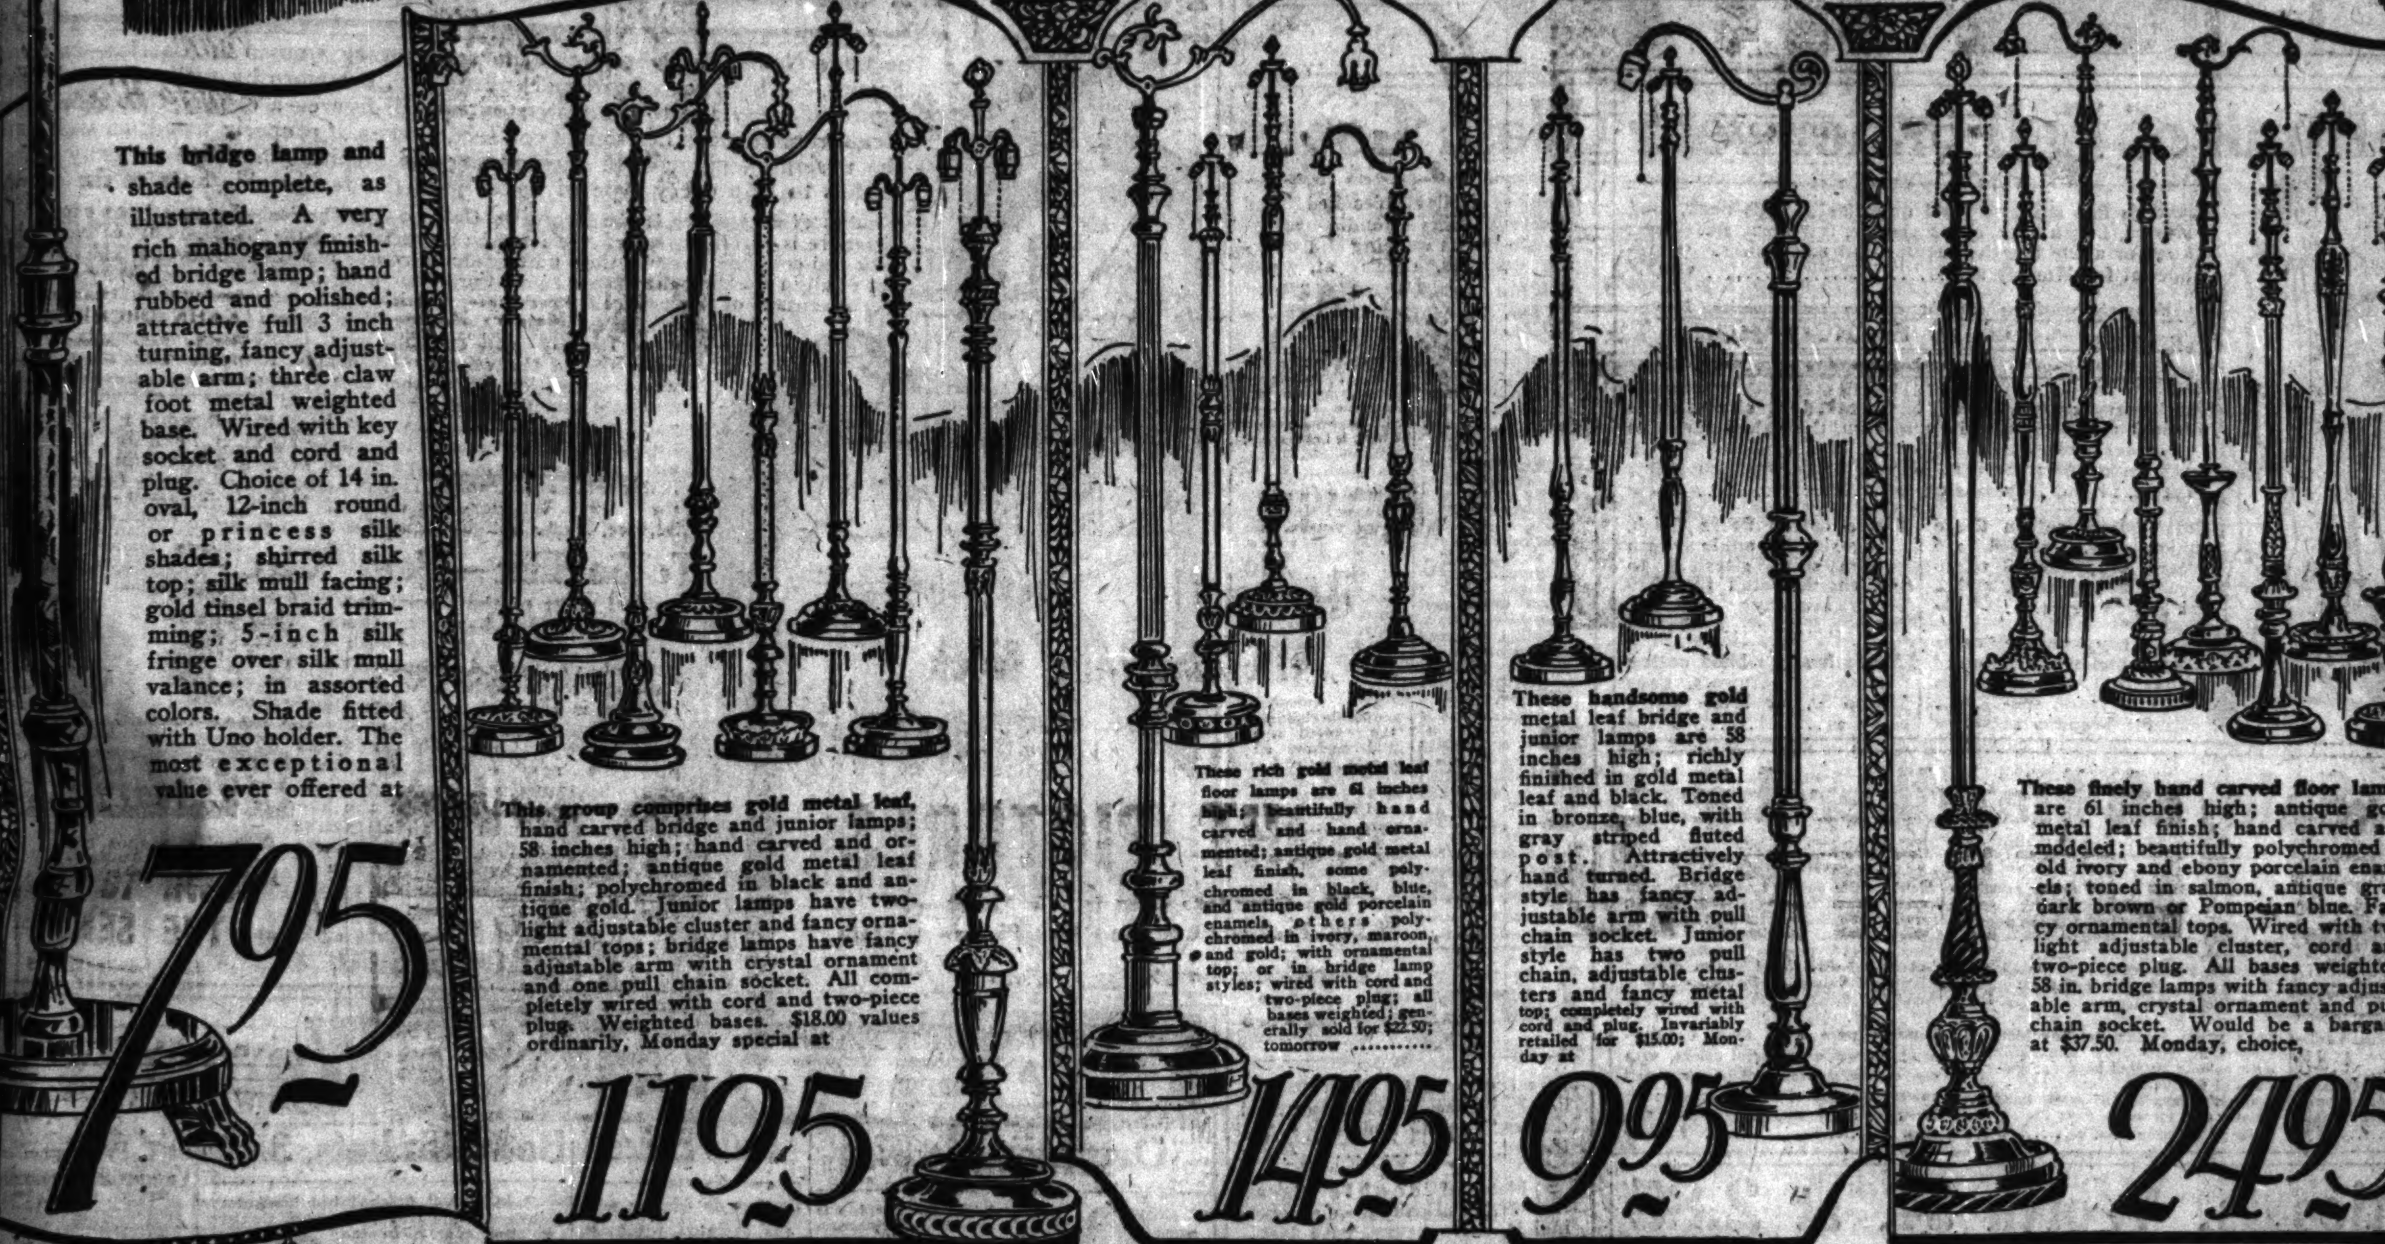
are famous throughout America for the splendid character of their products—the artistic designing, the careful workmanship, the complete harmony of colors, the unique color combinations, the rare good taste, the fact that their products always comprise the very latest ideas—it is all these very important facts, coupled to the low prices that rule here tomorrow, that make this the most important selling event in the annals of Chicago merchandising. The magnitude of the display can scarcely be described—over half of the great block long Eleventh Floor is devoted exclusively to this gigantic offering. Come and find, not hundreds, but thousands of lamps and shades displayed before your eyes—the most bewildering varieties—great, far greater than were ever thought possible—row after row of lamps that vie with each other in beauty and attractiveness—table after table piled high with lamp shades in every conceivable shape and style—an offering that every one who plans to buy a lamp for their own use, for a gift or for a Christmas remembrance cannot afford to overlook. Remember, on the Eleventh Floor.



This bridge lamp and shade complete, as illustrated. A very rich mahogany finished bridge lamp; hand rubbed and polished; attractive full 3 inch turning, fancy adjustable arm; three claw foot metal weighted base. Come See Tomorrow—the New Sports Coats: Remarkable Values!

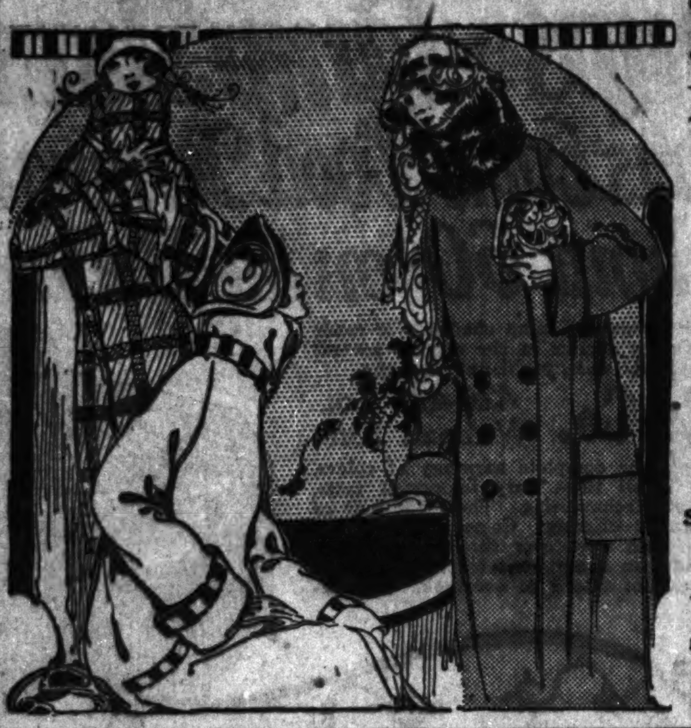
—Fifth Floor—Dearborn Street—



The reason why so many women show marked preference for sports coats is because they are styled to have a brisk, youthful air, a trimness of line, as sports coats have never had before. Their trimmings are so smart, some with great collars of brown fitch, natural opossum, or Viatka coney, others mannishly belted and with self material collars; unusual pockets; others again semi-belted, and, of course, many in the ever-present side tie effect.

Of plain, striped or plaid coatings in all the shades that Fashion has approved for Autumn wear: brown, tan, gray, etc., etc. Lined with good quality silk or striped Venetian; Sizes 36 to 44 for women and 14, 16 and 18 for misses.

Style and utility are artfully combined in these splendid garments and the low price at which we feature them for tomorrow will be a great inducement for early choosing. Regular $27.50 values; special for Monday, at.... 19.50

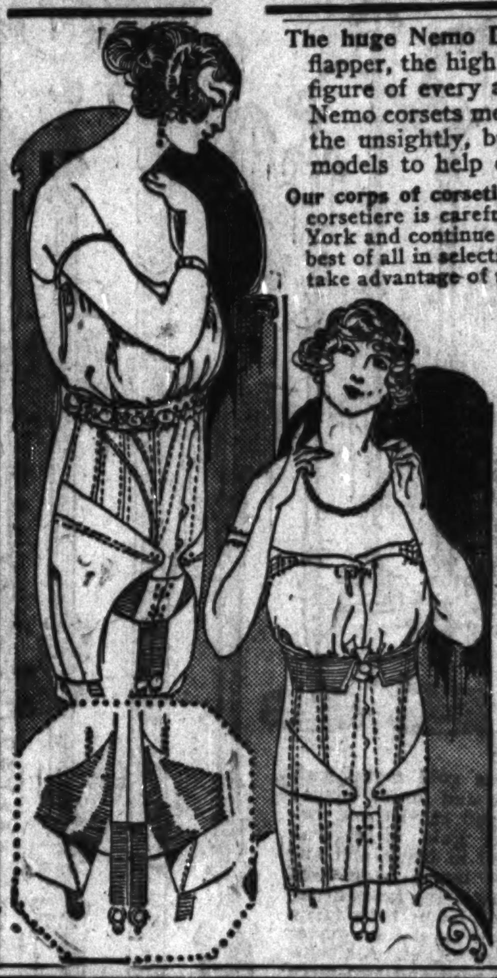
Nemo Productions: Of Interest to ery Woman



The huge Nemo Daylight Shops can serve every woman in America—so divers flapper, the high school girl and college girl, but worn by many maturer figures figure of every age to the very stoutest full figure—a display that should interes Nemo corsets mean health and comfort, always, if properly fitted, as well as the f the unsightly, bulgy flesh surrounding the diaphragm, which so many women models to help every type of figure gain the fashionable lines of the day with dels they produce—beginning with mbracing a distinctive, exclusive, because it demonstrates that the es of the day. Nemo corsets have as a result of improper corseting mfort.

Our corps of corsetieres is the largest in Chicago—and busiest—because here each corsetiere is carefully trained and must be a graduate of the "N. H. F. I." of New York and continue to study their post-graduate course monthly. They can aid you best of all in selecting the proper Nemo Corset for your individual figure. Why not take advantage of this unexcelled service—for it is at your command without charge.

In the midst of the "Corsetless Era" Nemo Corsets demonstrate more forcibly than ever the vital importance of corsets to fully 85% of the women of Chicago. Nemo Service has not won recognition from the foremost surgeons, physicians, modistes and the best dressed women of the world without good cause. It is a service that has enabled women by the thousands to overcome illness—to be stronger, healthier, more alert and active and, above all, to present a trig, trim, neat, fashionable appearance. This is accomplished mainly through the Nemo Wonder-Lift Service, Nemo Diafram-Reducing Service, Nemo Self-Reducing Corset, and Nemo Circlet.

To Be Slim—Wear "Circlet"

The real value of the Circlet can only be appreciated when one has worn them. They insure for you perfect comfort with just the right amount of needed support and control—no bulging of the flesh. The desired straight-line contour is effected by a new Diaphragm Flattening-Front device which molds the figure to stylish proportions. With a direct downward pull the new Hook-Rite attachment automatically smooths away all ugly lines and ridges. No. 3017 (illustrated) is for the average to full figures. Fashioned in an attractive combination of fine pink chamoisette and mercerized brocade. Women of all sizes are taken care of, as the size range is ample. At........ 3.50

No woman in Chicago can afford to miss seeing the display of the new Nemo Diafram-Reducing Corsets. Bulging flesh at the diaphragm has become a menace to the health, comfort and appearance of women. It is the outstanding physical defect of their figures and how to get rid of it, is uppermost in their minds. We have five distinctive Nemo models now for Fall of the Diafram-Reducing Corset to aid every type of figure, in sizes to 36—at

5.00, 7.00 and 13.50

Nemo Self-Reducing Corset, style 851, as illustrated at left. Note the inner elastic belt—no woman who has ever had an incision in her abdomen can afford to miss seeing this corset—sizes to 44—at $8. It is one of the great group of famous Nemo Self-Reducing Corsets; featured here at

4.00, 5.00 and 8.00

Nemo Closed-Back Corsets—They set down on the figure like a petticoat—do not bind around the waist. A smart model that is splendid for so many types of figure—perhaps just the corset you should be wearing—at 4.00 and up to 9.00

The New "Netherall"

The "Netherall" must be seen and fitted to be thoroughly appreciated, for it is quite unlike any other garment you have ever worn. It takes the place of your vest, brassiere and girdle, and gives just the right amount of support and control to keep the figure smooth and svelte without in the least interfering with freedom of action necessary for dancing or exercise of any sort. "Netherall" weighs only four ounces and can be washed as readily as a pair of silk hose. Made of air cell mesh, soft suede cloth and silk tricot in various qualities, in flesh, at

Know Why Music Stirs Your Blood? It Reacts on Your Pituitary Gland

As though the science and art of music were not complicated enough as it is, new terrors are now being reported. In order to arrive at the full inwardness of matters musical, you are now invited to visit a biological laboratory.

Do you know why you want to march when you hear a military band? Why jazz causes you to leap, wriggle, and snuggle? Why Stephen Foster makes you feel plaintive? Why a movie organist causes you to rage? Well, it's the old pituitary gland. You might have suspected it, as glands are at the bottom of everything nowadays. Falling hair, a row with the wife, your taxes, tax day, and the telephone service, all are attributable to that pesky pituitary gland.

"This gland," says an eminent magazine scientist, "is sensitive to music. Different kinds of music affect it different ways."

There you have it, and there is the crux of how music affects you. You listen to a miss in one of your flivver's cylinder's and your pituitary gland tells you that there is a heartless and conscienceless garageman waiting for you. You listen to the Republican party sing its sweet cantilena on the tariff and your pituitary gland being ene rapport with the corner grocer, tells you that you are likely to go broke. You listen at a banquet to four broken-down wheel-horses called a male quartet, and your good old pituitary gland tells you indigestion is closing heavily.

Who Were These Strange Men?

STRANGE STONE FACES.

HERE is a face foreign to America, carved in stone. The carving is well done, too, and was the work of no amateur. Few men on the street could set out with a hammer and chisel and from a crude block carve anything half so good. And yet, from all the evidence we have, the man who made this head was an unlettered savage, whose tools were sharpened flints.

The statue is from Mexico. It belongs to a forgotten age, whose relics are just now being unearthed. Who were these men? Who?

in this distinctive apartment hotel. Comfort and convenience and a feeling of hominess prevail. You do not need to look farther if a quiet, exclusive residential hotel in suburban atmosphere is your desire as a home. Excellent transportation facilities to the Loop and North Shore make it particularly desirable.

Two, three and four room suites, most of them with a southerly or eastern exposure, insure a maximum of sunlight and fresh air. All these apartments have kitchenettes—thus providing you with home advantages without the trouble or expense of housekeeping. Laundry, refrigeration, gas, light, heat and service are included under one low rental charge.

Furnishings throughout are new and expressive of refinement. We especially feature 3-room apartments with a fully equipped bedroom. A limited number of these are now available—prices range from $115 to $275 a month. Make a short or long period arrangement with corresponding discounts.

THE KICK KORNER

Its Object Objection.

Flaws That Irritate.

Dear Miss Tinee: To ask a lady if she can remember "'way back" is too delicate a question for me, so I am not going to ask you to accompany me back over memory's trail to the days when we kids read and alternately laughed and cried at the story of Toby Tyler.

It may be that in my declining years memory is proving an unfaithful servant, but strive as I may I cannot recall ever having seen an ice cream cone in the days when I first read the book or ever witnessing the parade of the circus through the streets of our little Kansas town headed by the proprietor reclining on the rear seat of a new and shiny auto.

In the scene where the irate customers wreck the peanut stand because of the gasoline lemonade they ask the owner of the stand if he "takes us for a couple of—a certain make of car," and this in a day when such cars were not dreamed of.

I may be supersensitive about such things, but when I see such a beautiful and touching story as Toby Tyler mangled and distorted, and such a sweet and wonderful actor as the only Jackie made to rush madly into the limelight in the last scene with a roll of bills that would choke a cow and melodramatically save his mamma from the stern "in-law," reason totters on its throne and it wouldn't take many more such faux pas to make it fall with a dull and sickening thud and my permanent address would be Elgin, Kankakee, or Bartonville.

I hope none of the "fillum" magnates ever tries to make a picture of "Alice in Wonderland." Directors would want to shoot the picture at Coney island, probably. H. H. R.

Oh, My, My!

Dear Miss Tinee: At last I'm going to contribute to your interesting korner. First, please enlighten me—how much longer must we, the poor public, stand for pictures that all come to a grand finish with a forest fire? Ever since "The Storm," over a year ago, it seems we have had nothing but forest fires. Recently "Hearts Aflame" and "Scars of Jealousy" were released, and it was wildly advertised that they contained breathtaking forest fire scenes! O, my! As if that were a distinction!

Without exaggerating, I'll bet I've seen no less than ten pictures with forest fires since "The Storm," and I don't see all the pictures, by any means!

I, for one, am sick of forest fires and the dear heroes and heroines who always come through them as if they were fireproof! FIRE FIGHTER.

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Bored to Extinction.

Dear Miss Tinee: Many times I have wanted to write to thank you for my pleasure in reading your crisp, cunning, and to the point columns in THE TRIBUNE (which, by the way, I have followed for years), but always I have been switched.

May I thank you now for all my enjoyment. Meanwhile, I want to take the opportunity of saying anent elaborate vaudeville programs with picture that they bore me to extinction—especially the quips and quirks and the news that is not news—burning buildings, smoke, parades, etc. Also the various threadbare overtures.

Please take my sincere and enthusiastic vote for Valentino as Romeo. He is qualified in every way for this character, with youth, grace, romance, and a poetic feeling or passion in his acting. And Mary Pickford for the Juliet—not that I feel that she might be a perfect Juliet, but that I feel so sure of her artistry and her unusual charm of expression that she would make a new and beautiful Juliet—a romantic one. Miss Talmadge, to my mind is too self-conscious, too much the mannikin, too decorative.

With every good wish. DAISY.

[Editor's Note: That was a nice letter, Daisy.]

Belongs to Rodolf's "Army."

Dear Mae: Well, Rodolf actually got the Romeo vote! I am overwhelmed with surprise and pleasure. But it will be dead easy for it not to be possible to get him.

O, yes, I heard Walter Hiers speak at a local theater the other eve. I always liked Walter Hiers—but for ten straight minutes in his speech—he ridiculed Valentino, which seems to be the favorite indoor sport of late, with "Shrieks of Araby," etc., which, by the way, is after all good advertising for "Ruddy," as his friends are waiting patiently in a solid army for his return to the screen. All this "shieking" and "shrieking" only makes the participants absurd. I thought Walter Hiers would be a better sport than to show the green streak along with many others.

I saw Gloria Swanson in "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife"—the plot thin to emaciation—and Gloria in beautiful creations fitting like wet bathing suits, with the usual nauseated expression right straight through. That woman is absolutely slimy!

I am longing for a sight of Constance Binney with her clean pep and beauty, and sweet little May McAvoy; also Kathlyn Williams in her sincere acting; Elsie Ferguson with her finished performance; Blanche Sweet, and a few others.

Jack Holt can be depended on always if he only doesn't get fat. Dear old Theodore Roberts, Alex Francis, Rod La Roque, Monte Blue, Richard Barthelmess, Richard Dix, etc.

Mae, keep right on saying "good morning" and "See you tomorrow." The most of us like it.

JACQUELINE.

[Editor's Note — Good morning, Jacqueline! Don't be pessimistic, AND of course Mr. Hiers was only kidding.]

Young Composers Turn Their Backs to Grand Opera

tunes of all time, sung by the best voices in the world, and delivered with a degree of intensity subject only to the limitations of the conductor. Otherwise one is tempted to believe that grand opera as a subject is dead, and moving only because of the momentum of past generations.

Incidentally, one of the greatest successes of the Chicago Civic Opera last season was Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Sniegurotchka," pure fairy tale done into music.

Where Ringing Enthusiasm Lasts.

The London Times has something to say about a department of music that is scarcely known in this country:

"Sixty bellringers from all parts of the country, as far afield as Lancashire, Gloucestershire, and Kent, will join the local ringers at Saffron Walden and take part in the three hundredth anniversary festival of the Saffron Walden Society of Change Ringers, which claims to be the oldest society of bellringers in the country.

"Fabian Stedman, a native of Cambridge, who published in 1688 the first book on the subject, 'The Art of Ringing,' in which his very musical but somewhat complex system is set forth and explained, was a member of the Ancient Society of College Youths, which dates from 1637, and is said to be the earliest of the ringing guilds. The Saffron Walden society, however, disputes this claim, and today celebrates a ringing association which it proudly declares to have been in existence in 1623.

"Its claim to priority rests on the fact that on June 27, 1623, the Saffron Walden ringers were left a legacy by one Thomas Turner, a merchant of that town, who once was lost in the dense woodlands around Audley End, and was only able to find his way by following the sound of the church bells. To the legacy he attached the stipulation that on that date each year the bellringers assembled in the parish church should ring a peal on the bells and have a sermon preached to them. There is probably no other parish in the kingdom where ringing enthusiasm has lasted so long, or where Fabian Stedman has had more devoted disciples."

Prose Poem on Jazz.

One experience that seems forever new to Europeans is jazz music as it is done in the United States. Some of it is exported, but the performance is apparently a sad affair. Foreign orchestras are adept at playing the notes set before them, but the inspiriting rhythmic accents are absent. An unnamed German observer sat in at an American performance some time ago, and his reactions took the form of free verse. Here are a few of them:

"Then follow heavenly dances; with stationary trills of the feet. With ankle orgies. A mad, richly artistic din. As if only Negroes could dance.

"And not a letup in the stage direction. [There is singing between whiles by good looking girls before a golden curtain. Light complexioned Negresses form part of the company.] Everything to perfection. . . .

"America's leadership. . . .

"And now the Negroes sing. Immortal. The four 'Harmony Kings' roar and hum. It makes a fellow's heart beat in his ear.

"It's simply not to be compared with anything European! They execute a glissando of a half octave . . . . . . as if it were a single tone. Glissando. Out of some unknown distance.

"A corpulent darky sings a soft bass. Immortal. Yes, more wonderful than Malland's cantilenas. All four of them smilingly blend their buttery voices, a capella, without accompaniment. Never have I heard such splendid male chorus singing. Their pianissimo humming! Exotic, stirring. Crepuscularly plaintive. Often sonorous. At times almost like a yodeling outburst; a jungle howl. The primitive forest is there. A lost homeland.

"Half melancholy—not sentimental. Exotic. Genial. Questioning sadness.

"Africa! Africa!

"I shall never forget it. Both streams can merge in such a music; the one quarter—and the other three.

"For here, simultaneously, we find the striking . . . . and the substantial. At once entertainment . . . and emotional depth.

"A symbol for the future."

Here and There in Music.

Albert Spalding acquired this for his scrapbook when he played in London this summer: "Mr. Spalding is undoubtedly the most accomplished of the American violinists who have so far visited us, and his playing was not only admirable in many ways, but in one special instance it also pointed to the possibility of finer things to come. His style is certainly more remarkable for elegance than for strength or directness. But his playing of three movements from the second violin sonata of Bach showed that he can at times forego the fashionable tricks of Kreislerian portamento and airy graces for the sake of purity and clarity."

Arthur Zack and Edgar Nelson, in a concert of music for 'cello, with organ accompaniment, will open the season at Kimball hall on Wednesday evening, Oct. 3. The program will consist of music by Lalo, Bach, Boellmann, Reger, Florent Schmitt, Dvorak, and Popper.

J. Burlington Rigg, baritone, assisted by Frank Polesny, violinist, will give a recital at Orchestra hall on the evening of Wednesday, Oct. 3, for the benefit of the Scottish Old People's home at Riverside. The United Scottish Societies of Illinois are sponsoring the event.

WAGNERIAN

OTTILIE METZGER.

Ottilie Metzger is a contralto of the Wagnerian Opera company, which comes to the Studebaker theater on Oct. 28. She will be heard in "Götterdämmerung" and other Wagnerian operas.

Lovers of Music Get Aid in Many Industrial Firms

Arguments whether music ought to be considered an exercise for women and effiminate men broke out anew in the Etude not long ago, resulting in a symposium tending pretty well toward the negative.

"Some men seem to think they lose a part of their masculinity if they confess to a love of music," said Charles M. Schwab. "Well," he answered himself, "I love music, and I think I have held on pretty well to the masculine side of my nature. In fact, music has meant much to me in my life of affairs. Again and again it has refreshed me when I was dog tired, taken me out of myself and away from the problems of business. A book can do that, too. So can a painting. But not so surely as does music.

"There is a 'reach' to music that the other arts have not; it seems to 'get' to you in an exhausted mood and quiets and refreshes, where a book or a picture is not so sure. Of course, much depends on a man's nature; on his temperament. But, speaking broadly, and knowing men as I do, I cannot help but feel that the average business man would be benefited more than he dreams of if he exposed himself to music. It need not be the long opera at first. Let him select the shorter concert. But few men immersed in business are right in turning their backs upon music as a means of absolute refreshment, mental and physical."

Secretary of Labor Davis recalls the fact that a few years ago the bureau of labor statistics of the department of labor made a survey of the welfare work of 431 establishments with 1,662,000 employés. It was found that fifty-six companies had bands ranging from ten to twelve men to one hundred.

One company having many foreign born employés had four bands, one of them being composed exclusively of Slavic and one exclusively of Hungarian players. The companies contributed to the bands in various ways. Many of them contributed instruments and uniforms and hired leaders, and most of them provided a place for the band to practice. Even traveling is to become a continuous vaudeville under the plan of the Pullman company, which has undertaken the musical education of as many of its 9,000 porters as have any natural talent. The time may come when we can order a special car and insist upon its being manned by operatic singers.

Another contributor, John Philip Sousa, had this to say:

"Schools, seminaries, colleges, and universities all over the world have made the education of bandsmen a part of their curriculum. The industrial bands originated in Great Britain and France and are fast spreading over America. In Europe there are contests among these industrial musical organizations that awaken as much interest as do contests in athletic sports. From these industrial bands are graduated talented men who are found in the ranks of professional composers, conductors, and executants. These industrial musicians are doing a work that means the widening of the workman's hoop of intellectual horizon and offers a variety that is the spice of life."

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Evangelism Theme of Pastors' Union Meeting Tomorrow

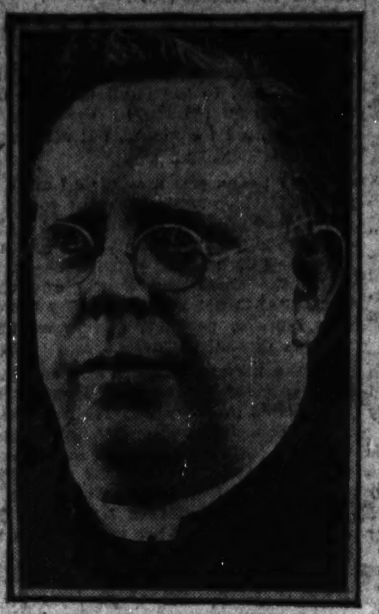
By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

THE first union meeting of the various Chicago ministers' associations under the auspices of the Chicago Church federation for this fall will be held tomorrow at 10:30 a. m., at the Central Young Men's Christian association auditorium, 19 South La Salle street.

The Rev. Charles L. Goodell, D. D., New York secretary of the commission on evangelism of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, will speak on "Pastoral Evangelism," and the Rev. Floyd W. Tomkins, D. D., Philadelphia, of the Protestant Episcopal church and a former Chicago rector, will speak on "The Spirit of Evangelism." The secretaries of evangelism representing various denominations will be present, the Rev. Charles E. Schaefer, the Rev. George B. Dean, the Rev. Jesse M. Bader, and the Rev. J. A. Groves.

Denominational luncheons addressed by denominational leaders will be held following the union meeting at the Hotel Sherman.

The appeal for a large attendance as the beginning of the evangelistic church campaign from October to Easter was signed by the Rev. Howard Agnew Johnston, president, and the Rev. Charles K. Carpenter, pastor of the Ravenswood Methodist Episcopal church, chairman of the commission on evangelism, of the Chicago Church federation.



THE REV. D. P. O'BRIEN.

The Rev. D. P. O'Brien, founder and pastor of St. Columbanus' Catholic church, in the neighborhood known as Park Manor, will lay the corner stone today at 3 o'clock of a new church building to cost $400,000 and with a seating capacity of 1,400. The location is at 71st street and Prairie avenue and the new church will be the culmination of a series of buildings for church and school purposes erected at various times in the past since the parish was organized and first mass celebrated in a store room on July 18, 1909. The present building was dedicated in November, 1910, and the convent in 1915. What was a cabbage patch at the time of the original purchase is now a group of buildings alive with many church activities. At the corner stone laying the Rt. Rev. Edward F. Hoban will officiate and the Rev. Charles P. O'Neill, O. S. A., who was associated with the parish when it was organized, will preach the sermon. It is expected the new church will be completed by July next year, and will rank among the finest in Chicago.

A statement from Dr. Charles S. Macfarland, general secretary of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, says that one-half of the Boy Scout troops in the United States are working under church auspices. Dr. Macfarland says the Scout organization is peculiarly adapted to coöperation with churches of different denominations and all types.

Solemn requiem high mass was celebrated yesterday morning in the cathedral of the Holy Name for the repose of the souls of those who perished by quake, fire, and flood in the recent disaster in Japan. The collections taken in Catholic churches last Sunday are being sent to the apostolic delegate resident in Japan, who will attend to the distribution of the funds contributed by Catholics throughout the country, according to the recommendation of Archbishop G. W. Mundelein.

The Rev. Milton M. McGorrill will preach his initial sermon this morning as pastor of the Normal Park Baptist church, 70th street and Stewart avenue, as successor to the Rev. Charles T. Holman, who has joined the faculty of the University of Chicago.

St. Philomena's Catholic church, Cortland street and North Kedvale avenue, will be dedicated today by Archbishop G. W. Mundelein. The Rev.

Admiral
Kitchenette Apartments

Families seeking accommodations of the most desirable nature are invited to consider the unusual advantages of residence in the Admiral—one of Chicago's newest hotels.

Besides points of superiority fully appreciated only upon residence in the Admiral, there are certain features evident to most casual inspection. To enumerate only a few: A location on the shore of the lake, the absence of through streets, the calm quiet of an exclusive suburb, inviting places for the general use of guests, such as a private beach, a charming Italian garden, a pleasant lounge, a spacious veranda, facilities for entertainment without the least inconvenience—the main dining room accommodates 100 or more persons and there are various other dining rooms of smaller size.

And all of the advantages of the Admiral may be had at a rental not in excess of what you would pay in any first class hotel.

NUXATED IRON
No remedy can cure all ailments of the human body, but an immense number of people suffer from aches, pains and disease symptoms when their real trouble is lack of iron in the blood. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the nourishment out of your food. Without iron your food merely passes through you without doing you any good; you don't get the strength out of it. There is one universally known tonic that has helped thousands because it contains iron like the iron in fresh vegetables and like the iron in your blood.
NUXATED IRON
is an eminent physician's best blood prescription, standardized. It is recommended for all anaemic and run-down conditions. It has helped thousands of others. It should help you. Ask for it at any drug store.

John P. Schiffer, the pastor, has led the erection of the new edifice and in the building up of a parish of 1,100 families with 900 children in the school. The church was organized as a mission in 1883. The pastor now has three assistants. The old church building will be arranged with classrooms for school purposes.

The year book of the federal council of the Churches of Christ in America is now in the hands of Dr. Herbert L. Willett, in charge of the western office of the federal council, room 1302 Chicago Temple, for distribution. It is a book of 500 pages, one-half of which is devoted to a classification and description of the doctrines, history, and special characteristics of more than 200 religious denominations. We know of no other place where such a classification can be found within the compass of a single volume. There is also a directory of interchurch national and international organizations devoted to social service. Church statistics of almost every kind are here recorded. The publications of the federal council are also catalogued. Ministers and all kinds of church and social workers will find it highly useful.

The third annual convention of the Disciples of Christ in the metropolitan area of Chicago will be held next Friday at the Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street. Sessions begin at 10:30 a. m., 2:30 p. m.; dinner, 6 p. m.; program, 7 to 8 p. m.

The Rev. J. W. Hoyt, pastor of the Belden Avenue Baptist church, will begin this evening a series of seven sermons on the general subject "The Second Coming of Jesus." Dr. Hoyt says this subject is commanding the most interest of any in the church today.

The Chicago Woman's Missionary union will meet next Thursday in the Evanston Christian church. The Rev. Arthur Vandervoort of New York will speak.

A conference on law enforcement under the auspices of the Chicago Church federation will be held next Wednesday at a 12:30 luncheon. Fred B. Smith of New York will be the chief speaker.

The northeastern deanery of the Chicago diocese of the Episcopal church will be held on Tuesday at St. Chrysostom's church, 1424 North Dearborn parkway. Holy communion at 11 a. m. will be celebrated by the Rev. John Herbet Edwards, dean, on the fortieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. The Rev. Frederick G. Deis will speak on missionary work in China. Luncheon at 1 p. m. Afternoon speaker, the Rev. Frederick S. Fleming, "Methods in Parochial Work." Those who will attend notify Dr. Norman Hutton, rector.

The Woman's union of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Evanston, is making elaborate preparations for a two days' pageant and bazaar Nov. 8 and 9, which will be education, social, and financial. The general title of the event is "The Square." Beginning with Chicago, denominated the "Melting Pot," every portion of the United States and the world where the church is at work in home or foreign missions will be visually represented. At intervals demonstrations will be given. Mrs. Ernest Ashton Smith is general chairman.

The Deerfield Presbyterian church, the Rev. Martin Luther Thomas, pastor, will be dedicated today. Dr. Alfred H. Barr, newly appointed professor of homiletics in McCormick theological seminary, will preach at 10:45 a. m., and the Rev. Charles K. Orsborn, River Forest, at 7:45 p. m. The new church is of white brick in both exterior and interior, finished in California redwood. The building, it is said, will be dedicated almost, if not entirely, free from debt. Karl H. Sheldon was the architect.

The birthday anniversary of the late Frances E. Willard, America's foremost advocate of prohibition and the one whose marble statue represents Illinois in the rotunda of the capitol at Washington, D. C., will be celebrated at the Willard Memorial Methodist church, Euclid avenue and Harvard street, Oak Park, today, Tuesday and Friday evenings, and next Sunday. Miss Willard was the first dean of women at Northwestern university, and the dinner at 6:45 Friday evening will be for N. U. alumni and the general program following will be by alumni. Next Sunday morning the address will be by Miss Mary McDowell, superintendent of city welfare work, on the subject "Frances E. Willard, Maker of a Better World." At 7:45 Dr. Ernest Bourner Allen will speak on "Woman's Work Today."

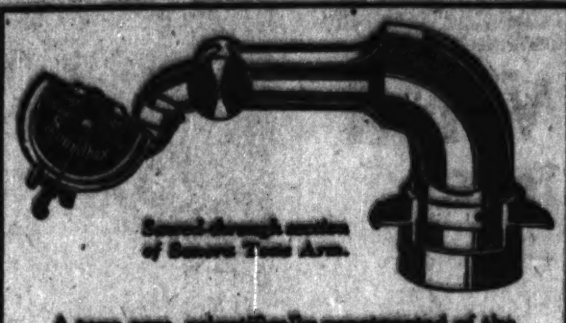
CLEAR AS A BELL

Look Below the Surface!



Sound-through section of Sonora Tone Arm.

A tone arm, scientifically constructed of the best material and of correct proportions, is vitally necessary for true amplification. Sonora tone arms represent the ultimate in quality. Read the message below—of interest to all phonograph purchasers.

Sonora Tone Arms Are Correctly Proportioned

SONORA brass tone arms play a vital part in the achievement of Sonora's superior tone quality.

Drawn brass has been chosen by Sonora as the only proper metal for the tone arms of "The Highest Class Talking Machine in the World". For brass assures permanent strength and eliminates absorption of air displacements.

The Sonora brass tone arm is only one of many quality construction features hidden below the surface which any Sonora dealer will gladly demonstrate.

Simmons "Raleigh" beds. Shown here in a dark walnut finish that is practically indestructible in use.
Finished also in a rich brown mahogany. Supplied in all standard widths at very moderate prices.

You cannot afford to economize on sleep

Sleep is the most important of life's few necessities. Total loss of it will kill any animal in a week, while men have gone without food for fifty days or more and quickly recovered.

Yet the majority of Americans spend lavishly for food, year after year, and make their beds objects of unthinking economy.

For this mistake they pay—pay in the finest part of their mental energy and physical well-being—pay even in years of life itself.

And all the while, the best spring and mattress made costs only two or three cents per night of use.

Check up on your own sleep equipment today. Go to your furniture dealer's and examine the luxurious Simmons springs and mattresses he displays in various styles at very moderate prices.

Compare them tonight with your own bedding, carefully. Decide for yourself, then, whether you can afford to economize on comfort and sleep any longer.

Cruising 'Round the World
Make the Dream Come True

GOING Around the World is more or less of a dream to most people. Everybody has it. Everybody expects it to come true some day. But the idea is so full of the unknown, so imaginary, so adventurous, so wonderful, that to most people it remains a dream.

Make the dream come true.

Under the experienced management of the American Express Travel Department a cruise around the world is a very practical possibility—easily arranged, easily financed. It is the most real, the most stimulating, the most luxurious experience of a lifetime.

It is so easy to make the dream come true.

Consider the coming Cruise of the Cunarder FRANCONIA. Built especially for long distance cruising, and just launched, the FRANCONIA is the last word in modern ship construction. Safe and speedy—a floating palace of luxurious recreation—a fine and comfortable club with every convenience and refinement suggested by 80 years of Cunard experience—and with perfect management and ship discipline at sea.

Management of the American Express Travel Department, the FRANCONIA sails from New York November 15th, from San Francisco, December 4th—returning to New York March 27th. 30,000 wondermiles leisurely covered in 133 never-to-be-forgotten days. Carefully planned shore excursions from all ports of call included in initial cost. Special inland trips optional. Itinerary includes—Havana, Panama Canal, San Francisco, Hilo, Honolulu, Japan (13 days—Yokohama, Kamakura, Tokyo, Kobe, Kyoto, Nikko, Inland Sea, Miyajima), Shanghai, Hongkong, Manila, Batavia, Singapore, Rangoon, Calcutta, Colombo, Bombay, Port Tewfik, Cairo, Naples, Monaco, Gibraltar.

The Franconia Party will be limited. Reservations should be made now. Interest in World Cruising has been so stimulated by the success of last year's American Express World Cruise that an early closing of bookings is indicated.

Make the Dream come true. Write for full details—deck plans and illustrated book of the Cruise. Experienced travel representatives of the American Express will give you every assistance in perfecting your plans. Call, phone or write.

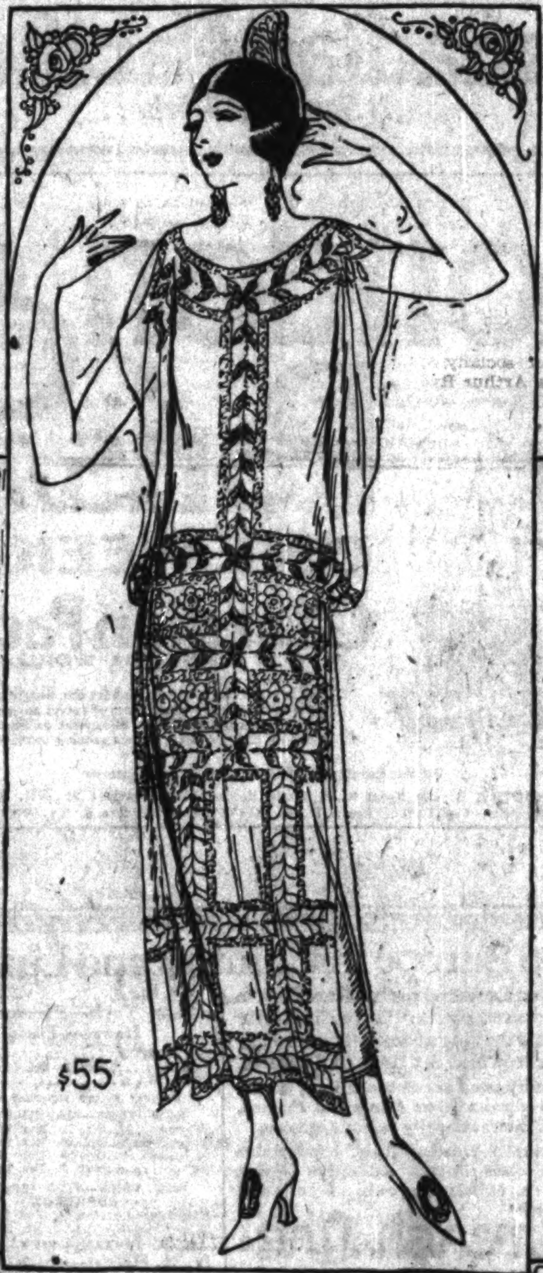
The Season's First Important Sale

And every woman who craves beautiful Dresses of superb quality will be here tomorrow. Not in years has such an important sale been offered the women of this city. The Dresses are the best obtainable and the shrewd shopper will secure her supply for the entire Fall and Winter season in this sale Monday. There are Dresses for every occasion . . . no need to look farther regardless of what your needs might be in Gowns and Frocks.

Every Staple and Pastel Shade



Positive Savings of 50% and More

We are firm in our assertion that you will save 50% and more on the majority of the Dresses in this sale. Although these very remarkable savings have been made possible by our tremendous buying power and shrewd merchandising, we have not let them interfere with the careful choosing of the styles. Each and every Dress offered tomorrow was selected and passed on by our style specialists before it was finally purchased.

Autumn Days Ring with North Shore Hunting Echoes

By Mme. X.

THIS is the moment of the year when, in the world of fashion, the horse reigns supreme. The automobile may oust this noble quadruped during the rest of the twelve months, but these crisp autumn days arouse the emotions of even the most apathetic of horseback riders, and send them forth mounted on their trusty steeds to follow the wild anise seed bag over ditches and fences, or merely to sniff the acrid fragrance of the season's piles of smoldering brushwood. A special emphasis is given to the horse by the horse show held Friday and yesterday by the Mayslake Hunt club at Hinsdale. Saddle horses, hunters, and other classes were exhibited. The famous Peabody stables bulked large in the affair, and attracted crowds of horse lovers and experts.

The Lake Forest Hunt club will have the first run of the season next Saturday afternoon. Austin Niblack is master of the hounds, and under his direction new runs and series of jumps have been laid for this season's hunts. They are considered an improvement on those in previous years, as they are supposed to be better spaced, with longer runs between the jumps, which themselves are wider, so that more horses can leap the fences at the same time. The Lake Forest Hunting folk are a gallant lot and make up in daring what some of them lack in experience. They take their spills cheerfully. Their motto or prayer should be: "Let there be no moaning at the bars as we pass over—or through them." And there isn't!

Keeping the Jumps in Sight.

There is no prettier sight than to follow a hunt in an automobile. The gas cars run in single file through the narrow country roads until they get to one of the prearranged jumps, when every one gets out and stands, usually too close to the golden hued new rails put up for the leaping steeds. The horizon is studied in every direction and many false alarms are given before the first pink coat is seen in the distance through the slim autumn shrubbery. These meeting places are selected because there are several jumps in sight, and the onlooker can have a series of apprehensive tremors before it is time to drive on to the next rendezvous of festive peril.

To watch the flying forms leap over the fences is a never failing source of excitement. I know of nothing which thrills one more, especially if you know well all or any of the riders, than to look on at these feats of horsemanship. A tumble sends the heart into the mouth, and the relief when both horse and rider rise unhurt is exquisitely, poignantly delicious. Exquisite pain and exquisite pleasure are so closely akin that it seems as if one could not have the second without previously having had the first.

Sharing Army Triumph.

The polo tournament at Westbury, Long Island, last week was a fashionable occasion and one in which Chicago was represented among the onlookers by two of our socially notable fellow citizens. Mrs. Arthur Ryerson was the guest of Gen. Henry Allen in his box, and had the pleasure of sharing in the triumph, which was especially keenly enjoyed by all army people in the victory of the U. S. Army polo team over the British military team last Tuesday afternoon.

Eames MacVeagh was the other Chicagoite who was present on this occasion. He was the house guest of the Bradley Martins. Mrs. Bradley Martin was Miss Helen Phipps, and in that part of the country the Phipps family is quite the most prominent of the old aristocracy. There are, besides this big Bradley Martin place, six equally large estates owned by members of the Phipps family, estates on the scale of some of the famous English ones, which are, alas! passing slowly, but surely, out of existence in this period of post-war readjustment.

A house and horse party of almost royal size is being planned by Mr. and Mrs. John Borden for the end of October, when they have invited 100 of their horse loving friends to visit them for a week at their place in Mississippi.

The Bordens are developing a great estate there, and its size and possibilities are manifested in the size of this proposed party.

There will be daily polo in the big polo field, which Mr. Borden has created. There will also be hunting and fishing and other out of door entertainment for the guests, as well as indoor bridge and mah jongg. As the place is many miles from a lemon, Mrs. Borden has to take down with her everything needed in the kitchen and housekeeping departments. Last year the Bordens had a house party of fifty people, which was so successful that this year they are doubling the size, so as to include all the people they know who come under the class of horse lovers. To provide shelter, food, horses, entertainment for a week's visit from such a numerous company shows generalship of no mean order on the part of both the young hosts.

Down at "The Farms."

Next week-end will see Robert Allerton with a houseful of guests on his charming place, "The Farms," in Pyatt county, a few miles out from Monticello, Ill. Among them are Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Field III. and Mr. and Mrs. David Adler Jr. It is a delightful time of the year down there. It is not so autumnal as hereabouts, and the big gardens are in that luscious state of abundance that comes just before frost nips them. The air is soft and radiant with the lingering touch of summer still in it. The rosy reflections of the Georgian mansion in the little lake in front of it contest the brilliant colors of the autumn foliage that surrounds it and that sets the whole horizon into a sort of suppressed glow, as of smoldering fires.

One of the features of the place, a feature which, up to now, for some inexplicable reason, this column has omitted to describe, though The Farms has often been our theme, is a remote, unexpected plaisance which has more subtle charm and atmosphere than any piece of landscape gardening the writer has ever seen. It is sunk in a little valley ten or fifteen feet below the rest of the garden, and is surrounded by a gray stone wall with a mighty rampart of black pine trees above the wall. It is entered from both sides by a flight of stone steps. At each end, for it is an oblong inclosure, built high above the wall, are twin pavilions, one set above the other. The effect suggests a Chinese fantasy. The lower pavilion is reached by steps and the upper one by a steep ladder. From the peak one gets a view of the surrounding country, the winding Sangamon river, the woods and fields that diversify Pyatt county.

The plaisance is paved with the softest, lushest green grass that ever feet sank into. Its Chinese character is further strengthened by a set of ten huge passionately blue Chinese dragons, or dogs, on pedestals. "The dogs, Foo," the Chinese call them. They are grinning beasts whose fangs suggest a monstrous derision at the folly of the rest of the world. If ever the romance that seethes and has seethed for many years in the brain of the present scribe takes shape and book form, the peak of the tragedy will be set in a scene just like this sunken, silent, green retreat with its grim guardians looking on to mock the sufferings of hero and heroine. Or else a bloodless and terrible murder could be staged there. It is a place to conjure strange fancies and to encourage belief in the occult, especially the occult of the oriental brand.

Ideal Setting for House Party.

A wonderful path 1,000 feet long, straight through the gardens, making that essential in garden planning, a straight axis, leads from the entrance driveway to this fascinating spot through a series of inclosures with high hedges and past espallered fruit trees, vine covered walls, and expanses of beds of flowers and vegetables. Out beyond the sunken domain of the family of "dogs Foo" lies a lovely woodland through which a continuing wide straight path leads for a half a mile or so. The whole stretch of gardens and woods makes a delightful walk of a morning or in the late afternoon when the sun throws long shafts of flames through and under the branches of the trees.

It is, with the house, an ideal setting for a house party, and its owner is a most hospitable host and usually has a series of these gatherings from the time he opens his house in the spring until late autumn.

But Mr. Allerton is much more than a popular host for week-end gatherings; he is a practical farmer. He is always up and out on his fields early in the morning, long before his guests have even begun to stretch their limbs and open their eyes. He knows every detail of the work done in each department of his many sided estate. He decides on the crops and their rotation and harvesting. When the work on his 8,000 acres is over for the season he goes to town and there devotes himself with equal ardor to the Art institute, where he spends hours every day studying and rearranging some of the many exhibits. He is an accomplished connoisseur of pictures, sculpture, and the many "objets de vertu" which make the collections in the institute valuable and interesting. He

MISS CATHERINE REHM.
[Koehne Photo.]

One of the most important weddings of the season will be that of Miss Catherine Rehm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Rehm of 1525 Astor street, and John Stuart Coonley Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart Coonley of 1245 Astor street and Winnetka. The wedding will take place on Saturday, Dec. 1, at St. Chrysostom's church.

MISS EMILIE HOYT.
[Lewis-Smith Photo.]

Miss Emilie Hoyt, daughter of Mrs. Phelps B. Hoyt of 40 Cedar street and Winnetka, is sailing on Tuesday with Mrs. Andrew Berger and Miss Rebecca Berger of Pittsburgh to spend the winter in Paris. Miss Hoyt and Miss Berger were roommates at Dobbs Ferry, where they both were graduated last May. Miss Hoyt will make her debut in 1925.

MISS MARJORIE ALLEN.
[Baymor Studio Photo.]

Miss Hoyt's cousin, Miss Marjorie Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin C. Allen of 1448 State parkway and Winnetka, who also was graduated from Dobbs Ferry in May and will make her debut next year, will sail on Wednesday to spend the winter at Miss Risser's school in Rome.

is an authority on Chinese and Japanese art and on Italian primitives, as well as on modern painting.

In his house are some interesting examples of Glynn Philpot's canvases, while among the most striking features of his garden are by the same artist, two colossal and elemental figures, low browed, brawny, melancholy, expressing the spirit of primeval toil. As a matter of fact, it is the same figure seen from different points of view. They stand on either side of a charming walk to the gardens and they suggest Caliban, or the Neanderthal man, or some other primitive specimen of our race just emerging from the empire of the brute world. The long, slow birth of mankind becomes a vivid thing as one looks on these creations of the young English artist. The distance between the Neanderthaler and Mr. Philpots is impressive and encouraging.

Reports on Russia.

There is much discussion as to the present state of Russia, and there are as many varying reports on it as there are people returning from there. So many of these returned travelers seem to have axes to grind—political, philanthropic, and otherwise—that the salt bag threatens to become empty.

For ourselves, we are going to wait until Mr. and Mrs. George A. McKinlock, Miss Muriel McCormick, Henry J. Patten, and his nephew, "Jack" Patten, return before we make up our eager mind which way the cat should jump. The McKinlocks and Miss McCormick are on their way home now, having made a brief tour of Sweden and then taken handbags and skipped across the Baltic to Russia. They share the disability of most of our countrymen who undertake the task of studying present conditions in that sorely afflicted land in that they probably do not understand or speak a word of Russian.

I suppose the only Chicagoan who has a working knowledge of this intricate and difficult language is Charles R. Crane, who can speak it like a native of Muscovy. To no non-Russian speaking mortal is it possible to understand or analyze Russia.

The two Pattens, uncle and nephew, went to Russia in midsummer and, like others of their countrymen, saw about what the present régime permits foreigners to see, and no more. Mr. Patten and his daughter, Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, and her husband and children are booked to arrive in this country next Thursday. The Wheelers joined Mr. and Mrs. Patten in Dinard on the English channel, where they all spent that part of the summer not devoted to motoring and making excursions to Paris and London.

Among the Travelers.

Mr. and Mrs. Laird Bell returned to Winnetka last week after spending a month in a trip to England. With the voyage there and back taking about a fortnight, it allowed them about the same amount of time in England, a brief but entertaining outing.

MRS. GEORGE CALDWELL HAGER.
[Moffett Photo.]

Mrs. Jennings B. Wilson of 1114 East 53d street announces the marriage on Sept. 15 of her daughter, Grace Leslie, to George Caldwell Hager of Chicago, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hager of Bristol, Tenn.

Mrs. Bell's brother, Kellogg Fairbank, and his two sons, Kellogg Jr. and "Benny," returned on the same ship. The two lads were left in eastern schools, and Mr. Fairbank returned to Chicago on Thursday. Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank and their daughter, Miss Janet Fairbank, remained in Paris to make such preparations as the French capital permits for the debut this coming winter of the latter, and Paris is quite capable in this direction. It is not too much to say, however, that our own dressmakers and milliners are entirely adequate to provide the average bud with the foliage required for this great event.

In contrast to last winter's uncommonly large band of debutantes is the small one that will step into the arena this coming season. This will probably result in a lesser number of big balls than usually ornaments the social interval between the opening of the season and its close on Ash Wednesday.

Drama League Activities.

The North Shore Drama league, which began its career two years ago, is again to the fore. It will soon send out its notices of coming performances, and these promise to be both entertaining and worth while. I have seen amateur theatrical performances that were more entertaining than worth while. But this drama league takes itself and what it offers to its members seriously. Its present promoters are soon starting a membership drive which ought to be successful, as it can, with proper support, be made an extremely interesting and delightful feature of life on that long and pleasantly populous strip of territory that lies between Evanston and the Great Lakes Naval Training station. Percy B. Eckhart of Kenilworth is the president.

Kenilworth has at various times presented some capitally acted plays to its public. The North Shore Drama league, however, is an organization that covers Evanston, Kenilworth, Winnetka, Hubbard Woods, Glencoe, Ravinia, Highland Park, and Lake Forest, which gives it a wide field from which to draw its dramatic talent.

Among the well recognized amateur actors in that part of the land are Mrs. Laird Bell (one of the cleverest actresses I know, with a power of mimicry quite unusual), Mrs. Dudley Cates (also a spirited amateur), Mrs. Samuel T. Chase (whose fame was made in the troupe of players in the Aldis Playhouse of blessed memory), Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Atkinson (also products of this delightful but, alas! defunct, band of thespians), Mrs. Alanson Follansbee (the real stage lost a delightful personality when she married), and Ernst C. Von Ammon (who has acted in some of the most successful amateur theatricals on the north shore).

The plays are given in whatever place of assemblage is best adapted to their performances. They are performed once in Evanston, once in Kenilworth, twice in Winnetka, and once in Lake Forest, five presentations in all. This makes it worth while for those who take part in them to work hard to perfect themselves in their various rôles. One of the weaknesses of the customary amateur performance is that, after weeks of hard work, the show is over in a couple of hours and one is left with unused equipment and wasted effort on hand and nothing to do with it. It is one of the objects of this organization to conserve and spend wisely this stored up energy and training. It needs only the right kind of support to become as famous an enterprise as the Harvard Dramatic club or even, in time, perhaps to rival the Drama league of New York, which has become a semi-professional body of actors and actresses.

The Call of Clothes.

The daily mail brings dozens of ornate envelopes inclosing even more ornate notices of fashion shows. The minds of even the most intellectual females are agitated at this moment of the year as at no other with the question: "What are the fashions going to be?"

A cursory view of those already on hand is reassuring. There is no startling change in the style of dresses. They continue to cultivate the long, slim lines which are the despair of the lover of hearty and rich food. But that comfortable waistline which has of late years delighted the easy going, healthy member of the gentler sex is still the mode. Frocks are to continue to clear the ground by seven or eight inches at least. This, too, is a comfort. Materials are to be of the richest and most costly in texture. Also colors are to be brilliant and striking. Hats will be of almost any conceivable shape, many of them still inclining to keep the mushroom or, what the French call the "cloche" (bell) shape.

For women not so young it is suggested feebly and in a still, small voice, that hats worn far down either in the back or front or both are trying. Also, that anything at all extreme should be left to youth—fresh, sweet, and good looking youth. Rich embroideries, sultry, oriental looking ornaments, soft plumes, sumptuous and strange jewelry, expensive furs, all these things those not enjoying their first bloom may sport, but not the trying, bizarre novelties—the hard, low pulled hats, the slim skirted coat effects, the daring coiffures that youth uses for its triumphant experiments.

In a State of Expectation.

It is too soon to prophesy as to whether the winter will be a gay one socially, but as we are a prosperous community set in a prosperous country, as we have youth and strength and health, as we are by nature the opposite of serious, it is safe to expect a great deal of festivity and good cheer. The Casino, that center of innocent hilarity, has been for some weeks in a shining and glittering state of readiness for whatever its members may desire in the way of social activity. Every day there are small luncheon parties there, and frequent little dinner parties break the summer silence that has hung for so many months about the chic, charming rooms.

As the observer watches the development of that part of the city, a district that is frequently known as Streeterville, and sees it filling up with big, towering structures, he can't help wondering what is going to become of the little, one story Casino with its pretty terrace and cheerful awnings, its delightfully formal screen of trembling poplar trees, its neat lawn, its well kept flower beds, and its two tennis courts. It is such a prominent fact in the social life of what in Chicago answers to the name smart set [personally, I hate the term], that it is hard to imagine the gay folk of that region without it. Its 500 members are of both sexes and every age, and represent many various outlooks on life. This gives it a character not to be found in many similar organizations. Its board of governors consists of men and women, men predominating, though its president has been a woman since it started more than a decade ago, Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman having filled this office from the club's beginning.

It is entirely owing to her influence that neither cards nor dancing are permitted at the club on Sundays, though many other similar organizations allow this use of the Sabbath on their premises. Also she and her board are emphatic in excluding liquor from the club. Considering the almost universal practice of winking at or looking the other way that obtains in other similar associations, when members bring something to drink, this exclusion is a noticeable and praiseworthy feature of the gayest social club in Chicago. By your works shall ye be known.

WEDDINGS

No wedding or engagement announcement will be published in The Tribune unless it bears the signature, address, and telephone number of a parent either of the bride or bridegroom. Announcements should reach the society editor not later than the Thursday morning preceding the Sunday they are to be printed.

Mr. and Mrs. William Frederick Childs of Evanston announce the marriage of their daughter, Margaret Douglas, to Harry Russel Childs of New York, which took place last evening at their residence, 1625 Ridge avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Childs will take up residence in Montclair, N. J., after Dec. 1.

ART AND ARTISTS

Institute Opens Another Gallery to Japanese Art

By Eleanor Jewett.

Two wild ducks flew across a moon
Freighted with silver, we below
Stood in the summer scented night
And breathlessly we watched them go.

My heart flew out across a moon,
Like the wild ducks it fled away.
You spread your snare and netted it—
My heart so young—my heart so gay.

Now through the night when wild birds call,
Flying the clouds to seek their mate,
My heart yearns captive in your net—
Too late for us, love comes too late.

A SECOND gallery in the east wing of the Art Institute, gallery 53, has been devoted to paintings by modern Japanese artists. The room in which hangs Shiuho's "Wild Ducks and the Moon" has an interesting rival. The entire group is from the collection of Yonezo Okamoto. A number of the pictures are undoubtedly illustrative of scenes and persons figuring in Japanese stories and legends. Others are purely decorative, and the rest divide the reason for their being between legend and everyday life.

For example, there is "Hideyoshi" by Osada Choshu, a page from an old story or legend. Then there is "Listening to the Cricket" by Yoshida Shiuko, which shows the captured insect perched in a little wicker cage entertaining an enraptured audience of two with his monotonous song of shrill squeaks. I believe there is some custom of Japan here illustrated. It seems to me I have heard that on a certain date the girls and women go out and catch these tiny creatures, whose presence in the house presages good luck for the coming year.

"In Quest of Fair Lady" by Tomone is an amusing portrayal of a plump suitor ambling to his fate across a bridge on the further side of which is a demure maiden bashfully biting her veiled hands. To make sure the suitor does not pass her door by, however, her companion is outside on the veranda entreating him to come in.

"Emperor Engi" by Matsuoka Afkiu is exquisitely painted—a manual of dexterous detail.

A most amusing hunting scene is offered in "Inamuragasaki" by Taniguchi Kokio; the "Goddess of Idsukushima" by Matsuoka Afkiu is lovely—a pensive little girl seated on a hillside among flowers and holding a violet in her hand; the "Nara Period" by Takei Korio is an entertaining street scene.

The modern paintings from the Birch-Bartlett collection are hung in gallery 60 of the east wing of the institute. It is almost a safe bet that when the word "modern" appears, qualifying an exhibition, there will be a number of paintings in it that will provoke animosity in the souls of the nonprofessional public. You are more apt to find perversions of art in modern art than you are in contemporary art. With contemporary exhibits, one is practically safe. The modern stuff is what one must beware of.

Henri Matisse, born in 1869, is a modern. There are three examples of his peculiar genius in the exhibition. "By the Window" is mild Matisse; scarcely any one could object to it. "Woman Before an Aquarium" is a little stronger Matisse, and "Woman on Red Sofa" is blatant Matisse, the Matisse who made himself a place in the world of art.

Matisse, from being an abnormality, has become a cult. Not to like, or at least respect, his achievements is to declare oneself a barbarian. And yet—do you like that painting of his of the woman on the sofa? He gets effect, no doubting that. He treats his theme bluntly and broadly, with horrible colors that struggle each to overcome the other, with drawing that knows neither reason nor sense. The woman on the sofa has one broad, enormous arm and hand and another wasted, emaciated arm, its hand slender with tapering fingers. Do you like it? Do you like the brown, dry, parchment-like skin on the face of the woman with the aquarium? If you do, you see Matisse with the eyes of his fervent followers.

Gauguin, who was born in 1848 and died in 1903, is another modern whom one should like. People, some people, enthuse enormously over his pictures. Those who do not care for them generally keep still. An argument with a Gauguin disciple is too one-sided to be enjoyable. There is, in this landscape by him shown in the exhibit, a barbaric charm in the coloring, a kind of rain washed tropical effect, a young spring green mellowing the distances, that has its fascination. But I am just as pleased that only the one Gauguin is hung.

Van Gogh is another highly praised modern. Considering him as a master, do you like his "La Berceuse"? There is force, effect, intense color, dull, not brilliant, but no softening and no charm. To me his male figures and sketches of landscape are great. "La Berceuse" I dread.

The other moderns represented are Auguste Herbin, Foujita, Derain, Suzanne Valadon, N. Marmorek, and A. Beaudin. Maurice De Vlamenck has two black and whites, "A Village Street" and "A County Road," for either of which I would barter the entire group of other moderns. Across the gallery are other scenes, in color, by Vlamenck. They are from the Martin A. Ryerson collection of modern paintings. His "Houses and Roofs" is the loveliest painting in the room. Of the smaller canvases, "Storm Clouds" and "A Village Street" have the biggest appeal.

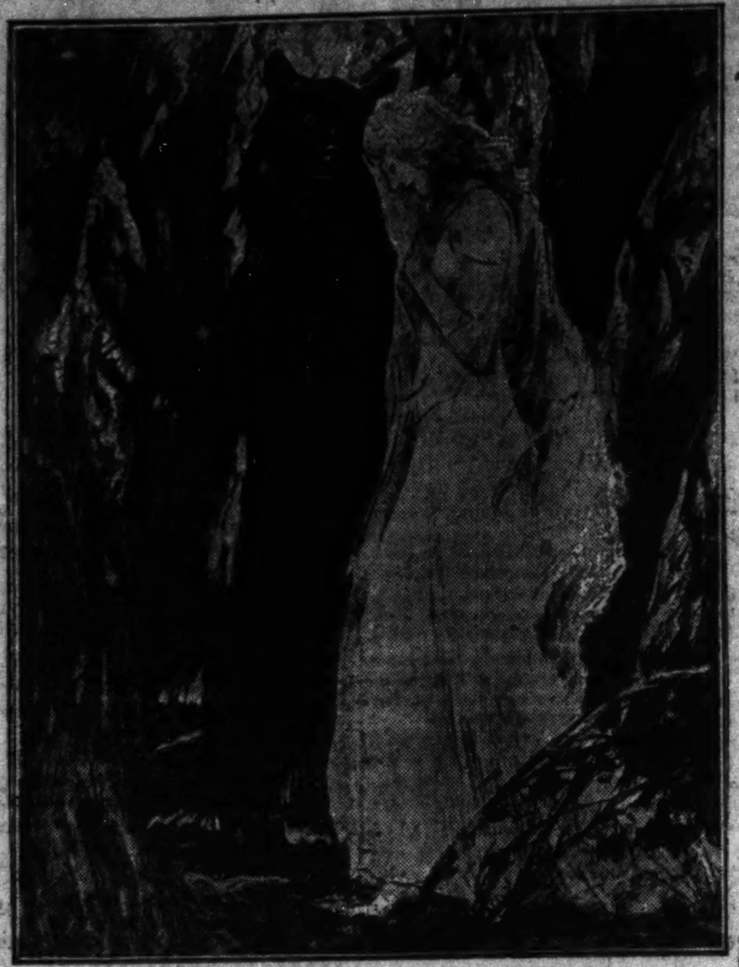
Another correspondent, who forgot to sign her name, suggests to me that Anthony Angarola, whose paintings with the work of E. Martin Hennings make an interesting gallery in the institute east wing, is a wealthy, not a poor man. Instead of living in a rather moderate way—pinched, is the word I used—he is a riotous liver, able to enjoy every luxury. I doubt my correspondent. Mr. Angarola is not what she would make of him. He has a wife and two little children; he has moderate means; he did work by day and paint at night during many years; he is a recent acquisition to our group of arriving Chicago artists. His painting does not show up well beside Hennings' work, but that does not mean it is not good. It is.

It is not often that one artist writes to me thanking me for some notice I have given of a fellow artist's work. Charles W. Dahlgreen sent me a most appreciative comment of my few sentences concerning Lucie Hartrath and her pictures, now on view in the east wing of the Art Institute. Miss Hartrath, who is one of Chicago's ablest painters, met with a serious accident in the spring and has not been able to be about until just recently. This exhibition is a witness to her courage as well as her talent.

Dorothy Visju Anderson, who has had a successful exhibit of her paintings in Paris recently, has returned from a visit to Wauconda, Ill., where she painted a portrait of Mrs. Freese as a gypsy. This painting will be shown during the coming season.

Harding Scholle, who has been attached to the Metropolitan Museum of New York, has become assistant curator in the department of decorative arts at the Art institute.

Karl Owen will have a one man show at the Palette and Chisel club starting Oct. 1.



"The Enchanted Prince," by Adolf Munzer, a fairy tale picture in the exhibit of contemporary German art at the Art institute.

HOSTESS

[Mabel Sykes Photo.]

A reception at the residence of County Commissioner Mrs. Edward W. Bemis, 5647 Kenmore avenue, on Tuesday at 2 o'clock will open the season's activities of the Tuesday citizenship class of the Woman's City club, of which Mrs. Bemis long has been the leader.

Municipal Opera for San Francisco

San Francisco asks the attention of its citizens and surrounding Californians for its own season of its own municipal opera, and has already raised $40,000 as advance subscription. It will have its own orchestra, eighty from the San Francisco symphony, its own chorus of 125 local singers, its own ballet of twenty-four, and Gaetano Merola is the director in charge. The principals will be imported, mostly from the Metropolitan. So far, they include Giovanni Martinelli, Beniamino Gigli, Doria Fernando—she is a San Francisco contralto—Giuseppe de Luca, Adamo Didur, Armand Tokatyan, Queena Mario, Bianca Saroya, Luigo Gandolfi, Louis D'Angelo, and Giordano Paltrinieri. Armando Agnini, whose Ravinia achievements are known hereabouts—as are those of some of the singers named—will be the stage director. The répertoire will include Puccini's "Trilogy," which is apparently "Il Tabarro," "Suor Angelica," and "Gianni Schicchi," Boito's "Mefistofele," "Andrea Chenier," "Rigoletto," "Tosca," "La Boheme," "Romeo and Juliet," and "Pagliacci."

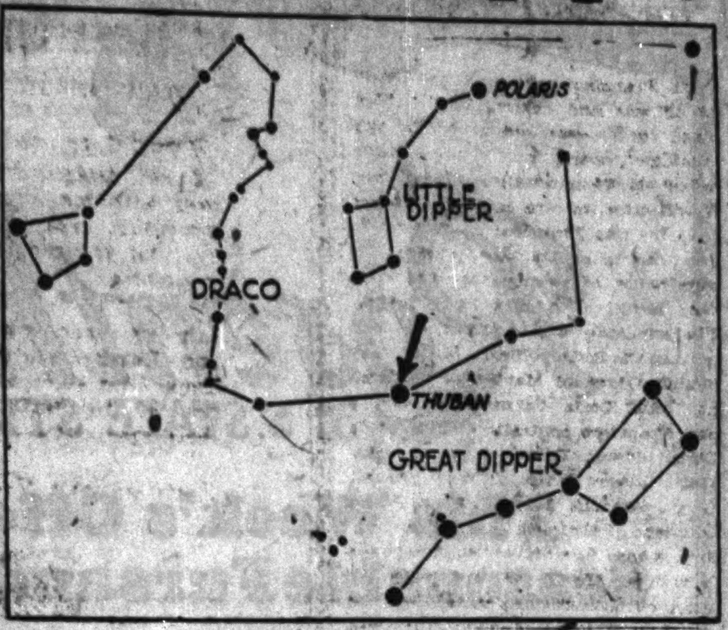
ASTRONOMY

THE CHANGING NORTH STAR.

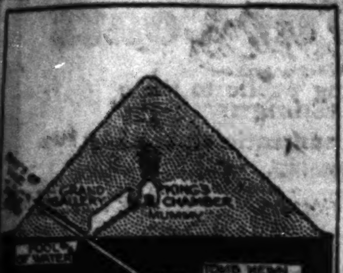
THE stars wheel about the sky once every twenty-four hours. They are shining when the sun comes up in the morning, and they come forth again at dusk after he has sunk below the bulge of the earth. The stars about the north pole of the sky never set, but shine continuously day and night from century to century.

But they never come back to precisely the starting point after the day's run. The earth in the meantime has shifted its axis, so that the whole sky has a slight left handed twist as it turns. This motion is called precession.

Precession is due to the pull of the sun and moon upon the equatorial bulge of the earth. Our globe has a belt thirteen miles deep about its middle, raised by the power of its own centrifugal force. Astronomical bodies, pulling on us, set the earth into a slow sidewise swing, like a top that is running down. We live upon the earth, and to us it seems always standing still with the sky in motion about us. The earth's precession looks to us like a shifting of the stars.



The northern stars.



How the pyramid faced the north star.

The whole heavens precess once every 26,000 years. This span is too long for any living man to even see a large part of it. It was unnoticed until astronomers began checking the length of the years. But in history, which is man's record of past events, the procession of the equinoxes is no light matter.

The great pyramid of Cheops in Egypt was built within fifty years of the date 2900 B. C. We would know the date even if there were no writings to be found to tell to whom it belonged. It was surveyed by the stars, and so designed that the light from the north star would shine down the hallway and up into the sepulchre of the king.

The Great Pyramid is one of the finest buildings ever constructed. It would tax the powers of modern engineers today to put up a structure so large or of such fine workmanship. The pyramid stands on a square 755 feet on a side, and in correct proportions so within one ten-thousandth of that value. It is 481 feet high and contains about 2,300,000 blocks of stone, each as high as a table. According to tradition, ten years were required to lay out the foundation, and twenty more to get the structure up. The top layers are distinctly inferior to the lower, indicating that the king began to have anxiety that he might not live to see it done and so hurried up the builders.

The pyramid was covered with a smooth casing of limestone, polished as smooth as marble. Many of the points were so finely fashioned that they remain almost invisible to this day. Most of the casing has been quarried away for building material, but the lazy Arabs would not dig away the sand that accumulated with the ages about the base of the pyramid, and so a few blocks have been spared to show us how grand the tomb was in the days of Cheops.

In the eighteenth course of masonry, on the north wall, and exactly in the middle of the face, there was a secret door. Inside, a passage led down to a pool of water, and from thence upward by a grand gallery to the death chamber, where lay the body of the pharaoh. A person standing at the door of the chamber could see the north star shining in his face. It gleamed there by day and by night, a fitting symbol of eternity.

But the builders of the pyramid did not know that the earth precessed. The star that was the pole star then is the north star no longer. In Cheops' time the cynosure was Thuban, the brightest star in Draco. Today it is Polaris, in Ursa Minor.

Go out tonight and look up in the northern sky. There, coiling between the shapes of the Great and Little Dipper, is Draco. The brightest star will be Thuban. Gazing at it, you will see the same light that the mourners watched as they laid the great pharaoh to rest.

Autumn's Choicest Silks

At Typically Low Primrose Prices

FOR Monday the Primrose policy of "Prices consistently lower than elsewhere" actually outdoes itself. For here is an unusual group of the Silks most in demand right now for Autumn gowns; reliable in quality, and at low prices made possible only by Primrose cash buying and selling, and the combined purchasing power of our four stores. These items:

All-Silk Canton Crepe $2.25 yard
Superior quality, in a complete range of street, afternoon and evening shades, also white and black.

Satin Canton Crepe $2.65 yard
One of the season's favorite satin-faced fabrics; all silk, in desirable colors and black.

Satin Charmeuse $1.95 yard
A lustrous, all-silk quality in a full range of colors and black.

Imported Black Chiffon Velvet $4.95 yard
An all-silk-faced velvet of rich quality; at this price only while quantity lasts.

A superb display of Metal Cloths and Brocaded Velvets, for evening and dinner gowns, at $7.50 to $16.50 yard.

Furniture Sale Clearance

Odd Pieces—Discontinued Patterns
Incomplete Sets

WE HAVE made such further reductions on odd pieces and discontinued patterns as to make certain that they will be sold in a One-Week Clearance, beginning Monday A. M.

The Semi-Annual Sale will continue throughout the week, offering in addition to the special bargains of the Clearance important economies in practically our entire stock of furniture, making this an event of the utmost importance to all furniture buyers, whether they need only a few pieces, or furniture for an entire home.

The pieces listed are representative of these bargains. Of some, one of a kind—of others several—but a large and varied assortment.

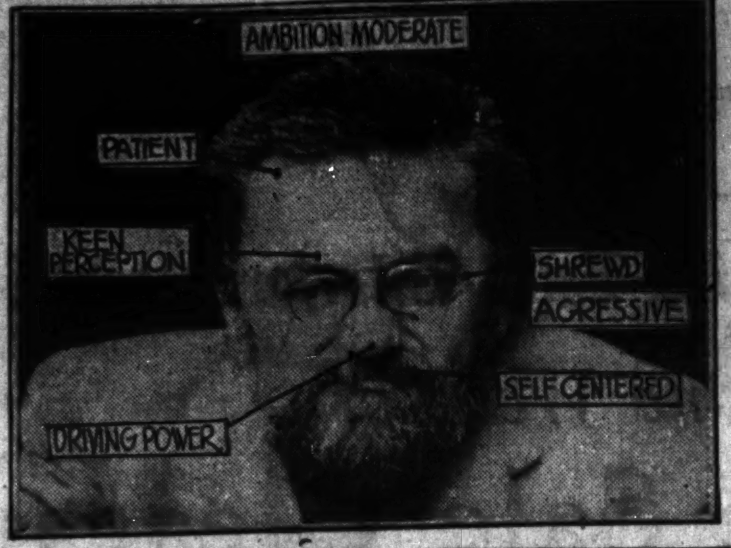
CHARACTER OF DR. STEINMETZ



DR. CHARLES P. STEINMETZ is of the Alpine race. His skull is globular. He is a materialist, he always was, and he will never get the viewpoint of any one who is not like him.

The Alpine race is noted for its slow, patient, steady thought, its perseverance, and its conservatism. To be truthful, Dr. Steinmetz is not a full blood Alpine, for he has blue eyes, whereas this race is dark, and his nose and forehead proclaim a Nordic cross somewhere in his ancestry.

Nordics are blonds. Steinmetz probably gets his initiative and brilliancy from the Nordic in him, for this race is the most restless in the world, and carries its peculiar traits even when its blood is diluted with non-Aryan stocks. All hybrids with Aryans belong to the other race. It is a mark of blonds that they cannot mix with brunet races. If they do, their children are always of the other race, although they may carry a blond trait of mind or body here and there.

Dr. Steinmetz is most strongly developed in the intellect, and least in the emotions. He can think and reason with great ease, and with not a little success, so long as he confines himself to strictly material subjects. But a poorer understander of people would be hard to find.

Nordics do not comprehend man, and Alpines are noted even more for never being able to grasp the other fellow's thought processes. The psychology of the Germans in the world war, invariably misjudging the temper of Aryan peoples, is proof of this. The shape of Steinmetz's head foredooms him to keep to himself, and not seek to come before people, under pain of creating a bad impression.

Steinmetz is one of the world's foremost electricians. He is reputed to be a wizard at mathematics, and to possess an uncanny knowledge of currents and circuits. Here is his Alpine mind again. A complicated electrical circuit is one of the hardest things in the world to understand, as any one who has ever tried to discipher a radio or a telephone blueprint knows.

Alpine minds are one track. In electricity this is a good thing, for it enables its owner to keep at his problem until he solves it. It is said among telephone men that the Nordics among them, mechanical and adventurous though they are, seldom try to learn the theoretical end of the business, because it takes too much of one kind of concentration. They leave that to men with wide foreheads and round skulls.

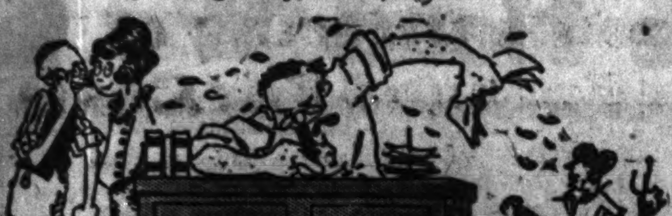
Slams of Life

By J. P. McEVOY

A PLEA FOR POSTERITY.

Beware the lad who loves to work,
Within his buzzum evils lurk;
His heart is cold to love's appeal,
His brow is stone, his spine is steel—
Beware that dull and driven oaf
Who says he'd rather work than loaf!

Love of work is a sad disease;
It cramps the hands, it numbs the knees,
It incubates the germ Success
And kills the joys of Idleness—
This talk that one should work and sweat
Is, as you might say, friend, allywet!



For to our children, as you know,
A sacred heritage we owe,
Though not expressed, full well implied:
We must let heaps of duties slide;
How cruel of me—or even you—
To leave them nothing more to do!

Then be unselfish while you may:
Desist from work—go out and play;
Posterity will soon advance,
Don't rob our children of their chance—
Leave them a lot of things to do . . .
It's fair for them . . . . and it's fun for you.

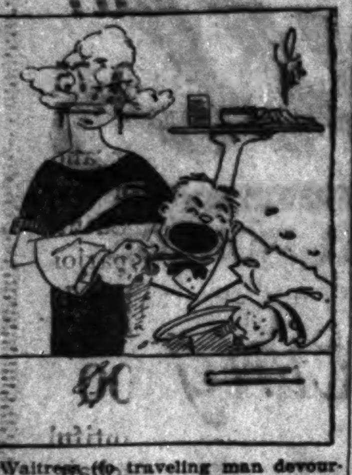
THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

What is the best joke you ever heard? If you'll write it out and it is published, $1 will be paid. Address Best Jokes Editor, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

PUT TO IT.



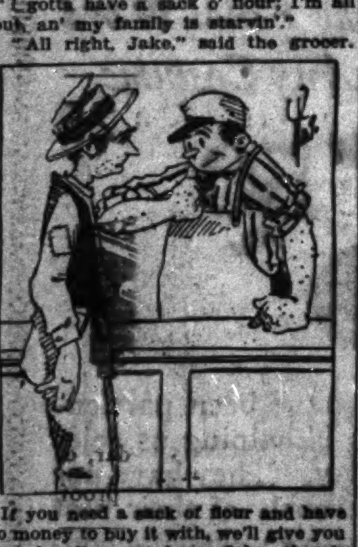
Waitress (to traveling man devouring bowl of bean soup)—"On a diet?" "Nope—on commission."

TAKEN CARE OF.

Jake was a worthless and improvident fellow.

One day he said to the local grocer: "I gotta have a sack o' flour; I'm all out, an' my family is starvin'."

"All right, Jake," said the grocer.



"If you need a sack of flour and have no money to buy it with, we'll give you a sack. But, see here, Jake, there's a circus coming to town in a few days, and if I give you a sack of flour are you sure you won't sell it and take your family to the circus?"

"Oh, no," said Jake, "I got the circus money saved up already." G. A.

UNQUESTIONABLE.

A dollar bill and a 1 cent piece once started an argument which deteriorated, as so many disputes do, into the purely personal.

At this stage, the big coin thought it would squelch its opponent beyond resuscitation by declaring: "I am one hundred times as good as you are—one hundred times as good as you are."

But the insignificant cent came back at him with this: "Like fun your are! I go to church every Sunday."

J. C. K.

WHAT MAKES A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN?

By Selby Maxwell.

WHERE FRIENDSHIP LIES.

WHAT sort of masculine friends does a woman find best? Has blood or race anything to do with the endurance or intensity of friendships? They surely have, says Oratessa. "To my mind, the heritage is half the man, or more."

Then she told about the men and boys who had meant most to her, from the time she was a little girl. Friendship is always based on interest, and interest lives upon reciprocation. Some of the friendships Oratessa told about never grew to be more than friendships, but all of them had in them the essential germs of love.

The foundations upon which love is built develop very early in life, and psychologists assert that we are born with the instincts and show the trend of our future preferences as we learn to walk and talk. Whether childhood friendships become loves or not usually depend on a host of external circumstances, but there seems to be no fundamental difference between the love of a little girl and the love of a woman.

"I became interested in boys when I was 6 years old," Oratessa continued, "and I have been interested in them ever since. At no time in my life has any considerable period of time elapsed that I was not day dreaming about some one, or thinking about him, or in love with him. I have had in all twenty boy and men friends who have more or less strongly affected my thoughts and my memories. These are spread over a period of twenty-two years, so you can see that each had my thoughts to himself, for a while at least. Some were steadies, while others came to me with meteoric vividness and were gone as suddenly."

Oratessa.

Oratessa is a beautiful Nordic lady, with high coloring, brown hair, gray eyes, freckles, and the usual Nordic ectrospective mind. "Of the twenty, seven were of Nordic blood, like myself. You may think that my own kind would be my preference, and that I would attract them most. Such, however, is far from the fact. I have loved or hoped for the friendship of seven Nordics, five Cromagnons, four Semites, and three Alpines.

"But the percentages of reciprocations that I got for my loving were these: Cromagnons, 100 per cent; Nordics, 30 per cent; Alpines, 30 per cent; Semites, 25 per cent. I have found that Cromagnons satisfy me, and I satisfy them. We are racially and tempermentally suited to each other. I would not be surprised to find that most, if not all, marriages between these two branches of the Aryan race turn out happily, but I entertain grave doubts about the others. From my own experience, I would say that not more than one marriage in three between Nordics is really happy. The reason is that both parties are too hasty and sharp tongued. Marriages between Nordics and Semites are probably the worst of all, with not more than one in four happy."

Downy Rest Bed Springs

They Rest You All Over

The "Downy Rest" Spring is as soft as a feather bed. It instantly adjusts itself to the contours of the body—responds immediately to the slightest movement or pressure.

The spring that rests you all over. After the first night you will decide that you can't do without it. No noises to disturb—no sagging, just an even, soft surface that rests you all over—"individually." When you awaken you feel fine—you look refreshed. Ask your dealer.

A Street Dress from Patou

Patou takes heavy black satin, black silk braid in varying widths, and much grey monkey fur. Out of these materials he fashions one of those simple wearable coat dresses with a plain back, fulness in front, beautifully cut sleeves, and removable fur collar. Here is the tube silhouette again, subtly modified, tremendously smart.

That's the sort of thing you find in Vogue. Frocks of distinction. Coats of individuality. Hats of charm. Shoes, gloves, accessories that make you feel well-dressed; that add to your self-confidence because they're right.

And think of all the Vogue departments, too—the Paris Letter, the New York Letter, the Smart Fashions for Limited Incomes, the Vogue Designs for the Seamstress, The Hostess, The Dressing Table, the Etiquette Department. The Services, too—the Shopping Service, the Information Service, the School Bureau, the Travel Bureau. . . , Vogue isn't just a magazine. Vogue is a group of experts who talk to you twice a month, write to you, buy for you. . . . And you get all this for $2.

Good value? Rather. The very first number is almost sure to save you five times the cost of the whole subscription. . . . The only kind of saving you ever tried that's a pleasure in itself!

Wagnerian Troupe to Sing 21 Operas

During the approaching two weeks' engagement of the Wagnerian Opera company at the Studebaker theater twenty-one operas will be given, only two of which are repetitions in the repertory. Two complete cycles of Wagner's "Ring" will be presented—one on four evenings of the week of Oct. 28 and the second a series of four matinées during the second week. All of Wagner's operas except two are included in the repertory, as well as two by Johann Strauss, a new opera by D'Albert, Kienzl's "Evangelist," and Halevy's "The Jewess." The Wagnerians went far toward making operatic history last year in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and other cities. New singers have been added to the roster this season; the new State Symphony orchestra of New York, conducted by Josef Stransky, has been engaged for the entire tour; the chorus has been enlarged, and new settings and costumes added to the productions offered.

For Men Who Shave

Never Such a Delight Known as "BUDDY BROOKS"—the Toilet Powder for Men. Not a Talcum

If you like a powder after shaving you will find a big improvement in "Buddy Brooks" over ordinary "talcum." If you quit using a powder because you found talcum too "shiny" or "slick" you will surely make "BUDDY BROOKS" a daily habit after the first trial.

"Buddy Brooks" is an after shaving powder. The can says, "A Man's Powder for Men." It is slightly "heavier" than talc—yet not anything like a "face powder." It is made with no other thought in mind than to please MEN.

Cooling Healing

Every Mother's Son Needs "Buddy Brooks" After Shaving.

"Buddy Brooks" is highly antiseptic and soothing and will quickly heal any little cut or irritation of the skin.

Women and children now use DADDY'S powder in preference to any fluffy, perfumed talcum or heavy face powder.

Just ask any druggist for a can of "Buddy Brooks." But if you have ANY trouble in securing it, PLEASE send your name and address to Buddy Brooks, Inc., Marshall, Mich.

The price is 50 cents for a large can. A little more expensive than talcum, yet not so much as a face powder.

Blind Can Type Music on Machine.

About a year ago a description appeared of a typewriting machine which printed the most complicated music with the clearness of first rate engraved plates. It is the invention of an Italian violinist, Luigi Fortoni by name. Recently Mr. Fortoni gave a demonstration at St. Dunstan's, says the London Telegraph, before an audience consisting largely of blinded soldiers.

"Mr. Fortoni had arranged a pianoforte keyboard with the Braille system upon which the blind musicians could play. Side by side was a specimen of his typewriter, to which the blind musicians, after a brief explanation, turned their attention. Mr. Fortoni tells me that after his explanation to one blind man the latter turned at once from the pianoforte keyboard to the typewriter, and actually printed correctly the few bars of notes he had sounded upon the pianoforte.

"'He learnt it straight away,' said Mr. Fortoni.

"It seems to me that there is here a new means for providing a livelihood for certain of the blind. The machines when completed will cost only about the same as a first rate typewriter, and music of the length of an ordinary song of the 2s order could be printed for a few pence!

100% COPY WRITER.

This organization sells direct to dealers through catalogs and direct mail channels. The line is tires, tubes and accessories. The house is perhaps the most successful of its kind in America. We want a copy writer who can write real copy about merchandise that he can honestly do his best on. He will be an important member of a very active, fast growing group of merchandisers. It will be his work to put the facts about our goods and our house into such printed form it will carry the message clearly, powerfully and convincingly. We have something to interest tremendously every automotive dealer in the country and we want our offerings so handled in type that they will compel interest and orders. Somewhere, either in an advertising agency or with some national advertiser or distributor, is the man we want. He will not be required to pay attention to the mechanical part of this work although that would help. We want a full fledged writer first and foremost, preferably one who has sold by direct mail or who knows the selling angles that appeal to the retail merchants. To such a man we can offer a particularly intensive field for his best efforts. Tell us in full confidence of your experience, your present connection, age, habits, salary expected and the other details we should have before arranging an interview and send samples of what you consider your best work. They will be returned. We want a real 100% man for a real job. Address L O 101, Tribune.

SALESMAN—EXECUTIVE.

The United Electric Co. of Canton, O., manufacturers of the New Ohio electric cleaner has openings for district managers, men with the necessary experience to sell new Ohio Cleaner to dealers and recruit, train and manage men to sell for his resale dealers.

Applicants to be considered should have made a real record in selling and in recruiting, training, and managing salesmen.

Openings exist in districts at the present moment with headquarters at Indianapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis, Omaha, Oklahoma City, Dallas and Peoria.

These opportunities are being offered to successful men outside the company's organization because the company does not feel at liberty to offer them to the members of its many successful distributors' organizations.

This is an unusual opportunity and should enable the successful applicants to make from $6,000 to $15,000 a year.

Write fully in strictest confidence giving experience in detail, connections during last ten years with name of immediate superior, age, education and present remuneration, and enclose a post card photo to W. F. Marr, Director of Sales, Box 173, Canton, Ohio, and if your application interests him, a personal interview will be arranged for.

SUBDIVISION SALES MANAGER.

One who has had actual subdivision experience and who knows Chicago and its offerings will appreciate our sales proposition.

I want a live wire, a hustler, one who knows how to keep busy, who can interview salesmen and sell them to our proposition.

I can assure you that our properties are the finest subdivision on market today. We have more than 3,000 lots on the market now; many of them have all improvements in and paid for. You can offer to your customers choice lots for $20 a ft. including all improvements. Surely nothing like this is being offered today.

If you have a record for success, can produce results without misrepresentation, and are not afraid of work, come in and talk it over with us personally. I can promise your time will not be wasted.

THE CASTLE

A CLUB HOTEL FOR GENTLEMEN.

There is much to consider before you are comfortably settled for the winter. Your home must not be too far from business with convenient transportation. You must have a cleanly, well ordered room, and abundant baths and showers, and as well a large lounge in which to loaf and read after business. Added to these, means of exercise and pleasant comradeship. The price must be moderate, for like any prudent man, you will count the cost. The Castle will satisfy these requirements. Come and see for yourself, or I will send you a descriptive booklet. The owner and manager is Mr. Adams, who was for many years manager of Hotel Chamberlin at Old Point Comfort, Va. There are remaining a few most desirable rooms with private bath or shower very moderately priced for an extended stay.

TO RENT—HYDE PARK.

We are offering to high class families a few very high class apartments of 5, 6, and 7 rooms, at 4720 Greenwood-av., in the most exclusive section of Hyde Park; each apartment has exceptionally spacious rooms with two or more baths; sun parlors and light on all sides.

We will rent you these apartments at a fair market value and keep the landlord's profit, or will let you be your own landlord by accepting from you a modest cash deposit and monthly payments a little larger than the present rental value, which will be applied toward the net cost of operating these apartments and paying the interest and principal of the present mortgage. The balance will be credited to your account until you have entirely paid in your proportionate equity in this building; thereafter your rent will be about one-third of the present rental value. REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

VACANT—NORTH SIDE.

SOLD OUT

⅔ of the entire Campbell-terrace Subdivision last Sunday, our Grand Opening Day.

WHY?

Because it will double in value in less than 12 months.
Because it is good.
Because we have what everybody wants.

BECAUSE

We offer the finest, best located residence and business lots on the North Side.

THE VERY BEST

1 block west of Western-av.
1½ blks. from proposed "L" extension.
COME OUT BEFORE IT IS TOO LATE.
Only a few choice locations left.

INVESTORS, SPECULATORS, HOMESEEKERS,

We take this means of calling your attention to another high grade real estate development about to be offered by us. In offering this property to our clients and the public we do not hesitate to recommend it, as it is of the same high standard and quality of property as we have heretofore been offering to our clients and the public.

Next Sunday—Next Sunday
September 30th, 1923, we will offer you this wonderful investment opportunity in the opening of our

INDIAN BOUNDARY PARK SUBDIVISION, located in West Rogers Park close to Western-av. car line, 2 blks. from proposed Ravenswood and one block from the beautiful Indian Boundry Park. Choice residence lots as low as $1,295. Largest apartment corners as low as $3,100.

"L" EXTENSION,

THE GREATEST LOT SALE IN CHICAGO TODAY.

FOR SALE—BEVERLY HILLS LOTS.

We have secured for a short time a few lots in the heart of Beverly Hills at most attractive prices. Large lots, 50 feet front, for only $500 cash, balance on very easy terms. No values equal to these and no one able to meet these terms. These lots highly restricted and the choicest on the ridge. You can buy these lots while they last, but our prophecy is there will be none of these lots left on the market longer than a week.

Come to our branch office and look at one of these lots today or tomorrow.

A choice list of homes ranging from $12,500 to $27,000. This list is very choice.

Glencoe.

GLENCOE.

If you want to see something real worth in the way of a North Shore development drive out to Glencoe today and look over

"SKOKIE HEIGHTS."

Here is a property that is totally different from any other on the North Shore. The lots are all large, mostly 100 ft. front, and range from 160 to 275 feet deep, with all of the improvements in with house connections inside of the walk; 50 foot building line; restricted to one residence to a lot; no residence to cost less than $15,000. Lots are sold only upon buyers making written application. Two residences are now under construction, costing $40,000 and $35,000 each.

We are offering sites at $65 per foot and up. We positively know that the present opening prices, considering location and other desirable features, make it without question the lowest priced property on the North Shore today.

In order that the public may have an opportunity to inspect "SKOKIE HEIGHTS" we will throw open the private road entrance on Green Bay-road. To reach this property drive out to Glencoe, go west on Park-av. to Bluff-st., then north 3 blocks to the BIG STONE ENTRANCE at Skokie [Dundee] road. We have an office on the property at the Green Bay-road entrance, which will be open all day Sunday.

Big Sale of RENEWED Franklin Cars

A RENEWED FRANKLIN IS BETTER THAN ANY OTHER NEW CAR WITHIN $1,000 OF ITS PRICE.

Whatever Your Motoring Needs

A Renewed and Guaranteed Franklin will come up to your requirements. Franklin is the most comfortable car built, regardless of price; is economical to operate, easy to operate (consequently SAFE to handle), and has a longer life on the average than any other car selling within $1,000 of its price.

Franklin Enclosed Cars

The Franklin Sedan is the ideal winter car—the only one that protects itself as well as its passengers. It has no radiator, uses no water, needs no attention. Your garage need not be heated. You don't have to fuss with anti-freeze radiator compounds. You have no radiator to drain.

Watch Franklin Brakes

Franklin offers greater safety. In no other car is Franklin's transmission braking system duplicated. The service brake acts on the driveshaft, where the force is multiplied 39 times, and is delivered to the two rear wheels by the differential. Therefore Franklin brakes are the safest to apply with maximum force at top speed. Their power exceeds the brake efficiency standard from 70% to 150%, according to speed.

Priced Less than You Expect

The prices of Renewed Franklins we are now showing are less than you would expect. The assortment is wide enough to insure the selection of the model and type you prefer. Nearly all are completely refinished. All are guaranteed. Investigate! Closed cars priced down to $500. Open cars at proportionate prices. Your car taken in trade. Terms, one-half down, balance easy payments.

All Types Available

We are offering Sedans, Broughams, Coupes, Roadsters, and Touring Cars in this special sale. All are exceptional buys. We know the low prices and easy terms will interest you. Come today prepared to get the most automobile style, comfort, and economy that money ever bought.

Remember!

A RENEWED FRANKLIN IS BETTER THAN ANY OTHER NEW CAR WITHIN $1,000 OF ITS PRICE.

5 Bargains AT THE Peerless

FACTORY BRANCH.

HUDSON COACH 1923. It will be difficult for you to distinguish this automobile from new. It has the latest type motor, drum headlights, the latest upholstering—in fact, it is the same car that you would buy new today. It is completely equipped and is as near perfect as an automobile can be. Tires, paint, and mechanical conditions are superfine. This is a snappy offer and you will have to act quickly. The price has been reduced to conform with the new price on the Hudson coach. Special, $1,100.

STUTZ SPORT, 1920. This is a car that cannot be classed as the ordinary used automobile. It is mechanically as near perfect as a car can be. It is painted a dark blue and the tires are in exceptionally fine condition. This snappy 4 passenger Sport job will undoubtedly be sold to the first person who looks at it because it is an exceptional bargain at our price of $750.

PEERLESS 8, MODEL 66, SUBURBAN COUPE. This is one of our latest series Peerless 5 passenger 2 door coupes, with the two individual Pullman seats in the front, and is without a doubt the best looking car that you have ever seen. It is refinished in attractive Maroon color. The upholstery looks like it had never been used. The tires are fine, and mechanically it will carry our standard warranty. We have never before had a car of this type to offer, and the demand is great at this time for closed cars. If you have never ridden and driven the new Peerless you have missed a motoring sensation that no other car can give you. This particular one is an exceptional offering and will be sold to the first lucky purchaser at a price that represents over $1,000 off of what it would cost to duplicate this car today. See this smart looking car at once. The price is $2,650.

WESTCOTT TOURING, 1921. This is a little 5 passenger car that has had wonderful care and attention, and we believe that it will make any one a very attractive purchase, taking into consideration appearance, performance, and price. We cannot describe it in a newspaper ad in a way that will do it justice, but would suggest that you see it and ride in it. It is way above the average used car and mechanically it runs smoothly and quietly. This car must be sold today and at the price we have put on it we believe immediate action will be necessary. Price $500.

PEERLESS SEDAN, MODEL 56. This very late Series 6 Sedan has been refinished and will carry our standard warranty. We have never offered a car of this type at a price within $500 of what we are offering this one. We believe that in selling the job at this price we will make a friend of whoever buys it and that it will be the means of selling many more cars for us. In other words, we have put the price low for a purpose. For that reason you will have to act quickly, as you cannot buy Peerless cars like this one that have the appearance of new and that carry our standard warranty very often at our specially reduced price today of $1,250.

Pierce-Arrow Roadster.

We are indeed fortunate to be able to offer this special built roadster, which has very recently been repainted, retopped and reconditioned mechanically, at the price at which we are holding it. This car came to us from one of Chicago's most prominent families and has had comparatively little mileage. Its distinctive custom lamps, low tops and attractive color mark it as one of the most attractive roadsters in the city. The price will be as pleasant a surprise as the car.

Variety Store Field Rich in Opportunities

If you want to own a successful retail business, why not a Variety Store?

Now is a good time to start because the holiday season is the best of the year for Variety Stores.

We know of several excellent locations in trade centers which would welcome such a store.

Or if you prefer to take over an established business we can put you in touch with a store on the N. W. Side of Chicago which can be bought for about $8,000, and one in Woodstock, Ill. (with living rooms in rear), for about $8,000.

The Variety business is not an experiment or a passing fad. It is one of the very few businesses that has shown gains year after year, even in so-called "hard times."

The public has been educated to the convenience and economy of the Variety Store—the astonishing success of the syndicate 5c, 10c and 25c stores proves that.

Variety Stores will sell for cash, operate on a small overhead, and with the proper handling will pay a bigger return on investment than any other kind of store.

Previous training or experience in the retail business is not essential.

We will show you how you can enter this good paying business and make a success from the very start.

We will show you how to apply chain store methods in your buying and selling without the burden of chain store red tape.

We will place at your disposal some of the most effective merchandising and advertising plans known to modern retailing.

We were the originators of the variety business 46 years ago. Practically every independent variety merchant in America looks to us as his natural and logical source of supply.

Men from almost every walk of life are now successful owners of retail variety stores and are making greater profits than they thought possible when we first helped them to get established.

The amount of capital necessary will vary according to the size of the town and other local conditions. We will give just as much co-operation to the man with $1,500 to invest in this profitable business as to one with $10,000 or more.

A visit to our Chicago house or a letter telling us about yourself will be treated in strictest confidence, and will place you under no obligation whatever.

EARLY BOOM IN MANUFACTURING, EXPERT PREDICTS

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 22.—[Special.]—An early definite improvement over the present general pause in manufacturing activities throughout the country is forecast by Archer W. Douglas, chairman of the committee on statistics and standards of the chamber of commerce of the United States, in a special business conditions report made public today.

Mr. Douglas attributes the slowing up of manufacturing activity at this time to three causes:

The usual seasonal slackening which always accompanies the summer season and the waiting upon the results of harvest.

The satisfying of a demand to fill up partly empty shelves, and to replenish broken assortments.

A widespread feeling of conservatism that marks buying at present in all phases.

Advances Without Warrant.

In commenting on the third cause Mr. Douglas says there is a general feeling, especially among consumers, that many of the advances during the spring were entirely without warrant, being merely the taking advantage of a supposed situation of a possible dearth of goods.

"Naturally," he goes on, "there arises the determination among buyers to trade entirely along the line of the laws of supply and demand and to purchase only when prices seem reasonable and in accordance with prevailing conditions."

The report continues:

"Shoe factories in New England seem to feel the effect of reduced demand more than those in the west; this seems true likewise of the cotton mills in the north, compared with the cotton growing states. Cotton exports to Europe have fallen off as the natural result of demoralized conditions in so many nations.

Face Hard Problem.

"Manufacturers of cotton fabrics face a condition which offers no easy solution of their difficulties. High priced raw cotton is among the certainties of the coming months, despite falling off in demand from Europe and the possibility of such happening in this country.

"Building material is somewhat cheaper, but apparently not enough to stay the gradual decline in building and construction which has set in and which evidently will continue. Prices of labor employed in building and the price of rents only complicate the task of making construction a matter of more stable nature, instead of one of violent extremes."

START WORK ON 135 BED ANNEX TO THE LAKESIDE

Hospital to Be Made One of City's Largest.

Work has started on a $500,000 addition to the Lakeside hospital, at the southwest corner of Rhodes and 34th, to be the first unit in a project which will result in the present building eventually being torn down and the completed group being made one of the finest hospitals in the country. Hall, Lawrence, Rippel & Ratcliffe are architects.

The new addition will be five stories and fireproof. Completion date is set for June 1, 1924. It will be of face brick and trimmed with Bedford stone. The present hospital will not be demolished until the addition is completed.

New Building Planned for Albany Park's Motor Row

Albany Park's motor row continues to grow. During the last few weeks agencies for nearly a dozen makes of cars located on Lawrence avenue between Kedzie and the river. Yesterday it was announced that the Zepp Motor company, Ford agency, now at Kedzie and Wilson, has leased from the Henning-Wennersten corporation a 100x200 building to be erected on the north side of Lawrence just west of the river for fifteen years at a term rental of $180,000. Brandt & Co. represented the lessor and Burke & Lynn the Zepp Motor company.

Buys Site in Norwood Park for Big Catholic Church

The Catholic bishop of Chicago has bought the five sided block in Norwood Park, bounded by Devon, Newcastle, Palatine, Oak Park and Nieman avenues, from Paul Drzymalski for an indicated $20,000, as the site of St. Thecla's church. No definite building plans are announced at present.

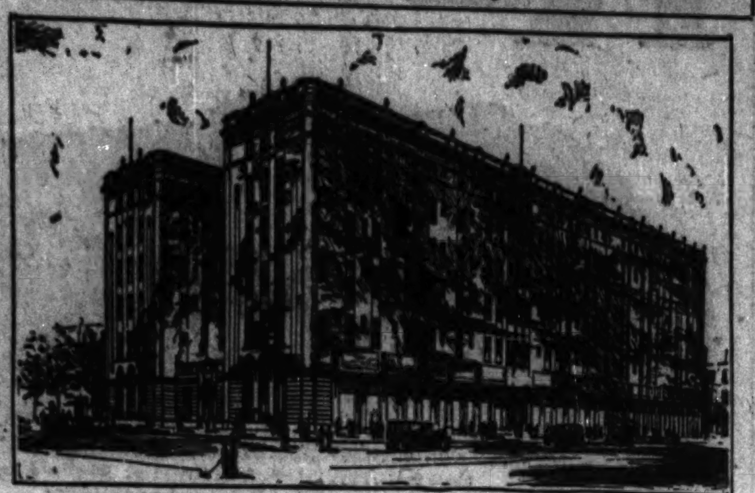
Flanders Hotel, Broadway and Buena



Above is the new Flanders hotel, told about in this department last Sunday, to be erected at the southeast corner of Broadway and Buena, from plans by Architect Albert S. Hecht. It will cost $2,200,000 instead of $2,000,000, as reported, and will have 349 rooms. The Flanders Hotel Building corporation is controlled by Simon Dlott and David L. Warshauer. S. W. Straus & Co. have made a $1,350,000 bond issue on the project at 6½ per cent.

ADVENTISTS BUY BROADVIEW ACRS. FOR SEMINARY

The Broadway college and Theological seminary, conducted by the Seventh Day Adventists at 22d street and 17th avenue, in Broadview, has bought 115 acres just west of the college buildings from Herman F. Rathje. It sold fifty-seven acres of this to the Forest Preserve district for $26,000. Mr. Rathje was paid $31,400 for the fifty-eight acres kept by the college.

Seven acres of the fifty-eight are to be used for home sites for members of the faculty. The balance will be for expansion of the college. The campus formerly contained eighty acres. There were 222 students last year, according to the Rev. H. O. Olson, president of the college. Dr. Olson said more property was purchased than actually was needed at present to prevent subdividers from encroaching.

ST. JAMES M. E. CHURCH TO BUILD COMMUNITY HALL

St. James Methodist Episcopal church, at the southeast corner of Ellis avenue and 46th street, has bought 40x190 just south of the church edifice, for $20,000, and some time next year intends wrecking the two old residences now on the property and erecting a Sunday school and community building. No architect has been engaged and no definite time set for beginning work. One of the two lots bought was purchased from James T. Plumsted for $10,000.

REALTORS GIVE $8,302 TOWARD JAPANESE FUND

Members of the Chicago Real Estate board have, up to last night, contributed $8,302 toward the contemplated $10,000 fund, for the Japanese, according to Guy S. Krumrine, chairman of the board's relief committee. Checks may be made payable to James B. Forgan Jr. and sent to the Chicago Real Estate board, 57 West Monroe.

Own Your Home Exposition to Be at Coliseum in March

Chicago's fourth annual "Own Your Home Exposition" will be held in the Coliseum next year from March 22 to 29, it was announced yesterday by William Zelosky, chairman of the Own Your Home division of the Chicago Real Estate board and also chairman of the administration committee of the exposition. It will be under the auspices of the realty board.

Nearly 75 per cent of last spring's exhibitors already have selected their locations for next year. As already announced in this department several months ago, double decking the Coliseum is under consideration. This would make the 1924 show nearly twice as large as this year's.

PLANS BUILDING ON CRAWFORD.

Jake Ablin has bought the northeast corner of Crawford and Gladys, 125x100, for $37,000 and will erect a store, office and flat building, according to Boehm & Winterson, who represented the buyer.

DEMPSTER CAFE TO BE OPPOSITE 'THE LIGHTHOUSE'

Another elaborate roadhouse is planned for the district west of Evanston. Constantine and George N. Boznos have bought the southeast corner of Dempster street and Waukegan road, directly across from "The Lighthouse," for $37,500.

Architect H. B. Wheelock will draw plans for an elaborate all year round restaurant and dance hall to be known as the Dempster cafe. The property purchased comprises fifteen acres, but only four acres will be used for the new project. Work will start next March with the opening date set for early in the fall. A. A. Pantelis was attorney for the buyers and Anton Schroeder for the seller.

Plan Theater Building at Ridge and Howard Street

John Mangel and John Canger, loop florists, have bought the residence property, 50x150, at 7543 Ridge from Edna B. Heicher for $15,500. They already own the southeast corner of Howard and Ridge, 150x150, adjoining, and intend to erect a three story theater and commercial building, work on which will start when present leases expire. T. W. Wysacker & Co. represented the buyers.

Bosworth Court Building Purchased for $270,000

S. H. Hollesen has sold the southwest corner of Bosworth and Schreiber, 123x118, on which a thirty-six flat building is now being erected by S. M. Cinman, to Harley H. Riesen for a reported $270,000. It is called the Bosworth Court apartments and will be completed Dec. 1.

DAY COURSE OF REAL ESTATE LECTURES TO START NEXT MONTH

PAUL STEINBRECHER.
[Walinger photo.]

As a result of the unexpected rush to attend this season's series of lectures on real estate given by the school of commerce of the Central Y. M. C. A., it was announced last night that a day course would be established on Wednesday morning, Oct. 3, at 8:45 o'clock. The evening lectures started last Tuesday with more than 400 prospective students present. The course was planned to care for a maximum of 180, so more than 200 were turned away.

Paul Steinbrecher, the first speaker, discussed "The General Real Estate Field." He predicted a steady increase in values for communities served by the Union station railroads as soon as the big depot is completed.

William H. Babcock will give the second lecture next Tuesday evening on "History and Elements of Real Estate Values." J. Soule Warterfield, business manager, and Pierce W. Jones, executive secretary of the Chicago Real Estate board, and Henry H. Lunt of W. K. Young & Bro., are instructors in addition to the regular lecturers.

PLAN $1,500,000 HOTEL: LA SALLE AND RANDOLPH ST

26 Story Structure May Be Called Lincoln.

BY AL CHASE.

Signatures were placed yesterday on a ninety-nine year lease which assures Chicago's loop of another skyscraping hotel, to cost $1,500,000, and which promises to be one of the city's finest hostelries. It will be at the northeast corner of Randolph and La Salle, adjoining Powers' theater on the west. A tentative name of Hotel Lincoln has been suggested, as it will have an entrance on widened La Salle street, to be made a boulevard from Randolph street to Lincoln park. The name of Lincoln, for some unknown reason, so far as can be recalled, has never been given to a high class hotel in Chicago, a city closely identified with that great American.

E. L. Wenzel Head of Project.

E. L. Wenzel, head of the Hotel Planters company, and owner of the Washington hotel at 167 West Washington with 140 rooms, and the Planters' hotel at 19 North Clark, with 200 rooms, is back of the new project.

The new Lincoln will climb as far skywards as the zoning law allows, and probably will have twenty-six stories and 400 rooms. An alternative plan calls for twenty-one stories and approximately 350 rooms. Alfred S. Alschuler is architect. Work probably will not begin until Jan. 1, 1925, as some of the leases run till next fall.

Mr. Wenzel will have the exterior of his new hotel of dark red-tapestry brick with Bedford stone trim for the first three or four stories, and with a mensard roof.

$2,313,000 Total Rental.

The Hotel Planters company leased the site, fronting eighty feet on Randolph and seventy-six and one-half on La Salle, from David Hogg, Catherine Hannah, Alexander W. Hannah, Mabel Hannah McIntosh, and Hazel Hannah Newton for ninety-nine years at the following rental: $21,000 annually for the first five years, $22,000 annually for the next five, $23,000 yearly for the next thirty-eight, and for the balance of the term $24,000 per annum.

Lee J. Lesser & Co. represented all parties and negotiated the deal. Sylvanus George Levy was attorney for the lessee and Campbell & Fisher for the lessors.

The widening of La Salle street, if carried out as contemplated, will cut twenty feet off the Randolph street frontage, leaving a site 60x74½. There is an alley in the rear. Mr. Wenzel has an option to buy the east twenty feet.

Settles Persistent Rumor.

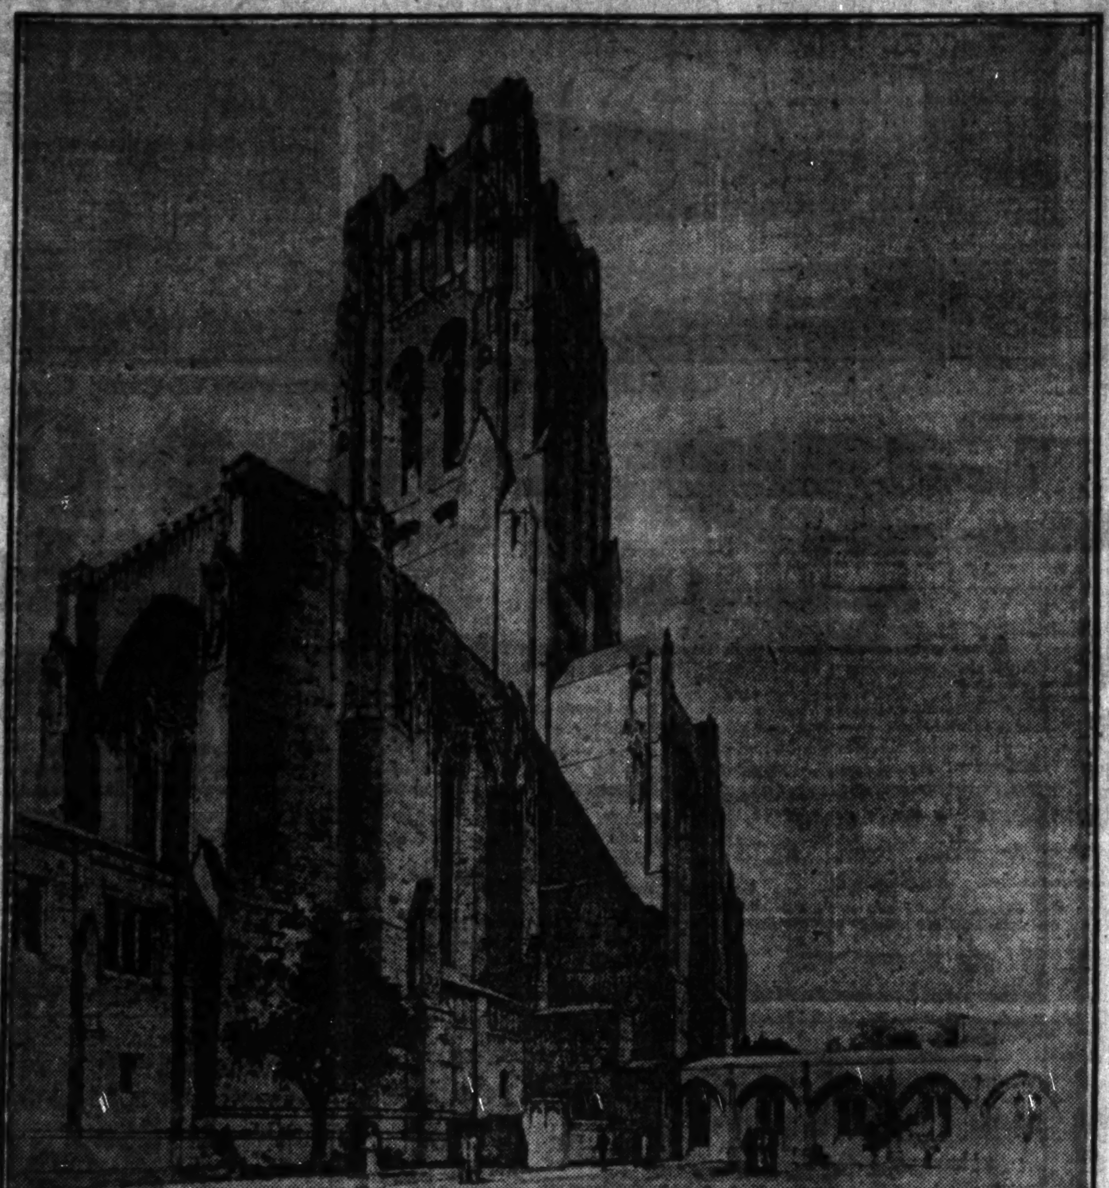
This deal settles the persistent rumor that the Hotel Sherman would extend an addition west to La Salle. That hostelry now owns the Powers theater property and undoubtedly will tear down the famous old playhouse when its lease expires several years hence. It is possible a new Powers, much smaller and of the intimate type, with perhaps 800 or 900 seats, may be incorporated in the extension of the Sherman. This could easily be done, with the auditorium surrounded by the hotel and an entrance through the Sherman on to Randolph.

The Hotel Sherman still has an opportunity to have an entrance on the widened La Salle boulevard, which some believe will have as heavy a motor traffic as Michigan avenue, for there is a piece of ground fronting ninety-five feet on La Salle, and seventy feet deep, just north of the new Hotel Lincoln and west of the auditorium part of Powers theater. This would seem a logical expansion of the Hotel Sherman.

LAUNDRY COMPANY BUYS BUILDING.

The Nichols Laundry and Linen Supply company, of which James A. Nichols, former vice president of the Ridge Hand Laundry company, is president, has bought the two story building, 129x100, at 3320 West Lake, from G. P. Cullen for a reported $67,000. I. B. Perlman and Decker & Golden were attorneys.

New View of Contemplated Rockefeller Chapel at U. of C.



Bertram Grosvenor Goodhue of New York City is the architect of the proposed chapel for the University of Chicago, told about in a nearby column. Stone, granite, and concrete have been considered for the exterior walls. The above view is looking southeast, showing choir, tower, and west transept.

ARCHITECTURE

BY ARTHUR WOLTERSDORF.
[F. A. I. A.]

This column on architecture is written for The Tribune by Mr. Woltersdorf, representing the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

The gift of John D. Rockefeller to the University of Chicago on Dec. 13, 1910, of $1,500,000 to be used for the building and furnishing of a university chapel was followed by the trustees of the university in directing Bertram Grosvenor Goodhue, architect of New York, on July 1, 1918, to design this building.

Many studies were made and finally the plan shown in another column was fixed upon. Figures taken in 1920 show the cost of this building without sculptural decoration to be $3,200,000. Sculptural ornamentation to properly enrich this monument, not shown on the perspective, would cost $200,000 in addition. The discrepancy between the amount of the gift and the cost of building this structure makes its realization doubtful.

Mr. Goodhue's plan, however, is of such beauty and grandeur that it commands consideration here. The structure, fronting on 59th street and kept 100 feet back from the street line, is tied in with the president's house to the west by the south cloister. The president's garden extends from this cloister to the avenue located on the transept axis.

North of this avenue is the proposed Y. M. C. A. building, tied by cloisters to the north piers of transept and north end of what, in England, would be the lady chapel, forming the cloister garth. Clinging to the east side of this north chapel and attaching to the choir is the proposed Y. W. C. A.

Services are now held in Mandel hall, seating fourteen hundred. The proposed chapel would have seatings for twenty-two hundred.

The realization of this plan would give Chicago a monument that people would travel thousands of miles to see, and would be an inspiration to every student in the university.

Brokers' Notes

Schwartz & Schwartz, who have their main offices at 4408 Broadway, will open a new branch office, their third, at 4832 Lincoln avenue, to be in charge of M. L. Schwartz. This will be known as their Ravenswood office and will have telephone Ravenswood 8141. Their present Lincoln square branch at 2555 Lincoln avenue will be moved on next Wednesday to 2506 Lincoln avenue. Sidney G. Schwartz will be in charge.

Stephen A. Crowe Jr., and Dorsey R. Crowe, operating as Crowe Brothers & Co., after thirteen years at 755 North Dearborn, have moved to larger quarters on the opposite corner at 754, which for two decades was operated by Thomas Cline as a saloon.

Gust Patsios, formerly a member of the firm of S. Mitchell & Co., has opened an office of his own in the Chamber of Commerce building, suite 404. His phone is Main 1885.

P. M. Knight, bank official and south side attorney, and for years in the real estate and mortgage business, has been made manager of the Park Manor office of Arthur P. Hubbell at 551 East 75th street.

Magee & Worth, Inc., announce the opening of their new Austin branch office at 5241 West Madison. Phones, Mansfield 3281-82.

Edward A. Wehman and Wallace W. Whittiger, now doing a real estate business under the name of Wehman & Whittiger, in Rogers Park, have opened an office on the northwest side at 4107 West Fullerton, managed by Matthew T. Massard and Otis T. Andreen.

FREIGHT SUBWAY IN CENTRAL DIST. NEARLY FINISHED

The freight tunnel being built by the Central Manufacturing district, told about for the first time in this department on May 6, is rapidly nearing completion. The system, 1,300 feet of which are practically finished, will connect buildings along Pershing road, between Ashland and Western, with the Chicago Junction freight house No. 6 on Winchester avenue.

Outbound "L. C. L." tonnage will be hauled by tractor trains from industries direct to the station where it'll be sorted and sent in "through-to-destination" package cars. Later, with the establishment of the contemplated inbound "L. C. L." station, inbound freight will be handled with the same expeditiousness and economy.

The subway is of concrete, sixteen feet wide and eight feet high, brilliantly lighted.

PLANS 54 FLAT BUILDING.

Edward Zeits has bought the southeast corner of Belle Plaine and Kedvale from B. H. Sheppley for a reported $40,000 and will erect a fifty-four flat building. Edward Steinborn is architect. Walter J. Prendergast and Levrett F. Cox of K. R. Beak & Co. were brokers.

$350,000 FLATS ON PARK AVENUE, EAST OF HOMAN

Work will start within a few weeks on a $350,000 fifty apartment building on the south side of Park avenue, half a block east of Homan, from plans by Morton Leviton & Co., with Liechenko & Esser associated. The owner is William M. Tannebaum. The 170x115 site was bought from G. M. Williams for $35,000. The building will have three, four and five room flats and will be ready by next spring. Edelson & Tannenbaum were attorneys.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon Buys at Sheridan and Hinman

The Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity has bought the southwest corner of Hinman and Sheridan road, across from Northwestern university campus in Evanston, from the Garrett Biblical institute for $37,500. This is part of the property recently given to the institute. The national headquarters of the fraternity have been moved into the residence and in a year or so a new building will be erected to contain a library, offices, etc. No architect has been chosen. The property is 200x72.

DE MET TO PAY RENTAL OF $45,000 FOR CANDY SHOP

Arguments advanced by the "drys" that prohibition would boom the candy business seem to be borne out by the continual expansion of several of the Chicago concerns which operate confectionery shops on a large scale. The De Met company, of which C. N. Johnson is president, one of the fastest growing concerns of its kind, has just leased space at 114 South State street where it will open its fifth store about Nov. 15.

Rapp & Rapp are drawing plans for what is claimed will be one of the most elaborate confectionery establishments in the country. It will be entirely in walnut, with a new store front, and will cost approximately $65,000.

De Met will pay $45,000 annually for the next fifteen years. This is the site of the one-time Bijou Dream, one of the city's earliest movies. A year or so ago it was remodeled into a store, but had a rather checkered career. The space is 20x120.

The De Met company expects to open several more loop stores, one of which will be in the financial district, where Mrs. Snyder and other candy concerns have done big business selling sweets to the stock brokers, who buy candy no matter which way the market's going.

When in doubt, drop in a trump

In the dear old game of euchre, which was contemporaneous with "duck-on-a-rock," "sixty-out" and "shinny," they used to have a solid old rule that saved many a man's bacon. It said "When in doubt, play trump." And the rule holds good in business life. It holds good in your choice of heating boilers. Yep, and in about everything else you buy.

If you are ignorant of the relative merits of heating boilers, don't take any chances. Install a Kewanee Firebox Boiler and know in your heart that you have "played trump." And any high-class architect, any high-class heating engineer, any man who has operated a building for profit, or any man who has sold buildings, will confirm the statement.

This solid steel, hydraulically riveted boiler which is built to last a lifetime—and will—has more real admiring friends than any other type of boiler in existence. That's because it has produced, not because the buyers were brothers-in-law of the people that made it or because they belonged to the same lodge.

It has produced because it is on the job whenever heat is required—because it doesn't crack and leak when a cold spell shows up—because it will burn any kind of coal—because it will save you approximately 25 per cent on your fuel bill. And because it burns any kind of coal it is impervious to coal-strikes, differences of opinion and everything else that's disagreeable.

Write to The Old Man Behind the Boiler and ask him for an essay on heating boilers. He can't hammer a type-writer but he has made heating boilers all his life.

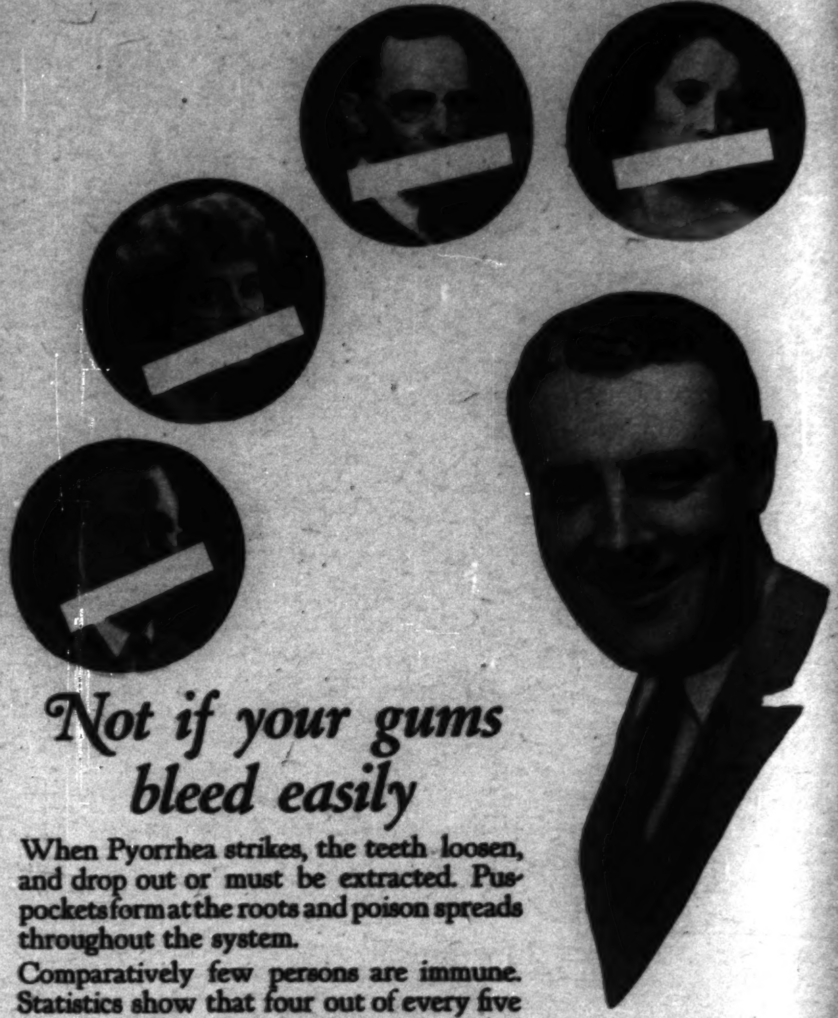
Are You the Lucky One in Five?



Not if your gums bleed easily

When Pyorrhea strikes, the teeth loosen, and drop out or must be extracted. Pus-pockets form at the roots and poison spreads throughout the system.

Comparatively few persons are immune. Statistics show that four out of every five past forty, and thousands younger, are subject to this sinister disease.

At the first sign of Pyorrhea, Nature gives her danger signal—tender gums which bleed easily when the teeth are brushed.

Fortunate is he who heeds that friendly warning; his teeth may be spared, while he who neglects that admonition may pay the extreme penalty.

At the first sign of tender, bleeding gums, go to your dentist for teeth and gum inspection and start using Forhan's For the Gums at once.

Forhan's For the Gums is the scientific formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. S. If used consistently and used in time, it will prevent Pyorrhea or check its course.

In addition to its efficacy in the treatment of Pyorrhea, Forhan's For the Gums is an excellent dentifrice. It will keep the teeth white and clean and the gums firm and healthy, and is pleasant to the taste. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

YANKEE HEIRESS AND BRITISH PEERESS mentioned in London society rumors as possible bride of Prince George, youngest son of the king. Grace Vanderbilt, at the left, is the daughter of Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt of New York. She has been much in the company of the Prince for several months. Her great wealth would relieve King George of a burden, as he has to provide for his younger sons out of his private income. Lady Alexandra Curzon, at the right, is the daughter of the foreign secretary and his first wife, who was Miss Mary Leiter of Chicago and Washington. Prince George will be 21 years old on December 20.

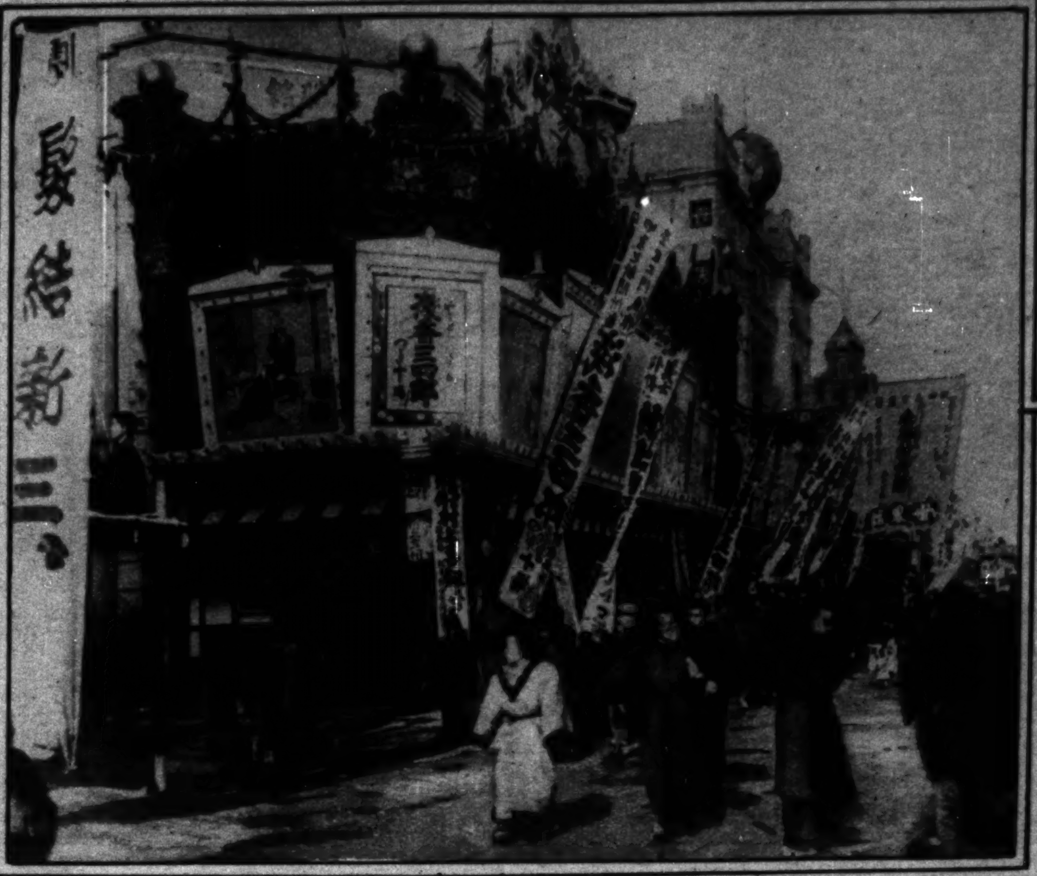
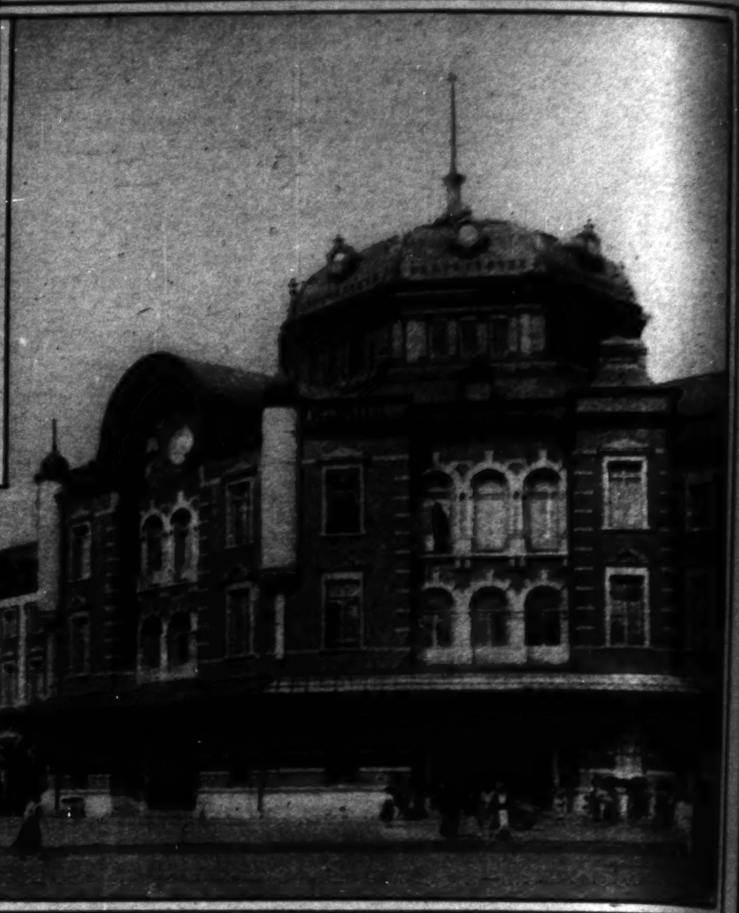
JAPAN'S GREATEST DISASTER



THE BROADWAY OF TOKIO, left a mass of ruins by the earthquake and the attendant disasters. This was the Rialto of the Nipponese capital, its principal theatrical street. It was brightened at night by more electric lights than New York's Broadway flashes, it is said.
(Photograph from International.)



THOUSANDS DIED when the modern railroad station in Tokio, in which they had sought refuge when the first tremors came, was crashed to wreckage by succeeding shocks. Reports stated that 80 per cent of the buildings in the business section were destroyed in the first three minutes of the earthquake.

YOKOHAMA, showing the famous "hundred steps" leading up to the heights of the foreign section. In his first story of the earthquake The Tribune correspondent, Roderick Matheson, wrote: "Hotels on the sides of bluffs were pitched to the ground below. Dead were everywhere. If tiny lines appear hateful signs of early ageing . .

Study how the society woman keeps her skin so young

Like the society woman, you need not allow your skin to betray fatigue, or age, or the harsh effects of weather

FINE lines around your eyes, your nose, the corners of your mouth. Do not think of letting them stay—to grow deeper and turn into wrinkles!

These premature lines are only the troubles of a skin allowed to be too dry. You must learn how to give your skin the suppleness it needs. Learn from the women who have discovered how to keep their skin young, how to keep your skin so beautifully soft it cannot form lines.

The famous method women use who tax their skin the most

The society woman keeps her skin smooth and fresh season in and out. That is because she has learned the two fundamental needs of her skin. And she knows that she must meet them in order to go on exposing her skin to fatigue and weather and still keep it in the fresh supple condition that social usage demands.

These two needs are the basis of the famous Pond's method of two entirely different creams. The daily cleansing that softens and relaxes her skin, frees it from all dust, dryness and cosmetics. Then the protection that prevents all drying out and coarsening and besides has the wonderful property of instant freshening. With this method she keeps her skin smooth and unlined years longer than most women who give their skin far less wear.

Every night cleanse your face thoroughly with Pond's Cold Cream. Apply this cream softly with a piece of moistened cotton. Wipe it off with a soft cloth. Do this twice—already your skin feels less tight and drawn. Now apply more cream and let it stay on. Pat it in especially around your eyes, nose and mouth where wrinkles form first. Feel how your face softens and relaxes as the fine light oil of this cream restores its natural suppleness.

Then in the morning apply Pond's Vanishing Cream very evenly—just enough for your skin to absorb. This wonderful softening cream will prevent your skin from drying out again. The wind cannot whip out its new suppleness. You will love its smoothness. And you need not worry about early wrinkles. They will not form in your soft supple skin.

Keep your skin soft and young with this perfect daily care that women who must have beautiful complexions give their skin. Buy both Pond's Creams in jars or tubes today in any drug or department store. The Pond's Extract Company, 131 Hudson Street, New York.

Sensitive skin

Keep it soft and smooth by this special treatment

Is your skin easily irritated?

This irritation may be due to dust. Dust is a harmful irritant to a sensitive skin.

Use the following treatment, to keep it from getting rough and painful:

> EACH night before retiring, dip a soft wash cloth in warm water and hold it to your face. Now make a warm water lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and dip your cloth up and down in it until the cloth is "fluffy" with lather. Rub this lathered cloth gently over your skin until the pores are thoroughly cleansed. Rinse thoroughly, first with warm, then with clear cool water, and dry carefully.

This treatment will help your skin to resist irritation.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake lasts a month or six weeks for this treatment and for regular toilet use.

Brushing alone cannot stop them—

The acids of decay can be kept back only by healthy active mouth glands

The acids of decay are forming all the time, all over your teeth.

Nothing can stop them but healthy active mouth glands. If the fluids from these glands are sufficient they will neutralize these acids and wash them away as fast as they form.

But the mouth glands have slowed down from lack of exercise. They need help.

Pebeco gives them this help. It makes the mouth glands flow more freely. It keeps a healthy quantity of these healing fluids constantly flowing between the teeth, neutralizing the acids as fast as they form.

Use Pebeco today and begin to get your teeth and mouth in a really clean condition.

Many Women Today Wish That Joshua Would Come Around

JOSHUA did one thing nobody else could do. He made the sun stop. Probably he could have made the sun go out entirely. If he could do that, there are millions of women today who would be glad.

Not all of them. Just the pallid, haggard ones whose complexions can not withstand the harsher test of the sun's rays. Just the ashen faced—who look tender and lovely in the kindly rays of lamplight—but who look artificial and hideous when daylight plays its clear rays on their faces.

But such women do not need miracles by Joshua. What they really need is something very simple. They need shades of face powder which will make them look as natural and glowing in the daytime as they do in the lamplight of evening. They need the two new shades of Bourjois JAVA* Face Powder—Peaches-and-Cream* and Peaches*—daylight shades.

Peaches-and-Cream is a tan-and-rose out-of-doors shade, radiant and soft. Peaches is a delicate tan with the faintest touch of pink, giving the glowing effect of wind and sun.

Wise women have discovered the great value of these two genuine daylight shades. They are using them constantly to bring out the full glow of their skin under the cruel test of the sun's rays.

Bourjois has been making JAVA Face Powder for 50 years. It took years of scientific experiment to develop Peaches-and-Cream and Peaches. For the first time in the history of face powder manufacture such shades can be offered to the women of America with the assurance that they have passed every test of the sun's harsh rays.

Peaches and Cream and Peaches, as well as White, Naturelle, Rachel and Rose, the other four JAVA shades, are on sale at all good drug stores. If you are unable to secure them at your druggist, mail the coupon for a sample.

RICHES HAVE WINGS

By SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

Storm and Swamp Land and Myriads Upon Myriads of Mosquitoes; and Against Such Terrific Odds Cupid Goes in for Real Estate.

Annabel.

THE slip of paper which trembled in her still swollen hand seemed to emit a strange, unreal radiance. She sat heavily down on the edge of her bed. It was a shabby little bed in a shabby little room in a shabby little house in a shabby little street in a shabby corner of the resplendent suburb known as Spendwich-near-the-Sound, and its occupant was a shabby little maiden.

"Such things don't happen," said the shabby little maiden.

She resumed her interrupted dressing with feverish haste.

"They really do not happen," she repeated, argumentatively. "Not to nice, sane girls."

Nevertheless, the postman who had brought the amazing communication, if such it could be called, was undeniably real, and the stamp on the envelope preserved an air of actuality to the marvel.

"Of course, it's all bunk," said the shabby maiden. "I'll tear it up."

She did not tear it up. She took it to the large and imposing bank. At the front entrance a formidably uniformed watchman whose brass buttons unpleasantly suggested the police scared her all the way around to the side door, into which she slipped edgewise. What did they do to people who passed queer checks? Arrested them, of course; that was what the watchman was there for. But did they send them to jail? And, if so, for how long? Or could one pretend it was all a joke, to be laughed off? The paying teller looked far from jocular. He favored her with a brief, stony stare as he clawed the incriminating document into his cage with the movement of a deliberate but hungry animal. She stared, fascinated, at the bars between them.

In a sort of daze she heard him say: "It isn't dated."

He dated it with severity.

She heard him say: "It isn't endorsed." She endorsed it.

She heard him say: "You're Miss Annabel Petrie?"

"Yes."

"You know Richard W. Kershaw?"

"Is that his name?"

The paying teller bestowed upon her a look of suspicion and disfavor. He then transferred the look to a letter which he drew from a drawer.

Still in an inward mist, she heard him say: "Identification waived. How will you have it, Miss Petrie?" She gasped. The thing was coming true!

"In money, please," she faltered.

"Naturally. What kind of money?"

"Any kind that I can spend."

"I daresay you'll find no difficulty," was the grim reply.

Though she could feel the packet that he thrust under the bars crisply material in her fingers, she still didn't really believe it. She wanted to ask him if it were true. She wanted to ask him whether the man in the uniform wouldn't stop her if she tried to go out. She wanted to ask him if he didn't think it was a nice day. She wanted to ask him if his name were Smith; Smith was such a nice, reliable name; the kind of name you can pin your faith to. She wanted to ask him any one of a lot of things which might convince her that she was on earth.

Instead she heard him asking her: "Aren't you feeling well?"

"Perfectly, thank you," she answered, brightly. "How are you?"

Then she fled home. More and more fearful she grew, as she hurried back to the shabby little room, that the five wonderful oblongs would turn out, when she examined them, to be nothing but five scraps of paper.

So it proved. But upon each scrap was the official promise of the United States treasury to pay to the fortunate holder, on demand, one hundred dollars in gold coin. Wealth incredible! Prospects boundless! Since yesterday!

THAT yesterday had been to Mr. Richard Kershaw, also, a day of unexpected adventure. He had taken a number of pressing matters for consideration on a five mile walk and had brought up at Van Ness Point, where he knew himself safe from human companionship, the locality being effectually guarded by an army of special demons. Having provided himself with gloves and a mosquito net drapery for his hat, he had no fear of these. Stretched upon a bit of turf against the outermost rocks, he had been entertaining a profitless line of thought, the unphilosophical burden of which was that it's hell to want a lot of money and have only a little, when a spatter of rain interrupted his gloomy meditations. A cloud of obviously unreliable temper was growling and flashing the signals of its intentions over the white capped waters of the sound.

Not being wholly devoid of judgment, Mr. Kershaw decided it was time to be going; also that the shortest cut was the best. Accordingly, he did a sprint down a weedy, shrub-choked trail toward the decrepit fence. At the boundary line a sign post interposed in his path an altruistic offer of "this superb shore front property of 264 acres for sale on the most advantageous terms." It was a droopy, scaly sort of sign, obviously discouraged by long failure to find a purchaser, and it seemed a wholly gratuitous act upon the young man's part to bestow upon it, as he passed, a savage kick which all but dislodged its feeble hold upon things mundane. As if in reprehension of his brutality, the gods in charge of the overhead show ripped a wide, blazing hole in the clouds and spilled a half ocean or so of chilly water down upon the offender, who thereupon left that place and attained the shelter of an oak near the adjacent roadway in five long and profane leaps. The final jump, inspired and accompanied by a tremendous volley of thunder, almost landed him upon a small, wispy figure huddled fearfully against the tree trunk. The figure had its head buried in its arms and its ears ineffectually shielded by two red and swollen hands. It was quivering like a terrified animal.

"Hello! What's here?" said the new arrival.

A muffled whimper was the only response. The young man set a reassuring hand on the shoulder nearest him.

"What are you crying about, little girl?" he asked, kindly.

"I'm not crying, and I'm not a little girl," returned the figure in tones which, however much in doubt they may have left the first point, established the second beyond question. In spite of a choky tremulousness, it was a curiously appealing voice, full of queer, feminine overtones. Its owner partly uncoiled with a general effect of slimness and legginess, at the same time revealing a decidedly blotchy face. "I'm lost," it announced, "and I'm scared."

Another wide, white glare of flame rent the sky, and the figure hastily curled up into a motionless, shapeless huddle, much like one of those play-acting spiders who pretend to wither and die when things don't go to suit them. The young man, after a hopeless look at it, made a pounce, a grab, and a hoist, with the gratifying result that it again unfurled itself and developed the ability to stand upright.

"Come along," he said, urgently. "This tree is dangerous."

"Where?" she queried, and the simple, scared monosyllable once more thrilled him with a sense of the unexpected.

"That house. It's the nearest place."

He caught her wrist, and together they ran and stumbled and scrambled back over the fence, through the scrub, and into a tumbledown edifice full of the dank odors of decay. A terrific dart of lightning chased them through the rotting door, whereupon the girl, with a dismal squeak, dove into a corner and pulled her waterproof over her head. When, some minutes later, she ventured to peep out her escort was tearing the house to pieces.

"What on earth are you doing?" she quavered.

"Fixing up a fire." He indicated the ancient but still practicable fireplace.

"But—doesn't anybody live here?"

"No. All driven out by the aborigines," he grinned. "There's one of 'em on your ear now."

"Oh! Those aborigines." She removed the one that was operating on her, and examined it with what struck him as a curious interest, at the same time flapping at a score more which had hurried up to join the first. "This one's all right," she murmered.

"All right? On the principle that a good mosquito is a dead mosquito? Or what do you mean?"

"Oh—nothing."

HE busied himself coaxing a slender tongue of fire which presently became a roaring flame. "Move up and dry your feet," he invited. "Cigaret?"

"Yep," answered the girl in her angelic voice. "But don't tell on me."

He was just a shade surprised. Somehow he had estimated her as the kind that would not smoke.

"Where had you been when the rain caught you?" he asked.

"Here on Van Ness Point."

"Had you? So had I."

"That so? What were you doing here?"

"Nothing. What were you?"

"Nothing."

So much for that line of conversation. It was now her turn. She took it.

"Where were you going when you found me?"

"Nowhere."

And so much for that line! But she was not so easily discouraged.

"Nobody goes nowhere," she returned with a shade of severity in the clear music of her voice. "Except tramps," she amended. "You're not a tramp, are you?"

"No."

"Then you must have been going somewhere."

"Oh, all right; if you insist on being logical. South America, then."

"That's silly," she pronounced. "You couldn't walk to South America."

"I didn't mean I wasn't going home for a tooth brush first. But I really am going there. Next week."

"What for?"

"Oh, I don't know. To make a million dollars."

"I'd like to make a million dollars. In fact, I've about decided to."

"Have you?" said he tolerantly. "That's nice. What are you doing to do with it?"

"Go away. From everything."

"What's the prevailing idea? Don't you approve of your home? Or your college? Or you job? Or what?"

"Haven't got any home. Had to quit college. Hate my job. And as for the town, I'd like to burn it down and massacre all the inhabitants."

"Humph! Am I, then, right in inferring that you live in Spendwich-on-the-Sound?"

"You are."

"Lady, your sentiments do you credit. I also inhabit that lovely suburb."

"I know you do."

"Do you? How?"

"I've seen you. At the Church Co-op Tea Room. I'm assistant manager."

"Funny I never noticed you."

"It isn't my fault that you haven't. I've tried to make you."

"Tried to—what for?" He stared.

"Oh, just to start something."

"What kind of something?" he asked dazedly.

"The old cats that run the tea room would call it a vulgar flirtation, I suppose."

"Moses! But why pick on—I mean, where do I come in to have the honor of being selected for your interesting experiment?"

"Because," said the amazing owner of the amazing voice calmly, "I thought you looked rich."

"Rich! Thanks!"

"And—well—safe."

"Thanks hastily withdrawn. But why rich?"

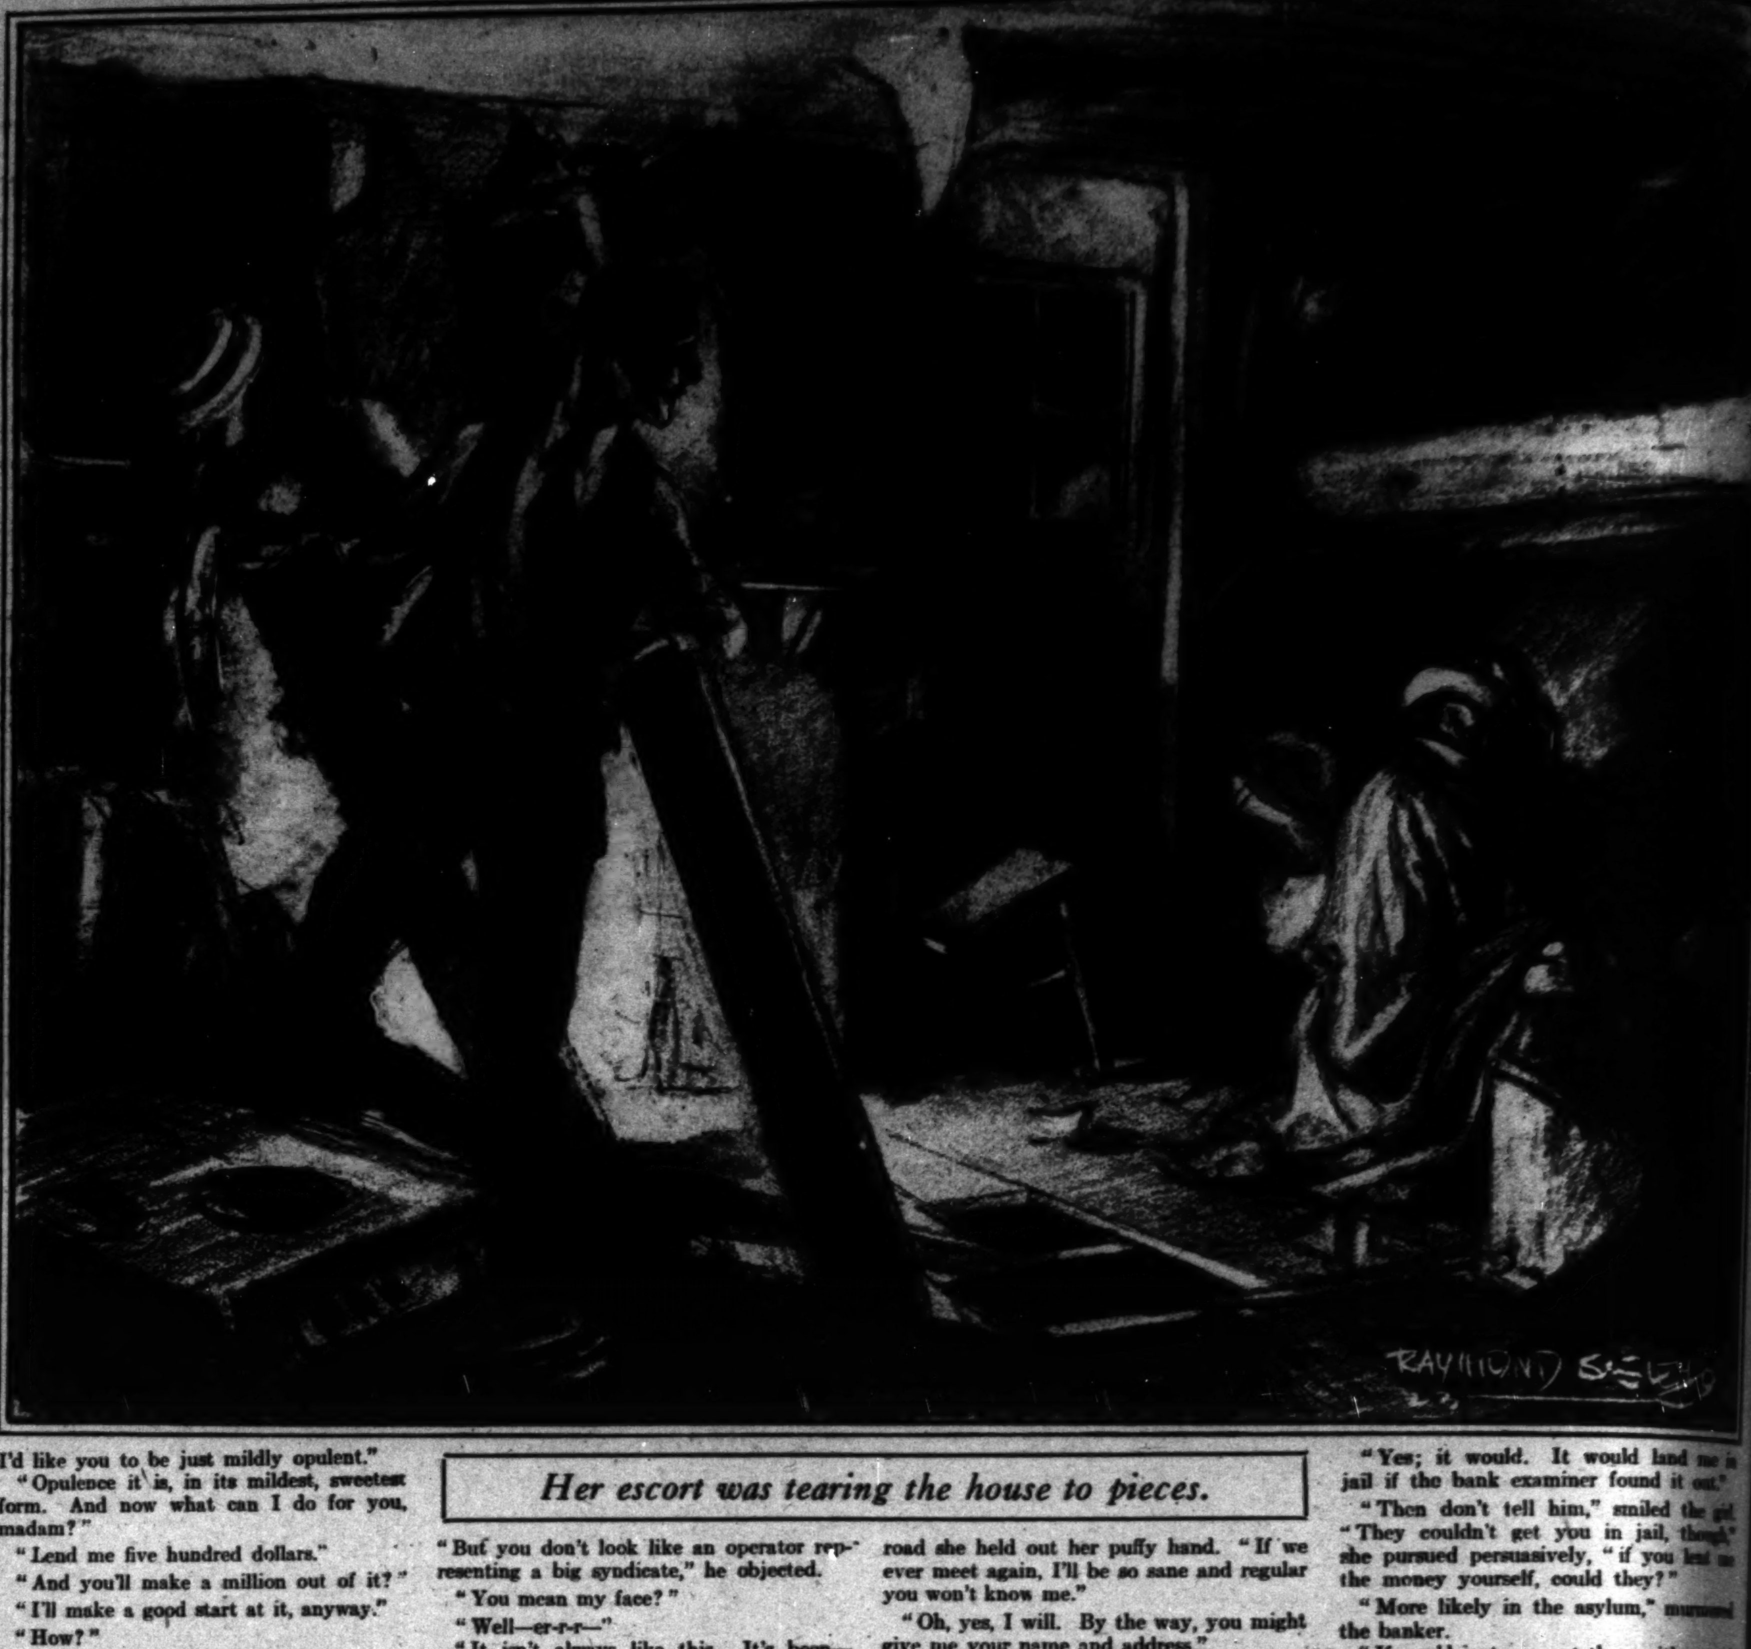
"Evening clothes do make such a difference. Looking at you now, I don't suppose you've got a red cent to your name."

"Wrong. I'm in receipt of a princely emolument of forty per week, in addition to which I have some bum prospects growing bummer every year."

"Not good enough," she sighed.

"Oh, well, to oblige a lady and help pass the time I'll be any given multiple of a multimillionaire."

"No; not a millionaire. They're stingy.



Her escort was tearing the house to pieces.

I'd like you to be just mildly opulent."

"Opulence it is, in its mildest, sweetest form. And now what can I do for you, madam?"

"Lend me five hundred dollars."

"And you'll make a million out of it?"

"I'll make a good start at it, anyway."

"How?"

"Promise never to tell if I tell you?"

"Cross my pocketbook and hope to die."

"Well, if I had five hundred really truly dollars I'd—I'd—" Her delightful voice reduced itself to a deliberate and impressive whisper—"I'd buy this land we're on now."

"What? Van Ness Point? You must be crazy. What do you want to buy that lemon for?"

"To sell again. At a big profit."

"Nobody'd ever take it off your hands. Though, of course, if you could get it for five hundred——"

"I'm not quite such a simp as to suppose that. They're asking two hundred an acre; say fifty thousand for the property."

"They'd fall dead if they got it. But how do you know so much?"

"Through inquiries. On the quiet. Opulent sir, do you know anything about real estate?"

"All I want to."

"Then tell me; how would you go about getting an option on this place if you were me and had five hundred dollars—for I'm going to get it if I have to steal it."

"Good Lord! I do believe the child is in earnest. Well, I'd go to Carson & Carson in town and say to them: 'I'm an operator representing a syndicate; how much for a month's option?' Then I'd go to Meredith Wynn at the Spendwich Commercial bank He's my cousin and the most imaginative banker I know. I'd hypnotize him with my bird charming voice and lay my proposition before him——" He broke off, frowning at the dowdy figure before him.

"But you don't look like an operator representing a big syndicate," he objected.

"You mean my face?"

"Well—er-r-r—"

"It isn't always like this. It's been—poisoned."

"Has it? What's it like when—I beg your pardon."

"You needn't. It isn't so much, at best. Not that it's so bad, either," she continued reflectively. "I've really known people to like it quite a good deal when I'm dressed up to it."

"That's another point," said he with rather brutal directness. "Clothes. But I suppose you must have more at home."

"I have. They're worse." After a moment's thought she produced a pencil, and fell to making figures on the flooring. As she computed her eyes were no longer those of the wistful rainbow chaser, but became shrewd and expert. "What's the lowest price, d'you think, that I could get an option on the place for?"

"Oh, it'd be cheap. I'd try 'em with two hundred and fifty for three months. I don't suppose they've had an offer since the Civil war, and unless they catch some sucker who's looking for a peaceful retreat to breed rhinoceroses in, they aren't likely to get another. But, seriously, if you ever should get hold of any real money, don't throw it away on—you haven't discovered gold on the place, I suppose."

"No. If I told you what I have discovered—but I'm not going to, though I've given you a hint already."

He shook his head. "Never touched me. You'd better keep your own counsel." He looked out. "The rain's stopping. And here come the aborigines in a charging swarm. We've got to beat it."

Again they ran for dear life. At the high road she held out her puffy hand. "If we ever meet again, I'll be so sane and regular you won't know me."

"Oh, yes, I will. By the way, you might give me your name and address."

She studied him a little suspiciously. "I haven't asked you to come to see me."

"I don't want to."

"Then why——"

"I might send you a postal or two from South America."

She gave the information sought. "Bon voyage, opulent stranger."

"Au revoir, empire builder."

When she turned at the corner to wave a farewell, he was laughing at her.

"ENORMOUSLY flattered and all that," said Meredith Wynn, twinkling. "But why come to me?"

"Because you're the vice president of a bank with money to lend," replied his visitor.

"Banks don't loan money on highly speculative ventures."

"Don't they? What do they lend money for?"

"Why—er—on safe and sound securities." The visitor's gray eyes opened wide. "Don't they ever take a chance?"

"Not knowingly."

"It must be a dull business," sighed the girl, "for a man with imagination."

"It's decidedly less dull than usual this afternoon," admitted Wynn with a pleasant grin. "But I'm afraid my imagination doesn't run to the advantages of purchasing Van Ness Point."

"I don't want it to," said the girl equably. "I'll furnish the imagination if the bank will furnish the cash. Surely a little five thousand dollars, just to carry the option, wouldn't hurt you."

"Yes; it would. It would land me in jail if the bank examiner found it out."

"Then don't tell him," smiled the girl. "They couldn't get you in jail, though," she pursued persuasively, "if you lent me the money yourself, could they?"

"More likely in the asylum," murmured the banker.

"If you'd just run out there with me and look over the property, I could show you——"

The banker flapped protesting hands. "And be eaten alive? Besides, I know the lay of the land like my own back yard. It's been the hoodoo of everybody that ever touched it. Five miles of mosquito breeding marsh all around it."

"What would the place be worth if it weren't for the skeeters?"

Wynn shrugged his shoulders. "Three-quarters of a million. Maybe a million if handled right."

"Ever think of draining the marshes?" inquired Miss Petrie with affected carelessness.

"We have," returned the banker, shortening his vocal wave length. "For the last ten years or so. It would cost three hundred thousand dollars, and then a specially high tide might come along any time and wash out the whole works."

"I'll guarantee to mosquito proof the point for ten thousand dollars."

At this straightforward and benignant offer, Mr. Wynn's suspicions began to afflict him acutely. "Break it to me gently, Miss Petrie," he besought in a patient and pained voice. "What particular patent sprayer or——"

"I'm not an agent, Mr. Wynn."

"No? Then what the dev—I mean, would you kindly tell me what you are?"

"A business woman. Wouldn't you like to hear the story of my life?"

Ordinarily the response to this would have been for Mr. Meredith Wynn surreptitiously to press a button which would have released a secretary outside who would have entered and released information of a pressing though imaginary engagement with a waiting magnate, which, in turn, would have released Mr. Wynn. Indeed, Mr. Wynn's well manicured finger had already stolen forward when he caught, in Miss Petrie's oddly long and slanted eyes, a suggestion of a quiver.

"Shoot," said Mr. Wynn, with conspicuous gallantry.

"It began ten months and twenty-two days ago——"

"You look older than that," he commented.

"That's when I began to lead my own life," she explained.

"Oh, Lord!" murmured Mr. Wynn.

"Before that I'd always been under some one else's orders—my parents when I was at home, and the faculty's at college, and then the Church Co-op Tearoom when I took the job of assistant manager."

"Ah! I thought your face looked familiar."

"It isn't," said Miss Petrie, shortly. "At least, it isn't meant to be. I hope never to look that way again except on duty. Well, this day I'm speaking of, two real estate men sat at the table just below me cursing each other fluently——"

"Carson & Carson," the other identified. "They always do."

"——because they'd failed to sell Van Ness Point to an Englishman that one of 'em referred to as a prospect and the other as a sucker. Their plan was to hold him off until the cold weather had discouraged the mosquitos—they had a lot to say about the mosquitos, none of it too polite—and then stick him for two hundred thousand or so. But he appeared prematurely, and went out there investigating on his own hook, and I suppose the mosquitos ate him up. Anyway, the real estaters lost him, and the rest of their talk was all hell and damns. So I went away from there like a perfect lady, which is what I promised to be when I took their rotten job, and began to think quite hard, and I suddenly remembered something that Dr. Howard, the entomologist, said in a lecture at Wellesley about every man being responsible for his own mosquitoes, and I thought if that was so somebody must be responsible for those on Van Ness Point, so I trotted over to the library and got Howard's book and read it, and there I found—I found——"

"What did you find?" demanded the banker, leaning forward, for Miss Petrie's voice and manner had become impressive.

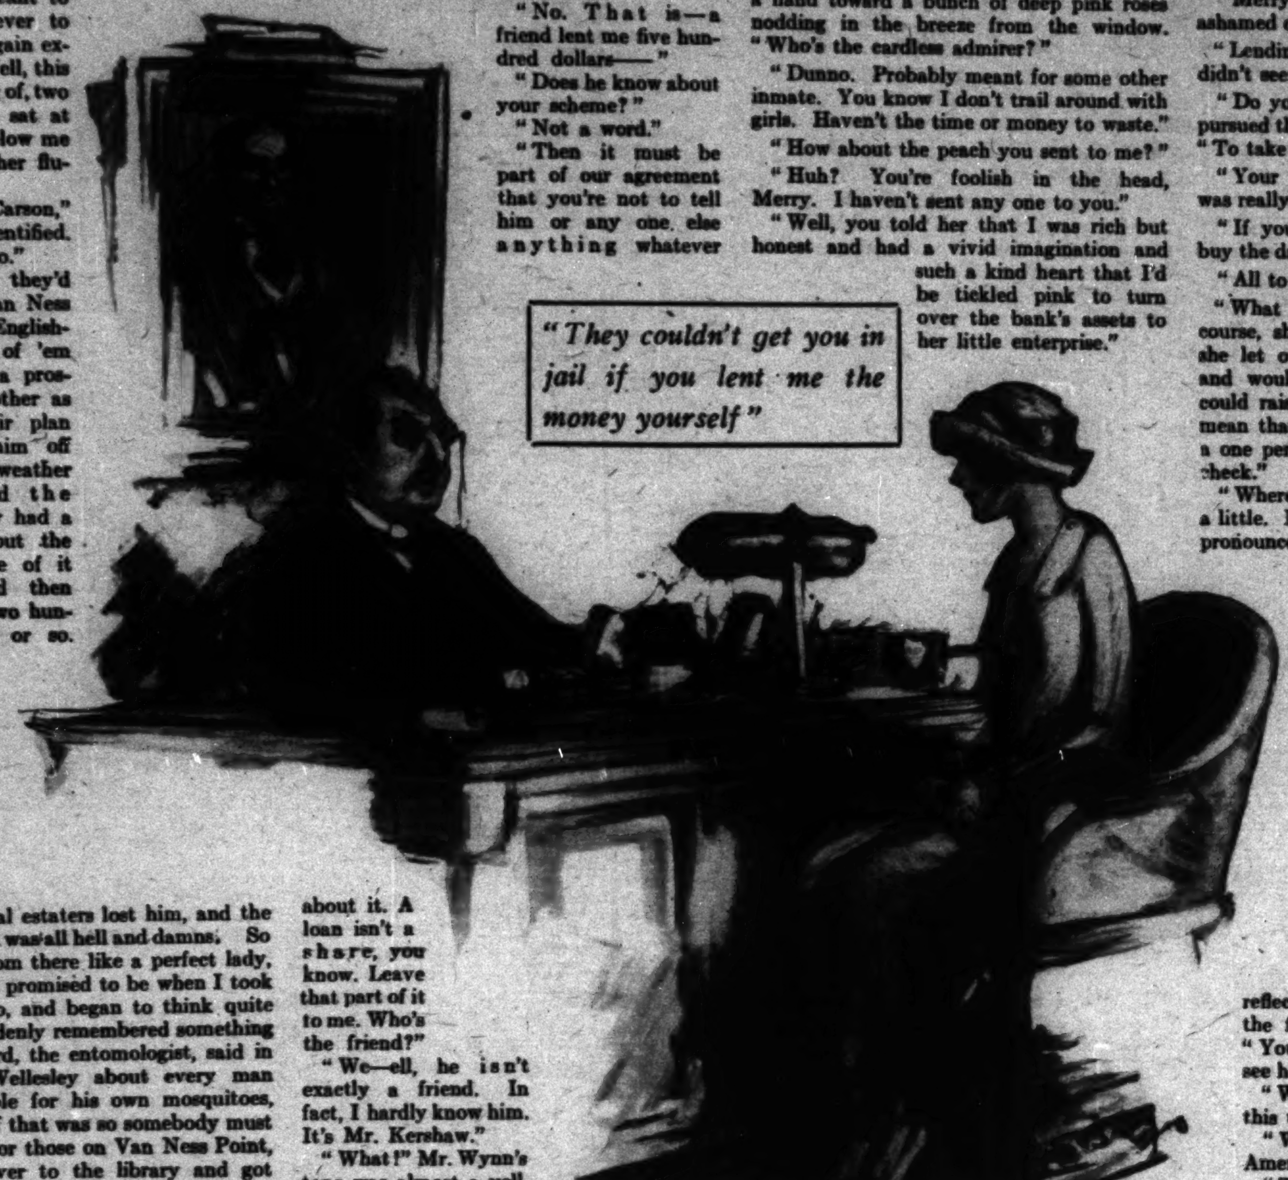
"The answer," said the girl, reflectively. "Or, rather, a hint of it. The rest I had to work out for myself." She produced a small metal box which, being opened, revealed to the attentive view of the banker five mosquitoes, neatly impaled upon slender pins.

"What did they die of?" he inquired, still suspecting some patent process.

"Executed for mayhem. Several millions of their sisters and their cousins and their aunts also bit me. Oh, I've shed my heart's blood on this thing. And now, unless I can get somebody to trust me for just a few little thousand dollars——" She threw up her hands in a gesture eloquent of despair.

"Did it ever occur to you," said Wynn, looking her between the eyes, "that if there's any trusting to be done you're the one to begin? Suppose you just go ahead and outline your scheme of wholesale slaughter to me in confidence. I'm a reasonably reliable person."

For a long moment the girl studied him. "So I've been told. And I believe it. I've got to believe it. Here goes!"



"They couldn't get you in jail if you lent me the money yourself"

With the secretive air and husky tone of a stage conspirator, she delivered a brief but pregnant lecture, illustrated by the contents of the tin box and supported by a letter bearing the official imprint of the United States Bureau of Entomology. At the conclusion Wynn leaped in his chair. When he returned to earth he said assuringly:

"Cheer up. Unless there's some flaw in your scheme, you're safely launched in the real estate business and will never have to be honest again." He made some rapid calculations on the desk blotter. "Are you open to a proposition?"

"Try me."

"Instead of a loan, will you let me in as a silent partner, with a third interest, for fifty thousand?"

"Fifty thousand dollars!" gasped the girl. "Why, that'll buy the land!"

"It ought to. What do you say. Is it a bargain?"

"A bargain! It's a cinch!"

They shook hands solemnly. "There's nobody else in on this, is there?"

"No. That is—a friend lent me five hundred dollars——"

"Does he know about your scheme?"

"Not a word."

"Then it must be part of our agreement that you're not to tell him or any one else anything whatever about it. A loan isn't a share, you know. Leave that part of it to me. Who's the friend?"

"We—ell, he isn't exactly a friend. In fact, I hardly know him. It's Mr. Kershaw."

"What!" Mr. Wynn's tone was almost a yell.

"Y-y-yes," faltered Miss Jones. "Why?"

"He let you have five hundred to get an option on Van Ness Point? Why, yourself?"

"I don't know," confessed the girl, and, in the light of her limpid and troubled gaze, Mr. Wynn believed her.

"Well, I'll bet I do," said he, and began to laugh.

"Everybody seems to laugh at me," complained the girl. "Mr. Kershaw did, too. He's gone to South America."

Of a sudden the banker turned grave. "No; he hasn't."

"He hasn't gone? Where is he?"

"At the city hospital."

"An accident?" she said, a little breathlessly.

"Pneumonia. He got chilled in a storm last week and——"

"Oh-h-h-h! Then it's my fault. He was helping me. Is it serious?"

"It has been; very. Today they say he'll pull through."

"Do you think I could see him?"

"Hardly before next week. When you do, remember, not a whisper. Secrets of our partnership."

"All right," said the girl, somberly. "Though it doesn't seem fair, after he was so kind to me."

"Oh, it's fair enough," returned the banker, and again he gave up to laughter.

As she went out of the bank Annabel Petrie began to laugh herself, a deep-down laugh of incredulous delight. The fairy tale that started with that unbelievable check was coming true all along the line. Fifty thousand dollars! She was going to be rich.

But when she reached the block on which the city hospital is situated the most exacerbated critic of manners could have imputed no blame to her gait or carriage. She passed the building with averted face and almost on tiptoe.

"DECIDED to live, have you, Dickie?" Meredith Wynn looked down with his ever-present twinkle at his cousin.

"Might as well," returned Kershaw, glumly.

"Oh, life isn't so bad. It seems to have been petting you a bit." The visitor waved a hand toward a bunch of deep pink roses nodding in the breeze from the window. "Who's the cardless admirer?"

"Dunno. Probably meant for some other inmate. You know I don't trail around with girls. Haven't the time or money to waste."

"How about the peach you sent to me?"

"Huh? You're foolish in the head, Merry. I haven't sent any one to you."

"Well, you told her that I was rich but honest and had a vivid imagination and such a kind heart that I'd be tickled pink to turn over the bank's assets to her little enterprise."

"Brakes! A sad-looking little mess named Petrie?"

"Such was the name. But where do you get your descriptive line? She looked to me like the top blossom on a pippin bush."

"Merry, you've been drinking wooden hooch. Do you sit there and tell me that you think she's pretty?"

"Pretty?" Wynn took it under consideration. "No; that's not the word. It isn't good enough. There's a kind of audacity of youth and charm about her, a bravura that —that—well, if I weren't so dotty about Alice I'd give you a run for your money, my boy!"

"You'd pass me in the first lap, speeding hotly in the opposite direction. Poor old Merry! Senile decay setting in at thirty-five."

"It's quite plain you still retain a touch of delirium. If you can't see any charm in Miss Petrie——"

"Well, there's her voice, of course."

"Like an ostrich. But I believe she'd caught cold wandering romantically about in a cloudburst. May one infer that it was the same storm as the one that laid you low?"

"Yes, it was."

"And now you're pretending you think her quite negligible."

"Negligible!" gulped the other. "I lent her five hundred dollars."

Wynn rendered an admirable imitation of surprise and shock. "My dear fellow! I understood her to say she hardly knew you."

"Well, she doesn't."

"However, I can well understand it," sighed the banker, elaborately. "That incredibly persuasive way of hers——"

"Look here, Merry." The sick man sat half way up. "You didn't fall for her and lend her any of the bank's money, did you?"

"Certainly not," replied the visitor, with bland veracity.

"Well, I couldn't tell. If she could hypnotize you into thinking her a winner——"

"Not to mention witching five hundred dollars out of your jeans——"

"Merry, that was a dirty trick. I'm ashamed of it."

"Lending her five hundred dollars? She didn't seem to take that view of it."

"Do you know what she wanted it for?" pursued the sick man, slow and impressively. "To take an option on Van Ness Point."

"Your property?" Wynn's amazement was really very well done.

"If you call it property. She wants to buy the damned hole."

"All to the good for you."

"What about her, poor little slob? Of course, she hasn't any money. But when she let out that she wanted the property and would fall for fifty thousand if she could raise it—well, I was feeling low and mean that day and I thought it was worth a one per cent gamble, so I just sent her a check."

"Whereby you stand to win a lot and lose a little. I should call it a good speculation," pronounced the financier.

"Would you? I'd say it was rotten. Suppose the poor child has some property somewhere or lets in her friends or relatives. You know perfectly well the place isn't worth ten thousand. It isn't worth anything. I think I ought to tell her."

"And get your five hundred back, cautious youth?"

"No, blast you! It isn't the five hundred. It's the idea of letting in a poor, desperate little nut of a girl who's never had any fun in her life, and never will have, with her handicap of looks and the way she gets herself up."

"Oh, I don't know!" Wynn reflecting that he knew where part of the five hundred had gone, chuckled. "You may change your mind when you see her."

"Well, I'm going to see her and square this up."

"Wait till you get back from South America."

"Three months? The whole beanpot may be spilled by then."

"Leave it to me. I like the child. So does Alice; I brought them together. We'll look after her. But only on condition that you keep your hands off absolutely. After all, she's got a right to her chance."

Kershaw sighed his relief. "Then I don't have to look her up."

"No. Forget it, if you want to."

"You're a good old nag, Merry. I believe I could take a nap now."

UPON Wynn's departure, Kershaw fell comfortably asleep. After an indeterminate period dreams crept into his mind. And when he awoke it was only to pass from dream to dream. The sleeping visions had been distant and confused; the waking one was near and clear. It was a glowing personification in tender shades of gray; slaty blue shoes and dress and smart little hat, slate gray eyes wide apart and attentive, and against this harmonious background, lips and cheeks deep with strong blooded, outdoor color.

"Are you better?" asked the dream in a husky half whisper.

Slowly Dick Kershaw stretched out his hand, and, cautiously, gently, as one might essay to stroke the wings of a hovered butterfly, set a single finger upon the back of the suede gloved hand nearest him. He then retracted it and nodded with the profound satisfaction of one whose fond hope is unexpectedly confirmed. It was real to the touch.

RICHES HAVE WINGS

"I'm so glad," said the gray and pink apparition, interpreting this as favorable evidence.

Kershaw looked slowly from her to the two dozen long stemmed, deep pink roses nodding in the vase. "That makes twenty-five," he murmured.

"What does?" asked the girl hoarsely.

"You do." He waved a hand curve which included the blossoms and herself in unmistakable illustration. "Chameleon!" he added as her color deepened.

"A chameleon's a horrid, little fishy lizard thing."

"And it doesn't have wings, either, as you have. I'm glad I left the window wide enough open for you to fly in."

She laughed. "I didn't come that way. I materialized through the wall."

"Then there's no use trying to shut you in so you can't get away."

"Why should I want to get away?"

Kershaw's eyes opened in wide astonishment. "Don't you have to go and see the others?"

"What others?"

"Why, your others. The sick people you visit."

"Visit? I don't—don't you know me, Mr. Kershaw?"

Seizing the side of the bed, he dragged himself to a sitting posture. His jaw sagged. "Oh—my—Aunt—Jehosaphat! You aren't the five hundred dollar girl!"

"Of course I am."

"Where did you get that face?"

"It's mine." She dimpled audaciously. "D'you like it?"

"Like it! How'd you lose your voice?"

"Catching cold that day. D'you mind?"

"Mind! Where did you raise those snappy garments?"

"Part of your five hundred dollars," said she serenely.

"Eh?" he jerked out, then added hastily, "It's all right, of course. It's your money. And they're worth it. They're worth a million."

"They're likely to be if——" she broke off, biting her lip as she recalled her promise to Meredith Wynn. "It's your fault, anyway. Don't you remember, you told me I couldn't expect to do business in the frazzled old rags I had on?"

"I didn't put it as roughly as that, did I? You must liven up business a bit at the tea room in those togs."

"I've resigned."

"What! Quit your job?" She nodded. "On the strength of that fool real estate deal? That's awful."

"I don't see anything awful about it." She thought with warm satisfaction of the two thousand dollars credited to her account by her new partner.

"Then I'll tell you. No; I can't," he groaned, remembering in his turn his agreement with Wynn. "See here; will you promise me something?"

"What is it?"

"Before you make any other fool breaks—I mean—er—thoughtless steps, you go to Meredith Wynn and ask his advice."

"Why Mr. Wynn?"

"Because he's square as a die. You can trust him to the limit."

"That's exactly what I thought of him from the very first minute," purred the girl contentedly.

"Oh, did you! Well, just let me tell you, Merry's engaged. Lovely girl. He's crazy about her. Oh, by the way, you aren't engaged or married or anything, are you?"

"Certainly not. I'm a business woman. And that reminds me, perhaps you'd like to have your five hundred dollars back."

"No; you keep it till I come back from South America. You might need it, and I won't want it till I return. Now, let's forget business. How did you know I was here? What is it, Miss Baker?" he interpolated impatiently as the nurse entered.

"It's milk this time, and then your nap. You mustn't overdo."

The visitor rose. "I'm afraid I've stayed too long."

"No, you haven't," protested the incensed patient. "You haven't stayed long enough. When are you coming again?"

"Oh, pretty soon. In the course of a week or so."

"A week!" he bawled, exactly like an overpetted baby. "Why, they're going to discharge me in a week." His voice quivered with self-commiseration.

"But I thought people were always anxious to get out of hospital."

"So I was until—you see, I've got to sail as soon as I get out."

"But I thought you wanted to go to South America."

"So I did before—look here; you'll come back tomorrow, won't you?"

"Oh, very well," floated back through the door in husky, laughing assent as the room darkened and the world grew dull behind her departure.

TOMORROW was followed by other tomorrows, on each of which that absorbed business woman, Miss Annabel Petrie, contrived to take time off for a call upon Mr. Richard Kershaw. Sometimes she stayed only five minutes; sometimes an hour; and on a blessed Sunday she spent the whole afternoon; but long or short though the visit might be, on each occasion the talk inevitably veered toward the real estate trade and hastily shied away again amidst self-conscious looks and troubled evasions. There came a day when the attending physician positively declined to entertain further Mr. Kershaw's dark forebodings of relapse, collapse and imminent death if he were turned forth upon a cold outer world. And there came a night, all too soon thereafter, when Mr. Kershaw, with a heart of lead and a face of desperate gloom, sat in silence at the station gazing across his luggage at Miss Petrie and making profane and pious resolutions that he would not again make further observations touching on and appertaining to the weather, he having already enriched that topic with at least ten effortful variations. Miss Petrie was looking specially entrancing and much too cheerful, he considered, for a young and defenseless girl who was losing her only (he fondly hoped) real friend and guide for several months. And it was only five minutes to train time.

A faraway whistle sounded its melancholy warning. Mr. Kershaw rendered a creditable imitation of a gazelle shot through the heart.

When he had returned to earth he gulped out: "Annabel!"

"Well?"

"Would you consider—how would you like—do you think you'd very much mind—marrying me?"

"Marrying you? When?"

"Right now. This evening. In New York."

"Certainly not. The boy's crazy."

"I suppose I am," he admitted ruefully, and lapsed into gloom.

Another steamy shriek nearer at hand roused him again. "Annabel!"

"Yes, Dicky?"

"How about being engaged?"

She laughed, a little, shaken trill of hoarse laughter. "Don't be a goose. I can't be bothered."

"I didn't really think you would," he muttered disconsolately. "Oh, Lord. Is that the train?"

"I'm afraid it is. Good-by to you, Dickie, and all the best luck in the world, dear boy."

"Wait a minute," said he desperately. "This is awful."

"What is?"

"It's—it's perfectly ghastly going away like this with nobody to really say good-by to you."

"Well, I like your nerve! If you wanted your family here instead——"

"I haven't got any family. Not a soul except my married sister and she's in California."

"There's that Sartwell girl. She's your cousin, isn't she?"

"Girl! She's forty if she's a day. And she's got clammy hands." He looked down at his companion's warm little hand, which, somehow, he had possessed himself of. "Not a soul to say good-by really properly," he said with heartbreaking pathos.

The audacious dimples sprang into being in the girl's sparkling face. "Oh, very well," said she recklessly, and lifted her arms and her lips to him.

When the two faces separated each had changed color, hers for a deeper red, his for a sudden white.

"Hell!" he exploded. "I'm not going."

"You are. You are!" she protested violently. "You've got to. It'd be rotten of you to stay—now." She urged him toward the stationary train with insistent little shoves in which there was a touch of the proprietary. He yielded.

"But you do—care. A little. Don't you?"

"No fair. I won't tell you. I don't know. Get aboard."

He made a flying leap for the step. "I'll write."

She nodded. He leaned far out for a last look at her. She seemed to be laughing at him.

SO hurried was the approach of Mr. Richard Kershaw across the short cut on Van Ness Point that he quite failed to appreciate his extraordinary immunity from the ravenous aborigines. To be sure, it was now October and the mosquito season was theoretically past; but a warm pallor of sunshine lay over the world and through the windless haze flitted butterflies, bees and myriads of the lesser and innocuous winged creatures. To these the visitor paid no heed, nor to the busy groups of workmen whose toil with pick and spade gave to the locality the appearance of a distant prospect of canaled Mars; he was concentrating upon the once ruinous but now restored house which he had vandalized, some months earlier, for the comfort of a puffy faced refugee with a lost magic in her voice. Now the voice, with all its magic recovered, was talking business to a telephone receiver. As he entered, the speaker half turned.

"Good afternoon," she began with brisk impersonality. "What can I—Oh!"

"Why didn't you write to me?" he demanded without preface.

"I did. How brown you are. And how big you look. When did you land?"

"Two hours ago, exactly. When did you write?" Obviously he was set upon his subject.

"A week or two after your first letter came."

"I got that one. At Lima. That's all I ever did get."

"That's all I wrote."

"Why?" inquired Mr. Kershaw with simple forcefulness.

"We—ell, I was ashamed. I don't like being ashamed. It hurts."

"In the name of Immortal Mike, what were you ashamed of?"

"I found out it was you that owned this point."

"Wished onto a helpless descendant by a long line of bum ancestors. What of it?"

"I did you out of it, didn't I? For a wretched little forty-odd thousand dollars. I wouldn't have minded if it had been anybody else but you. But after you'd been so good to poor, frowzy, broke little me, to play you such a rotten trick——"

"Rotten trick! I'm the one that played you the rotten trick, lending you money to stick you with a piece of property that isn't worth anything."

Thereupon both began to talk at once with the fervor and insistence of two people looking at the same subject from passionately personal and diametrically opposite points of view. "But, I——" cried the girl. "But, you——" vociferated the youth. "But you——" interrupted the girl. "But, I——" contradicted the youth, until, after several inflammatory moments of rebuttal and re-rebuttal, he pounced upon a hopefully intelligible end of the tangle, and, as it were, emerged with it between his teeth.

"You poor nut!" he snorted, with an earnestness transcending the lesser conventions. "You seem to think you can sell this pestilential swamp to some one battier than yourself."

"I know I can. And they don't have to be batty. And it isn't a pestilential swamp. And I think you're——"

"Pause!" he bade, in the suave tone of one whose argument is too crushing to call for emphasis. "Have you ever considered the mosquito as an influence upon real estate transfers?"

"I have." Taking him firmly by the hand, she led him to the window, which afforded a view of an extensive signboard reading:

NOSKEETA PARK.

Lots Now on Sale—Inquire of Agent on Premises.

Notice—On and after June 1 one dollar reward will be paid for each and every mosquito of whatever species taken alive within the Park limits.

NOSKEETA PARK REALTY CORPORATION.

A. Petrie, President.

"It's a bluff," he declared. "You'll never get away with it. The aborigines will swamp you."

"Will they? Where are they?"

"Wait till spring. They'll come up from the marshes. Billions of 'em."

"They won't."

"They will. They always have."

"They never have."

"I suppose," he remarked in wounded tones, "those things that chewed us to bits that day I met you here were flying-fish, eh? Or bald eagles?"

"Don't try to be funny on serious matters," she returned, austerely. "And if you'll kindly let me have my hand back, so that I can show you something on this map, I'll try to relieve the pressure on your anxiety."

PRESIDENT PETRIE then launched forth upon a brilliant and convincing exposition of how and where mosquitoes of various species live and breed, prey, travel, and die, concluding triumphantly: "So, when I'd once got into my head Dr. Howard's theory that every man is responsible for his own mosquitoes, the rest was easy. For a month I was simply free lunch for anything that wanted to bite me, and pretty much everything did. I collected 'em all, and just as I hoped, there wasn't a single salt-marsh mosquito in the bunch. All home-grown. Then I investigated the marshes and found tidal conditions that prevented any breeding within half a mile, and skeeters don't travel that far except under the most favorable conditions of prevailing winds. Everything that had been feeding at my expense was born and raised right on the premises in these neat little swamps and hollows that we've drained off and filled up. Up to date, it's cost less than ten thousand dollars, and the work is about finished, and with what we've spent—won't you please try to look interested and intelligent, or don't you understand a word of all the wisdom and science I've been lavishing on you?"

"I don't know a Culex from a [illegible], and I don't want to. But I understand this: you're a rich woman."

"I could sell out tomorrow for four hundred thousand," said she, contentedly.

"And I'm a poor man."

Her eyes questioned him. "What's the matter, Dick? You've got your stake in this. I never intended——"

"That isn't what I mean, and you know it."

"Well, don't you bite me. You put in the first five hundred, and——"

"It isn't anything to argue about," he declared, stiffly. "I think I'll be going."

"Going!" The life and music died out of her voice. "What for? I wanted to talk to you about—I had an idea that—I thought maybe if you wanted to put back what we paid you—some sort of partnership arrangement."

He interrupted her rather pitiful stumbling with a valiant reversion to his natural sunny insouciance. "No. This is your game, my dear. You win, and you sure deserve to. I'm mighty glad, Annabel. But I think I'll be going."

They stood looking not at but past each other, indeterminately, miserably. From far across the marshes sounded the long wailing of a locomotive approaching the station of Spendwich-on-the-Sound, just such a sirenic wail as had precipitated unexpected events four long months earlier. The girl lifted her face. It was suddenly radiant and wistful, and across it little ripples of light and color played, leaving dimples in their wake.

"There's your train," she whispered.

It was too much for young Mr. Kershaw's powers of restraint. He made a step and a grab, saw her eyes change and widen upon him, and caught the flat of her swift, small hand across the corner of his mouth. The well-intended grab faltered and failed. Discomfited, he stood staring. She reached out and delicately detached the mangled remains of a mosquito from his fallen countenance.

"The last survivor," she observed, breathlessly. "The cross marks the spot where the crime was committed."

Thereupon, stretching forward and upward, she committed it.

After a brief but important interval he murmured: "How about that partnership now?" And, immediately thereafter: "Is that the way partners act?"

"Certainly it is; in this kind of partnership," he answered. "I'm going to have it embodied in the articles of incorporation."

"Be careful," she warned; "you'll crush the exhibit." She picked the deceased aborigine from his coat sleeve, where it had fallen, and held it up to the light.

"Cupid, 1923 model," murmured the rich Miss Petrie.

"MOTHER OF GOLD" by EMERSON HOUGH

MADRE d'ORO

Blue Ribbon Fiction

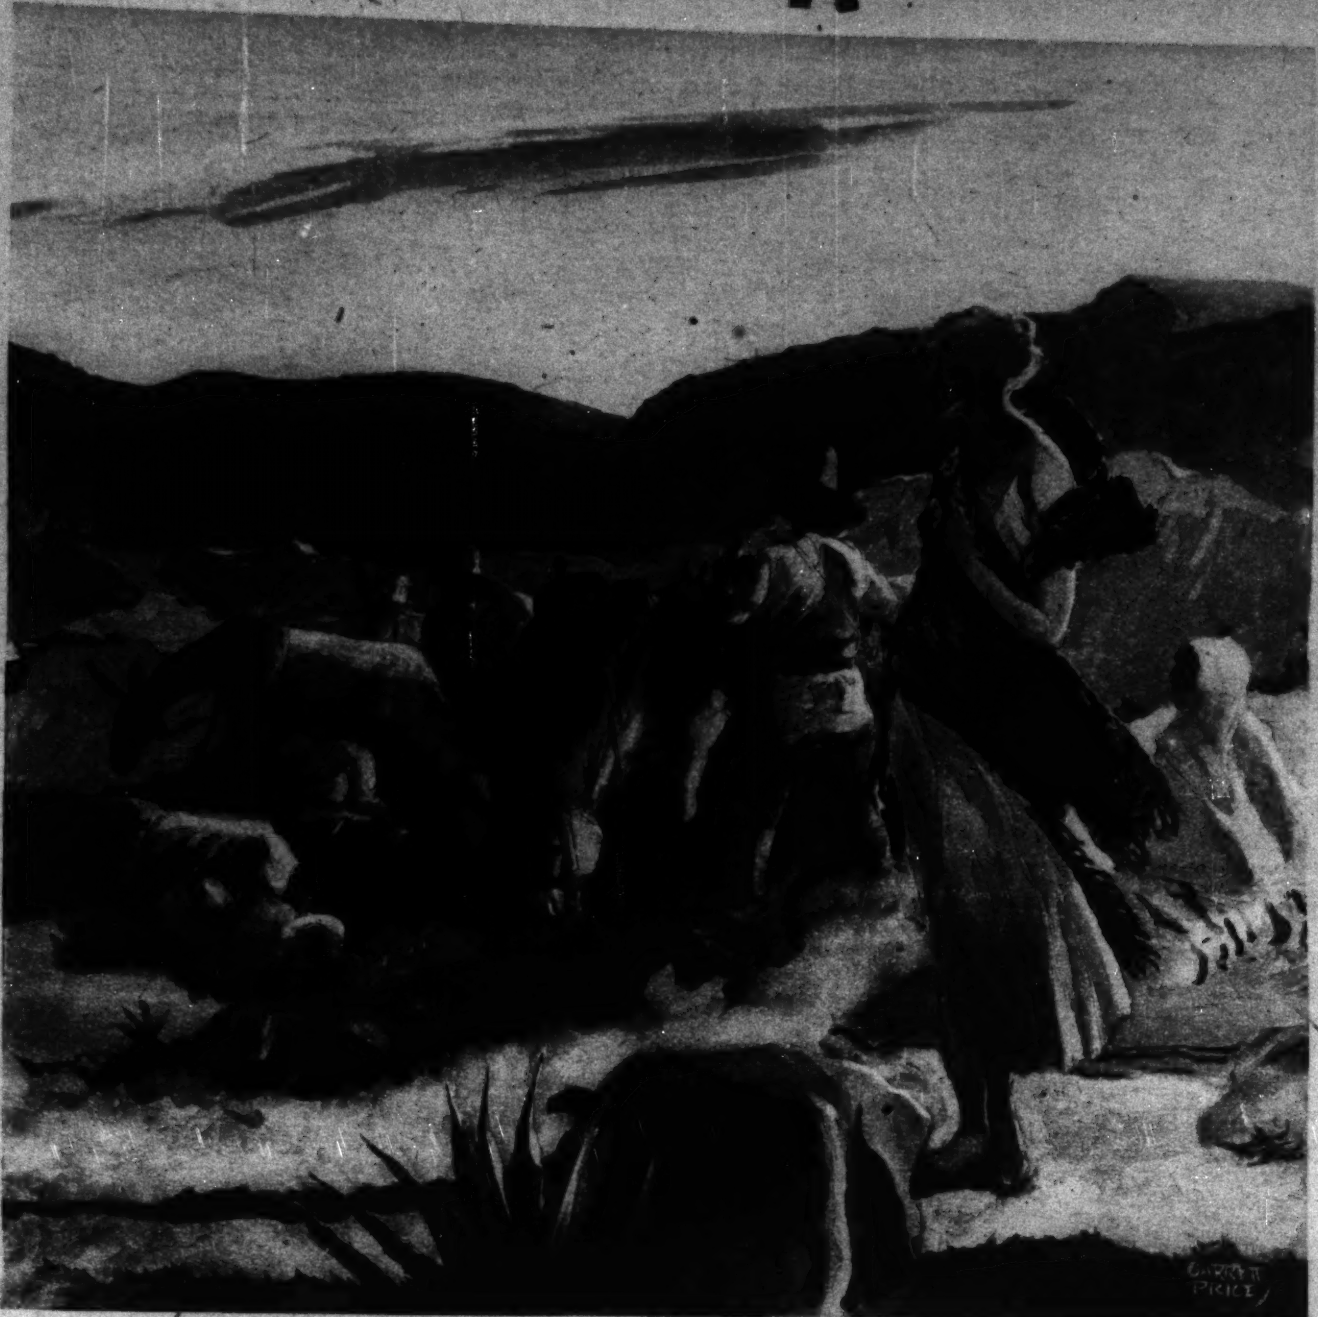
THE STORY SO FAR

JOHN PALMER, a veteran engineer; "Pug" Hallock, Don Silsby, and Barry Allison are in Mexico seeking the "Mother of Gold," the mother lode of the world's gold, which Palmer believes he has located. The prospectors meet a beautiful young girl, Luisa Martinez, sister of the girl Palmer stole from her proud Spanish family. The Americans take Luisa with them.

Back in Deneville, O., Allison had confided his secret to Mary Westlake, and she promised to wait one year for him. But Randall Trent, the richest man in town, pushes his suit for her hand and follows when Dr. Blakely takes Mrs. Westlake to Mexico for her health. Dr. Blakely and the Westlakes are at the home of Father Ernesto, a queer Samaritan of a district where folks never grow old. This is the land of the old Martinez family.

Father Ernesto tells Mary that Palmer learned the story of Madre d'Oro from Pedro, the ancient servant of the Martinez family. On an old Spanish map he shows her the supposed location of the mother lode. Trent arrives, with a handful of pearls for Mary, but she refuses them. In her crystal globe Mary again sees the valley of gold.

Mary leads a party to visit the cavelike home of Pedro the Old in the desert. Mary talks in Spanish with Pedro after he scorns the others. She tries to pry from him the secret of Madre d'Oro. The shock of the knowledge that a woman knows so much of the great secret kills old Pedro.



She could not avoid admiration for the adventurers.

NINTH INSTALLMENT.

Noche Triste.

BACK of the elephant wood trees, whose heavy branches made a sort of screen, had stood the two daughters of Pedro the Old, Anita and Magdalena. Of these, Anita, the elder, could have understood, in part at least, the nature of the conversation that passed between her father and the young woman from the north. In truth, she had listened—had gathered, it may have been, some little additional inkling regarding the matter of which she had some vague earlier knowledge. The eyes of Pedro at length had seen the eavesdropper. The shock at seeing the dissipation of his whole life work had done evil for the old man.

Now came the really guilty person, the eavesdropper Anita. She shrieked out in her native Spanish, native Indian, halfway English. "Mi papa! Lo mataran! He is killed! He is killed!" She cast herself upon the limp body of the old man as it leaned against the rock. Then she turned to the white woman with fury and vented upon her a torrent of vindictive execration which none but the native could have followed.

The others came up hurrying. Blakely felt for pulse, for respiration. He turned away.

"We came too late," said he. "He's gone! The oldest man in all the world is dead at last!"

"What did it, do you think?" he demanded of Mary Westlake, who stood weeping, pale. "I ought to have all the facts. I shall have to report the end of the longest life known in many centuries. Tell me, what did it!"

"I don't know," said Mary. "He fell over when I was talking to him. He sank down and leaned back. That's all I saw."

"Shock of some sort, of course," said Blakely. "What were you saying to him? How did it all come about? You never had seen him before."

"She's accursed, that young woman!" broke out the ancient daughter of Pedro the Old. "She called spirits down on mi papa. She is a witch! She has evil knowledge—I heard her. She means to ruin us all. She spoke of the great valley of gold!"

"What did she mean by that? A valley of gold?" demanded Randall Trent, who had pushed forward.

"She knows what it means!" screamed Anita. "She was talking to mi papa, I heard her. She asked him where lies the valley of the Madre D'Oro! It is a word never mentioned. Mi papa thought she knew, so he died. She is a witch! Let me kill her! She has killed the last man who knew the secret!"

"Then you also knew that he was one of the Sacred Three!" Mary turned upon her, tried to lead her aside. But Anita was well nigh crazed.

"No! I do not! I know nothing!" she screamed. "If I knew I would not tell. But he is dead! What have you done? Who guards now, tell me that? Ah, my God! The Good Saints! That such a wrong should be done to one who had not earned it!"

Something of this came to the ears of the others, who all turned, puzzled.

"What does she mean by Madre D'Oro?" again demanded Trent.

"The Madre D'Oro?" began Blakely. "I have heard old Father Ernesto say something about that—it is marked on the old Spanish map he has got in the hall."

"Madre D'Oro!" exclaimed Trent. "That means 'mother of gold,' doesn't it? What's that she's saying about the secret valley? What does she mean?"

But the agitated girl whom he addressed stood before him now scarce possessed of her own reason. With horror she began to reflect on the possible spreading of this knowledge, or partial knowledge, regarding the great treasure. Surely Anita had gained some knowledge, and now here were these others asking questions. Father Ernesto himself knew at least something of this same mysterious secret. What, then, would be the end of it all? Her reason gave her no answer to that question, but there did grow in her mind a stronger conviction that what Barry Allison had told her was true and more than true.

UNDER Blakely's instructions the old man's daughters did what they could for him—eased his body down, covered it with his ragged serape. Huddled, shrunken, the piteous figure there lay before them—the last man of the ancient war clan of the Aztecs, who alone ever knew the actual secret of the Madre D'Oro.

"This is rather hard," said Blakely. "It is an awful thing. We came to see him because he had put off death so long. Well, it seems to come at last. I suppose we white people bring the curse with us. We've killed him—just by our coming, I suppose!"

He commanded them to bring additional blankets. "We'll wrap him up and put him in his cave yonder. I'll have men back from the ranch and seal it up forever. The oldest man in all the world!"

"I can't stay here!" broke out Mary Westlake, almost hysterical now. "Let me go back home! I'm afraid to stay here!"

"But we must spend the night here in some way," said Blakely, who practically was the leader of the party. "We'll leave the old man here and ride back in the morning. Tonight you and the two women can sleep inside the cave. It will be the last time it ever will be used by living human beings, I suppose. Well, I'll try to get a fire and see if we can cook a little something, as soon as we can quiet down."

"I'll not go into that cave with Anita yonder!" said Mary. "She'll kill me, surely!"

Blakely turned towards her, still puzzled. "All this is mighty curious to me. What's that woman mean by all this hullabaloo? Madre D'Oro? Why should those words kill Pedro? Why should they make a potential murderess out of Pedro's daughter? There are some things here I confess I don't understand—do you?"

4 Men in 7 Bald at 40

Yet 91% Needlessly

Science discovers falling hair due to simple infection (Sebum). Now overcomes it with startling results in hair growth.

New Hair in 90 Days—Guaranteed in Writing

Falling hair stopped, new hair grown in 90 days, or money back! Baldness is not a disease, science now shows. It is merely a symptom of infection—infection of the scalp oil. Sebum. The infected Sebum, dermatologists have recently learned, is responsible for 90% of all hair troubles.

Sebum (oil) forms at the follicles of the hair. Its healthy function is to supply the hair with oil. But often it cakes on the scalp. It forms a breeding place for bacteria. It clings to hair and destroys it. It lodges in hair follicles and plugs them. Then germs by the millions start to feed upon the hair. Semi-baldness soon is marked. Then often comes total baldness.

You can see this Sebum on your scalp, in the form of an oily excretion. Or, when dried, as dandruff. But it rarely kills the roots. Hence, when you remove it, new hair grows. This is a scientific fact—medical authorities will tell you so. You must remove the infected Sebum.

Now, a Treatment for the Infected Sebum

Science has found how to deal with the infected Sebum. The method is a new one. Note how it is applied. It is called Van Ess Liquid Scalp Massage. And it is 90% effective.

This new method penetrates to the follicles of the hair. It combats the Sebum and removes it. Results are marked. They are quick. In three weeks it stops falling hair. It grows new hair with further use.

Falling hair stopped—new hair grown in 90 days! We know the statements we make are amazing—almost incredible. But remember, we back them with an absolute guarantee. There is a guarantee in the top of each package. Read it first before you buy. Note that we let you be the judge.

Costs Nothing

Unless we grow hair. The Van Ess 3-bottle Treatment is absolutely guaranteed. The warrant is given by your own druggist. All we require is his signature showing you have purchased a ninety-day treatment. If it fails we refund your money. You assume no risk making this test.

We Take All the Risk

Go today to any drug store or department store. Obtain the 3-bottle Van Ess Treatment. Have the druggist sign the guarantee. Then give Van Ess a fair trial—90 days. If it doesn't stop falling hair and grow new hair, your money will be refunded.

We take all the risk. If we succeed, the benefits are yours. And they are worth many times the price we ask. If we fail—the loss is ours. So for your own sake we urge you to try it at once.

VAN ESS LABORATORIES, Inc.
28 E. Kinzie St. Chicago, Ill.

Note This New Way

Van Ess is not just a "tonic," as you can see. It combines massage and medicament in one treatment. You rub it in with the rubber massage cup. The nipples in the cup automatically feed medicament down to the follicles of the hair—the vital spot—at the same time massaging the scalp.

Liquid Scalp Massage

"No!" replied the weeping girl. "I wish I had never heard those words!"

Shaking his head, Blakely turned away.

As for Mary, when the soft twilight came down, adding its terrors to the weird surroundings, she drew apart and sat huddled. A great sense of fault, of indiscretion, came to her mind. She felt that she herself had now created new dangers for Barry Allison. Barry had counselled her never to mention these very things which now were publicly discussed.

Somewhere, perhaps far to the south, farther from his own home than they were here, Barry Allison and his friends, of whom one knew the secret of the valley, now no doubt were fighting their way on to the climax of all their risks. That was in Mexico, the unknown country, far to the east. Had theirs not been risk enough at best? And now here were more seeking to learn what should have been concealed—the knowledge of the Madre D'Oro. If the news of it got out, if curiosity regarding it now went afoot, who could tell what evil might develop?

She began to think in still more concrete terms. Here was Trent, alert, keen, unscrupulous, used to following trails of gold after his own fashion. Had he not shown that he had some curiosity, perhaps some inkling, of the existence of a rich mine worth seeking? Her own confused remarks, the hysterical exclamation of Anita, Father Ernesto's naive talk—all these things would make Randall the more eager. She knew him well enough to be sure he would not stop, if once he laid out a plan. She saw his eyes now following Anita curiously.

Of all these—the Mexican woman, Trent, Blakely, Father Ernesto—which would be the most dangerous to her? She felt her heart sink deep. In her conscience she felt that she had done a wrong, not more to her lover and to herself than to the ancient and sacred secret of the Madre D'Oro. She had disregarded the solemn adjuration of her lover. What good could come of that?

Blakely and Trent, unused to mountain going, assured themselves it would be unsafe to undertake to travel down the insecure trail by night. So, as best they could, shivering in the mountain cold, too unhappy to eat and having but little food at best, they passed a wretched night, sleepless, until morning came.

The old women, rendered almost worthless through their night-long mourning over the dead man, made shift to gather a little wood and build a wastrel fire, but breakfast had little taste for any of them. As soon as possible they had the mozos catch up the horses. Then, carrying the shrunken body of old Pedro into the cave which was to be his last home, they mounted and rode down the trail. It had indeed been noche triste, without hope or solace to any of them. To their strained senses every sound of the hills was full of whisperings, of warnings.

As for Mary, suddenly it seemed to her that all the world was leagued against her. What could she do?

SOMEWHERE in its mystic valley far to the southward, without question the Madre D'Oro lay smiling at the furies, the hopes, the disappointments of men, their avarice, their restless greed. A thousand times these past centuries the foot of man in search of gold had passed by her door. The time had not yet come.

In the great valley lay peace and the dream of time.

Now, converging in a wholly unconcerted way, there existed two columns of attack upon the peace and calm of the ancient valley. That the visitors at the Ranch of Good Hope, fired by partial knowledge, stirred by the usual avarice of man, would make some attempt to solve an enigma of such fascinating interest to them, easily might be guessed. Meantime, the definitely organized men led by John Palmer were pushing on southward, these many weeks, holding always to their general course, gaining a little distance every day. And now they began to approach the crux of their adventurous game.

They had kept as far away from the railroads and the more beaten trails as they could, sometimes losing distance to gain that end. It was not always possible to avoid meeting with human beings or wholly to evade the trails upon which the inhabitants of the country traveled, by horse or mule or on foot, carrying their scant produce to this or that city for such meager gains as chance might bring them; but, thus far, everything had favored them. They either had passed for natives themselves or had met natives so apathetic and indifferent as not to care to note or question them.

John Palmer, leader of this little band of invaders, rode in silence, always pushing on as fast as the animals could go. Through the hilly country that lay below the village of Loma Verde, where the party had made so spectacular an entry and escape, they put many rapid miles behind them all through the night.

Palmer was not happy. One thought came ever to his mind—here again was woman! At his very side rode an example of that sex traditionally held outside all knowledge of the Magic Valley. What might it mean? True, Luisa Martinez and her sister had made their home with him these years, almost at the gate of the Valley itself. But neither of these nor any other woman ever actually had seen the entrance. No woman knew precisely where it lay. He reflected grimly as he rode that he at least had kept the ancient law, and not been traitor to the oath of the tribal clan. He, almost alone—altogether alone thus far—had held guardianship of the gate of the valley.

And yet even as he rode thus grimly, self-proven, John Palmer knew that but for one other woman whom he had met years ago over yonder in the mountains of the unknown peninsula, he himself never would have known even of the existence of the secret, could never have found the gate of the great valley. And now here, in need of succor, was that woman's sister.

Close at the side of that sister, herself beautiful as woman often grows to be, rode three young men. True, they might have ties far back in the country they had left. But that was far away, and Luisa was here, beautiful and alluring, always to be reckoned with. What would be the result of all this?

Palmer felt uneasiness every time he heard the voice of Hallock, who rode closer to the side of Luisa than either of his friends—in fact, was rarely ever out of sight of her since first he had laid eyes upon her. Well, such things happened, yes, reasoned John Palmer, but they did not happen well in any party of men bound on an enterprise of danger where absolute concentration of purpose and unity of action were requisites of success. John Palmer had his doubts. Never before now had his courage run so low.

They had good animals, the packs carried by great Spanish mules, best of all transportation in the mountains, hardy, used to dry food and infrequent water. It was not probable that the villagers back of them, in case they cared to pursue, could muster animals as good as these. Palmer counted also upon the fading away of any purpose they might for a boastful moment entertain. He doubted if they ever would get courage to pursue at all. None the less, he took every precaution for his own safety and that of his party.

"Which way, John?" asked Barry Allison, upon a pause they made at dawn, by the side of a clear rivulet which came down from the hills. "We're striking rather low altitude again, aren't we?"

Palmer nodded, "Yes. I want to get into the flat country. Maybe we'll strike a cattle range where our trail will be wiped out more or less. What we need is to leave not a trace behind—we have got to keep up our record as vanishing spirits. At the first fault of our trail our friends yonder will be glad enough to throw up the chase. We may break back deeper into the mountains later on.

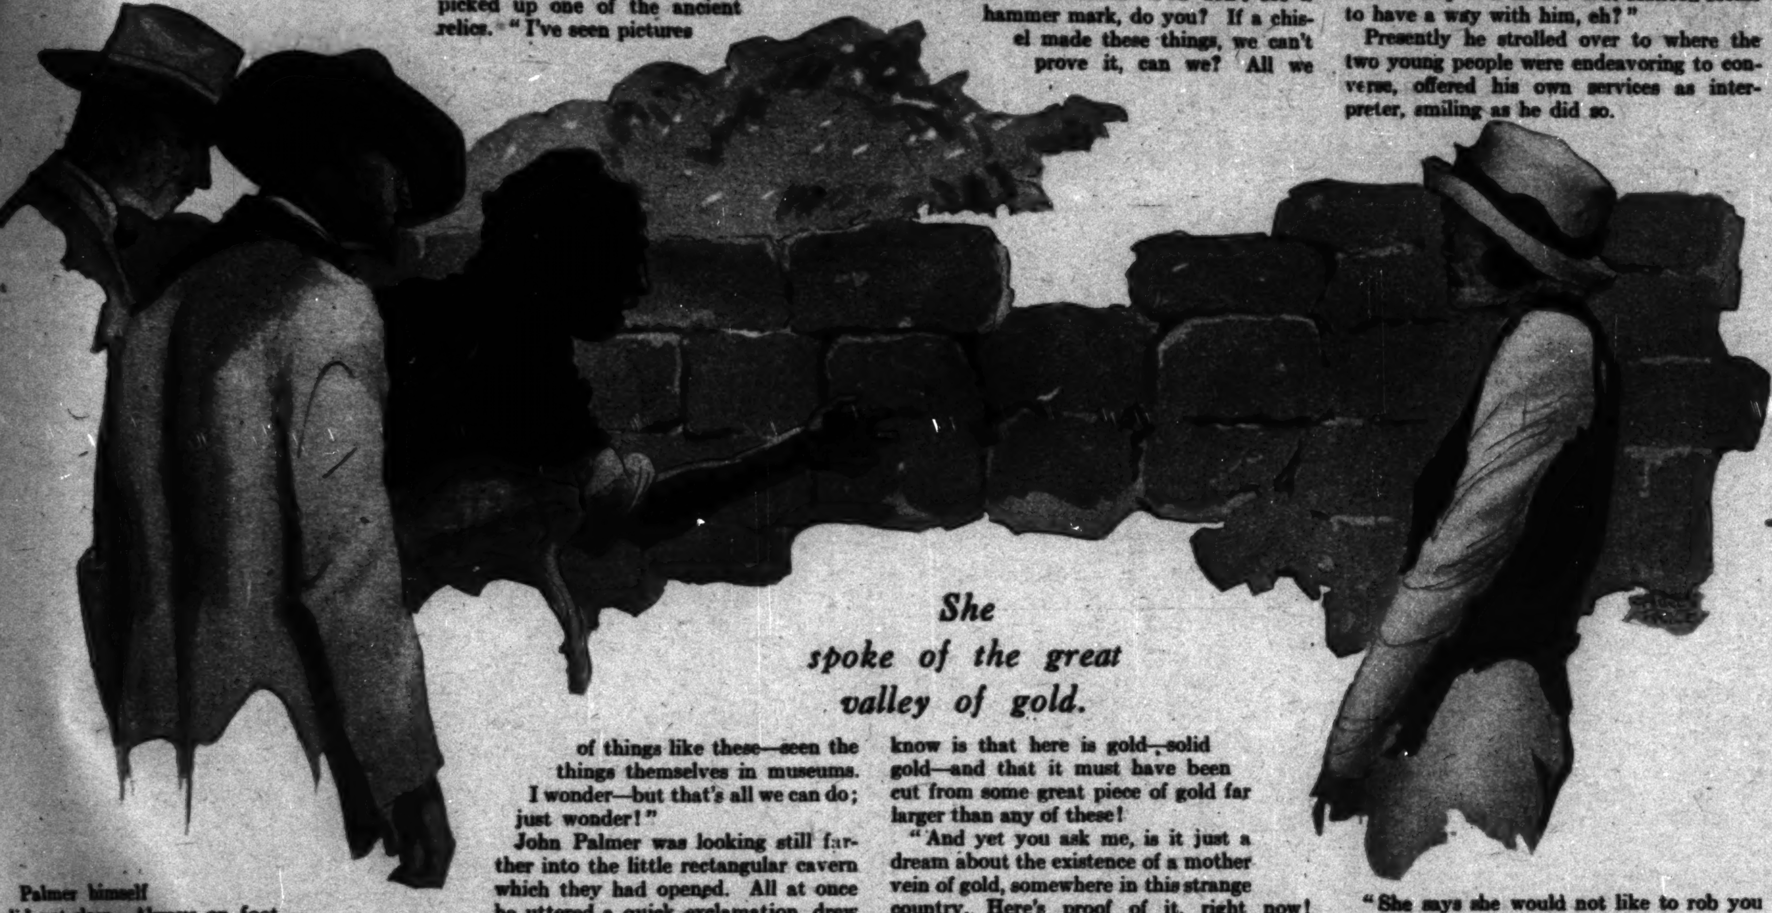
"We've done thirty-five miles, I figure, since we left Loma Verde. Good enough for a moonlit night, eh? I don't suppose those people came back out of the hills until daybreak. It will take them some time to get ready to start, and then they'll change their minds; and then when they find our trail so hard, they may quit—I surely hope so."

"Well, we've got to eat or we can't travel," he added, slipping out of the saddle. "I'm more afraid of Pancho Villa starting something than I am of anything else. But there's as good a chance that he was not coming to Loma Verde as that he was. Let's out, and let's hope. Off saddle and unpack, boys. We'll take our chances. Anyhow, we must give the stock some rest!"

The alert, methodical way in which they went about their camp duties interested Luisa, not unskilled in matters of the sort. She could not avoid admiration for these men, adventurers as they were. She saw the slender strength of Silsby, the easy power of Barry Allison, as they swung off the packs; but always her eyes seemed to seek out once more the vigorous form of this other man, of the light hair and blue eye, who always had ridden close to her throughout the night. She seemed always to hear his voice calling, to be about to answer some question he was going to ask her. A dozen times she caught his eyes turned her way. A dozen times she saw him look when he himself 'ardly knew that he had done so. Trust the maid of Spain to know! Her mother had told her to marry among her own people—Andalusians, fair of skin and hair—and this man from the north certainly was Goth, as her ancestors in ancient Spain also had been. Was it like blood to like that spoke now? Who may answer questions such as these?

"YOU'D all better spread out for a little nap," said Palmer, after they finished their hurried breakfast of bacon, coffee, and flapjacks. "We can't stop anywhere long."

They spread down some blankets for the women, propped up one for a sort of shade. Luisa did her best to compose herself in sleep—a thing she could not accomplish.



She spoke of the great valley of gold.

Palmer himself did not sleep. Always on foot and alert, he walked about the camp He stopped curiously at a low, wall-like ridge of earth near where they had tossed their packs and saddles. Barry Allison joined him, himself also on qui vive.

A good sized lizard, abroad for the first rays of the sun, scuttled away from them and took refuge in a crack which showed in the bank, or wall. Allison's eyes followed it curiously. He knocked aside the overhanging dirt and bared what apparently was a wall of stones, laid one upon the other with regularity. It was as though someone long ago had built or begun a residence here by the water of the little rivulet.

"Hello, what's this!" said Allison. "I thought that beggar was too big to get into the little hole. Look here! Here's where he went. And here's a regular wall!"

He strolled over to one of the packs and came back with pick and shovel. Sticking the head of the pick deep between the rocks, he gave a heave. It was with difficulty he could start one stone from the other, such had been the uncanny skill of the unknown builder in their fitting.

The builder? What builder? This was not the work of any man of modern times. That feeling, conviction, came to both Allison and Palmer as they attempted to open the wall face. But, stone by stone, the younger man persisted in his purpose. He drove in the pick once more, heaved stoutly. Some of the pieces gave way. A little cavern opened beyond—a rectangular sort of cavern, evidently wholly formed by the hands of man. The overhanging of earth and vegetation had been a matter of chance and time; how much time, what man might say?

The cavity was not much larger than a grave, but grave apparently it had not been, so far as they could tell. It held no trace of calcined or oxidised bones, no shred of human clothing. No skull grinned at them. But, at the center of the cavity, as though abandoned there by some hand that had flung it down, sat a flat bowl of pottery, not unlike that of later native ware. In it were two small pieces of sculpture, little graven images, a few inches in length, no more.

Yet each was large enough to show distinctly the lines of the old Maya sculpture, done in the hard trachyte, which that race so often used. The pieces no doubt had some religious significance, may have been idols of a sort. They showed the rolled hair, the full eye, the strongly projecting chin which so many of the Mayas' gods, so-called, displayed. There was some curious carving of the legs and arms—as though these were an after-thought, and pinned on upon the main body by the workman who had carved them; the upper thighs and the upper arms showing clearly the outline where they had been applied—a thing distinctive in Maya sculpture of the human body.

"Old, old, very old!" said Barry, as he picked up one of the ancient relics. "I've seen pictures of things like these—seen the things themselves in museums. I wonder—but that's all we can do; just wonder!"

John Palmer was looking still farther into the little rectangular cavern which they had opened. All at once he uttered a quick exclamation, drew back, looking down at two additional objects which he held in his hand.

"While you're wondering, Allison," said he, "take a look at these."

Allison did so. His shout brought up both Silsby and Hallock, running. They stood, exclamations of surprise breaking from them as they also inspected the curious objects which John Palmer had in his hands.

Images they were, almost duplicates of the little stone gods which they had found. But they were not of stone! The undying color was here—the color of gold! And here was the indestructibility of gold; for which reason we call it the most precious metal of them all. Gold does not die.

"Gold, by the Lord!" exclaimed Silsby. "And what a place!"

They stood in silence, looking around them, uneasy, sweeping the low horizon of the hills, lest they were noted now, at this moment.

"Great heavens, John!" said Barry. "There's gold all through this country, isn't there? What kind of people are these? Who made these things—who put them here?"

"You ask," said Palmer. "It would take some wiser man than myself to answer. It's plain that one race had followed another drifting down from the far north. Look at these things—they are oriental, Egyptian, if you please. Where did they come from? Who made the sculptures down in Yucatan? Read them, if you like.

"In all your reading, in all your observation—no matter how many museums you have examined—you never saw or heard of anything like these. These are of gold; and they are solid gold."

"But where did they get it?' demanded Silsby. "Is there a mine above here?"

"Like enough. There may be placers somewhere up this very river. Who knows? This has been a country both rich enough and lazy enough to forget many things. But here's what I want you to see. Then you can wonder all you like—for I confess it's got me guessing."

He held out the little images, inscrutable, smiling, for the others to examine. Yes, they were solid gold.

"They are not placer gold," said John Palmer, "nor quartz gold. The gold was never melted and poured into any mold. They are solid, I tell you—just as solid as this piece of trachyte. The man that made one made the other. How he worked, none of us may know, because they didn't have steel at that time—the Spaniards found no trace of iron or steel in any of this country. These things were done before Spain was born.

"These pieces were cut out of some great block of solid gold, my friends! They were worked out by tools, exactly the same as hard stone was worked. You don't see a hammer mark, do you? If a chisel made these things, we can't prove it, can we? All we know is that here is gold—solid gold—and that it must have been cut from some great piece of gold far larger than any of these!

"And yet you ask me, is it just a dream about the existence of a mother vein of gold, somewhere in this strange country. Here's proof of it, right now! There is and can be no doubt at all that the existence of a great body of solid gold was known somewhere down in this country. The Aztecs or Toltecs knew it. They traded in gold, scattered it. That drove Spain crazy. But the secret of the source of this gold never got out.

"The artist who made these things seemed to have valued this gold just about as much as he did the hard rock out of which he made his other images. But why they put them here and sealed them up—well, let some one else guess that; I can't.

"Yes, we've all seen pictures of just such objects as these. I suppose they have seemed curious to most of us. I swear, it's something more than curious now to me. These things are prophetic. Take them, boys, and put them in your packs. Maybe they belong to us, I don't know. Maybe the time has come."

"But, John, you have told us we've still a long distance to go," said Silsby, with another glance at the hills around him, which might hold their own secrets of rich mines.

"So we have. It's far from here. We may never see the place."

"O, pshaw!" broke in Hallock. "Let's be cheerful for once in a way. This is a good beginning. For my part I'm going to keep one of these little stone gods for my good luck piece—going to put it in my war bag. You're the pirate chief, John, so you take the gold ones."

"One will do me," said Palmer, "if you wish it so. You others can draw cuts for choice."

IT so fell that Silsby and Allison drew the stone pieces and Hallock fell heir to the other golden image.

When, after a time, they saw Hallock stroll off to the spot where Luisa sat, Palmer broke into a laugh. "It won't be his for long!" said he. "Well, there's not much choice in gifts in this country—there are no shops. I suppose Luisa Martines will be feeling that she belongs to our party before long."

In truth, Hallock did not rest long with his much prised possession. "At your disposition, señorita!" said he, using her language as best he might. He held out the little gold god.

The girl flushed scarlet, drew back at this presumption on his part; but in spite of herself could not suppress a smile, revealing a row of brilliant teeth under a curved upper lip. She made some reply which Hallock did not understand, but the color on his face matched that of hers.

"That's doing pretty well," ruminated Palmer. "You must know that the ladies in this country don't work quite as fast as they do up north. It isn't the thing for them to take gifts from strangers—at least from strangers they haven't known more than twenty-four hours. But Hallock seems to have a way with him, eh?"

Presently he strolled over to where the two young people were endeavoring to converse, offered his own services as interpreter, smiling as he did so.

"She says she would not like to rob you of an article so valuable as this," he said to Hallock, after a while. "Says she doesn't feel free to accept it in this way. Says she doesn't wish to offend you, since you wish well. Says she'll give the nugget to her own woman, Serafina, to keep safely, while she considers what it is and who made it."

"What have you said to him, Don Juan?" demanded the girl, noting the smile on Hallock's face, his embarrassed coloring.

"I said to him, my dear child, that this that he gives you is of no consequence; that presently we shall come to a place where we shall find much more gold—so much that a small piece like this will seem to have little value to us. Therefore, I say you may take it with free will."

Luisa took the little golden image into her little hand and looked at it earnestly; looked shyly up to the face of the young man who stood, florid, vigorous, strong.

They had not done so ill. It had not yet been twenty-four hours.

"You may tell him, Don Juan," said Luisa, after a while, "that though I take this for safekeeping, if you like, I cannot wear it because it is too heavy—and because I have no purple ribbon!"

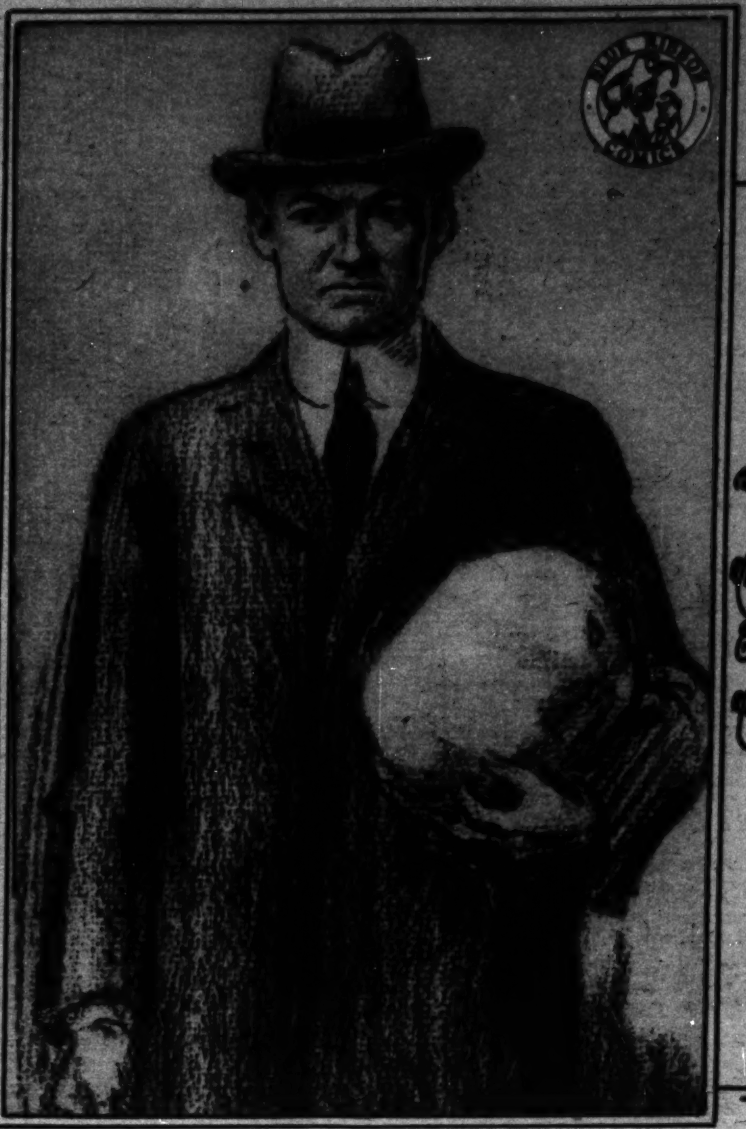
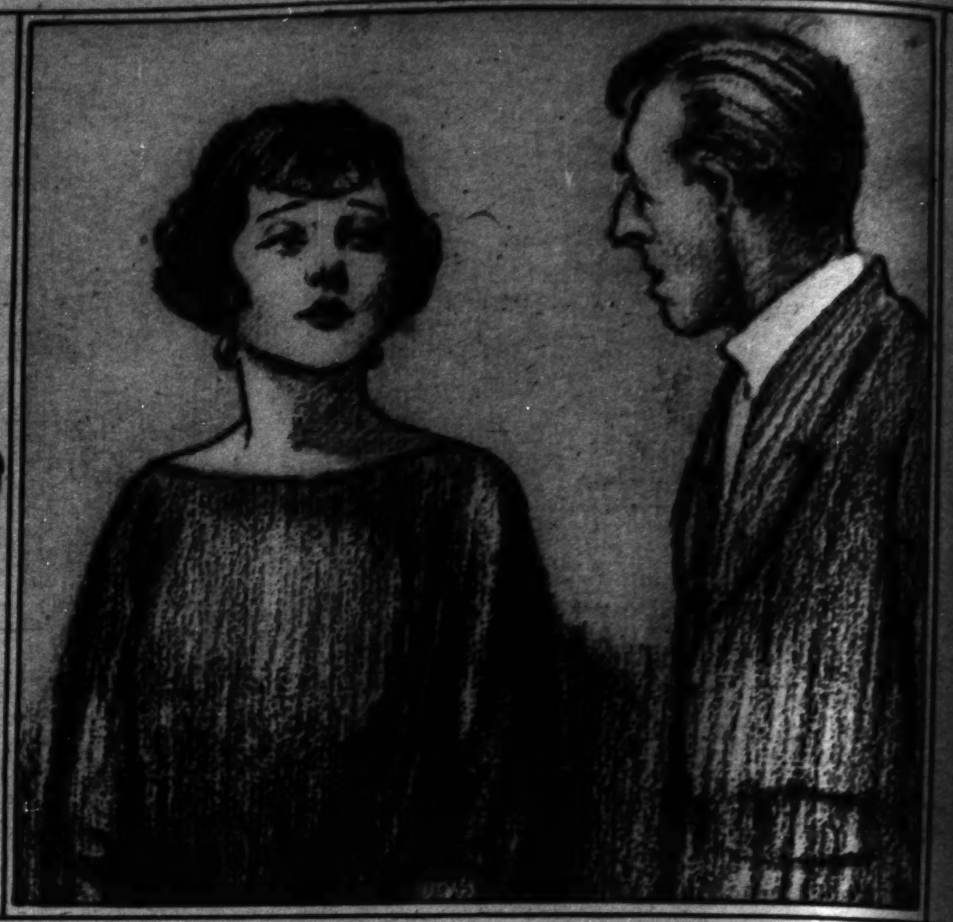
HOSPITALITY

BY W. E. HILL

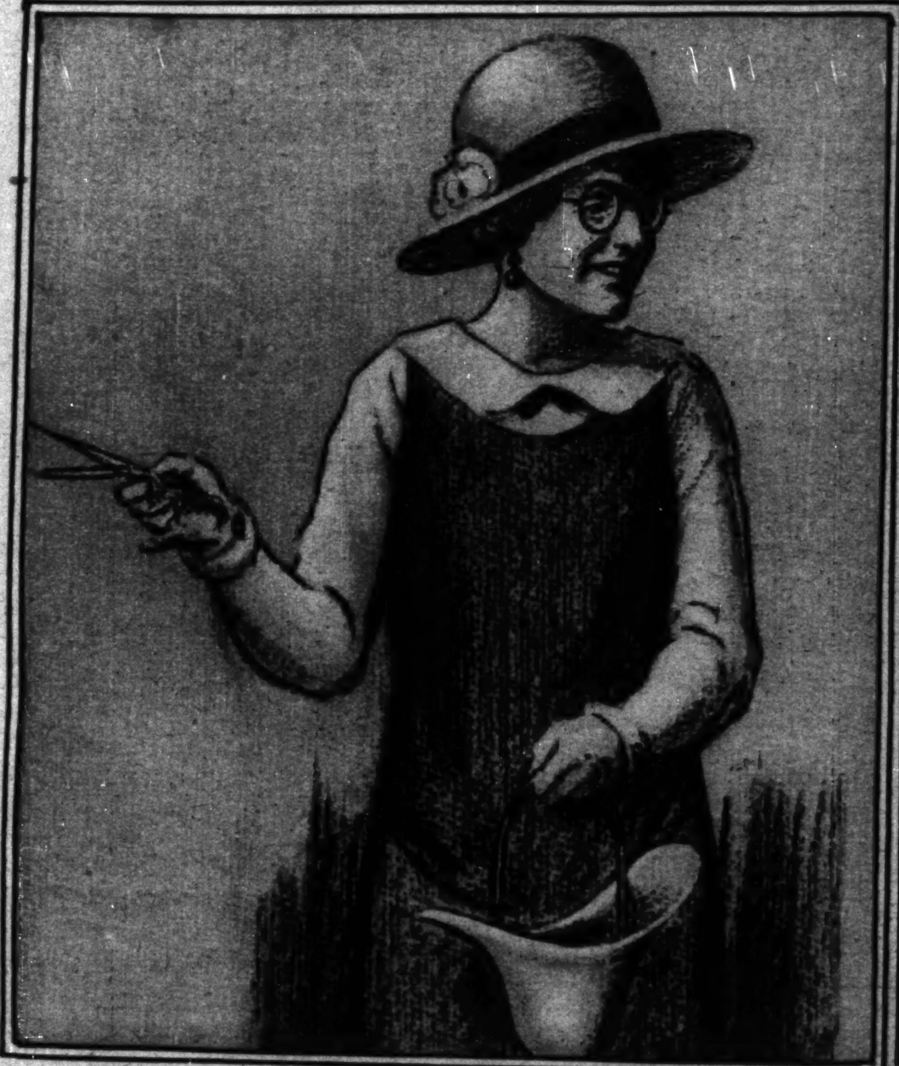
Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.



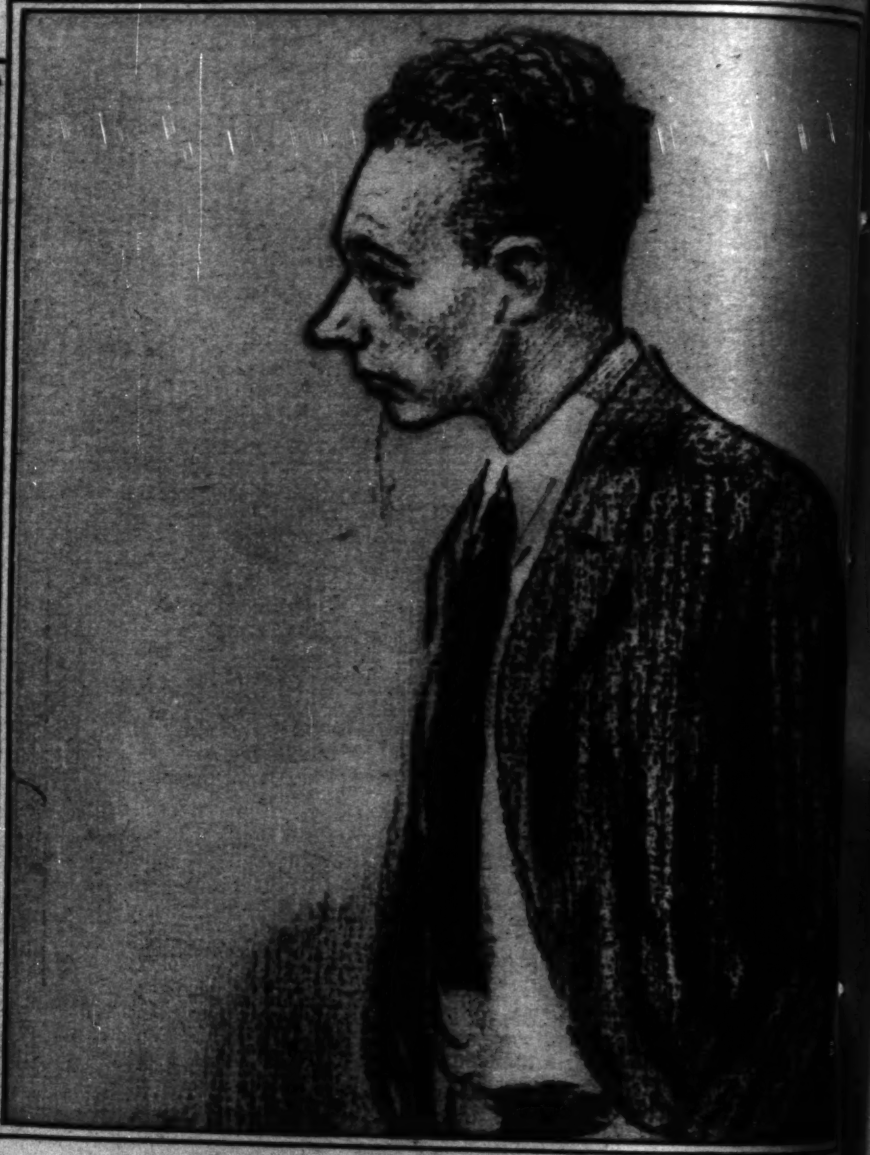
Just about this time of year people in the suburbs are especially hospitable. When a week-end guest comes out nothing will do but the w. e. g. take an armful of vegetables back to town—cabbages and beets being most in vogue.



Mrs. Bronson is being hospitality itself. She is urging Watkins, a visitor's chauffeur, to go swimming in the pool. "Do I look that dirty?" complains Watkins to the second maid.



The active hostess who exudes hospitality at every pore. Every pore is working every moment. Just when a week-end guest is nicely settled with a book or pipe, the active hostess comes in. "Now you mustn't," she begins, "sit here reading when there's all this lovely outdoors! Come, I want you to see the view from the end of my aster bed!" Active hostesses love taking a guest on long walks for the mail.



Even more trying than a week-end with the active hostess is the Saturday or Monday under the roof of the hostess who believes that a guest should be left to himself. This is a most hospitable household, and Rodney has been urged to do just whatever he likes. Rodney can't think of anything to do but look at the view and whistle. His hostess, with the best intentions in the world, has disappeared.

"Well, my dear,
Sunday morning
wild! I never g any two people in they couldn't pl tennis or anythin bly-inclined week talking over the guests with this brances who, it seen, play neither tennis.

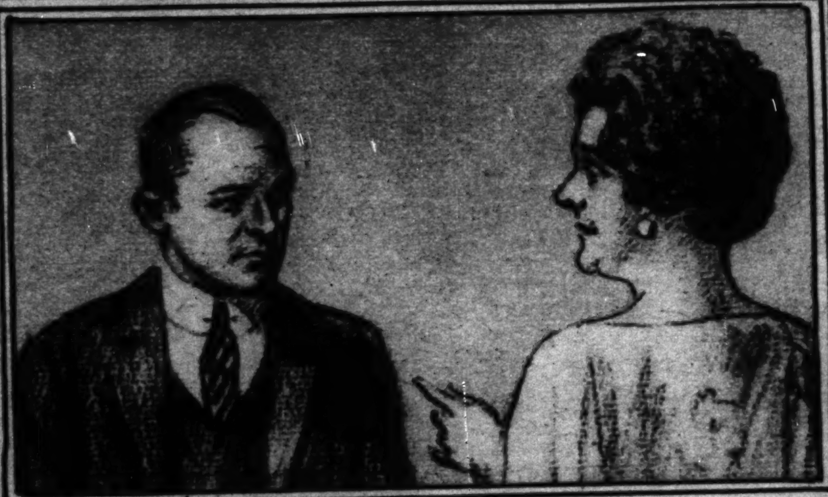
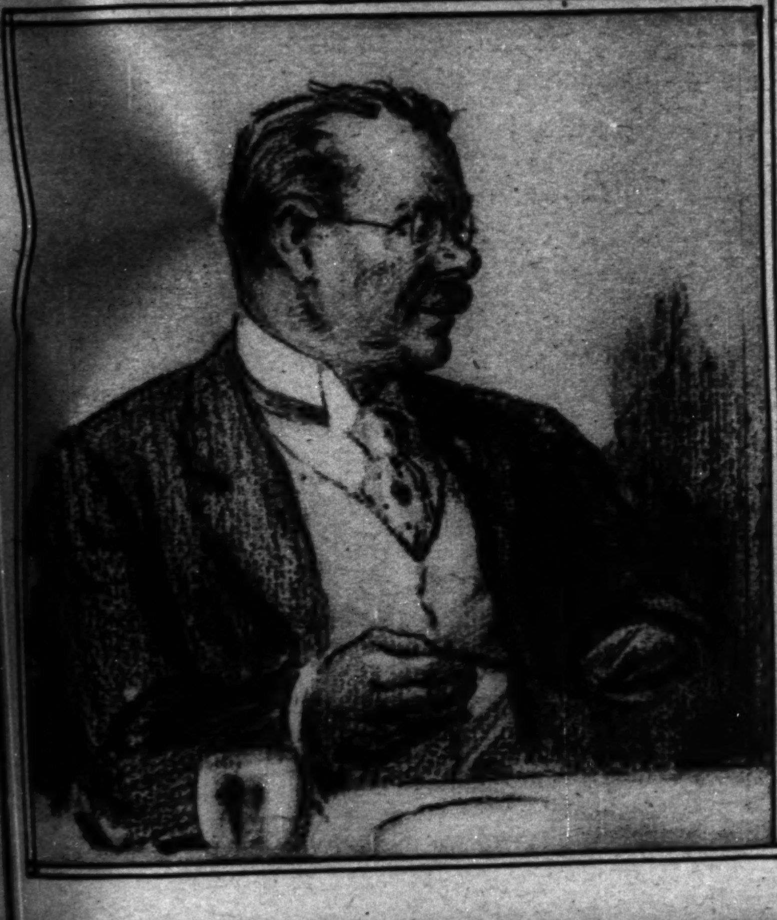
Apologetic hospitality. Says the nervous hostess, "You know we'd love to have you stay over, but of course there isn't a thing to do here—not a thing to do. But if you'd care to stay over," etc., etc.

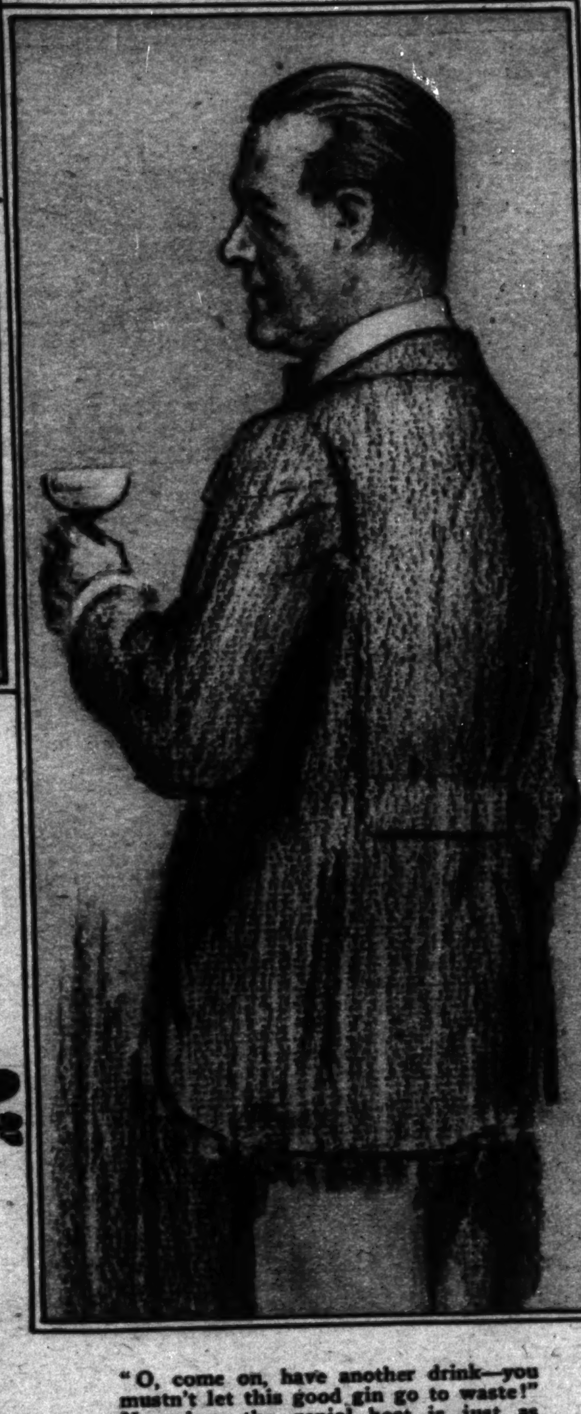
"Well, my dear, I thought by Sunday morning I would go wild! I never got so tired of any two people in my life. And they couldn't play bridge or tennis or anything!" Hospitably-inclined week-end hostess, talking over the last week-end guests with this week's incumbrances who, it remains to be seen, play neither bridge nor tennis.



Bathroom hospitality. "Now this is your bathroom," the hostess assures you; "No one will use it but you. Joe and I may run in now and then to get something, but it's your bath." A hardened week-ender will see at once that the bathroom is to be very common property.



"Come now, just let me give you a little more of this nice, white meat! You haven't eaten enough to keep a bird alive!" Thus urged the genial host in the olden days, when it was the thing to insist on second and third helpings.



"O, come on, have another drink—you mustn't let this good gin go to waste!" Nowadays the genial host is just as genial—even more so perhaps after the fourth cocktail—and he doesn't stop at second and third helpings.

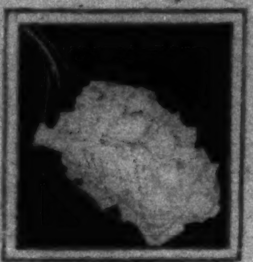
And now—relief from that three-times-a-day in-the-dishpan look

This new way to wash dishes is as easy on your hands as fine toilet soap



135 dishwashings in the big new package!

So natural—you wonder it wasn't thought of before! Lux for washing dishes. Of course it would bring relief from that three-times-a-day-in-the-dishpan look. Of course, too, it would be as gentle on your hands as on the dainty things you've always trusted to its pure suds.

Your skin needs just as much care for it is even softer and finer in texture than the most delicate silks or chiffons. Strong soaps in your dishpan three times a day rob your skin of all its indispensable natural oils.

Nature provides millions of tiny oil sacs just beneath the surface of the skin to keep the skin pleasantly soft and supple. But the supply is not plentiful enough to hold out when harsh, alkaline soaps are used for washing dishes. They drain all the oil sacs dry. Your skin becomes so coarse and scratchy that you can't even touch a piece of silk without roughening it up.

With Lux in your dishpan you won't have any of these annoying after-effects. Lux gently stimulates the natural oils that keep your hands soft and smooth. It won't redden or roughen the most sensitive skin. The delicate flakes are as easy on your hands as fine toilet soap.

Just one teaspoonful to a pan

That is all you need—just one teaspoonful in your dishwater. It sounds incredible, but try it.

The familiar regular size package does 54 dishwashings—and now there is the big new Lux package which will do 135 dishwashings. All the dishes for six weeks! Keep a package of Lux handy on your kitchen shelf. Don't let that hour and a half in the dishpan every day be a hardship to your hands. Begin washing today's dishes with Lux. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Looting Nature's Treasure to give new beauty to your roof

A BLAST of dynamite! Then the cracking picks, the scraping shovels dig for nature's buried treasure. And soon they reveal it—a beautiful new color in slate for your roof.

This new weathered brown slate nature created as she does her jewels—by pressing it for ages under mountains of earth and rock. It is as beautiful as the frosty tan of autumn fields, and is now available to you on a wholly new slate-surfaced shingle.

Only in the Richardson quarries of Georgia has it ever been found. And it grows richer with age, as the tan of rocks on the shore deepens under the ceaseless wash of ocean waves.

Architects are enthusiastic over the rare color effects of the weathered brown, especially when it is blended with other Richardson shingles of jade green, tile red, or black pearl.

A super-shingle

THIS new weathered brown is used only on the Richardson Super-Giant Shingle—a unique roofing product which you should know all about, no matter what color you select.

For this shingle offers a new degree of serviceability in a roof, just as the weathered brown offers new beauty.

First, because it is 37% larger than the ordinary shingle, fewer are needed to cover a given roofing area. Thus the cost of laying is 35% less.

Second, it is 50% thicker than the ordinary shingle and therefore lasts much longer. Incidentally this greater thickness casts a deeper shadow line that gives life and interest to the roof.

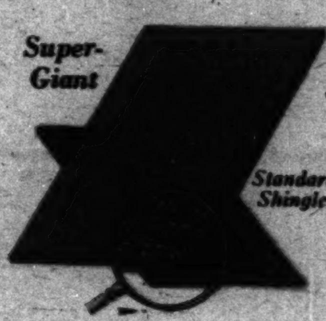
Third, because it is 100% stiffer than the ordinary shingle, it remains rigid under all kinds of weather and makes the whole roof twice as firm.

Its inner secrets

BUT, of course, the true measure of roofing service goes beyond the color or size of the shingle to the materials in it. As you know, slate-surfaced shingles are built on a base or core of felt impregnated with asphalt and surfaced under pressure with slate granules.

Exceptional quality in these three materials makes the Richardson Super-Giant the finest slate-surfaced shingle produced.

From the makers of Flex-a-tile Housetops, Vialalt Membrane Roofs, Viskote, Wall Board and similar products.



The Super-Giant Shingle—50% thicker, 100% more rigid, and 35% more economical in cost of laying

Take, for instance, the felt upon which depends the very life of your roof. Richardson felt, so architects or roofing dealers will tell you, has for fifty years been recognized and used as the best. The asphalt is refined exclusively by the Richardson process from the highest grade raw materials. And the flakes of slate surfacing, found only in the Richardson quarries, seal the shingle permanently against weather and fire hazards.

Prove the facts yourself

A SUPER-SHINGLE indeed, when you weigh its points one by one! First—absolutely exclusive color effects. Second—unusual dimensions which give you added roofing protection at 1/3 less in cost of laying. And finally—exceptionally high-test standards in its three materials: felt, asphalt and slate surfacing.

Go to your nearest dealer in lumber, hardware or building material or to your contractor, and ask to see the Richardson Super-Giant Shingle in weathered brown. Feel it, weigh it, measure it, note the rare color. Then compare it with ordinary shingles—the difference will convince you.

Meanwhile, send for our beautiful new booklet, "Roofs of Distinction," showing the exclusive color combinations of Richardson slate surfacing, and containing valuable roofing facts. Or ask for our booklet, "Roofing on the Farm." Just use the coupon below.
